Every year the cry goes up about how "commercialized" Christmas is becoming, or rather has become.

Even with inflation and hunger in the world, there is little diminution in consumer zeal for gadgets, gifts and food.

Gifts . . . parties . . . food . . . refreshment. They are all here and available, in abundance at this time of year.

Even the Christmas lights are around in some profusion — energy shortage or not.

The Christmas story itself has been commercialized, practically every entertainer with half-a-voice having to capitalized on scriptural text, carols and hymns, all the way to the Lord's prayer.

But it's all in the spirit of Christmas. It would not be Christmas if these elements were missing. It's human nature too: the spending and the revelry and the giving, and the television specials and the recording of Christmas music by those same entertainers serve to place emphasis on the gospel message, and are often very moving and done with reverence and good taste.

Having said that, there is a great deal of scope for more restraint in spending, and specifically, for setting aside monies and gifts for the less fortunate at home and abroad.

Only a couple of months have passed since a hurricane devastated Honduras and we might remember, in a practical way, needy people there and in other countries by making contributions through the various relief organizations. People such as 14-year-old Agustina Ramos, who spent each day making a difficult half-hour climb, over a mountainous path through heavy tropical growth, to bring river water to her family, water in an earthen jug carried on her head.

A Carleton University student, Debbie DeLancey, puts the normal human instincts about Christmas, relative to worship and to celebration, and to a sense of awe at everyday humanity in perspective. In an article in The Ottawa Citizen, she writes: "A conservative estimate places the number of deaths from undernourishment in the world at ten to ten million — meaning that during a four-hour holiday party, 4,560 people will die for lack of food."

No need to underline the role all of us can play in alleviating the harsh realities of famine. We may not be able to feed the world, as Agriculture Minister Whelan has suggested, but in light of what is spent at Christmas we could do a lot more than we are at present.

University Initiatives

Queen's University among others is feeling the pinch of reduced Government funding these days. However, it has not hampered publication of the country's interesting Campus 74 and other news releases.

There is even word in current release of a grant of $5,000 from the Canadian International Development Agency to the Institute of Biomedical Studies in Santo Domingo. This is a collaborative project between Queen's and a university in the Dominican Republic, in the field of health care delivery systems.

This is the sort of positive, non-political effort which Canadians should feel disposed to support when it comes to overseas aid. Too often, such aid is in fact politically-oriented, and directed toward aid for international causes rather than in the cause of democratic process, or to the interests of the average Canadian.

Racist Trends

In Boston, Mass. the other day a white student was knifed by a black. Pandemonium followed; other black students were trapped in their school and a large crowd of whites which had gathered chanted "Bus them back to Africa."

So much for attempts at integration in that part of the United States. It is also a lesson in inter-racial relations, or rather non-relations, for those who believe that racism exists only in other parts of the world.

And what about Canada — any suggestion of racism here? Ask our native peoples about that one; or Jake Epp, Conservative MP for Provencher, Man., who was in Belleville recently.

Speaking as he put it "very bluntly," Mr. Epp said people are deeply concerned about the racial background of the immigrants we're getting."

Racism in Canada? It is all too evident.

Constitutional Conference in Offing

South Africa Forces Rhodesia Into Talks With Blacks

By KEVIN DOYLE
The Canadian Press

The Rhodesian government's sudden agreement to hold a constitutional conference on Rhodesia's future is a triumph for the mediation efforts of white-ruled South Africa and black-ruled Zambia.

In announcing that the white-minority government will free all black political prisoners in return for a ceasefire in the Rhodesian guerrilla war, Prime Minister Ian Smith, informed sources say, was simply echoing a formula virtually forced on him by South African Premier John Vorster. His decision to begin talking to black nationalist leaders appears to have been similarly inspired.

And it seems to have been Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda who refused the arms of the Rhodesian blacks and convinced them to agree to a constitutional conference without any pre-conditions and to call a ceasefire.

But the whole issue raises the question of why Vorster, a committed white racist, and Kaunda, equally committed to black-majority rule in Africa, have acted in the ways they have.

Smith's role is clearer. Rhodesia could not survive the international economic blockade against it without the help of South Africa. It was also heavily dependent on South African military aid in the war against the guerrillas.

Smith, observers say, had to submit to South African pressure because of this and he undoubtedly believes he can do so and still prolong a constitutional conference and hinder any real progress to black-majority rule indefinitely.

For Vorster's part, his interest in promoting peace in southern Africa seems real enough. But it appears to have been Portugal's granting of independence to neighboring Mozambique earlier this year and the fear of a successful Marxist Frelimo liberation movement there which spurred him to action.

The possibility was growing that Frelimo would eventually close its ports to Rhodesian traffic and step up guerrilla raids against white Rhodesians. If that happened South Africa could not have avoided the consequences.

South Africa already has 2,000 policemen fighting alongside Smith's forces against the guerrillas in Rhodesia and Vorster's hero would undoubtedly have to send much larger if fighting intensified.

Within South Africa, Frelimo threatened to become a kind of charismatic force among the country's black majority if relations worsened with Mozambique. The implications of an awakened black nationalism might have been disastrous for South Africa's whites.

In addition, South Africa's United Nations membership hangs by a string and it seemed certain that if Vorster had to get more deeply involved in a kind of Vietnam-like entanglement in Rhodesia, the UN section would be severed completely.

Finally, Mozambique and black-ruled Malawi provide well over half the labor force for South Africa's gold mines and there was a growing danger that eventually this might be withdrawn if Vorster was unable to improve the political climate swiftly.

Kaunda's motives are clouder but appear to be largely that of the new leader of a united black nationalist movement which could hope to win power in Rhodesia through negotiations rather than by a long and bloody guerrilla war.

Not that it isn't fitting that the house should have a strong urban voice.

The Ontario of today is largely urban.

But there is a danger that the important reminder of the province, our agricultural and natural resources sectors, cannot be given the attention they merit.

It is true that this has not happened to date.

But at the same time one has been able to see the attention of the government rectifying more and more to big-city problems such as mass transit.

And at the same time one hears little about such problems as agriculture, unless they concern consumer prices.

The word on behalf of Chief Election Officer Roderick Lewis, one of the three members of the commission.

Some quite rabid charges have been made against Mr. Lewis by the NDP.

It should be noted that as a former cabinet Mr. Lewis can't defend himself.

MPPs Have Mixed Feelings On Redistribution

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — In these final few days of the session, amidst the hurly-burly that always marks the closing stages, the minds of some members will be on redistribution.

The second report of the redistribution commission has been received.

And now it is only a matter of the house reporting back on any changes and the report will be final.

Those changes are expected to be few.

There is probably a goodly number of members who are not too happy with the alterations that have been made in their riding boundaries.

But between the first and second reports the commission, having heard the initial complaints, both from members and from groups, made the alterations it thought were worthwhile and that is probably pretty well that.

Any further redrafting is likely to be minor.

The government will be introducing a bill which will probably be up for debate early in the new year but it is expected to follow the lines of the report.

The most important factor in the redistribution, and in turn the most significant, is that the number of ridings will be increased from 117 to 125 (two more than in the original report).

The significance of that all the additional ridings are up north, with the majority in the greater Toronto area and one in Oakville and one in Kitchener.

In a sense this can be disturbing for it increases the urban dominance in the house.

Not that it isn't fitting that the house should have a strong urban voice.

The Ontario of today is largely urban.

But there is a danger that the important reminder of the province, our agricultural and natural resources sectors, cannot be given the attention they merit.

Waving The Flag U.S. And UK-Style

Montreal Gazette.

To the Daughters of the American Revolution, it is an incredulous affront that President Ford has picked a British-born woman as deputy administrator of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. To others, it may be difficult to think of anyone more appropriate. The Daughters should recall that all their Revolutionary forebears on whom their membership in the society depends were also at one time British subjects who, like Marjorie Lynch, voluntarily came over to the other side.

Letter in
The Montreal Gazette

You recently carried an article in your paper about Barron's, the American business and financial weekly, which says that it is a good bet that Canada would still be "a nation of trappers and fur farmers" were it not for United States "enterprise and capital." Canadians might reflect on "some of the benefits of what they've call American capitalism."

These are strong and insulting words to Canadians coming from an assumed sophisticated and highly regarded publication such as Barron's. I wonder if the person responsible for writing this article is aware that previous to the year 1900 the United States depended on Great Britain for financial support in the building of its industries and railways.

We in Canada are aware that we depended on Britain for financial support in the building of our railways such as the Grand Trunk Pacific (CNR now) and the Canadian Pacific. From 1900 on, a vast majority of our new great industries were financed in Britain.

I doubt if we will throw this back in the face of the British.

I would refer Barron's to the words of the late Lord Beaverbrook "The United States relied on British capital in its early stage of development. Canada is in turn came to rely on capital from the United States.

That as the U.S. was able to escape from the lending strings of the London market, Canada would in due course get rid of her dependence on Wall Street."

Post-Municipal Election Letdown

The Globe and Mail

...Now that the election pressure is off, we would like to write to the Mayor for a minute. David Crombie, that is; the author of that irresistible printed invitation to call 925-6666 because "David Crombie would like to talk to you for a minute."

Things were pretty busy at The Globe and Mail when the dial-a-mayor invitations were being distributed to the citizens, but we called yesterday to find out what was on his mind. We wanted to know "where Toronto should be in the next ten years" - and we are in agreement that "this city is too important not to listen".

Here-here - Rare-here - I'm sorry; the number you have dialled is not in service. This is a recording ...

"This is too important ..." but the nice Bell lady talked right through it - as David Crombie's recorded message would no doubt also have done.

That's the way it is in politics. One minute they are seizing you by the lapels and babbling about bylaws, or sitting by the telephone waiting and praying for your call; the next, they are gone and you realize you have been cut aside like an old recording.

Come back, Mayor Crombie, and tell us again how it's going to be in the next ten years. It'll only take a minute.

Hospital Facilities

Sharp Reaction in Trenton To Any Belleville Link

The Trentonian

Nothing has caused so much public anger as the Ontario government's continued determined attempts to push regionalism of one kind or another down our throats.

It is not cheaper. It creates an army of civil servants and bureaucrats, many with inflated salaries to control the little empires. We have it with school board, and the cost to the province of the Lakeshore needs little argument, since it is self evident to every taxpayer.

Regional governments have added to costs, and the problems blamed on them by irate farces have created trouble, with citizens getting ever more remote from government and unable to get at anything without red tape.

Now our hospitals are targets for the same greedy hands.

Trenton built a hospital with the zeal and generosity of all its citizens. For many years there have been donations and from time to time public fund raising campaigns to build additions. Everyone pitches in, labored to buy equipment and keep the hospital supplied with material. They have initiated a gift shop, with proceeds which would be another target of the regionalists.

Initially, when the hospital was built, pay cheque donations were made to the hospital as a stake in the hospital. Municipalities, like Belleville, have aided, in the belief that they were getting something which would put all the adequate services in and around the town, and make running in Belleville unnecessary.

It is a humorous remark that Belleville is "only 11 miles away". The distance is small, children, mothers-to-be, and anyone concerned with emergencies. But 11 miles is the difference between life and death. Some have to transportation and there is little adequate public transportation, especially for emergency needs.

Besides, with a well equipped hospital here, who needs it?

Now, it appears somebody has initiated a study which would replace the hospital service. At least some Trenton facilities, under current plan, go to Belleville General Hospital, making it necessary to send children from Trenton to the main target to that city.

The present minister hastily says it is merely a study. Indeed! Who asked for it? The previous minister says it came from Trenton. Did it? The board and doctors appear not to want it, as far as we can determine. The ministry should make this clear; because its statement initially made it seem the Trenton board was the instigator.

Nobody in Trenton wants to lose our hospital for any part of it, or the control of it.

But the study has been made and does appear sympathetic at at least one service with Belleville. It also suggests Kingston. It also makes it the centre for the regional hospital council for Trenton, Picton and Belleville.

What becomes of Trenton's oft repeated desire to go west, not east?

Do we have to elect a Trenton MLA to stop everything being centralized in Belleville?

Have much more expensive and unnecessary regionalism is the Davis government going to jam down our throats?

Government control continues to ride roughshod over local citizens just demands and rights and they find that the citizens will turf them out the first time they get their hands on a ballot.

From the point of view of very strong Trenton citizens, it is "Hands off our hospital." We agree with them.

MP Pay Boost Recommended

Brockville Recorder and Times

Why refer to the recommendation of a non-political committee of members that a salary boost of 44 percent be given to federal MPs.

The government has aided, condoned and even ordered wage raises several times the amount of any guidelines that would normally be used if it was seriously trying to fight inflation.

A percentage increase is one sure way to make the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

An old-age pensioner now getting $179 a month with a 50 percent raise would receive an extra $720 a year. A federal MP with the same percentage would get some $13,500 or nearly 1,000 percent more than the pensioner. There is also no hope or talk of a 50 percent increase in pensions.

The MPs do not have such a raise, and it is still only a recommendation, and it can be hoped that they will settle for very much less.

LIP Funds Give Trail First Major Facelift

by HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The pastoral peace of the Quinte Hastings Recreation Trail is part has been an enforced serenity.

Lack of funds permitted little maintenance activity to break the backwoods calm along its 32-mile route which runs across Hastings and Prince Edward County.

Now, after two years, the long work silence at last is being interrupted.

It's the result of a $26,000 Local Initiatives Program grant.

It was among $140,000 to 16 projects allotted Hastings riding from the federal fund for 1974-75 winter work on community projects.

The allocation will permit rehabilitation along about 130 miles of the trail from Bancroft in Belleville - north-south boundary mariners of the riding.

Work already has started from converging directions.

A two-man team will move from the Belleville area to Bannockburn, eventually joining up with another group working south from Bancroft.

Brush-clearing, trail marking, rerouting through more suitable environmental areas will be a major part of the work.

By summer, says trail-secretary Grant Harvey, the Belleville-Bancroft section then should be in trimmer shape for the hikers, riders and hikers for which it was originally designed.

North of Belleville, trails technician Don Goodwin and outdoorsman Dave Harcourt already have tramped about 100 miles through parts of Thurlow and Huntingdon Townships on a preliminary survey.

Among their findings: The need to get more of the trail across country, away from travelled rural roads.

They also are compiling notes on flora and fauna, historic and geophysical features to be included with new trail maps.

Part of their task also will be outlining a link from Belleville's city limits into the start of the trail eight miles north in Sidney Township.

Getting the trail in shape with all its contrasting features published is vital says Don Goodwin.

Other big trails - like the Appalachian in the United States and Ontario's Bruce Trail - attract many visitors and now are becoming crowded. As a result the pressure will mount for more facilities, he said.

Spread across such a distance the $26,000 grant may not produce spectacular results, indicates Mr. Harvey. Most of it will go in wages for the eight jobs the program creates.

Nonetheless, after two years frustration in a search for public and private funds - and volunteer help - to keep up the big outdoors facility, the LIP funds come as a welcome break for directors, says trail president Jim Staveley.

After crossing the trail - from Lake Ontario to near Algonquin Park - in...e winters ago, with a $125,000 LIP grant, the hoteliers had little success in appeals for help.

What working aid they've received so far has mostly come from youth sources - school environmental clubs, service cadets and scouts.

Work Under Way

Trail technician Don Goodwin (left) and David Harcourt check maps and data they've collected on five - day tramp across Quinte-Hastings trail route.

It's part of work now underway on rehabilitating the facility after federal Local Initiatives Program granted $26,000.

Officials Discuss Family Planning

District public health authorities and volunteer family planning representatives tonight will discuss a provincial information program planned for next year.

Health Minister Frank Miller said late last week the provincial will spend $2 million on the contraception and family planning information scene.

Local official health agencies will be responsible for the program in their areas.

Some years ago a proposal to making such information available through a clinic in Belleville was dropped said Dr. C.R. Lenk, public health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Such a project was discussed with local doctors and other community groups at the time. But the feeling was that, in a community the size of Belleville, people might be embarrassed to seek information in a formal clinic setting, said Dr. Lenk.

A more feasible alternative was felt to be having information available through the health unit,doctors and some form of community agency.

A community organization — The Family Planning Association — now operates an office in Belleville.

Dispensing such information also is standard procedure for the counties' health nurses during their assigned duties.

Dr. Lenk said he and the unit's nursing director, Olga Wallace, will discuss the midnight program tonight with Family Planning Association representatives.

More Quinte Tourists Expected

Vera McMurray, president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council anticipates the grouping of tourist councils in central Ontario will accelerate tourist business in the region.

The provincial government recently announced that tourist councils would be grouped together, but would retain their individual identities. Under the scheme increased provincial support from the province would be provided.

Provincial financial assistance will be tied to amounts raised in individual regions through county and municipal grants and membership."

Under the new grouping the Highlands of Hastings region and Land O' Lakes region make up the east zone of the Central Ontario Travel Association. Other members of the central group are Great Pine Ridge, Kay of Quinte and Lake Simcoe beach zones and Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Highlands fourth zone.

Possible Oil Spills Worries Council

City hall staff was asked Monday night to check possible seepage from Canadian National Railway oil storage tanks in its yards in northeast Belleville.

Ald. Joe Cox requested that the railroad be contacted about runoff into a ditch near College and Centre streets, adjacent to the tank area.

A separator was installed by the railroad to correct the problem, but the councillor suggested the device could malfunction, thereby causing leakage into the ditch which drains toward the Moira River.

Ald. Art Keegan said he has been told that sometimes when the tanks are being filled there are an operator present to check against oil running over onto the ground. The suggestions were raised as council gave readings to a bylaw involving a location change for the proposed storm sewer trunk in the area.

Danny Joly Doesn't Grow Unless He's Helped Along

How many times have you heard adoring mothers say they wish their toddlers would never grow up! "They're so sweet when they're little ... Once they grow up they just fly the nest ..."

One question must, however, is a definite exception. Netta Joly, mother of three-year-old Danny, wishes for exactly the opposite to happen. Because unless he is helped by special hormone treatment, Danny doesn't grow.

When Danny was born, he seemed a normal, healthy baby, says Mrs. Joly. But within two hours he was critically ill.

His first three months of life were spent in Grace Maternity Hospital in Halifax. By the time he was ten months old, his illness was diagnosed without a shadow of a doubt: Danny's pituitary gland doesn't function properly.

In fact, Danny has only a fraction of what is ordinarily a tiny pea-sized gland nestled in the central part of the brain. And without his pituitary, and the growth hormone (somatotrophin) that it secretes, Danny cannot grow.

In addition to this problem, several other glands cannot function as they should without the stimulus of the pituitary, the "master switch" controlling the body's entire hormone system.

Luckily for Danny, these other difficulties brought him under medical care very early. As a result, he has already received hormone treatment, and is now in good health. But he has a long way to go before he reaches "normal" height.

Because Danny's treatment began when he was two years old, he should be able to reach a "socially acceptable" height of five feet, two inches. Without the injections, he would be a dwarf, less than three feet tall, and with some degree of deformity.

Although mental development isn't impaired, the stigma of being a dwarf often retards social progress. But happily for Danny, his years of being "too little" will be too early for him to remember.

When he was two, before he began the six-month-long series of growth hormone injections, Danny was 32 inches tall and weighed only 21 pounds. During the treatment period he grew four times the normal rate, and now, three months past his fifth birthday, is 30 inches tall and weighs 30 pounds.

He wears a size five and has his first pair of winter boots, he was too tiny to wear before. Not only is his physical growth improved, his mother notices that his vocabulary has developed and his confidence has blossomed.

Danny's parents, Michel and Netta Joly, are both short — he's five feet, six inches and she's four feet eleven inches — and although this will make his life a little easier than if he belonged to a tall family, it has nothing at all to do with his condition.

"This is definitely not a genetic problem," says Mrs. Joly, who explains that a virus contracted during her early weeks of pregnancy prevented the pituitary gland's normal progress.

Looking back, Mrs. Joly is not certain when or how it occurred. But then, she seldom looks back. Netta Joly's entire focus is towards a bright future for Danny.

"I decided that my child's need was so great that I would do anything to help him," she says of the months after Danny's case had been diagnosed. "I'd have stood on my head if it would have done any good."

When we finally decided what was wrong with Danny, and that he'd need special hormone treatment, I visualized his condition was so rare that he might not get help unless people knew about it."

Mrs. Joly contacted the interview show on Halifax television. She and Danny appeared on the show, explaining what he needed in order to grow. Growth hormone extracted from pituitary glands obtained from human beings after death.

Since it takes one gland to produce enough extract for one injection, Danny's well-being depends on approximately 75 hormone donors for one six-month series of treatments. That's close to 1,000 donors in order to keep him growing through his formative years.

Response to the television show was heavy. More than 2,000 viewers wrote for donor cards, and the Dartmouth Jaycettes Club took up Danny's cause as a result. They publicized the need for growth hormone donations with everything from bumper stickers to news media exposure.

Mr. and Mrs. Joly are grateful to the Nova Scotians who made early treatment possible for Danny. Newly moved to Trenton where Mr. Joly works in the CFB post office, they hope now that the community here will rally in the same way.

Danny Joly loves his new red snowsuit even though they're still a little too big. On the arm of his rocker sits one of his tiny baby shoes, size "double zero". The shoes, approximately three inches long, were Danny's only pair until after his hormone treatment helped him grow. He only grows for six months of every year during treatment.

Story and Picture
by Isabel Huggan

Rare Problem—And Solution

There are 39 other children in Canada who have the same problem Danny does.

But very few of them have been as fortunate as Danny, to have growth hormone/treatment begin at such an early age. Most must wait until they are seven or eight years old — by which time they have already suffered the psychological pain of being "too small".

Like Danny, these children can receive injections for only six months of every year.

The reason for this is not that it's best for the child. In fact, the longer and more continuous the treatment, the more practical and normal the growth rate.

The reason is that there's just not enough growth hormone to go round.

The Canadian Medical Research Council (the agency that collects and processes the hormone) has arranged this method of distribution to insure each child at least partial treatment. Injections only begin after a six-month supply of growth hormone has been accumulated. And that isn't easy.

Since the Human Tissue Act passed in 1972, there has been a severe decline in the number of pituitary glands available. Until then, coroners performing autopsies removed them in the course of their investigations. Knowing the great need for hormone extract, they sent the glands to the council for therapeutic use.

Now, however, the Act makes it illegal to remove any part of a human body for purposes other than diagnosis. Consent for removal must be given by the family of the deceased, who must specify what organ or gland be taken.

Since pituitary deficiency is relatively rare, few people are aware of the desperate need for donations.

As a result, there are fewer pituitary glands being collected although the need for them increases. Only human glands are suitable for therapeutic use.

Dr. R.S. Smith, chief pathologist at Belleville General Hospital, explains that removal of the pituitary is a simple procedure done at the back of the skull. Consequently, an open-casket funeral can still take place, and the family can have the satisfaction of knowing excellent use has been made of the gland.

"Donating a pituitary doesn't cost anything," says Dr. Smith. "The gland is viable whether it comes from a young or an old person. In most cases it is not detected even if other areas of the body are diseased.

"There isn't the same urgency for removal of the pituitary as there is for other organs and glands. Anytime within a day of death is fine."

Persons wishing to donate their pituitary gland to the assistance of children like Danny should make their wish known to their families, who must give consent after death. Families of deceased persons should contact the doctor or coroner within 24 hours.

Although there are special cards for the donation of eyes for cornea transplants, there are none for pituitary donations. Anyone who wishes more information should consult with his doctor or write to the Dartmouth Jaycettes, 21 Terra Nova Avenue, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

JODI

This little darling is Jodi, six months old.

Jodi is blind.

The cause is not known and as medical knowledge is at present there is nothing that can be done to give her sight. So this baby is going to have to learn to live in darkness.

Jodi, of course, does not know she has a problem. She is plump, healthy and especially happy, full of smiles and her own endearing chatter.

In most ways Jodi is developing normally. She is active and strong and her only illness has been mild sniffles when her two teeth were coming through.

Jodi is in an excellent foster home where, besides the tender loving care a baby should have, she is on a program worked out for her by a home visitor from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. She is learning new things every day.

Feeling and touching are a big part of a blind child's education and already Jodi does a lot of exploring with her hands. She can handle small things and her foster mother makes sure she is able to feel all kinds of things, including her food, messy as it may be.

Jodi has a good appetite. She eats a big variety of baby foods and drinks two per cent milk. She sleeps right through the night.

Dear little Jodi needs a family who will help her as much as possible — but not by doing everything for her. Rather by treating her as a normal child and encouraging her to become independent.

Jodi will do best in a stable home where life is orderly and where changes are kept to a minimum.

To inquire about adopting Jodi, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P3H1.

Poll Unfair to Doctors

Dear Ann Landers: Your po to determine which male ; fessionals become intin most frequently was unfair.

Of course it would be the d tors, ahead of the lawyers clergymen—and for good re sons.

First, a woman sees her do for much more frequently th she sees her lawyer or clerg man. In fact, most women do. see a lawyer unless they a getting divorced or writing will. The average woman se her clergyman only when he : in the pulpit, unless she has problem and goes for cou selling or her daughter is gr ting married or, God forbid, it is burying a loved one. Ans let's be frank about it, dear, le gal business or counselling do not require disrobing or physi cal contact. So, Ann Landers what do you expect?—Fleas. Be Fair

Dear Fair: I don't expect anything. What do YOU expect?

Granted, the frequency of vis its and the nature of the rela tionship between a male physician and a female patient would make intimacy more possible. But an ethical physician keeps his nurse in the examining room at all times and he knows how to block the passes of sexually aggressive women.

I've said it before and I'll say it again, no profession or business is immune from hanky panky between the sexes. I was not surprised that the physicians placed first in the poll—but the fact that they nearly lost out to the clergymen was a jolt.

Dear Ann Landers: No problem—just a few random thoughts and maybe a suggestion.

There seems to be more tension these days than ever before. And it does peculiar things to people. Tension produces nervous habits, twitching, pencil chewing, creativity, laughter, over-eating, over-drinking, insomnia, too much sex, not enough sex, loud arguments, divorce, drug abuse, excessive smoking, ulcers, headaches, itching, night terrors, giggling, rape, violent crimes, and war.

I've listed just a few ways of teasing tension—some beneficial, some destructive. Of the best ways to get rid of tension is to eliminate the cause for it. Any ideas?—Mad-

Dear Madam: Tension is produced by conflict, counterproductiveness, anger, aggression, frustration and a host of other things that are built into the personalities of a great many people, especially the achievers.

These individuals who learn to handle their self-destructive impulses and curb their antisocial behavior function well. The hero develops a wide assortment of physical and social problems and are constantly in trouble," with themselves and others. Thanks for a provocative letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope his letter will awaken all horse players from their dream world.

The large takeout of 17 per cent combined with the breakage system is enough to confirm the old saying, "Horse players always die broke." A 15-per-cent takeout would mean the track would take out $2 on every $13 bet.

I'm not suggesting that you stay away from the track altogether if you enjoy it. I'm just saying stick to the $2 window. There is nothing scientific about handicapping. Computers, calculators, systems and tip sheets are just ways for thumb lecturers and authors to get rich. If they were as good as the people who sell them claim they wouldn't be willing to sell them to you chumps.—Old Pro

Dear Pro: Makes sense to me—but then I don't have handicap fever. Thanks for writing.

Avoid Brothel Madam

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Brothel madam Beverly Harrell is no businesswoman but she's not quite what a businessman's lobbying groups has in mind for a representative in the Nevada legislature. The Citizens for Private Enterprise, trying to elect businessmen to legislative seats this year, threw its support to Mrs. Harrell's opponent, Don Moody, in the contest for an assembly seat.

Early Arthritis Diagnosis

Arthritis affects many people. There are about a hundred different kinds.

And here are some leads to follow about arthritis:

1. Get a correct diagnosis - only a doctor can make it - and the treatment program is based on it.

2. Get an early diagnosis - the earlier you catch it the better the results.

3. Don't expect absolute cures - no drug or diet or potato-in-the-pocket will cure. But treatment can prevent crippling and check disability.

4. Relief of joint inflammation can often be achieved in a matter of weeks. But if some difficulty persists the patient just better be glad he is able to be active at all.

5. Simple medications are valuable - but the doctor has to prescribe the dosage.

6. There are other drugs, there may be surgery, or diet to bring down weight; and there seems to be, in some cases, a relationship to climate.

You just can't generalize.

Persons who suffer from arthritis will want to write to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, 45 Charles Street East, Toronto, Ontario, M4Y 1S2, for copies of the two publications, namely: "About Arthritis" and "About The Arthritis Society", from which we gleaned the above pointers. It would help if you were to enclose an eight-cent stamp when you send in your request.

Commons Finally Approves Plan to Redistribute Seats

OTTAWA (CP) — Final Commons approval was given Monday night to a bill that will lead to a 295-seat House, largest ever, in about four years.

The bill to redistribute seats and add 17 MPs in the next election, expected in 1978, ended for the bill to become law. Its sometimes turbulent passage through the Commons on all-largest so far. It is one seat smaller now than it was between 1953 and 1962.

Its provisions, plus the proposed addition of a second Northwest Territories MP, would expand the 264-seat Commons to 282 seats. Senate approval and routine royal assent are needed for the bill to become law.

The current House is not the largest so far. It is one seat smaller now than it was between 1953 and 1962.

Ontario and British Columbia would be the big winners in the redistribution, gaining an additional seven and five seats, respectively. Alberta would get two more MPs and Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan one each.

It was the B.C. and Alberta representation that led to the biggest controversy over the bill. Some Progressive Conservatives threatened to block it unless the two provinces got more seats than originally proposed.

The Alberta and B.C. Conservatives eventually won an extra seat each for their provinces, convincing the government that its original proposal did not take into account their fast-growing populations.

Almost 5,000 Teachers Might Walk Out Jan. 6

TORONTO (CP) — A possible walkout by almost 5,000 Ontario teachers might add to the New Year problems of a government already facing the threat of an illegal strike by 19,000 civil servants.

The contract disputes between teachers and boards in a dozen jurisdictions might leave 134,000 students without teachers when classes resume Jan. 6.

And Education Minister Thomas Wells confirmed in an interview Monday that a teachers' aid bill expected this session would not be introduced before Christmas. The government introduced a bill which would have outlawed mass resignations as a bargaining measure, but withdrew it after demonstrations by teachers.

Legislation forbidding strikes by civil servants is already in force, but the Civil Servants Association of Ontario (CSAO) says it will go on strike if a contract dispute with the government is not settled. The CSAO has asked for 41-per-cent wages increase in a one-year contract. The government has offered 20 per cent.

Eric Winkler, chairman of the management board, says the government has a contingency plan if the civil servants go on strike, but Education Minister Thomas Wells declined to say what plans, if any, the government has if the teachers walk out.

Secondary school teachers in Windsor and Temiskaming are already out and almost 15,000 students are without their teachers. Nine of the 19 remaining contract disputes involve Roman Catholic schools and 131,000 separate school students from junior kindergarten to Grade 13.

Sirica Tries to Speed Up Finish of Watergate Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Determined to speed things up, District Judge John Sirica wants to get a quick end today to the cross-examination of defendant Robert Mardian at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sirica told assistant prosecutor Jill Wine Volner Monday she would have only an hour today to conclude her questioning of Mardian.

The judge said Kenneth Parkinson, the last of the defendants, would begin presenting his case this afternoon but a prosecution rebuttal is unlikely.

Mardian, Parkinson, John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice. All but Mardian also are accused of obstructing justice and there are perjury charges against Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney-general under Mitchell, reacted angrily to some of Mrs. Volner's questions. Pressed whether Mitchell was present when Mardian learned that the June 17, 1972, Watergate burglary was the second entry into Democratic headquarters, Mardian said:

"Mrs. Volner, I don't know how your mind works. I know how my mind works. I can't recall what I did. I can recall what I didn't do."

Insurance Firms Lose Big Contract

TORONTO (CP) — A group of 19 insurance companies based in London, Ont., has lost the contract it held for 9½ years to insure Ontario civil servants, an Ontario government source said Monday.

The group, headed by London Life Insurance Co., made the fifth lowest of 11 bids submitted earlier this month for the $20-million business, the source said.

A source in the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said the group is not one of three companies to be chosen today and recommended to the Ontario cabinet's management board.

Both sources spoke in interviews with The Globe and Mail. The CSAO said last February the insurance package was being "mismanaged" by the government and was costing taxpayers $600,000 a year more than it should. An independent study group recently estimated commission earnings by Colin Brown, a London Life agent and friend of former premier John Robarts, at $138,000 during the 9½ years the company had the business, the association said.

Police Officer Denies Charge He Used Claw

TORONTO (CP) — A police officer, alleged to have tortured a man suspected of being involved in drug-trafficking inspect with a mechanic's claw after his arrest Feb. 4, said Monday he was filling out an arrest form in the presence of four fellow police and the suspect's brother-in-law when the incident in allegedly happened.

Brian Jilek, a 30-year-old probationary sergeant who was a constable at the time, told the royal commission on Metropolitan Toronto police practices that the suspect, Thomas Henderson, lied in describing the incident.

Mr. Henderson, a 19-year-old postal worker, testified earlier that Sgt. Jilek and Sgt. Robert Rusk, two of five policemen who had raided his apartment, had tortured him with a mechanic's claw during questioning at a police station.

When the prosecutor suggested that Mardian expressed shock at learning the burglary involved re-election committee employees because he worried about the effect on Richard Nixon's re-election, Mardian said:

"I can tell you, I was utterly shocked by the White House horrors that were dumped on me that day. To say I wasn't concerned about its effect on the campaign would be ridiculous."

Mrs. Volner asked him about a meeting, two days after Watergate, attended by Mitchell, Jeb Stuart Magruder and John Dean.

"I have testified four times before the grand jury," Mardian said, "I have tried, as I am trying now, to be as candid as I can."

Mardian's lawyer, Thomas Gross, rose to defend his client.

"Don't worry about the witness, he can take care of himself," said Sirica, waving Gross down.

Penalties Urged For Too Many Eggs

OTTAWA (CP) — Tighter federal supervision of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA), rigid penalties for farmers who produce more eggs than they are allowed and suggestions that surplus eggs be sold cheaply to the poor are among recommendations made Monday by the special Commons egg committee.

In its report to the House, the 14-member committee proposed fear and a half-dozen measures aimed at tightening the country's egg marketing system.

But it shied away from recommending the abolition of CEMA or a regulated egg marketing system, saying it. Has the 13 witnesses to appear ci bearings during the last two months, felt the 18-month-old agency should be given a chance to work.

The committee said two federally - appointed members should be added to CEMA's 19-member board of directors to counter the "parochial interests" of the provincially-oriented men now on the board.

All provinces had not lived up to egg marketing agreements, the committee said, and made it "difficult, if not impossible" for CEMA to carry out its work.

All four Conservative MPs on the committee took exception to the report, arguing in a supplementary statement that Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan should be held accountable for much of the blame in the marketing mix-up that led this fall to the destruction of 28 million eggs.

Mr. Whelan agreed that he is partly responsible for CEMA's problems, but the committee said the minister had no direct control over the agency's operations. Provincial agriculture ministers had even more responsibility for egg marketing, the committee said.

In a separate statement, former Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray also disagreed with some of the committee recommendations, arguing that consumer interests must be better served on CEMA.

Instead of two federal members added to the CEMA board, Mr. Gray said the agency should be operated for a short time by a five-member committee made up of eggmen and federal officials from consumer affairs, trade and treasury board departments.

Later, he said, permanent consumer representatives should be added to the CEMA board of directors. Until now, CEMA and the National Farm Products Marketing Council, which oversees its operations, have been run solely by producers.

He said cabinet ministers other than the agriculture minister should share the responsibility of making sure marketing agencies are run properly.

New Bylaw Curbs Buildings

TORONTO (CP) — City council voted Monday 12 to 7 in favor of passing a new holding bylaw to replace the one rejected last week by the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).

The compromise was put forward by Ald. Karl Jaffary after talks between Mayor David Crombie and development control advocates on council.

Not Enough Evidence Yet To Warrant SIU Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang said Monday there is not enough evidence to justify a federal inquiry into activities of the Seaforths' International Union.

He said in the Commons the evidence the government has does not measure up to the yardsticks available for other federal inquiries that have been ordered.

But he said investigations are still going on and he did not rule out the possibility that an inquiry may be ordered.

LOCAL OR OUT-OF-TOWN REALTOR?

Ed. McKinney
J. R. Shuttleworth
Realty Ltd.

Should you sell your house through a local or out-of-town Realtor? If you want to sell it at the best price, in the shortest amount of time and with the least inconvenience, your choice should be the local Realtor. Why?

He will be able to advise you accurately on the best selling price for your home. He knows the pulse of the local market and the buying trends and desires for each neighborhood and street by street. The wrong selling price — either too high or too low — can be catastrophic to the seller.

Your local Realtor will have the largest reservoir of prospects looking for property in your town. Prospects historically go to a Realtor located in the town in which they want to buy. Also, being close-by, he will be able to show your home more frequently and conveniently for everyone concerned.

Finally, your local Realtor must establish his reputation most firmly in his home town. Your satisfaction and future referrals are his life blood. He has to look you in the eye — not only during the sale — but after it.

Consumers Will Benefit from Oil Subsidies

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday there are plenty of safeguards to ensure that $361 million in oil subsidies will benefit consumers and not oil companies.

The opposition sought to assurances during Commons debate on a bill introduced earlier by Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp.

The proposed legislation covers $361 million in supplementary estimates, to be paid during the first three months of 1975, to hold down the price of oil in and east of the Ottawa Valley.

By unanimous consent, the bill was given all stages of approval. It needs only routine royal assent to become law.

Mr. Macdonald said oil companies have to file a claim for the amount owing them as a result of price differentials between domestic oil and the imported oil used in eastern Canada.

He said the claim is subject to audit verification by private auditors as well as by the auditor-general.

The price differential, he added, is a matter of fact known to both the petroleum companies and the government.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party energy critic, also worried about provision for payment of money to refineries which import crude oil and petroleum products.

Mr. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said the subsidy should be paid only for imported crude oil until Canadian refineries are operating to a full capacity. Then it could be paid for other petroleum products.

But Mr. Macdonald said there are no refinery shutdowns resulting from imports of petroleum products other than crude oil.

Trees Traffic Threat

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A tree grown in Belleville that is a eyesore—and a threat — safety hazard on one of the city's busy traffic routes.

And the threat — on East Dundas St. near Bleecker Ave. — now is heightened by the arrival of winter storms, a doctor assured a consuming city council Monday night.

Dr. Bruce Morgan, city surgeon said the sturdy old tree actually is a "serious nuisance" which already has claimed a life—when a car slammed into it Nov. 30.

And Ald. George Zagouras said police records show six accidents at the spot already this year — resulting in four court charges.

Dr. Morgan, whose office is nearby, outlined the hazard this way : The tree is on the north side walk of Dundas west of Bleeker — where the four-lane strip of Dundas narrows to two lanes. Westbound drivers, taken unawares of the change in road width, may suddenly find themselves mounting a sidewalk curb and heading straight for the tree.

Stranger to city driving could find it a particular problem. Bad weather compounds the hazard when visibility is poor, said Dr. Morgan.

A second tree, further west of the site, should also be removed, he suggested.

Dr. Morgan's second occasions has opposed city hall on removal of trees.

But "trees are more important than trees" and in this instance, he believes those threes is in my opinion a very real and present hazard."

City council agreed with a suggestion by Ald. Stu Meeks that the trees be felled and warning lights installed on the site until the hazard is removed.

Local Firms Get Contracts

From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Two Belleville firms have been awarded federal government contracts worth a total of $30,000 for work in Trenton and St. John's, Nfld., the department of supply and services announced Monday.

Harry S. Featherstone of 485 Dundas St. West will be given $15,000 to repair furniture at C a n a d i a n Forces Base, Trenton.

Another $15,000 award was given to AOCO Ltd. of Belleville to provide optical services to the department of veterans affairs in St. John's.

They were among 39 nonclassified contracts worth $10,000 or more that were awarded by the department to Canadian companies during the week ended Dec. 6. Total v a l u e of the contracts amounted to $34,746,341.

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance in the 4-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Traffic Hazard with Roots

This tree on East Dundas St. near Bleecker Ave. was called a traffic hazard in city council Monday night. The site already has been the site of several mishaps — one fatal — council was told and Dr. Bruce Morgan called for its removal.

Council Amends Hillcrest Official Plan Designation

Belleville city council was given a caution about its database over official plan Monday night.

Included Ald. Joe Cox: The plan is so intricate, as consultants describe it, it is inevitable specific situations will keep cropping up for review.

"No one person can know everything that's in that official plan, he said. "I think, from time to time were going to run into problems and bottlenecks . . .

The councillors caution came after he won a plea for freeing a corner of Hillcrest from a residential freeze.

His request was launched two weeks ago when city council passed a bylaw thawing a year-long zoning freeze on much of the Hillcrest area. The neighborhood was returned to a residential designation. from restrictive "industrial zoning — with an exception.

A section of University Ave. from McLaurin St. to Tice Cres. — remained in the industry-zoned sector. Although in keeping with the new official plan's designations, the move was new official plan's designations. the move was unfair to householders and property owners in the zone, disputed Ald. Cox.

About 15 homes are included in the properties involved, he said later.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she is concerned how such a decision could affect the official plan designation. from restrictive "industrial zoning — with an exception.

But freeing the properties would have no adverse side affects, argued Ald. Cox. Adjacent land rises a hill which acted as a natural buffer zone.

The moves also would call for an official plan assessment. And, two weeks ago, council had worried over its affect on provincial government authorities if they received the city's official plan — than an immediate amending bylaw.

But, Ald. Cox said, Quinte Planning Board officials say the official plan still is being worked into final shape, by corporating changes suggested since its presentation by consultants.

The dilemma was solved Monday night by city manager, Wilbur Pur cell.

His suggestion: Since the official plan and its approving bylaw had not yet been sent to the province, why not cancel the outstanding orders. Then a new approving bylaw, incorporating the Hillcrest amendment, could be passed at the next meeting of council.

Fish Returning To Moira River

There's nothing fishy about reports that the Moira River is in better shape.

The fish are proving it.

Thats the summation of local sportsmen who wrote city council Monday night listing the variety of fish caught in the river.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club "heartily favored" a proposal that salmon small be planted in the river by the natural resources ministry.

Salmon now are in Lake Ontario and need rivers to mature and breed in, wrote club president Don Hagerman. "

"Our Moira is now in considerably better condition than in past years, he wrote.

Last June alone, species caught included rainbow trout, walleye and speckled trout below Lasters dam in the city stretch of the Moira, said Mr. MacKinnon.

The salmon planting program was earlier proposed in council by Ald. Stu Meeks.

Prisoners Contribute Art

Laurie Cameron (left), supervisor of community education in Loyalist College's extension division, and Garry Beach, night school supervisor at Warkworth Medium Security Institute, admire four examples of prisoner artwork done under the college's extension program. The extension courses, now in their third year, are being filled by an increasing number of students. The courses are also growing.in popularity at Warkworth.

No Action on Guard Salaries

City council Monday night took an immediate action on a suggestion it pay school crossing guards $45 a week.

A resolution for the increase — from the $34 now paid — was turned down after councillor decided to find out how many hours the guards work.

Ald. Stu Meeks, who made the proposal, also suggested council should petition the federal government to relax income tax regulations which, he said, penalize elderly people like crossing guards — from trying to supplement their pensions.

A prefrected debate was prompted after crossing guard Albert Barker, 72, went before council to ask for more money.

He asked a recommendation from city manager William Purcell which suggested an increase to $37.50 a week. But, travelling to and from crossing, means guards work about 30 hours a week and the minimum wage of $2.25 should bring pay to $45, he suggested. Guards drive to their duties and increased car costs should also be a "factor, said Mr. Barker.

Ald. Jack Deland said he believes when guards were first hired it was intended they should close to their assigned crossing.

There are 31 guards in the city and all jobs are taken — although there is no superintending list, said city manager Purcell.

Councillors requested a report on the actual hours guards worked for their next meeting.

Ald. Meeks said pensioners up to 70 years idled pay taxes on earned income over $600. The tax is deducted from pensions, he said.

He said he would like to see a solution so that "senior citizens are not penalized for trying to subsidize their meagre old-age incomes.

Ald. John Stock agreed.

"Many of our provincial and federal laws do discourage personal initiative both regarding you and our senior citizens," he said.

More to Come

Heavy Snowfall Snarls Traffic in Quinte Area

Snow flurries, fog and increasingly cold weather is forecast for Belleville and the Quinte area for the remainder of the week, a Canadian Armed Forces spokesman said today.

Within the last 12 hours more than 11 inches of snow settled on the city with heaviest area snow falls of 15 inches recorded at Bon Echo and Plevna. Thunder storms to be the least affected in the season's second major storm, with a recorded 4.1 inches.

As armed forces forecaster said today more snow will arrive this evening accompanied with fog — and a thrust of low cold, low pressure systems surrounding the Quinte area.

Snow flurries are predicted for every day this week with temperatures reaching a low of 15 degrees.

A low of 25 degrees is forecast for Tuesday followed by a high of 32 degrees for the remainder of the week with highs of about 28 degrees.

"Thirty-four hours taking students to public schools in the Belleville area have been c a n c e l l e d today. Four separate school buses were involved in a total of the routes were in the Madoc, Tweed, Tweed and Stirling areas.

City police investigated a total of 40 accidents during Monday's snowstorm which left drivers cursing and cars spinning.

Its one accident, a 33-year-old man, Gerry Rose of RR1, Shannonville, escaped unhurt died of an apparent heart attack after his car locked bumpers with another on Pinnacle St.

Police Chief Douglas Crabbe said that the bumper as Mr. Rose's car had become locked with the bumper on a vehicle driven by Betty Ingram of George St.

Chief Crosbie said Mr. Rose left his car to talk to the driver of the other vehicle. Mrs. Ingram then drove ahead, and later got out to speak to him. The pair was talking when Mr. Rose collapsed and was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Barbed Wire Fence Thorn in Council's Side

City council moved Monday to disentangle rules snagged on barbed wire.

It agreed with city manager Wilbur Purcell that a new b y l a w is required on protective barbed wire.

The ordinance calls for barbed wire atop fences to be not less than 6.6 feet above ground.

It would supersede a 21-year-old law which prohibits a b a r b e d w i r e fences without the express permission of council.

Mr. Purcell said he suspected the bylaw exceeds the powers granted the provincial government legislation.

Council also has been sporadic in permitting such installations. In fact, as incomplete it the record, it's not confined to how whether a fence including such wire should be permitted or not he said.

The issue was touched off by a letter from a citizen Ald. Lindsay Ramsay, RR4, — who need along a list of 44 properties he found wired fences. Some are in city-owned.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey noted there had been concern among landowners a bylaw to protect their plants against theft.

At the same time both she and Ald. Jean Smith worried about the practical implications of barbed wire fences in residential areas.

In his report, Mr. Purcell suggested it is "not unreasonable" for industries and commercial shop fences with barbs to discourage trespassers. The new bylaw would provide proper public protection while restricting such installations well above the ground.

Added Ald. Joe Cox: "I don't think our bylaw in the past has been that successful, because business and industry have installed barbed wire fences. And no applications she could recall have come into council for the past two years."

"If we're going to have any control, we're going to have to look on a permit basis," he added.

Carol Festival Planned

PICTON — The Church of St. Mary Magdalene will feature a festival of lessons and carols, Sunday, Dec. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Robert Stewart says the church choir, presenting the program for the fourth year, considers it a Christmas card to the community.

The service follows closely a service held on Christmas Eve at king's College, Cambridge, England.

Directors of Picton's Anglican Church choir are Mr. and Mrs. Phil Robbins. Organist is Bill Madore.

of the year, as they investigated 21 minor accidents in the span of about 18 hours.

An OPP spokesman said that from the time of their first call at about 8:30 a.m. Monday until the last call came in at 1:51 a.m. today, a total of 21 accidents, some serious, was investigated.

At one point, from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, the OPP investigated six accidents, one of the rainiest days for injuries although an OPP official said total damages would amount 'in the thousands'.

In one accident investigated by the Madoc detachment of the OPP damage totalled more than $3,000 when a truck loaded with pigs spun out of control on Highway 62 between Marmora and Kingston was reported snow-packed and icy. Two pigs were killed but the driver Slayko Pavel, 27, of RR5, Madoc, was uninjured.

On Highway 62, just north of the junction with County Rd. 8, Elaine White of Madoc lost control of her car in heavy slush early Monday afternoon. The car spun into a ditch causing about $225 damage. The driver was not hurt.

The storm, left up to 12 inches of snow in the Kingston and Cornwall areas.

Most of eastern Ontario received between three and four inches of snow as it moved east through Ottawa, Quebec and New England.

The Ontario ministry of transportation reported today that all area roads are plowed but Highway 401 between Belleville and Kingston was reported snow-packed and icy. Numerous roads were in about the same condition.

Talk Asked

Gordon Cole, president of Truckers Association's Belleville branch, wants city council to talk over proposals for snow removal work. He made request at city hall Monday night.

Truckers Request Snow Contracts

The Truckers Association, Belleville branch, says it can provide "considerable economies" in city snow removal.

Gordon Cole, president of the association's Belleville branch, Monday night sought discussions with council on his group's participation of snow removal work.

Using branch members would contribute impact when transport is needed to clear city streets in winter storms, he said in a brief to council. Such a system already is "operating successfully" in other Ontario cities.

A study shows, he said, that "considerable economies could be provided" as well as increased certainty and availremoval work of equipment".

Council referred the brief to its city manager's office for a report.

Madoc Votes

Final Seat Filled

MADOC — The last civic election of the year in Hastings County filled a single vacant village council seat here Monday night.

Thomas Dellow, 29-year-old car salesman was the campaign which drew 52 per cent of the voters to an election originally caused by lack of candidates.

When nominations closed Nov. 12 there were only four nominations for the five-member council. Which brought acclamations for Reeve T. C. Barton, deputy-reeve Clayton Smith and Ray Bussis and James Watson for council.

A second nomination period for the third council seat drew four contestants, with Mr. Delloe winning with 173 votes.

Other results: Joseph Ash, 169; Gibson Bailey 112; Maurice Golah 108.

City Council Briefs

Housing Tenders Sought

The Ontario Housing Corporation is advertising tenders for construction of the 82-unit senior citizens' residential project in eastern Belleville, Ald. Stu Meeks told city council last night.

Site of the project is near the eastend Belleville Plaza.

The OHC will advertises a "modified" tender, wrote the corporation.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the modification did not involve the project's design but the method of tendering.

Colling Steps Down

Cleo B. Colling is retiring from community civic service, Mr. Colling, who has served a total 27 years on city parks and parking authorities. Monday night wrote city council that he did not wish re appointment as a parking commissioner.

Haig Sidewalks Urged

Housing development has increased the need for sidewalks on Haig Rd. in eastend Belleville, Ald. Ken Corbe told city council Monday night.

Such installations are a "real need," he said.

Stock Heads Final Session

Ald. John Stock, retiring from city hall politics, also found himself chairman of the last public meeting of the current city hall administration Monday night.

Council meets every two weeks. This would make meeting its next public session was scheduled for Dec. 30 Mecalf. time, the inaugural session of the 1975-76 — with only two new members — council is Jan. 6.

Ald. Paul Russell, after some discussion by fellow councillors, moved that the Dec. 30 meeting be dispensed with.

Ald. Stock is joined by Ald. Roger Porter in departing city hall-thus creating the vacancies on the 10-man council filled by the Dec. 2 election. Their successors, Wally Dewar and Brian Knudsen, sat in on Monday's public and caucus sessions of council.

Changes Made In Memorial Cup Series

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's Memorial Cup organizing committee announced Monday minor changes in the 1975 Cup playoff format.

The Major Junior A Memorial Cup final round-robin tournament is to be held here May 7-11.

One change makes a semi-final game mandatory even if the three-team round-robin produces a clear leader and second-place team. Previously, a semi-final game was held only if two or more teams were tied after the round-robin.

The other change calls for the home province team to play in the opening game of the tournament.

The Memorial Cup tournament features the champions from the Ontario and Quebec major junior leagues and the Western Canada Hockey League.

Fergie Named Canada's Top Athlete of Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fergueon Jenkins finally is beginning to realize that a Canadian playing in an American sport can gain more recognition in Canada than a native performing at home.

Jenkins has been named Canada's male athlete of the year for 1974 and sports comeback of the year in an annual poll of sports writers and broadcasters conducted by The Canadian Press.

It is a record fourth athletic-of-the-year award for the 31-year-old Chatham, Ont., native who pitched he 25 victories for Texas Rangers of baseball's American League this year.

"I'm quite happy with winning the award like this," Jenkins said Monday in a telephone interview from Chicago where he was visiting friends and doing some Christmas shopping.

"It's a great thing to happen, especially with a Canadian playing an American sport."

Second in the balloting for athlete of the year was goalie Bernie Parent of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers. Third was harness race driver Tiger Filion of Angers, Que., and fourth was figure skater Toller Cranston of Toronto.

Jenkins also won the award in 1967, 1968, and 1971. He now moves ahead of former

FERGUSON JENKINS

NHL star Maurice (Rocket) Richard who was chosen top Canadian athlete in 1952, 1957 and 1958.

Jenkins, who said he still hopes some day to pitch for a major-league baseball team in Canada, won 20 or more games for six straight seasons with Chicago Cubs until he slumped to a 16-14 record in 1973.

The Cubs traded him to Texas where he recovered his old form, running up a 25-12 record in 39 complete games with a 2.82 earned-run average.

He was recognized in the poll as the comeback of the year ahead of 46-year-old Gordie Howe who led Houston Aeros to the World Hockey Association championship and starred in the Canada-Soviet Union exhibition series last fall. Third in the comeback poll was 45-year-old goalie Jacques Plante of the WHA Edmonton Oilers.

"Some of these fellows have been playing hockey for 10 or 12 years or better," said Jenkins. Howe played 25 seasons in the NHL and now is in his second in the WHA and Plante played 17 years in the NHL and this year is making another comeback in the WHA.

"Let me tell you, when you get into a chair with those type of individuals, you really are making a name for yourself," Jenkins said.

His said he hopes he can play for a Canadian major league team "before I'm all through or before I can't give a winning performance."

"I'd hate to play in Canada when I was 37 or 38 years old and had to pitch is the bullpen and couldn't contribute much."

Jenkins collected 704 points on 19 first-place votes, 30 seconds and seven thirds in the athlete of the year balloting. Electors were asked to give 10 first, second and third choices and the votes were graded on a 3-2-1 basis.

Parent got 88 points, Filion 47 and Cranston 32. Canada Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins, who won the award in 1969 and 1972, was overlooked by the voters.

Catfish the Biggest Fish in the Pond

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim (Catfish) Hunter, star of the three-time world champion Oakland A's pitching staff, was declared a free agent Monday in an historic arbitration ruling and said he would play in 1975 for the team which comes up with the best offer.

Baseball officials expressed dismay at the arbitration panel's 2-to-1 decision, which, for the first time, allows the sport's top pitcher to sell his services on the open market. Hunter's lawyer said estimates of a $1 million, long-term contract might be low.

Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, whose failure to pay $50,000 of Hunter's $100,000 contract in 1974 precipitated the arbitrators' decision, was not immediately available for comment.

Hunter said Finley was to blame for the development, and added: "Nobody's going to do me out of $2 00."

"I think it was fair and just, and I knew we told the truth," Hunter said in Ahoskie, N.C., at his lawyer's office. "I had the feeling all the time it was going to come out my way.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, in a telegram to major league owners, said he understood the A's intended to seek a court restraining order against the decision, and he warned the 23 other major league clubs not to contact Hunter until he said they could.

Later Monday, Kuhn's office issued a statement which made no mention of plans for a court appeal. It said the commissioner was only trying to give all teams an equal shot at Hunter.

"A prohibition restricting any . . . contact between a club and a player on another club is in effect with regard to the Jim Hunter case," said Kuhn.

JIM HUNTER

Jerry Kapstein, one of Hunter's lawyers, said he plans to begin negotiations with any team willing to pay for a 26-year-old pitcher who has won 20 games—18—also any pitcher in the last five seasons.

Kapstein said Hunter would be looking for a "long-term contract with a contending team in a good city," and that would guarantee him long-term financial security.

He acknowledged that cities such as New York and Los Angeles, where the chances of high-paying commercial endorsements are good, might have an inside track.

American League President Lee MacPhail said he was shocked by the decision, which came on the vote of impartial arbitrator Peter Seitz.

Seitz and players' union head Marvin J. Miller voted for Hunter; John J. Gaberia, the owners' lawyer, voted for Finley.

The decision ordered the Oakland team to pay Hunter the $50,000 it owes him from 1974, and to pay six per cent interest on that amount from Aug. 1 until the money is paid.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate voted Monday to give girls the same chance as boys to play Little League baseball.

But in a separate action it voted to exempt such groups as the boy scouts, girl scouts, campfire girls, the YMCA, the YWCA and sororities and fraternities from the provisions of federal sex anti-discrimination laws in higher education.

The Little League bill now goes to President Ford. Sponsored in the Senate by Senator Roman Kruska, (Rep, Neb.), it strikes the word "boy" each time it appears in the little League's 1964 congressional charter and replaces it with the words, "young people."

McCarron At Wire

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Chris McCarron, who won his first career race a little more than 10 months ago, tied the world record for riding victories by a jockey in a single year Monday by riding two winners at Laurel to bring his total to 515.

The 19-year-old apprentice matched the record set last year by Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., who won his 515th on the final day of 1973.

McCarron, needing two victories to tie, took the first race on Monday's card aboard Rapturous Sea, who paid a winning mutuel of $10.60. He then came back to win the sixth race on Themistocles, the even-money favorite who paid $4.

He finished out of the money in the seventh race, and then, in his final bid of the day to establish a record, wound up second on Satan's Square, the ninth race Tuesday.

McCarron rode his first horse on Jan. 24. His first winner was recorded on Feb. 8.

Sunday, at Penn National race track near Harrisburg, he set up his record-tying day by riding six winners.

Hockey Holiday For Kelly Tiremen

By MARK BRETT
Staff Sportswriter

On December 26, when most people will be packing up unwanted gifts received the day before, a group of boys from Napanee will be winging their way across the wide Atlantic for a taste of hockey — European style.

The Kelly Tiremen Juvenile A hockey team, under the coaching team of Jack Brady and Don Aylesworth, will be flying to Vallentuna, Sweden, for a six-game exhibition series.

"We'll be running into a different brand of hockey, you can count on that," said Aylesworth. "But I think that the boys will fare well," he continued.

"As yet no particular teams have been confirmed by the Swedes, but the teams chosen will be of junior age (18-21); about a year older than the boys," said Jack Dale, team sponsor.

Jack has already been to the site of the games and was impressed by what he saw.

"The arena that we will be playing the games in is brand new and everything appears in readiness," added Jack.

Vallentuna is approximately 35 miles away from Stockholm.

In a telephone interview on Monday, both coaches agreed that the do-it-yourself coaching has been "a great success".

Their record speaks for itself. Although beaten out last year in the quarter finals by Markham, they were all-Ontario Champions for two consecutive years — '70-'71 and '71-'72.

This year the club holds down second place in their division trailing the strong Birt's Juveniles of Trenton. Napanee until last week was undefeated in regular season play.

The Tiremen handed Birt's their first setback.

Trenton Juveniles are a notch above the Napanee team, rating AA, but playing, for convenience, A clubs. Thus two teams however, do not meet in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association play-offs.

Jack and on have been together for the past four years.

"We're great friends and always manage to iron out any difficulties that arise," said Don.

"We'll be taking about three-quarters of last year's club to play but we will be relatively new on defence," commented Dale.

"We will also be without one of our better players, defenceman Bill Kimmett who, is out with an injury," he added.

Napanee will be allowed to dress 18 players for the series and should prove to be worthy opponents for whoever the Swedes choose to match them up against.

Pat Mullin: Belleville Yardmen forward is double teamed on this scoring drive by Rollin Lumber defencemen Carl Haines and Scott McLaren. Mullins inadvertantly tripped on the stick of the Lumber player and ended up in a heap in the corner. Rollins came out on top with a 9-1 victory over the Yardmen.

Norm Walt, takes some assistance from Ron Hayes (left) and Joel Carr-Brulot (right) as he puts the bells back in its place. All three young men will be participating in the upcoming Ontario Winter Games, December 27-30 in Thunder Bay. They are part of the Apollo Barbell Club's jeenage contingent which qualified for the provincial games.

Stanley Breathes Easier With Help from Jim's

Jim's Pizzeria knocked the wind out the Belleville Generals sails in Gas House Hockey League action, Monday night. The Generals have been trailing league leading Stanley Structures all season. A win Monday night would have moved the Generals to within one point of the Structuremen.

Jim's however, didn't take the game lightly as they picked up their third win of year, downing the Generals 3-1.

In other Gas House action Monday night, Constellation beat Art's 7-3 and Rollins dumped the Yardmen 9-1.

Fred Slickle and Rick Yack were the marksmen for Jim's and Dave Sinclair scored the only goal for the Generals.

Ken Kerik, Ken Vos and Wayne Andrews each scored two goals for Constellation and Eric Tupnella added the seventh.

Jack Zylstra had two for Art's and Terry Fitzpatrick scored the third.

John Masterson picked up a hat trick for Rollins and Scott McLaren, Dale Tummon, Don Bowry, Larry Pascoe, Hugh Brennan and Wayne Harrison each got a goal apiece. Dan Garlick drew four assists.

Steve Boardman scored the only goal of the game for the Yardmen.

Bobcats in King City

The Belleville Bobcats will be looking for their fifth consecutive victory tonight when they travel to Toronto to take on the high-flying King City Red Wings.

The Wings currently hold down third place in the Central division of the Metro Junior B League and are also looking to improve their standings.

This will be the first meeting between the two clubs this season and Bobcat coach, Rob Boyle, will be hard pressed for a strong game from netminder Bruce Clark.

The Cats leading point getter, Jim Richardson, will also be out to add to his total.

Coach Boyle expects to have defenceman Neil Turner back in the lineup for tonight's encounter. Turner missed the Cats last game with a five-stitch cut on his elbow.

This is the second year in the league for the King City team and they appear to be improving with age.

"They have a lot of young players and the more experience that they get the tougher they are going to be to beat," noted Boyle.

Belleville will be going with a goalie tonight, only the third time this year they have done so.

Doolittle Does Lot

In any sport, it is rare indeed when someone does something in perfection. For example, a hole-in-one in golf or a table run in snooker.

How about a 29-point hand in cribbage. Such was the case for Doug Doolittle of RR2, Frankford. Monday, while playing in the Lunch Hour Cribbage Club at Corby's Distillery, Doolittle came up with the rarity.

He had three fives in his hand, along with the jack of clubs, and the five of clubs turned up.

The feat was much to the dismay of his opponent, Bruce Mullins, since Doolittle went on to win the match by one point.

Muhammad Is Writers Choice

MUHAMMAD ALI

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali was named by the Boxing Writers Association Monday as Fighter of the Year for 1974, during which he outscored Joe Frazier and then knocked out George Foreman to regain the world heavyweight championship.

Ali will receive the Edward J. Neil award, named for the late Associated Press writer, at the group's 5th anniversary dinner next year. Ali also won the award in 1965.

ADDS TO GOLF TOUR

LONDON (AFP) — British pro golf got a second big-money tournament when it was announced Monday that Penfold will sponsor the Professional Golfers' Association championship, worth $115,000, at Royal St. George's Sandwich in Kent May 23-26.

So This Is What Makes The NHL Number One?

MONTREAL (CP) — For the seventh consecutive season, defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins has reached the 30-goal plateau in the National Hockey League.

Statistics released by the league today show Orr, who scored his 30th goal Sunday night against New York Islanders, leading the NHL scoring list with 30 goals and 36 assists for 66 points.

He holds a two-point edge over team-mate Phil Esposito. Esposito has a league-leading 34 goals and 29 assists and is followed in the scoring race by Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres, who has 31 goals and 30 assists for 61 points.

Rene Robert of the Sabres and Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens are tied for fourth spot with 61 points apiece. Robert has 22 goals and 33 assists while Lafleur has 31 goals and 24 assists.

Buffalo's Rick Martin and Bobby Clarke, captain of Philadelphia Flyers, follow with 46 points. Martin's goal total is the same as LaFleur's, but he has one less assist while Clarke has 19 goals and 24 assists.

The Los Angeles goaltending duo of Rogatien Vachon and Gary Edwards continues to lead in the Vezina Trophy race with a 1.85 goals-against average.

Vachon has 10 goals against mark while Edwards' average is 2.66.

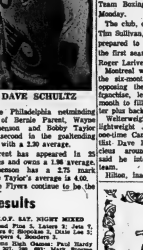
Rutledge Tops

BOBBY HULL

LOS ANGELES (CP) — It doesn't seem to matter to Houston Aeros that they gave up on last season's World Hockey Association leading goaltender when they dropped Don McLeod in a salary dispute.

Wayne Rutledge and rookie Ron Grahame took over when McLeod left and now the two Houston netminders lead the league. Rutledge is tops with a 2.94 goals-against average and Grahame is No. 2 with a 3.36 mark. Each has two shutouts this season.



Meanwhile, McLeod, who went to Vancouver Blazers after posting a league-leading 2.56 average last season, now is seventh among the WHA's goalies with a 3.35 mark.

Winnipeg Jets Joe Daley now ranks third with a 3.00 average, followed by Al Smith of New England Whalers, 3.11; Chris Abrahamson, New England, 3.24; Gary Kurt, Phoenix Roadrunners, 3.30; McLeod, 3.35; Cam Newton, Chicago Cougars, 3.36; Ross Gillow, San Diego Mariners, 3.36, and Joe Junkin, San Diego, 3.51.

In the scoring department, Winnipeg's Bobby Hull is tops with 47 points on 27 goals and 20 assists. Three points back is Larry Lund of Houston with 17 goals and 27 assists.

Montreal a World Team Boxing Member

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Boxing Club was officially inaugurated as a World Team Boxing (WTB) franchise Monday.

The club, owned by Bostonian Tim Sullivan, 33, who said he is prepared to lose up to $50,000 the first season, is managed by Roger Larivee.

Montreal will tentatively open the six-month season Jan. 16, opposing the Portland, Maine, franchise, leaving Larivee one month to fill out a 10-man roster plus backup squad.

Welterweight Angelo Milletti, lightweight Jose Martinez and Middleweight Canadian Hi-pound Hi-flat Dave Hilton are the nucleus around which Larivee said he intends to build the team.

Hilton, inactive for over two years, said he was fit for a comeback.

The WTB format calls for each team to appear once a week with five bouts of six rounds, each making up a standard card.

World heavyweight champion Mohammad Ali has endorsed the WTB in a testimonial.

"Potentially, World Team Boxing is the greatest thing to happen to boxing since I came along," Ali said.

NFL Coaching Shakedown Begins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One National Football League coach, Nick Skorich, has been fired. Another, Dan Devine, has quit. And at least four others are in serious danger of the same.

Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell fired Skorich on Monday. Devine avoided that same axe at Green Bay when he resigned from the Packers.

The shakeup of the NFL's hierarchy is expected to reach much further.

Abe Gibron of Chicago Bears and Marion Campbell of Atlanta Falcons are reported to be in trouble.

Chicago finished 4-10 this season, last in the National Conference Central Division, while the Falcons, tabbed at the beginning of the season for possible playoff material, finished 3-11, last in the NFC West.

Campbell, an assistant coach who replaced the fired Norm Van Brocklin during the season, said he had not talked with owner Rankin Smith and had no indication whether he would be retired.

Joe Thomas of Baltimore and Ed Gillman of Houston, both general managers who have taken over for fired coaches, have indicated they may not want to handle the dual roles. Thomas succeeded Howard Schnellenberger early this year and Gillman replaced Bill Peterson last season.

The Colts finished with a dismal 2-12 record. The Oilers, after a terrible start, finished 7-7.

No successors have been named for Skorich or Devine, nor has game is take over for Ara Parseghian's job as head coach at Notre Dame.

But in Cleveland, Monte Clark, offensive line coach of Miami Dolphins, and Forrest Gregg, another line coach, were reported to be under consideration.

The name being talked about most for replacing Devine in Green Bay is former Packer quarterback Bart Starr, who owns a local car dealership. Starr says he would like the job.

The only bright note of the day for NFL coaches came in Denver, where it was announced that John Ralston had signed a new five-year contract.

National League Hurlers Compile Strong Stats

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Atlanta pitchers Buzz Capra and Phil Niekro had the lowest earned-run averages in the National League last season but Los Angeles Dodgers had the best team ERA, 2.97 to the Braves' 3.05, official league records showed today.

Capra allowed an average of 2.28 runs per nine innings to Niekro's 2.38. Jon Matlack of New York Mets was the stingiest left-hander at 2.41 and had the most shutouts, seven.

Niekro, 20-13, and Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles, 20-6, tied for the most games won and Niekro pitched the most complete games, 18, and most innings, 302.

Reliever Mike Marshall of the Dodgers, the Cy Young Award winner, set league records by appearing in 106 games, including 13 in a row. He led the league in saves and was fourth in ERA at 2.42.

Buchanan, who had twice outpointed Tavares previously, had a much tougher fight than he expected. Tavares, a Frenchman employee, frequently landed quick right hands to Buchanan's head and trailed by only a small margin when Buchanan began to pull ahead in the 11th round.

PLAYER SUSPENDED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michel Bordeau of Michigan Stags has been suspended for his fight with Tony Featherstone of Toronto Toros Sunday night, World Hockey Association President Dennis Murphy announced Monday.

Messersmith, fifth in ERA at 2.30, tied with Bob Gibson of St. Louis for the dubious record of allowing the most home runs, 36.

Steve Carlton of Philadelphia led the league in strikeouts, with 240, and bases on balls, with 138. Carlton, 16-13, also was the NL strikeout leader in 1972.

Don Sutton, 19-8, of the Dodgers had the most starts, 40, and won his last nine decisions to match nine-victory streaks by Capra and Marshall.

PHIL NIEKRO

Buchanan Defends Title

PARIS (AP) — Ken Buchanan of Scotland bled for 10 rounds but successfully defended his European lightweight championship Monday when his fight against Leonard Tavares of France was halted in the 14th round.

Tavares handlers threw in the towel one minute into the round while Tavares was wobbling under a barrage from the former world champion.

Tavares had been given a standing right count in the 12th round and another in the 14th before the fight was stopped.

The Scotsman, at 28 seven years younger than Tavares, weighed 134 pounds to Tavares' 135.

U.S. Olympic Athletes Get Bill of Rights

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The United States Olympic Committee has adopted a far-reaching bill of rights for athletes as part of the most sweeping constitutional revision in the organization's 80-year history, president Philip O. Krumm said Monday.

Krumm said the unanimous action approved at the USOC's biennial meeting here during the weekend, would "protect the rights of athletes to participate in international amateur sports competition without fear of action by any organization."

The chief provision of the bill of rights establishes compulsory arbitration by the Americans arbitration association of all disputes between an athlete and any member sports organization.

It effectively gets the USOC out of the middle of squabbles between the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

Other major revisions mandated all national sports governing bodies to adopt non-discrimination policies and open decision-making doors to a "reasonable proportion" of athletes.

Anther change expanded the USOC board of directors to include 51 business leaders and established the Advisory Council of Olympic Athletes as a permanent entity.

Feagan Wins Pair

TORONTO (CP) — Driver Ron Feagan brought his circuit-leading win total for the season to 130 with two victories Monday at Greenwood Raceway.

The Dundas, Ont., horseman took the sixth race with Jolly Harmin, a three-year-old filly who registered her second consecutive win, and came back in the eighth with Chase On, an eight-year-old Australian-bred pacer, whose victory was also his second in a row.

Feagan has seven more wins than he recorded last season. His horses have brought in $238,000, about $100,000 more than the $420,720 they earned last year.

Thank You

Michener Approves Game Plan Approach

TORONTO (CP) — Roland Michener, looking as fit as the athletes and in better shape than most of the assembled reporters, attended a news conference Monday to hear about the latest step in the program to get Canadians ready for the 1976 Olympics.

As honorary president of the Olympic Trust, an organization raising $7 million to pay the expenses of athletes training for the Games, the 74-year-old former governor-general was interested in hearing how the money is being spent.

He seemed satisfied after listening to an announcement that 30 nationally and internationally ranked competitors and their coaches would spend 3 days in Cuba from Dec. 26 to Jan. 4 in track and canoeing against members of the Cuban national team.

The teams involved are men's and women's volleyball, men's basketball, soccer, water polo, diving, fencing and wrestling—sports in which Cuba is rated among the world's best.

Jure Szabo, vice-president for Canadian Olympic Association specializing in technical matters, said the idea is to give the athletes a chance to compete in mid-winter under the sort of conditions that will prevail in Montreal in 1976.

He added that this will be the first venture of its kind for Canada—a selection of athletes from various sports working out in a single facility. They will use Havana's Sport City, a complex that includes an indoor stadium, soccer field and swimming and diving facilities.

At the same time as the Cuba trip, another 90 Canadian athletes and coaches—25 in track and field and 15 in archery—will undergo training at Arizona State University near Phoenix for 19 days.

This leaves three major teams without plans for out-of-the-country activities—the bobsled team, which is to play host to the French national team in the new year; the swimmers, who would not get the caliber of competition they want in Cuba. The trips to Cuba and Arizona are being sponsored by Gerox Canada Ltd. through Fitnes, a national program designed to improve the calibre of Canadian amateur athletes. Szabo announced that all 10 provinces now have agreed to participate in the plan.

For the festive family on the move...

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my dear husband, Don Lewis, passed away suddenly on Dec. 19th, 1971.
Sadly missed by his wife, Farewell. You said goodbye, I turned away
Now when Christmas bells ring o'er
We'll be thinking of you more.
Not the holidays, but your dear face
Is the vacant chair we miss.
A happy heart with a smiling face
Now sweet the memory still.
Dear Lord, we miss him
Your work was well done
We cannot bring the old days back.
But when we think of heaven
We feel sweet hearts and loving hands
Will be waiting
With he who is missed.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Mother.

May Get Increase

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — The wardens and county councillors may get a pay increase. The county's finance committee has recommended a 15-per-cent pay increase for the wardens and 15 per diem increase for councillors. The recommendation will go to the personnel committee before voted on by council. Effective January, 1975, this would give councillors $45 a day for all meetings and conventions.

Need More Vegetables

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian consumption of fresh vegetables has grown far faster than production, says the Consumers Association of Canada. Forty to 50 per cent of the country's needs are imported from the United States and consumption there is expected to overtake production by 1985. Canada may need to add 100,000 acres in vegetable crops in 1975 to meet mounting demands, the CAC says.

Ten Lost Years

Canadian theatre really came to life in 1974 with the Canada Council's touring office in full operation for the year. Through its travel subsidies for performers and its touring management more live Canadian theatre was seen by more people in big cities and small towns across the land than ever before. Leading the parade was a Toronto Workshop Productions drama, Ten Lost Years, based on a book of recollections of The Great Depression by Barry Broadfoot of Vancouver. After a successful Toronto run, it played 78 performances in 42 centres ranging from Ottawa to Manitouwadge, Ont., Estevan, Sask. and Vancouver. The cast of Ten Lost Years is shown on a railroad right-of-way after completing their Canadian tour. (CP Photo)

Stratford Festival Future In Young Director's Hands

OTTAWA (CP) — All eyes and ears will be turned to Stratford, Ont., next summer to see what Robin Phillips does with the long-running and highly successful Stratford Festival.

Phillips gained a white-hot reputation in English theatre before his appointment last summer to succeed Jean Gascon as artistic director of the festival dedicated to the works of William Shakespeare and other prominent playwrights.

His appointment sparked controversy because no Canadian theatre director seemed ready or willing to take on the job of heading the country's oldest and biggest property's oldest and biggest professional theatre. But fears of what Phillips might do to the festival faded with the attractiveness of his initial plans.

He recruited directors, actors and other artists from regional professional theatres across the country to serve as his associates at Stratford, and plans to make the Avon Theatre and the Third Stage equal in prestige with the main Festival Theatre on the banks of the Avon River.

Phillips' first two productions, Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona, and Comedy of Errors, start a national tour in Winnipeg in February before moving to the Avon Theatre for the summer.

In the Stratford Festival, opening in June, other Shakespeare works to be seen are Measure for Measure and Twelth Night. Also scheduled are Bertolt Brecht's Trumpets and Drums and Arthur Miller's The Crucible.

The surprise announcement was Phillips' plan to produce George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan. Many thought this was a steal from the Shaw Festival's book at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., but Phillips said he does not feel barred from Shaw's works, and Saint Joan is best suited for the Festival Theatre.

The Shaw Festival also has a new artistic director for 1975 in veteran actor Tony van Bridge. He assumes directing duties for a year from Puritan Whitehead, the most Shavian of Canadian actors who took a year's leave of absence to act elsewhere.

The Shaw Festival will produce Pygmalion, perhaps best known today in its musical-comedy version, My Fair Lady. Later in the 1975 season the Shaw Festival will produce Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra.

A third play by a contemporary of Shaw will be mounted in the main theatre. Two smaller productions are expected to be shown again at Niagara-on-the-Lake's Court House, where the Shaw Festival had its origins.

Canadian theatre really came to life in 1974 with the Canada Council's touring office in full operation for the year. Through its travel subsidies for performers and its touring management more live Canadian theatre was seen by more people in big cities and small towns across the land than ever before.

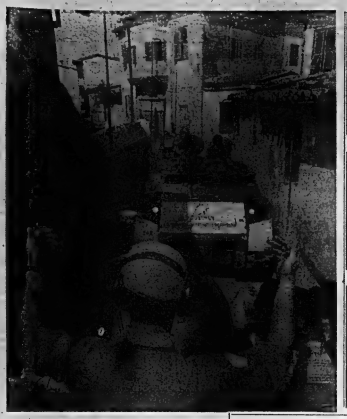
Leading the parade was a Toronto Workshop Productions drama, Ten Lost Years, based on a book of recollections of The Great Depression by Barry Broadfoot of Vancouver. After providing a hit in Toronto, it played 78 performances in 42 centres ranging from Ottawa to Manitouwadge, Ont., Estevan, Sask. and Vancouver.

The Canada Council spends $1 million a year on its touring office, covering musical events as well as drama and comedy on stage. Anne of Green Gables, the Charlottetown Festival's musical comedy now in its 10th year, was still as big an attraction as ever.

The touring office also brought productions to Canada from abroad, including the Comedie Francaise from Paris, and England's National Theatre touring production of The Hollow Crown.

Most regional professional theatres now can be counted on to do at least one new Canadian play a season. Canadian playwrights also found growing markets for their works in Canadian universities, which prescribe them for studies in drama and Canadian literature.

Noise Causes Deafness



CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuter) — Ten per cent of the two million inhabitants of Caracas show symptoms of deafness caused by traffic noise, says Octavio Jelambi, and engineer carrying out an environmental study.

Mobile Homes Popular

OTTAWA (CP) — About 600,000 Canadians now live in mobile homes and their number is growing by 75,000 a year, says the Canadian Association of Consumers. Almost one in five housing starts is a mobile home, making it the fastest growing form of lower-cost housing.

Judge Ill

TORONTO (CP) — The royal commission investigation into alleged brutality by guards against Toronto Jail prisoners was postponed Monday because Judge Barry Shapiro of Peel County is ill.

The U.N. Peace Keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) was created by the U.N. Security Council in 1964 in an effort to prevent outbreaks of fighting between the Greek and Turkish communities. NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Lena Horne reported Sunday that her Manhattan apartment was burgled of about $50,000 in jewelry, police said.

Police said the burglary was carried out sometime after 11:30 p.m. Saturday, while the apartment was unoccupied.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Former actress Betty Hutton is in hospital here for treatment of an undisclosed ailment.

Miss Hutton, 53, who has been working as a cook at St. Anthony's rectory in nearby Portsmouth, was known as the blonde bombshell in Hollywood of Broadway in the 1940s and 1950s.

The hospital she entered is a psychiatric hospital offering short term intensive treatment of emotional disorders and extended care for outpatients.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — An agreement under which American and Soviet composers and lyricists would be compensated when their works are performed in each other's countries was reached here Tuesday.

The Soviet Copyright Agency and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) negotiated the agreement—the first between the Soviet Union and a United States performing rights organization.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

There are two ways to handle bad breaks. One is to let them beat you: the other is to guard against them. Frequently you can take care of, by matter by paying attention at trick one.

You cover West's jack of diamonds with the queen. People have been known to lead away from kings; but this time East produces the king. If you are careless you take your ace right away.

Later on you lose the club finesse; East puts his partner in with a diamond and West leads a spade. You think, but thought gets you no good. East leads both the ace and queen and you wind up can it he says.

Now look how pleasant life is if you do a little thinking at trick one. You note that the king of diamonds has shown up in the wrong hand. It is possible that the same wrong hand holds the ace-queen of spades and king of clubs.

Now you let East hold that first trick. He can do anything he wants at this point. The same goes for later on when he takes his king of clubs, but whatever he does he will be helpless: to put West on lead. Now you will lose just one spade, not two.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♦	1♠	1N.T.
Pass	3♣	Pass	3♥
Pass	3♠	Pass	4♥

You, South, hold:
♠4 ♥AQJ986 ♦KJ64 ♣AQ3

What do you do now?

A—Bid four clubs. Your partner appears to be starting a slam try in clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION
You continue to four spades. What do you bid now?

To Your Good Health

Nails Infected By Athlete's Foot

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear G. C. Thompson: I went to a dermatologist several months ago for my toenails and he gave me prescriptions for tablets to take once a day and an ointment to use on the toes.

He said it was athlete's foot. I have had it for a lot longer than (the nail fixed!) but he said it was, and the nail would grow out.

I still have this condition. One athlete's foot go to your nails and is there a cure for it? A lady who appeared to have the same condition told me she went to a local doctor who said there was no cure and she should have had the nails completely taken off when it first appeared, but it was too late now. I doubt if I would want my whole nail removed if that is the only answer. The doctor told me it was a fungus.—R.F.

What you were told by the dermatologist was correct; athlete's foot is a fungus infection that can spread to the nails (and some other skin diseases) can penetrate into the nails, and when that happens there are two choices: Use medications to bring the infection under control and then wait for the old nail to grow out and for the new nail to grow in healthy. Or, alternatively remove the infected nail surgically and wait for a new nail to grow. This takes quite a few months.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I would kill for a glass of milk. For two years now I have had a lot of solid bowel movement and have had constant problems. It is the grain area with "lock high."

After seeing seven doctors and undergoing a ton but all of ointments, lotions and pills, it is getting worse. Milk goes through me like lightning, giving me gas, loose stool and cramps.

The doctors just say give up milk—and how! French cooking, ice cream, salad dressings, cheese gone for life! I can't do it.

I hope you have an idea, or can suggest any specialist.—J.M.H.

Sounds as though you might have a deficiency of lactase—an enzyme that digests milk sugar, or lactose. This can be determined by a lactose (milk sugar) tolerance test.

If this is confirmed, the only answer is that you will have to avoid the things you say you "can't give up." You'll have to avoid milk and probably, other dairy products.

You aren't the only person who has developed this trouble, and while it requires some planning and attention to avoid milk products, it can be done. A dietitian can help you with that. There are milk substitutes—soy-milk, for example.—Dr. Thompson

Health can be reconstituted with water into a milk-substitute beverage.

My internist, particularly one who deals especially with stomach and intestinal disorders, can arrange for the tolerance test.

(Your diarbea is probably not one of fatigue).

OUT OUR WAY

by Neg Cochran

New Zealand Jobless Number Is Declining

AUCKLAND (CP) — In a world of economic crisis and mounting unemployment, the situation in New Zealand gets still more extraordinary.

There has been no significant unemployment in New Zealand ever since the Second World War and in face of all portents the number of unemployed in New Zealand is actually falling.

Predictions of unemployment have frequently been made this year, by economic prophets, by employers and by trade union executives. So far they all have proved wrong.

At the moment, in fact, the total number of unemployed in the entire country stands at 851. This works out at about .07 per cent of the work force.

There are no unemployed at all in the three largest cities—Auckland, Wellington and Christchurch. There has not been one person registered unemployed in the largest city, Auckland, for well over a year, and Auckland contains nearly 30 per cent of the country's work force.

The number of persons who are registered unemployed are mostly for various reasons unemployable or are subject to special temporary emergencies.

The fall in unemployed recently has been to some extent seasonal. It is spring, coming up summer, in the southern hemisphere and more job become available toward Christmas.

But in fact the level of unemployment has never reached more than token levels even in the depths of winter.

The highest figure this year was 1,285 on July 12, and in spite of pessimistic prediction of recession, that is fact was little more than half the level of the same time in the previous year.

Yet New Zealand, in common with most countries, has suffered a business slowdown this year. Prices on the stock exchanges have slumped drastically, export receipts are down, the balance of payments is adverse, money is tight and businesses are finding trouble in raising funds, mortgage finance is even more difficult.

Full employment has long been a top priority economic policy with all New Zeland governents, and a condition of over-full employment, has been known to exist. The endless pages of situations vacant advertisements in newspapers, with employers pleading for workers, have been ample indication of the numbers of jobs available.

Such a situation, however, is causing concern to the government and to the trade unions eyeing the growth of jobless in other countries. Already this year tighter restrictions have been place on the categories of workers allowed to immigrate permanently.

Such several loopholes remain open—in particular people from Australia and some of the Pacific Islands. still have been able to immigrate freely. It has until now been an arrangement maintained through thick and thin that Australians and New Zealanders have been able to move freely to either country without passports or other travel documents.

With unemployment reaching disquieting levels in Australia, however, the New Zealand government has expressed uneasiness and negotiations are in progress on future policy. No restrictions have so far been announced, but it is thought that if there are signs of a large enough inflow of jobless from Australia to upset the balance in New Zealand, the New Zealand government would seek to apply some kind of a brake.

As it is, unions in New Zealand are increasingly uneasy about all immigration at a time when warnings of unemployment are being so freely issued, and some union quarters are demanding a temporary halt to all immigration until the situation is clarified. But for the moment the country remains a haven where everyone who wants a job can find it immediately.

Expanded Ignace Seeks Health Care

IGNACE, Ont. (CP) — The people of this rapidly expanding village, which had 600 residents two years ago and now has 2,200, are getting together to provide better medical facilities to deal with the booming population.

Dr. Godfrey Hinds, the only doctor in this community 50 miles west of Thunder Bay, said a new clinic will open this winter funded completely by donations from the public and local firms and built entirely by voluntary labor.

A clinic of one doctor and one nurse practitioner was set up here two years ago, by McMaster University of Hamilton as a pilot project to train medical and nursing students to deal with the problems of family care in isolated communities. But the expanded population, brought on by the opening of new mines in the area, has created overwhelming problems for the tiny clinic.

Dr. Hinds said: "The new clinic will house x-ray and better lab facilities. We also hope to have office space for public health facilities, ambulance service, physiotherapy and social agencies such as children's aid.'

The community action is characteristic of the village's public involvement to beat the difficulties of isolation, he said. The area's ambulance service is also completely voluntary, covering a distance of 70 miles east and west of Ignace "and umpteen miles north."

"One driver just completed a 200-mile round trip to take a sick baby out of the north to the hospital in Dryden," he said. "He arrived home in Ignace at 3 a.m. and the poor fellow had to be up working at Mattabi Mines, 50 miles north, by 8 a.m."

Before the inception of the ambulance service, nurse Mary Berglund was the only medical help in the region.

"She's a great old lady who used to travel the CPR throwing people into cabooses—it was the only way," Dr. Hinds said.

The present clinic, funded by McMaster until Oct. 1 when the Ontario government took over, still welcomes students from the university who learn to work without hospital facilities. Patients are diagnosed and short-term problems treated. If patients are in need of special services they are referred to hospitals in Dryden and Thunder Bay.

Jackie Claringbull, who just completed the McMaster course for nurse practitioners which places the student in Ignace and McMaster at six-week intervals over a period of four months, said the clinic deals mainly with family care but also with psychological and alcoholic problems created by a new and isolated community.

"We suffer people during their cries, Dr. Hinds said, adding that patients with underlying mental illnesses are referred to specialists elsewhere "once we get them straighten out."

Mrs. Claringbull has learned to diagnose patients problems independently of the doctor and is on call every other night, in conjunction with Dr. Hinds.

The doctor came in February to this community where much of the population is housed temporarily in trailers and the usual greeting is, "Where are you from?"

The doctor from Northern Ireland said: "The job was open, so here I am."

More Teeth For Law Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — A legislative committee turned down a proposal Monday to put more teeth into legislation to give women wages equivalent to pay received by men for equal work.

The legislation—the 1974 Employment Standards Act—says in section 23 that wage discrimination between sexes is forbidden "for substantially the same kind of work performed in the same establishment."

Madeleine Parent, a spokesman for the Ontario Committee on the Status of Women, suggested the phrases "in be prepared by job evaluation" be added.

But Labor Minister John MacBeth, said his ministry would need a large staff to enforce the job evaluation system.

Mr. MacBeth said he has asked ministry officials to see if a simple evaluation system could be set up.

Five Are Shot

Montreal Region Family Is Slain

ST. JOSEPH-DU LAC, Que. (CP) — Provincial police said a 19-year-old youth is being held for questioning and a 15-year-old man is being sought in connection with the shooting deaths late Tuesday of five members of a family in this community 15 miles northwest of Montreal.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Norbert Dumoulin, 37, her son Roger, 20, her daughters, Yvonne, 17, and Lucille Mireault, 14, and a son-in-law, Guy Mireault, 17.

A police spokesman said police were alerted by Raymond Lacoste, a relative, who found a car motor running in the driveway and received no answer at the door when he went in visit.

The spokesman said the two suspects apparently were holding the three women hostage in the house when the two men of the family caught them by surprise.

He said all five victims were beaten and then shot with a revolver.

The spokesman said robbery was thought to be the motive because the family was reputed to keep large sums of money in the house.

He said the two suspects were known to police.

The Dumoulins were apple growers.

Mr. Lacoste told that when he arrived at the house "I opened the back door a little bit and I could see two bodies lying on the kitchen floor."

"I didn't stay around to ask questions, I ran to my truck and went straight to the police. I've never driven that fast in my life."

Guy Dumoulin, another relative who lives near the house, said: "Together they weren't strong enough to add up to one man. The two children who lived with their mother were both epileptics and their mother could barely move because she was so old.

18 of 897 Samples Infected

Salmonella Organisms Detected in Hamburger

OTTAWA (CP) — Poisonous salmonella organisms have been found in a number of hamburger samples checked recently by the health department, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

As a result, the government plans to step up its hamburger inspection program, test other prepared meat such as sausage and bologna and hold workshops to teach meat merchants the importance of sanitation.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said last Friday the government would be urging meat sellers to promote ground beef made from low-grade cow meat—to help ease the glut of such meat now coming on to the market.

Mr. Lalonde said in a statement the health department found 18 examples of contaminated hamburger in 897 samples taken from 180 stores in five provinces.

The department still was checking the samples for evidence of other micro-organisms—such as coliforms and staphylococci.

Because of the salmonella findings, however, the inspection was being expanded to include meat samples from retail stores in all provinces. The first survey covered Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia.

Mr. Lalonde said the 18 contaminated samples were found in seven stores—three in Toronto, two in Burlington, Ont., and two in Montreal.

Each of the stores has been warned, Mr. Lalonde said. "Further regulatory action" under the Food and Drugs Act would be taken if new poisonous samples were uncovered.

The stores also are being checked to see if the contamination occurred at the retail level or was in the beef as it was received.

Mr. Lalonde said the level of contamination was low in all 18 hamburger samples, adding that salmonella organisms are readily destroyed at normal cooking temperatures."

After the survey results were released, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, said she was delighted that the government is undertaking a real inspection program."

Earlier this year she complained that the government virtually had given meat merchants a licence to sell substandard hamburger. In a June report, the review board said it had found poor quality hamburger in a number of stores.

Yet the health protection branch tested only 105 samples of ground beef for bacterial content between January, 1972, and December, 1973, and A. R. Morrison, director of the branch, had "termed as adequate our recommendation for of ground beef for bacterial content in ground beef."

Mr. Morrison said after the Tuesday announcement that he was not surprised by the result, adding that the 18 contaminated samples represented only two per cent of the 897 checked.

No other countries be said, between six and 15 per cent contamination is considered normal.

Inspection Due: Monument to City's Railroading

Zwick's Park Steam Engine Showing Effects of Time

By HARRY MULHALL

A standing public reminder of Belleville's role in railroad history is deteriorating.

Belleville parks officials are concerned about the perishable condition of the exhibit — the steam engine and caboose which are an outdoor historic monument at West Zwick's Park.

Both were installed as a 1967 Centennial Year project at Zwick's.

The locomotive and caboose — emblematic of the city's heyday as a change point on the Montreal-Toronto rail link — were gifts from Canadian National Railways.

Since the installation, their maintenance has been supported by voluntary effort, — notably paint-jobs by the city's fire department.

Now, however, the engine is in such condition they'll soon need more inspection. As repairs will be given the parks board early in 1975, the board was told Tuesday night.

The exhibit, said parks director Lloyd Syer, "actually is deteriorating quite fast."

"We've removed anything we thought might be of danger."

Particularly hard hit is the caboose, which is made of wood.

The trouble isn't restricted to Belleville.

In Kingston, where there is a similar exhibit, "they're having the same problem," said Mr. Syer,

Only 17 of 264 MPs in House

NDP Throws Roadblock Into Path of Pay Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The 38-per-cent pay increase that most MPs and Senators had hoped to vote themselves by Christmas appears to be slipping from their grasp, temporarily.

A bill to authorize the increase ran into two roadblocks Tuesday, making it doubtful of passage before MPs and senators go home Friday for the period one-month recess.

The New Democratic Party was responsible for both delays, announcing that it would block the increase at every stage of passage and then forcing an early Commons adjournment because not enough members were in the House.

House technicalities prevent the bill from being passed without unanimous consent before Saturday.

Ed Broadbent, NDP parliamentary leader, said following a marathon caucus that all 16 NDP members are opposed to the increase.

Their opposition will prevent approval this week but cannot hold up the bill indefinitely, he said.

Mr. Broadbent has said he will accept the increase and a number of NDP members have said privately they might do it, even though the party is officially opposed.

If approved, the bill will raise the total pay of MPs, including tax-free allowances, to $59,500 annually from $38,600. Senate salaries and allowances would go to $53,000 annually from $27,800.

The surprise afternoon adjournment came when Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiscaming) noted that fewer than the required minimum of 20 MPs were present. Seventeen of the 264 MPs were on hand.

The adjournment prevented two hours of evening debate on the salary bill and killed an informal agreement to dispose quickly of an NDP amendment that would keep the increase and leave the issue for an independent commission to decide.

The NDP amendment is considered certain to be defeated but the delay in bringing it to a vote made it unlikely that the bill will pass before Friday.

The government has said the pay increase only is about six-per-cent-a-year calculated from the last boost in 1970 to the next, expected in 1978.

Metro PCs Balk at Boost

TORONTO (CP) — A meeting of federal Progressive Conservative riding associations in Metropolitan Toronto has been called on Conservative members of Parliament to reconsider the proposed pay increase for MPs.

P.C. Metro, a newly-formed group of 21 federal ridings that will act together rather than as individuals, approved a resolution on the proposed 30-per-cent pay increase introduced this week by the Liberal government.

The resolution, sent to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, Conservative caucus chairman Don Mazankowski and Michael Meighen, president of the P.C. Association of Canada, "urgently" called on Conservative members to reconsider the increase.

Raiders Crisscross Border

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Arab raiders criss-crossed the Lebanese border early today. The Israeli command said its troops blew up six houses in southern Lebanon and took two Arab prisoners, while Arabs infiltrated a kibbutz and set off half a dozen grenades.

In Lebanon the Israeli commandos crossed the border by helicopter at 2:30 a.m. and attacked the village of Majdel Zoun, six miles from the frontier. The defence ministry said they blew up six houses, kidnapped four villagers and fled before a Lebanese patrol arrived.

Beirut said one child was killed injured in the attack.

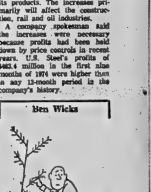
Less than three hours after the Israeli raid, a band of Arabs slipped past guards at the Hanika kibbutz, three half a dozen grenades at a house and escaped back into Lebanon, the Israeli command said. The kibbutz is four miles from the border. No casualties were reported.

Ford Demands Steel Justify Price Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has demanded that the largest steel producer in the United States justify an eight-per-cent price increase that shows signs of spreading through the industry and may trigger across other segments of the economy.

Under the president's order, the council of wage and price stability demanded an immediate explanation Tuesday of the price increase being put into effect today by the United States Steel Co.

Within 24 hours of the industry leader's price-boosting announcement, CF and I Steel Corp., third-largest producer, said it also was raising prices up to eight per cent.



In another development, Treasury Secretary William Simon increased the administration's estimate for U.S. unemployment next year and warned that the recession will deepen into the spring of next year.

Simon told the Senate budget committee that unemployment in the U.S. now 6.5 per cent, will rise to about 7.5 per cent next year. Previously, he said it would reach seven per cent.

U.S. Steel said Monday it was increasing prices an average of eight per cent on two-thirds of its products. Increases primarily will affect the construction, rail and oil industries.

A company spokesman said the increases were necessary because profits had been held down by price controls in recent years. U.S. Steel's profits of $463.4 million in the first nine months of 1974 were higher than in any 12-month period in the company's history.

New Regulations Require Upgrading of Nursing Homes

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

One, maybe two, new nursing homes are on the way for Belleville while two others will undergo extensive renovations — the result of provincial government pressure.

In 1972, the province's ministry of health, under the guidance of Ontario MPP Dr. R. T. Potter, introduced a revised Nursing Home Act which required extensive alterations to home standards.

Since that time each of the four homes in the city have been in negotiations with the province to determine what extent the act will affect city operators.

Jack Hood, owner-operator of Victoria Lodge, this week announced final provincial approval has been received for a new, 99-bed home tl be constructed on Dundas St. East at a cost of approximately $500,000. The project is already well advanced in the construction stage and Mr. Bond said on April 1 opening is likely.

Mr. Bond said he intends selling the present Victoria Lodge and said it is well suited as a "hostel".

Jim Clegg, operator of Belleville's Belcrest Nursing Home and Montgomery Lodge said major renovations are planned for both centres. They've (provincial) demanded "upgrading," he said. "Do it or the bed capacity will be reduced so it will be impossible to operate."

A 30,000 square foot addition is planned for Belcrest allowing expansion of the dining room, lounge and bedrooms. No additional rooms are in the plans.

"The real problem is Montgomery Lodge," said Mr. Clegg. He said the entire inside of the lodge will be gutted and re-built to the new standards. "We're completely upgrading the entire building," he said. The job is expected to cost $250,000.

Last September the province gave Mr. Clegg nine months to complete the renovations. With a bit of luck we'll get going in March," he said.

Jane Watts, proprietor of the Maple Haven Nursing Home said "the new act will clear her establishment."

However, a provincial inspector who recently visited the home said it should stay open.

Uncertain of the final outcome a year ago, Mrs. Watts submitted drawings for a new, 50-bed home with plans of expanding to 150 beds within a year of opening. The provincial government has not yet approved the plans.

"We have 13 people clamoring for one bed right now . . . we could fill the new home tomorrow," she said.

The province does not subsidize nursing homes but provides subsidies to certain residents who qualify following a physician's examination.

If acceptable, the ministry of health will pick up $11.35 of the resident's daily charge which might range from $17 for a ward bed to $24 for a private room.

Mr. Hood said he does not know why subsidies aren't available to nursing homes. "You can get subsidies for just about any industry but not for nursing homes."

"The province hasn't helped a bit (financially)," he said.

For Mr. Bond, at least, government "red tape" will stop him from ever going back to building again.

"Because of the bureaucracy and paper work, I wouldn't do it again," he said.

In the time that Mr. Bond's drawings have been in government hands waiting for approval, mortgage rates have climbed four per cent and labor and material costs — with the exception of Maple Haven — all renovations will be complete within the year. According to the operators, bringing each of the homes up to standards as specified in the 1972 revision.

Fire's Prolific Toll

Fire. It is one of the most horrifying and prolific of killers.

The wise person is always alert to its potential, and takes precautions: checking wiring, the furnace, appliances, avoiding too much heat and concentrations of paper and flammable liquids.

Yet it takes many lives, which we tend to take for granted, shutting out of our minds the agony victims must suffer, and causes millions of dollars every year. How many of these fatal or damaging conflagrations could have been prevented?

Consider an astonishing report just released by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Designed to pinpoint the cause of 5.5 million household and personal property fires during the 12-month period ending last April, the report said appliances were the leading cause of fires in nearly 3.5 million of the cases. Electric stoves were blamed for 855,000, electric wiring for 435,000, gas stoves for 360,000 — and television sets, no less, for 196,000.

Where TV sets are concerned, the Commission has already announced plans to present mandatory safety standards for their manufacture. It will be recalled that a two-day hearing in the U.S. earlier this year produced reports of five fatalities and electrocutions caused by faulty sets.

Then there is the old bugbear of smoking. Cigarettes, according to the U.S. survey, accounted for 345,000 fires, and matches the startled another 248,000.

This is a report that should be taken seriously by everyone, considering that any report of this nature in Canada likely would indicate a similar picture in proportion to our population.

Where fire precautions are concerned, no one can afford to be careless. Too often there are no second chances.

And don't overlook either one potentially hazardous fire trap — the Christmas tree. Keep it moist.

UK Economy Sags

Whither Britain? Here is a country whose trade deficit climbs ever upward while the pound continues to slip alarmingly.

In terms of prestige it means a further drop, just as it has meant accepting loans from once dependent nations such as Iran — like other Mid-East lands basking in oil wealth — and purchasing more stable currencies to pay bills in places such as Saudi Arabia; because the latter has lost faith in sterling.

As if this were not bad enough there is evidence of slump in some other unlikely areas of British life. In sport for example. Professional tennis, booming elsewhere, is wilting in the UK. Sponsors are dropping out not only in tennis, but in golf and auto racing too. The reason, aside from a shortage of star players in the case of tennis, is said to be a general shortage of money. One happy exception is Wimbledon, which makes so much money that offers of sponsorship have been turned down.

But Wimbledon is the exception. Even horse-racing has been described in recent days as a "dying duck." That's the word from Viscount Leverhulme, senior steward of the jockey club. Like everything else, he says the industry is in doldrums.

Meanwhile the word from Las Vegas is that three Saudi Arabian princes lost more than $1 million during a five-day gambling spree. Oil-rich Arabs have been flying in by private jet and, undeterred by their huge losses (for them, relatively-speaking) expect to return.

For Britain, in its straitened circumstances, perhaps only the ultimate flowering of the newly-discovered North Sea oil resources, will get it out of those "doldrums" mentioned by the jockey club steward.

Maybe it should start making some extra capital too from such fine assets as its whiskey and luxury cars — and who is more appreciative of the latter, in particular, than those oil-rich Arabs.

Caribbean Diplomacy

French Isles Sport Sugar, Tourism, And Feminine Beauty

By JOHN D. HARKINS*
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

These pesky old colonial empires do linger on, some as distant tiny islands, usually close to the sun-soaked, bustlehedid possessions in Africa, the Caribbean or Asia.

The French, like the British, have a good deal of them under the tricolor flag. In some cases rich parcels of natural resources in world demand, in other places just trouble spots.

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing found that out a few days ago in the French Caribbean island of Guadeloupe, a lush island of sugar, tourist country and women of mixed blood and breath-taking beauty.

Neither they nor the tourists seemed to be around when President Giscard arrived. His tour was met silent by rioting Negro men, workers and students opposed to the 25-per-cent rise in the island's cost of living. This is higher than metropolitan French even though wages are lower.

Why the long-suffering French, Giscard grasped with these kinds of problems back home in Paris, drove to go to Guadeloupe and bear more of the same?

Well, he was on his way to meet President Ford in Martinique, that other French-owned island in the Leeward and Windward island groupings, also famous for tourism, sugar and compelling beauties.

You still might ask why meet in Martinique? Why indeed? It's winter holiday time in the Caribbean for any excuse is valid. The other day this columnist called on an associate in the news business to find he had disappeared to St. Petersburg, Fla., for a week to attend a "religious conference."

Oh? The deity was not aroused since that week it was as cold in good old St. Pete as in charming Toronto, namely down to 34 degrees at night, up to a frustrating 69 by high noon, not quite warm enough for a swim.

But back to France's lingering empire of soft islands and rich sloths. As any Canadian schoolboy or girl knows, the last tiny piece of the once-vast French empire in the New World is France are the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Canadian east coast.

They are, and will remain, legitimate escapes from the doormers of Maritime Canada so long as they never come under the Canadian flag. I know naval officers who never once steered a warship into a jetty thereby risking court martial, who smuggled Mirabelle-bought rum into the hallowed homes of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. It came in "duty free" by virtue of being smuggled and with the help of the profit-seeking citizens of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

Out to the distant Pacific now and we find no less an industrial giant than international Nickel Co., most deal with the French, in the matter of mines on New Caledonia which has one of the world's richest lodes of lateritic nickel. That's the kind which is more or less scooped off the topsoil since it's close to the surface.

It's not the kind you find to Sudbury where nickel lies deep in hard rock.

New Caledonia and its dependencies, along with French Polynesia with memories of Robert Louis Stevenson and Gauguin and the gilded island of Reunion near former French hold Madagascar, an even bigger island, mainly make up France's lingering but rich Pacific possessions.

There are other even smaller, little pieces of what a belle France spread around the world, claims to portions of Antarctica's endless snows and deep inside Africa, the Caribbean or tiny and blistering hot islands off what was once French Somaliland and on the South American continent the once forbidding hell-hole of French Guiana, seat of Devil's Island.

It's a prison of terror and human degradation no longer, but if you can believe it, a cleaned-up site transformed into a tourist lure is good, old Guiana.

"Ya-ha-ha — and have all of you been good little cabinet ministers?"

They Have Hot Seats But Turner And Andras Stay Calm And Even Accept Some Advice

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — You would never know it, to see and hear him under pressure in the Commons, that of all the members of Prime Minister Trudeau's troubled cabinet, Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras is the man-in-the-middle.

Most of the others have their departmental and administrative problems, too — and slow or with ill-concealed displays of irritation and frustration, and even exhibitions of helplessness when under the gun.

But there stands Robert Andras, beset on both his two departmental fronts by pressures, as calm and in control of the situation as Finance Minister John Turner, "Mr. Cool" of the cabinet.

It has to be that both men simply know their jobs are political diplomats with skill enough to know that patience and reason and willingness to listen to criticism without resentment is the best defence against an opposition mounting a unslaked attack.

They don't lash out, they refuse to blow up, they admit readily to their administrative failures, they welcome and accept constructive suggestion and advice, and serving their purpose best of all, they reflect an anxiety to do better.

Consider the beat that Robert Andras has to take in the kitchen-of-a-department, Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras is the man-in-the-middle.

Most of the others have their departmental and administrative problems, too — and slow or with ill-concealed displays of irritation and frustration, and even exhibitions of helplessness when under the gun.

But there stands Robert Andras, beset on both his two departmental fronts by pressures, as calm and in control of the situation as Finance Minister John Turner, "Mr. Cool" of the cabinet.

It has to be that both men simply know their jobs are political diplomats with skill enough to know that patience and reason and willingness to listen to criticism without resentment is the best defence against an opposition mounting a unslaked attack.

They don't lash out, they refuse to blow up, they admit readily to their administrative failures, they welcome and good-paying jobs are going to waste. This is a double-barrelled disaster: jobs for the asking and able-bodied men going jobless through their own deliberation and determination."

Now listen to a more likely critic, Conservative MP Real O'Gilvie of Hamilton Wentworth.

"Thousands of jobs go begging in Hamilton, including high-paying posts at the steel company.

"One of the main reasons is the government policy discourages incentive, and makes it more inviting for the indolent simply not to work. The cost of this waste is a large component in the $1 billion annual bill for Unemployment Insurance."

Reeve Andrew Haydon of the Ottawa suburban township of Nepean complains that the International Paper Company, with a large plant in its National Capital area, need "thousands of men" to work the winter woods, but "despite unemployment high levels of artificial unemployment could recruit only 10."

He would give the able-bodied unemployed in the Ottawa-Hull area "axes and send them into the bush — they'd come out healthier, with money in their pockets and their problem of 'what, me work?' solved."

The other fire burning under Robert Andras is fueled by bleeding hearts who are trying to blackguard him as a racist for his insistence that with unemployment admittedly increasing, immigration must be selective on the point of largely involving skills and other abilities for self-support.

This, due to education levels, cannot avoid disqualifying many blacks, mostly from the Caribbean, than whites from Europe and the U.S.

So groups of Haitians, here illegally, and ticketed for deportation, have been picketing his office, marching around in Negro Liberation Party parliamentary quiet with abuse of him as a "bigot." Robert Andras has his many reasons for selectivity, one of them perhaps being that a Caribbean student, convicted and briefly jailed for the $3 million bilingual bank note computer five years ago, is still fighting deportation. Once in, it is next to impossible to put undesirables out.

Political Bias Once Worth Bottle Of Booze

By STEWART MacLEOD
OTTAWA (CP) — There was one bright side to allegations by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette that some Parliamentary Press Gallery members accept cash bribes.

Opposite in all the denials was the fact that, based on previous charges from the floor of the Commons, all cards seem to be rising. Just four years ago, Jack Bigg, former Progressive Conservative MP for Pembina, said the price of good press coverage was a bottle of Scotch.

"I have heard some members of the press gallery confess that they supported one stand or another because they received a bottle of whiskey or Christmas." Mr. Bigg said in the Commons at the time.

Former Senator Paul Martin will leave Ottawa Dec. 29 to take up his new post, Jan. 1, as High Commissioner in London.

The 16-member procedures committee, studying reform of parliamentary rules, is planning to spend one week in Britain during January to talk with procedural experts. The committee is headed by Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp and includes the House leaders of all other parties.

If the committee makes the trip it means the Commons will end its Christmas recess about Jan. 21. But if the trip doesn't come off, and all the House leaders are in Ottawa, some officials expect the recess to end about mid-January.

Profound statements from the National Capital Commission: "Canada's capital is well known as the seat of the government of Canada."

While most Liberals are paying lip service to former prime minister W. L. Mackenzie King on the 100th anniversary of his birth, Senator Eugene Forsey is not joining the celebrations with enthusiasm.

"Arthur Meighen said to me once, 'I think you're the only man in Canada, except myself, who fully realizes the moral turpitude of Mackenzie King'."

Senator Forsey, reluctantly has accepted an invitation to attend a seminar on Mackenzie King at the University of Waterloo next week.

Family Allowances Taxable For First Time in Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

A reminder: Family allowances have become taxable as income for the first time this year.

Besides becoming taxable, the payments have been increased to $20 a month per child, in Prince Edward Island, payment is increased to $30 per child for the fifth and succeeding children. In Quebec and Alberta, family allowances vary with the age of the child.

Self-employed individuals and others who are required to pay their income tax in instalments should remember this year to take family allowance payments into account when estimating their tax instalments.

The burden of paying the tax falls on either the person who claims the deduction from taxable income for the child, or the person to whom the family allowance is paid.

That means, according to the department of national revenue's recently issued Information Circular 74-24, that a father who claims a child as a dependent must pay tax on the family allowance even though it may be paid directly to his wife.

If neither the child claim as a dependent, the taxpayer receiving the family allowance must report it as income.

This requirement would still apply even if, for example, the payments are endorsed to an organization such as a hospital to which the child may be confined.

The maximum exemption for dependent children under 18 has been increased to $320 for 1974 from $300 in 1973. It will be increased again, to $352, on 1975 income.

The principle is different, however, in the case of income arising from the investment of family-allowance payments.

"The investment can be readily identified as the property of the child, any income earned therefrom is income of the child," says national revenue.

If, on the other hand, the allowances were deposited in a joint account in the name of both parents, they would be liable for the tax on the interest—unless the parents could establish that the interest came solely from the family allowances and that the funds were clearly intended for the child's future benefit.

Looking ahead to 1975, here are other family-related exemptions that are to be increased to reflect the rise in the consumer price index during the 12 months ended in September, 1974:

—Basic personal exemption for 1975 will be $1,678, up from this year's $1,550 and last year's $1,400.

—Married exemption next year will be set at $1,644, compared with $1,492 in 1974 and $1,400 in 1973.

—Deduction for the aged and disabled will be $1,248, up from $1,086 this year, and $1,000 last year.

In each case, the base period is September to 1972, with an index of one. The indexing factor for 1974 is $1.086, and for 1975 it will be 1.174.

CSAO Strike Anticipated

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It looks very much as though the strike by the operating employees of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) will be on.

The CSAO executive has been given an overwhelming endorsement of a strike.

And Queen's there is more bargaining to be conducted and a tiff that could be only the most optimistic believe is settled can end short of a strike.

The association negotiators did back off from their first inflexible demand of a .61 per cent increase.

But their second offer of 9 per cent is not much better. It is hardly realistic.

The government's counter-offer of 7.20 per cent is a realistic one.

What thought it says this is negotiable also, it is hard to see how it can go much above this.

And the inflation rate now is represents a substantial boost.

Government always has to keep in mind, or should keep in mind, that it is the pace setter. Ottawa doesn't seem to be too conscious of this) and when it acts in advance the rest of industry has to follow suit for the same pattern.

So that in addition to the cost involved it must consider the matter of precedent.

ONE STORE

"The government says it has given an honest offer in the event of a strike.

And the secretary staff will be able to man the snow-plows, operate the psychiatric hospitals and do all the other tasks performed by the operating employees.

But one must assume a certain amount of bravado in this position.

Under snow-storm that lasted more than a couple of days the government really could clog transportation in the province, cutting off communities that had not stocked enough food to a state of crossing.

Then what would the government do?

It seems more than likely we could have a chance to see.

KGB Man a Security Threat

Editor
The Intelligencer:

Referring to your editorial of Dec. 11, 1974 "A Roving Eye: when the British Home Secretary decides to expel a military in this case Alexandre Greeko, it is not done lightly.

Evaluation from many sources has shown that, in 1971, Greeko was an active court KGB agent.

We, in the West, apparently cannot appreciate the fact that

"once KGB always KGB," even when the cover is blown.

Our informal-security services were dismally lax in allowing the P.M. to be photographed with Greeko.

This man should be persona non grata in Canada too, or perhaps Mr. Trudeau feels that senior agents really have found their niche in Canada's sport.

Bombay's Rightists Put Ban on English

BOMBAY (CP) — All over ing overtimes.
this metropolis of nearly ... The small Shiv Sena party, a million, sign-painters are work militant right-wing group that has been known to resort to street violence to achieve its ends, has ordered that signboards of hotels, shops and all other establishments should be in the local Marathi language.

Up to now, signs in this cosmopolitan city have been mainly in English. Less than half of Bombay's population speaks Marathi.

Reluctant merchants were persuaded to erase their English signs by an ominous commencement from Shiv Sena leader Bal Thackeray:

"If the switchover to Marathi does not take place within a reasonable time, we may have to think of the next step in our directive."

Several stores have put up signs in both Marathi and English, with the latter in smaller type, and are pleading with Thackeray to consider the needs of residents who speak other languages and foreign tourists.

But even world-famous establishments like the Taj Mahal Hotel and the Mandarin Chinese Restaurant have not dared to ignore the order by the Shiv Sena (Army of Lord Shiva).

More than 30 languages are spoken in Bombay but Thackeray says "this is a city of Maharashtra and Marathi alone shall prevail."

The development is seen by observers as an awesome display of the power of a small political party and the helplessness of the majority.

Bombay Internal Security Minister Sharad Pawar was police indifference. quoted in local papers as saying that the police would not interfere so long as the process of switching over to Marathi was voluntary and peaceful.

"The next directive from the Shiv Sena could well be that the ... But there has been a flood of memo cards should only be in newspapers ... Marathi!"

A Christmas Message from Ida Burns

By Ida Burns
Consumer Consultant
A&P Food Stores Ltd.

"It's The Most Wonderful Time of the Year!"

Why? Because suddenly we become conscious of the needs of others! In our busy lives, we don't mean to be selfish — perish the thought!

However, we become so engrossed with our own needs that we simply do not think!

Then, suddenly, it's Christmas again! We become conscious of old friends — family — we make a telephone call — drop a card — and oh, it's wonderful to get together!

People on the street are suddenly smiling at us — and, of course, we grin right back!

I'll tell you what it is — "love" is in the air — love of our fellow man — and it's a "lovely" feeling — it is actually the most important ingredient in any human being's life! This year, let's try to make it last 12 months.

There are so many less fortunate than ourselves, "I was sorry for myself, because I had no shoes — until I saw a man who had no feet!"

Think of it, no matter how badly off you are — there is always someone who is much worse!

May God bless you and your giving at Christmas!

How-to Helps for Preparing That Traditional Christmas Turkey

With food costs high, organization and planning are more essential than ever in the preparation of a gourmet meal such as Christmas dinner.

Here's a list of suggestions — many of them from the Ontario Egg Producers' Marketing Board — to help new homemakers get started, and to refresh the kitchen routines of experienced cooks.

1) This week, write out the menu for all your major festive meals.

2) From these menus, make your shopping list, and this week buy all the non-perishable items you need, so that the bulk of your food supply is on hand.

3) Organize the household jobs — cleaning silver, arranging decorations, making cookies — and assign various chores to members of the family so that everyone is involved in Christmas preparations.

4) Start thawing the turkey far enough ahead that it will be thoroughly unfrozen before you stuff it to roast. (Otherwise you'll have very soggy dressing.)

Once thawed, the bird may be kept in the refrigerator for two days before roasting.

Remove the frozen bag when the turkey is thawed, and rinse, dry and wrap loosely with wax paper or plastic film to keep it from drying out.

5) On Christmas eve, assemble the ingredients for the stuffing. Dry ingredients need not be refrigerated. But do NOT put the stuffing in the turkey until just before roasting.

6) Clean vegetables and get them ready for Christmas dinner the night before so that you'll have little to do on the day itself. Store the vegetables in plastic bags in the refrigerator.

ROAST TURKEY

Place turkey in a shallow pan on a rack to keep it off the pan bottom and to allow heat to circulate.

Brush the bird all over with melted butter or oil. For more variation brush with ONE of the following mixtures before putting in the oven:

— Soya sauce, Worcestershire sauce and a little dry mustard, mixed with melted butter to taste

— rosemary and thyme mixed with butter

— grated lemon rind, lemon juice and rosemary blended with butter

— ½ tsp. chili powder mixed with ¼ cup dry red wine and one tsp. brown sugar

Cover the turkey with ONE of the following:

— aluminum foil, dull side up, left loose at the sides but tacked into the pan at the ends.

— double thickness of cheesecloth moistened with melted fat and tucked into pan on all sides.

— Place bird in a large, clean, unused unpierced brown paper bag which has been greased. Leave end open to allow steam to escape.

Roast in a shallow pan. Do not cover the turkey or bag with foil or drippings during the roasting. If the foil has been used, remove during the last hour, and baste several times to promote browning.

Brush the turkey skin with ONE of the following to enhance flavor and crispness:

— pan drippings in which a pinch or two of ground cinnamon or ginger has been added

— pan drippings to which a teaspoon of mixed pickling spices has been added

— apple juice mixed to taste with a little soya sauce

— dry or semi sweet wine, or a little sherry

— a repeat of the same mixture used on the bird before roasting.

Remove the turkey from the oven for basting or brushing, and close the oven door to conserve heat. Work as quickly as you can, so that the bird doesn't cool.

Roasting time charts are available in most cookbooks. The best oven temperature is 325 degrees. Plan on between four and five hours for an average (10-14 pound bird, stuffed) turkey.

A meat thermometer is the best indicator to test if the turkey is done. If you use one, insert it into the middle of the thick thigh muscles or into the thickest muscle of the breast, being sure the thermometer does not touch any bone.

When cooked, the turkey should be between 185 and 190 degrees.

If a thermometer is not available, pinch the drumstick or breast with cloth-protected fingers. If it yields and feels soft, the leg should move easily if you twist it.

PRUNE-ORANGE STUFFING

(For 10 pound turkey)

24 to 26 prunes, pitted, quartered and soaked eight cups fine dry bread crumbs

one cup sliced almonds

two tbsps. butter or oil

½ tsp. salt

½ cup orange juice (approximately)

½ cup crumbled rosemary

Heat butter or oil in a small pan. Add almonds, or any other nuts you fancy, and salt. Brown slightly and stir.

Place crumbs in a bowl, add rosemary, prunes, nuts and butter. Add orange juice and lightly moistened but not soggy. Let stand for five minutes, toss with fork and add more juice if necessary.

TRADITIONAL GIBLET STUFFING

(For 10-pound turkey)

turkey giblets

14- oz. firm white loaf of bread, sliced

one cup finely chopped celery

one cup finely chopped onion

½ cup bacon drippings

one tsp. salt

½ tsp. pepper

two tsp. sage, rubbed

two eggs

one cup milk, approximately.

Spread the bread slices overnight to dry. Next morning, break into small pieces in a large bowl.

Remove the giblet bag from the cavity of the partially thawed turkey. Simmer giblets until done, cool, and chop finely.

Saute celery and onions in bacon drippings until transparent. Add the giblets, onion, celery and drippings to the bread. Sprinkle seasonings over all, and toss well. Beat eggs and milk together and pour over stuffing. Mix well

Use the broth left over from simmering the giblets for your gravy.

SMOOTH GRAVY

Two to four tbsp. fat from roasting pan

four tbsp. flour

two cups liquid (giblet broth and / or vegetable cooking water)

salt and pepper

pinch of poultry seasoning, (optional)

Remove the turkey from its pan. Pour out the drippings and fat, then measure the fat. You'll need back into the pan.

Mix the flour with the fat in a pan, and stir till blended. Add cooled liquid all at once, stirring constantly to prevent lumping.

Add seasonings and cook slowly until the flavor of raw flour has disappeared. If gravy becomes too thick, thin with a little more liquid.

Yields six servings. Simply double recipe for more gravy.

Ann Landers

Rules to Spoil a Child

Dear Ann Landers: As a teacher, I would like to pass along a set of rules for parents. If followed they are guaranteed to produce a spoiled brat who will later develop into a thoroughly messed-up adult.

1. If your child has trouble with a teacher, don't go to the school and talk to the teacher. Run directly to the principal, to the superintendent of schools or to the head of the board of education. It's always best to go straight to "the top."

2. Whenever your child complains about how mean or unfair a teacher is and describes some incident of cruelty or injustice, accept every word as the gospel truth. You know your child would never color or slant the facts.

3. Don't bother to write. Thank-you notes or after a word of praise if a teacher does something special for your child. After all, teachers are paid by you, the taxpayer. That's thanks enough.

4. When your child complains that there is too much homework, agree with him and if necessary do it for him. Children need routine and rest.

5. If your child reports that the teacher embarrassed him in front of the whole class for some little thing he did, phone the school and make it clear that you will not permit any teacher to discipline your child because he is very sensitive. "Not like most children."

6. Don't bother about PTA meetings. Visiting night, or any of the other school functions that make for better relationships between parents and teachers. They are a bore.

We appreciate your help, Ann Landers. You are a real friend.—Oklahoma Teacher

Dear O.T.: Thanks for a fine set of rules. I agree that if followed, they will produce a permanently damaged child and chronically miserable parents.

Dear Ann Landers: This friend at work was very pleasant until I borrowed $100 from her. I had hoped to pay it back within a month, but unexpected expenses came up and I was unable to. I'm not a deadbeat and will pay eventually but I'm ashamed at her coolness. What do you think about this?—Disappointed

Dear Dis: I think Mark Twain was right when he said: "The holy passion of friendship is so sweet, so steady, loyal and enduring that it will last a whole lifetime—if not asked to lend money."

The pattern of this ring dates to the Middle Ages where it was known as "the ceremonial ring."
The symbols used then are as appropriate today as they were in the year 1320.
Joined Hearts: two mortal souls in love.
Clasped Hands: togetherness for a lifetime.
Scriptures: wisdom of the ages for guidance.
Horn of Plenty: fulfillment and happiness.
Orange Blossoms: symbols of the dream you share.

Doris Clark

'Getting Caught Makes It Wrong'

Accidentally she discovered they had had a party while she was away - a drinking party.

She faced her boy with this knowledge, informing him that what he had done was against the law. She was startled when he replied, "Oh Mom, it's all right as long as you don't get caught."

Another you fellow, caught drinking beer with his pals behind the school, explained to this same mother, "We do it because we're not supposed to."

Well, according to me, you can't run a world like that. The habits of youth become the principles of adulthood. Getting caught or getting away with mayhem has nothing to do with it.

Life would be chaos if there weren't some rules to keep us straight.

Dear Doris: Would your medical consultant be able to say whether smoking marijuana can cause emphysema of the lungs, just as tobacco can?

Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Reading the report of a medical expert, Dr. Coleman, it does seem that many hidden dangers are unfolding about this so-called "harmless weed", marijuana.

Doctors are seeing many more cases of emphysema (a desperately crippling disease of the lungs) because of the deep inhalation associated with marijuana smoking. To obtain the full impact of the effect of marijuana, many smokers deeply fill their lungs and hold the smoke inside as long as possible.

Emphysema is only one of the tragedies that can result from long term smoking of marijuana. The scientific literature is revealing more and more reasons why legislative control is imperative to halt the use of marijuana.

Dear Doris: Recently I attended the theatre and sat in the middle of the row. Several people passed to take their seats beyond me. Some faced me and some turned their backs as they walked past. Which is correct?

A disagreeable argument followed this incident which has bothered me since, because I feel I may have taken rude to my hosts.

In Doubt.

Dear In Doubt: Here in Canada, when we have to disturb those seated to get to our seats, we customarily face the front of the theatre, backs to the obliging occupants.

Strangely enough, they do the opposite in Europe. So when Europeans move in Canada, they are likely to take a while to catch on - or may never do anything differently from what they were brought up to.

As if it mattered! Better do what you please to smooth down ruffled feathers - and if you showed some bitterness in argument, apologize.

Man Without Drink Flag Without Wind

SINGAPORE (Reuter) — An Asian loves his drink as well as anyone, despite religious restraints on use of alcohol.

To quench his thirst, he may set aside social taboos, flout religious tenets and pay the heavy taxes all Asian states impose on manufacture and sale of spirits.

Where Buddhist influence is paramount, the Asian's liking for a drink is fortified by age-old proverbs.

"A man without drink is like a flag without wind," runs an old saying in Vietnam, in the country's folklore calender, the month for drinking precedes the one for eating.

In Burma, a proverb has it that "he who drinks is a prince among men, but he who doesn't is a mere thought animal."

While drinking among men is common and increasing, Asian societies still take advance at women indulging—except in Japan. Yet the number of drinking women shows a gradual increase, particularly in upper and lower income brackets. Middle-class women rarely drink.

In rural areas of the Indian subcontinent and Southeast Asia, fermented coconut or palm juice share favor with rice wine.

Among western - influenced middle classes in Asian cities, beer is a preferred drink.

Whisky and brandy, brought to Asia in colonial days, still are favored drinks and status symbols for high government officials, diplomats and a new class of businessmen.

High excise duties are levied as a matter of morality and economic expediency.

To those who advocate prohibition, governments reply that they are doing all they can to discourage drinking by punitive taxes.

Most federal states in India have relaxed dry laws, proclaimed under the influence of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi 27 years ago when India became independent.

A Burmese state-owned enterprise manufactures toddy, rice wine and "foreign liquor" such as beer, whisky, brandy and rum.

In Sri Lanka state firms control the production and distribution of arrack, a popular drink distilled from toddy.

In Thailand, where 90 per cent of some 37 million inhabitants are Buddhists, drinks are available day and night.

The only official ban on drinking is for one hour in the morning and three hours in the afternoon. Only a few locals observe the rule.

Malaysia's population is split between Moslem non-drinkers. While some are inhibited by Islamic teachings, roughly 50 per cent of an estimated 13 million Malaysians are either ethnic Chinese or Indians unaffected by such constraints.

Reports suggest that drinking is on the increase in affluent Japan and Taiwan, the British colony of Hong Kong and the Philippines and Indonesian archipelagos.

JOIN IN SYSTEM

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal and Alberta governments have joined in a $250,000 computerized reservations system to provide details on Alberta accommodation almost anywhere in North America within 90 seconds. Cost of the two-year pilot project will be shared equally.

An estimated 61.4 per cent of Japanese drink locally brewed beer but another 29.8 per cent remain faithful to the traditional sake or rice wine.

Exclusive bars for women are common in Tokyo and other big Japanese cities.

In Hong Kong, a liquor sales manager says the colony reached a record consumption of 1.7 million bottles of brandy alone last year—a per-capita consumption more than four times that of France.

Communist rule in China reduced drinking, but beer is moderately consumed in restaurants, plus aromatic rice wine, usually taken warm, and a range of throat-searing spirits.

Banks Issue Book for Club Treasurers

TORONTO (CP) — Everything the young treasurer of a youth club needs to know about the handling of his fellowmembers' money is contained in a new booklet put out by bankers.

The booklet from the Canadian Bankers' Association, Banking For Your Club, is designed to familiarize the young reader with the range of financial services offered by the chartered banks. It describes the types of accounts available, how to invest the club's money, how to write cheques and how to set up a simple form or ledger.

"For your club, as indeed for you personally, a banking connection is very important. Choose yours carefully and then find out all the ways it can be helpful to you. You will find the manager and staff anxious to help you and give you useful advice at all times.

"Whatever the purpose of young people's groups, money is always involved—money which belongs to the group as a whole, not to the individuals concerned. So the people who look after the financial affairs of the club want to do so in the best interests of the whole group today and for those who will belong in the future.

"Handling money for a club needn't be a problem. In fact, the treasurer and others concerned can derive real satisfaction from handling the club money effectively and gain experience which will be useful in later life. Not like any other group activity, there are a few rules and procedures to follow. Your bank will help make it easy."

Interaction of Drugs Believed Behind Death

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the death of an asthmatic woman recommended Tuesday that drug manufacturers put warnings on packages to indicate when a drug could be dangerous in combination with other drugs.

The jury ruled that Jean LePage, 36, of Mississauga died last July 24 after vomiting brought on by an accidental overdose of an amitryptiline, an anti-depressant, that perhaps interacted with Isuprel and phenol barbital, drugs used to treat asthma.

Dr. John Fechett, who performed an autopsy on Mrs. LePage, testified that the cause of death was an overdose of the anti-depressant and possibly Isuprel, inhaled from a spray container.

Dr. Fechete said transcripts of inquests in the last two years into the deaths of five asthmatic patients showed the five used Isuprel. Dr. Joyce Abel, medical director of Winthrop Laboratories in Aurora, which produces the drug, said no definitive work has been done that shows the drug is harmful.

Dr. Kevin Flynn, Peel regional coroner, said Mrs. LePage had taken about 1,800 doses a month of the drug. Dr. Abel said the label states no more than eight doses should be taken in 24 hours, or a maximum of 240 doses a month.

Grant Approved for Harbor Study

Natural resources minister Leo Bernier, today informed the Moira River Conservation Authority that a provincial grant of $11,800 for a Bay of Quinte waterfront planning study had been approved.

The authority had requested the $14,000 as 50 per cent of the study's cost. The remainder will be paid by member municipalities of the authority.

The approval will enable consultants to carry on with producing a long-term plan for Belleville waterfront. Included in the plan will be land surveys of the mouth of the Moira from the CPR bridge south into the Bay.

The waterfront falls under the jurisdiction of three bodies — The Belleville Harbor Commissioners (federal) city Council and the Moira River Conservation Authority. Spokesmen for all three welcomed news of the grant's approval and the waterfront development that will follow.

Provincial Aid Sought For Family Planning

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A provincial government promise has boosted expectations that a more intensive program on family planning in the Quinte district.

A meeting of volunteer community workers and public health officials in Belleville Tuesday night evoked high hopes that coming months may see more creative activity on what was described as a verbal social pact from Heightening public awareness of the need for birth control and family planning.

As a result, a letter soon will be on the way to Health Minister Frank Miller asking for financial help and guidance, says Leslie Custer, president of the Family Planning Association in Belleville.

It follows Mr. Miller's announcement last week that $2-million will be spent by his ministry to step up local family planning programs.

The Belleville meeting — and the letter found the association members and district public health officials mutually optimistic for more pad-up services involving both agencies in a common effort.

What now may evolve is a more co-ordinated effort between the community group and local health authorities, reflected Dr. C. E. Lesk, medical officer of health for the Hastings — Prince Edward Health Unit.

Both sources indicate they view increased awareness of family planning as a necessary alternative to the ultimate result of lack of birth control practices — abortion.

"We definitely feel abortion should not be considered as a means of birth control," said Miss Custer. "There are definitely other means of such control."

Joan Smith, Belleville city councillor, who sits as chairman of the counties' health board, agrees with the "definite need for increased family planning programs".

Abortions, she says, are something "after the fact".

"I'd mention tax dollars spent on prevention rather than treatment of the end problem," she says.

Family planning information services have had a low profile in the Belleville area. The counties' health board decided against regular clinics many years ago.

The concensus of doctors and other community workers raised doubts about its effectiveness. It was felt people between the counties

Donovan's Magic Seems Gone

MONTREAL (CP) — Donovan, cult hero of the 1960s, has returned to the stage after almost four years behind the scenes, seeking a new direction in his music and philosophy.

Sadly, judging by a recent appearance at Montreal's Place des Arts, those intervening years have produced little to match the quality of earlier music which made the singer-songwriter an international star.

Donovan seems unable to bridge the gap between the mood of the 1960s and that of the present. His long-awaited return to the stage, in the form of an extensive North American tour, is little more than a nostalgia trip, which has left many critics lukewarm.

But Donovan is convinced that the bond between himself and the forgotten Flower Power generation remains.

"The kids were influencing and producing me," he said. "I was lost their singer. There was always a strong bond between me and the audience. To move the audiences again and to make a new relationship will only make an old one stronger. Were all just friends, really."

Of course there are those faithful followers of Donovan music, whether it be a golden oldie or a selection from the three albums he has so far recorded since 1970. But in general, Donovan has misjudged the mood of the new generation, in the belief it would be an offshoot of the hippie era. The nostalgia, as one critic put it, "failed. Miserably."

Donovan's three latest albums—Cosmic Wheels (1973), Essence To Essence (1973), and 7-Tease (1974)—have lacked, despite wide acclaim, the spark which crystallized his earlier work, notably on Sunshine Superman and the highly poetic Gift From A Flower To A Garden.

Consequently, the majority of his repertoire on the current tour is based on early hits—Season Of The Witch, Try And Catch The Wind, Hurdy Gurdy Man and Mellow Yellow.

But the fantasies which were once accepted no longer hold water.

"The oldies sounded the just another obsolete rock 'n roll warrior trying to salvage the past," another critic joked.

Even new tunes were received with little enthusiasm by the near-capacity audience at Place des Arts, suggesting, as one critic put it, that "people (Donovans) rather desperate attempts to prove to the contrary, his is obviously a career in decline.

And yet Donovan believes that "this year is the first time I've felt it was the right time to really emerge."

"I feel my music is needed. I need it and the people will need it. I get a strong positive vibe from the story I have and the idea I want to bring to the people.

The "idea, as portrayed in 7-Tease, involves a boy growing up in his teens at the beginning of the 1960s. Rejecting society, he becomes a beatnik, turning to music for his livelihood. Recovering accident and fortune, his friends rally round him and together they carve out their own way of life, exploring their consciousness with the aid of drugs.

But its all a fantasy and their efforts to avoid the reality of life crumble. Disillusioned, the boy retires into himself to sort out the mysteries. His generation follows suit.

The theme is, of course, autobiographical, and 7-Tease an obvious attempt to rekindle a past dream. But the dreams of todays generation of youth are removed from those of yesterday.

SMILE AT MY DOCTOR - Joyce Dalgety.

A woman doctor recounts her day to day experiences in a general hospital in the industrial north of England. Amongst the problems she must deal with are severe cases of drug-taking, child abuse and other emotional disorders. Her greatest challenge, however, arises not from the maladies of her patients but from that of her erratic yet brilliant colleague, Harold Bagley. Hilarious at times, moving at others, "Smile at my Doctor" consistently illuminates the courage and frailty of doctors and patients alike.

ZERO TO AIRLINE - Patrick Watson.

Patrick Watson is well known in Canadian T.V. circles as an writer, producer and performer. In 1961, his first novel, Watson uses his wide-ranging experience in the T.V. and film world and as a pilot, together with a polished skill, as a writer, to create a scandalously plotted story filled with expert inside information on the future of the James Bay area, Indian rights, and environmental problems.

KINGS X - COMMON LAW AND THE DEATH OF SIR HENRY OAKES - Marshall Houlton.

With good reason, Archibald of the Bahamas still speak in whispers of the 1943 murder of Sir Harry Oakes, but this forthright book explains how all those directly and indirectly involved were swept along in a flood of events that ended in disaster. The Royal Governor of the Bahamas was acting Edward VIII, friend and confidant of the victim, who was the wealthiest person in the British Empire. The war-weary world followed the dramatic reports by Erle Stanley Gardner, as Sir Harry's lonesome second-last trial for his life in one of history's most dramatic court-room battles.

LIBERATED PARENTS, LIBERATED CHILDREN - Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish.

With the help of noted child psychologist Dr. Haim Ginott, a group of parents discover that his method of communicating within the family offers them options. Some need not be a battle ground, nor the sadness, relationships of children can be improved dramatically. There are skills that can be learned to help generate a more loving atmosphere. Instead of threats, choices are offered, cooperation is invited, not demanded. Children's feelings are accepted rather than denied, gradually the need to rely on punishment disappears. This book eloquently affirms that parents, given skills, can help themselves and their families live together in mutual dignity.

THE INCUMBENT - Pamela Hill.

These outside, spoke William Beecheron the incumbent of Pinewood Old Rectory, by reason, for they did not know him, as a stern and formal man. He was the figure-head, the granite pillar, his father had wanted him to be an ironmaster like his elder brother James. But their mother had been adamant - William would serve the church. During his ministry, Hardy's Old Kirk became and remained the first church of the city and for William's well-to-do parishioners he was the symbol of conversion and formality, so highly respectable that he could get away with murder. He also was married twice; to Marie Vaseman whom he bowdlerized into almost total submission, and then to Margaret, the strong-willed woman who was his second wife. Both women learned that the Rev. William Beecheron was a man without joy, and neither of them could live with the terrible truth.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

We are spending the ... of French charm and Christmas holiday in Quebec City. Can you suggest some of the points of interest?

The visitor to Quebec City is lucky.

Lucky just to be in that city caught in a maze of unfamiliar streets in the midst of a traffic jam.

Starting point for any Quebec City tour is La Place d'Armes. Here, in front of the towering Chateau Frontenac Hotel, the visitor can choose to start his tour in the Upper Town or descend via the Lower Town elevator to Place Royale and its historic old buildings.

Centerpiece of Place Royale is Notre-Dame des Victoires Church, built in 1688. It was on the church site that Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec, built his first combination fort, residence and trading post in 1608.

The interior of Notre Dame de Victoires is richly ornate with fine old paintings covering the walls, a model of a sailing ship hanging in the centre and an altar carved into the shape of an old fort.

Place Royale represents the oldest section of Quebec and contains probably the highest concentration of the 17th and 18th century French architecture in North America. Because of the importance of the area, the Quebec government is now restoring many of the old homes and other buildings.

Returning to the Upper Town via the elevator, visitors interested in art can stroll down Rue du Tresor, directly across from the Chateau Frontenac. The works of Quebec's contemporary artists are on display here.

At the opposite end of Rue du Tresor stands the Basilica of Notre-Dame, originally constructed in 1647. To the left of the Cathedral is the entrance to Quebec Seminary. The Seminary courtyard is enclosed by a group of 17th century buildings, with a sundial dating to 1773 over the entrance.

Returning to La Place d'Armes, stroll along Dufferin Terrace overlooking the magnificent St. Lawrence River. At the end of the Terrace, the Promenade des Gouverneurs leads along the cliff flanking the Citadel walls.

The Citadel itself, built between 1823 and 1832, contains some 25 buildings. In addition to the excellent panoramic view, a colorful changing of the guard ceremony takes place every day during the summer.

Outside the Citadel are the Plains of Abraham where in 1759 the decisive battle between the British and French for control of the Quebec area took place. In addition to lovely park-grounds and battle monuments, the Quebec Art museum is located here.

Another building is the old city Jail, now converted into a youth hostel.

Across from the Plains sits the centre of government for the Province of Quebec. The handsome Parliament Buildings are open to the public and guides are available.

Of course, the Quebec visitor will find many other interesting sights and scenes along the path of his stroll. Quebec City has so many to mention. But even if you've only time for a short trip through history, Quebec City is the place to walk it.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN,

FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS TURKEY

Frozen turkeys, especially utility ones, were an excellent buy this year and are probably already in many home freezers waiting for the Big Day. Fresh birds, available at Miracle Food Mart starting this weekend, will also be good buys — especially those over 20 pounds.

FROZEN — TO THAW:

Six hours part of wrapper to allow drainage and thaw in the refrigerator - about 5 hours per pound. OR: Place in unopened bag in cold water, changing water often. Allow about 1 hour per pound for thawing. OR: Thaw in bag at cool room temperature — about 1 hour per pound. For evener thawing, slip wrapped bird into a paper box.

Use as soon as possible after thawing.

FRESH:

Remove giblets immediately bird is brought home (freeze giblets, or boil and refrigerate). Wash turkey inside and out, cover loosely and keep well chilled until ready to stuff it.

This year, as an economy, remember that well seasoned breadcrumb stuffing can be just as satisfying as more expensive chestnut or sausage stuffing, or stuffing containing nuts.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Imported Articles Popular in India

BOMBAY (CP) — A rich Indian woman walked into Bombay's Meggot department store and asked for a tin of "the best imported cheese."

When told that the Indian government no longer allows imports of cheese and that cheese made by the government-owned Aarey Dairy is as good as any imported brand, she said: "I'll be back tomorrow. The car's nothing like the right cheese."

The craze for imported articles is not confined to rich Indians. Middle-class families spend hours hunting for imported goods in the city's crowded bazaars (markets). These may range from razor blades to soaps to watches.

Tourists make money by selling their watches, cameras, transistor radios and electric razors.

A Canadian woman staying at the Taj Mahal Hotel in Bombay said she sold a bottle of perfume for $60. She had bought it in Paris for $20.

"I needed the money badly," she said. "In fact, an Indian tourist guide promised to help sell anything I had for a ridiculous profit of 300 per cent."

Within minutes of an Arabi prove that it was a "genuine" can tourist selling his costly transaction.
camera to a trader at Masaffir- Possession of smuggled forbazaar, a plainclothesman nabbed eign goods can land an Indian the trader, who escaped arrest in prison for six months or only because he was able to more.
Western and Japanese tourists find it extremely profitable to sell at Masaffirbazaar, Mota Market and other bazaars which specialize in smuggled goods.
Now the Indian government has begun to take a serious view of the craze for imported goods.

STUCK FOR STORAGE

BOOTH'S LARGEST STORAGE BUILDING IS BEING DEMOLISHED

The old Barnes Wine store, which is the largest of Booth's 2 storage areas, must come down to make way for part of the recently announced Century Square Downtown Development. We've been asked to vacate in January. But Booth's loss is your gain . . . and just in time for Christmas too . . . Because there's tons of merchandise being sold at drastic reductions. January isn't far away and there's a lot of merchandise that has to be sold in order to clear this storage area. Booth's prices have never been better than this.

Inflation and Weather Give India Food Crisis

NEW DELHI (AP) — Unprecedented inflation and capricious monsoon weather combined to make 1974 a grim economic year for the 700 million people of the Indian subcontinent.

Poor rains in key agricultural areas—and vicious floods in others—cut into food production and sent subcontinent governments into world markets to import grains with scarce foreign currency reserves.

"The current crisis—in production, distribution, prices, finance and fuel — is easily the biggest economic challenge that independent India has faced," Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said in an economic speech.

Despite the imports, millions of Indians went hungry in the countryside and Bangladesh suffered its worst famine in three decades. Pakistan and Sri Lanka, formerly Ceylon, also felt the pinch but escaped through without any reported starvation.

"The crux of the problem is our ability to produce more food," said Subhaneel Chavravarty, an economist and member of the Indian Planning Commission.

Families whose economic status protected them from outright poverty suffered from inflation that raced up to 400 per cent for rice in the shops of Dacca, capital of Bangladesh.

Housewives in Pakistan saw onion prices rise to 20 cents a pound compared with 30 cents a year ago. Indians buying rice on the open market had to pay 28 cents a pound, up 180 per cent from 1973.

For distribution for the poorest of its 100 million inhabitants, India bought more than four million tons of foodgrains on the commercial market and sought more than a million more on aid terms—deferred payment with soft loans.

Pakistan went to the world market for 1.3 million tons of wheat to keep up supplies for its 69 million inhabitants.

Another heavy factor is subcontinent inflation was a fourfold increase in petroleum prices, particularly in India and Pakistan.

India tried to cut petroleum consumption but expected to pay about $1.5 billion for oil imports, six times what it paid two years ago.

The Pakistanis estimated they will be paying nearly $400 million for oil in 1975, compared with about $70 million two years ago.

Jenkins Canada's Premier Athlete

TORONTO (CP) — Ferguson Jenkins, a 26-game winner in seven of his last eight seasons in major league baseball, has been awarded the Lou Marsh Trophy as Canada's outstanding athlete of 1974.

Jenkins, 31-year-old native of Chatham, Ont., was chosen from a record 28 nominees submitted by the public. He is the first baseball player to win the trophy, awarded since 1936 in memory of the late sports editor of Toronto Star.

A panel of six judges made Jenkins a unanimous choice on the strength of his best season in which he won 25 and lost 13 with Texas Rangers of the American League and led them to a remarkable second-place finish behind Oakland A's in the Western Division.

Others given consideration in the voting were swimmer Wendy Cook of Vancouver, triple gold medal winner at the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand and one of the world's best backstrokers; Gordie Howe, the 46-year-old Mathusalah who starred for Team Canada in the hockey series against the Soviet Union and helped Houston Aeros to the World Hockey Association title; Cindy Nicholas of Toronto, who at 15 became the youngest person to swim Lake Ontario; Bobby Hull, playing coach of Winnipeg Jets of WHA and another star in the Canada-U.S.S.R. series; Steve Pilon of Angers, Que., the first harness racing driver in North America to surpass 5,000 career wins, and Tudor Cranston of Toronto, Canadian figure skating champion and a bronze medal winner at the world championships in Munich.

FERGUSON JENKINS

Pilon was the 1971 winner of the trophy, awarded annually since 1936 except in the war years of 1942-44. The first winner was track star Dr. Phil Edwards. Figure skater Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa was the only three-time winner while skier Nancy Greene and golfer Marlene Stewart were twice victors.

Last year the award went to jockey Sandy Hawley of Whitby, Ont., who set a record of 515 victories.

Jenkins, a six-foot-five 205-pound right-hander, had six shutory seasons with Chicago Cubs before he slipped to a 14-16 record in 1973, struggling most of the summer with a sore arm.

By the end of the season he was fed up with the Cubs and hoped to be traded to Detroit Tigers so he could be near his home in Chatham, or to Montreal Expos so he could realize his dream of playing in Canada. The Expos were not prepared to offer enough, however, and Jenkins was satisfied to find a playing home in the heart of Texas.

He says he would still like to catch on with a major league club in Canada but hopes it will happen before I'm all through or before I can't give a winning performance."

Jenkins, who receives upwards of $125,000 a year and is the best baseball player to come out of Canada, left a few votes short of completing a remarkable baseball double. Winner of the National Leagues Cy Young Award in 1971, the year he compiled a 24-13 record with the Cubs, he was edged this year by Jim (Catfish) Hunter of Oakland for th American League over Jenkins' Texas pitching mate.

Announcement of the Lou Marsh award followed, by one day, Jenkins' selection as male athlete of the year in the annual Canadian Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Selectors in the competition are Jim Proudfoot, Toronto Star sports editor; Milt Dunnell, Star columnist; Jim Vipond, Toronto Globe and Mail sports editor; George Gross, Toronto Sun sports editor Gordon Craig, former Canadian Press general sports editor, now chief of Ontario service; and Harry (Red) Foster, public relations executive and chairman of the Lou Marsh committee.

Even Hull Learns From Europeans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The European style of hockey is finally catching up to the World Hockey Association and it's making Winnipeg Jets look a strong contender for the Canadian Division lead.

The Jets used the European style of fast skating and passing to whip Toronto Toros, 6-3, as Bobby Hull scored twice and assisted on three two goals in a 4-1 victory Tuesday night.

The victory moved the third-place Jets within six points of the division leading Toros and Vancouver Canucks in the disjoint closed to within three points of Toronto with a 5-1 victory over Cincinnati Stingers.

In other WHA games, Houston Aeros beat Edmonton Oilers 7-2, Vancouver Blazers edged Indianapolis Racers 3-2, San Diego Mariners defeated Cleveland Crusaders 3-2 and New England Whalers held Ja 3-3 with Michigan Stags.

Many seem that Hull, the WHA's leading scorer with 51 points, including 29 goals, would find little to learn from European hockey players but the Jets star added after Tuesday's win that the Europeans who joined the club this season have made a big difference.

Hull said he has learned a lot from Swedes Ulf Nilsson, Anders Hedberg and Lars-Erik Sjoberg and Finns Veli Kerkla and Heikki Riihiranta.

"We've all learned in concentrate on fundamentals from them," said Hull who scored on third-period goals by Ketola and Duke Asmundson after give Winnipeg a 3-3 lead with two first-period scores.

"They also pass more than North American players and stress skating."

Only Two right winger Tom Simpson beat Jets goalie Joe Daley for the first of the season.

The game at Toronto drew 15,782 fans.

Gerye Bernier scored his 28th goal in the third period to give Houston a 5-2 lead with two first-period scores.

Chuck Arnason, Houston's leading scorer with 72 points, added his 27th goal in the second period.

Houston's Terry Caffery scored twice to pull Vancouver out of a 3-1 deficit against the Racers at Indianapolis. McKenzie scored his 18th goal of the season in the first minute of the second period to tie the score 3-3 and Vancouver scored the first minute of the third period.

Tim Sheehy also scored twice as the Chicago Stingers rallied with Michigan in a contest that drew 2,045 fans at Detroit. Sheehy's second goal tied the game with less than five minutes left in regulation time and the teams went scoreless in overtime.

At Houston, Gordie Howe scored twice for the Whalers in Aeros outburst in the first period to lead Aeros over Edmonton, Gord Labossiere also scored twice for the Aeros.

San Diego won its third game in a row, led by two goals from Wayne Rivers. The Mariners fired 39 shots at goalie Gerry Cheevers of the Crusaders who lost their fifth game in a row.

Too Much Foresight Dangerous Quality

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, pushing to overtake Buffalo Sabres in the Eastern Hockey League's Adams Division, almost got caught with their heads down Tuesday night.

"I think we were looking ahead to the New York game (Thursday) in the third period," said coach Don Cherry after the Bruins held on for a 5-3 victory over Atlanta Flames at Boston Garden.

The Bruins took only four shots on goal in the final period, and gave up a goal to Bryan Hextall, before Phil Esposito clinched it with an open-net goal with nine seconds remaining.

The Bruins' victory pushed them into a first place tie with leading Sabres who did not play Tuesday night.

In other games, St. Louis Blues whipped New York Islanders 8-4 and Vancouver Canucks beat Washington Capitals 4-2.

Dave Forbes led Boston with two second-period goals that gave the Bruins a 4-1 spread before Atlanta caught fire.

"This was the best game I've seen Forbes play," Cherry said. "He really blitzes down the left side and they've either got to let him go or trip him."

Forbes has been getting a regular turn, replacing the injured Wayne Cashman.

"This is my second year so I know what to expect," said the left winger. "Before I was looking at it a game at a time. Now I look at the whole year.

"It's great to be playing. If you don't play regularly, you don't play the way you want to play. It's tough to adjust to always a step behind."

Bobby Orr and John Bucyk gave the Bruins a 2-0 lead in the opening period before Atlanta's Jacques Richard scored early in the second. Forbes followed with his two goals and Cherry scored for the Flames.

Atlanta coach Bernie Geoffrion was optimistic despite suffering his eighth loss.

"This was a great effort by my club," he said. "This is one of the best games they've played on the road so far."

At Vancouver, the Canucks got goals from Dennis Ververgaert and Gerry O'Flaherty late in the second period to move ahead 3-2 and Pratt's second goal of the game in the third period completed the win over the Capitals who suffered their 25th loss in 73 games.

The Canucks had fallen behind 1-0 on a first-period goal by Dave Parro and another by Mike Marson got the other Capitals goal in the second period.

Bobcats' Streak Ends in King City

By MARK BRETT
SPORTS STAFF

TORONTO — The Belleville Bobcats saw their longest winning streak of the season (4 games) come to a grinding halt in Tuesday night's hockey Junior B action in Toronto against the King City Red Wings. The Wings skated to a hard earned 5-3 victory over the Cats.

Belleville was without the services of two big guns, captain Robbie Foster and defenseman Steve Krech.

"I am pretty disappointed in Krech," said Cat's coach Bob Boyle after the game.

"The team is like a chain, once you take a link out of the chain we just can't work."

Krech pleaded in sick just before the bus was to leave for Toronto.

Foster missed the contest due to exams in progress at Loyalist.

Despite arriving 15 minutes before the scheduled start of the game, the Cats came out flying in the first period.

Strong forechecking and good body contact by Belleville paid off as Grant Coogan put the visitors ahead with only 5 minutes gone.

Bob Thompson playing up as the forward line, drew an assist on Coogan's goal as did defenseman Neil Turner.

The Red Wings are celebrating their second season in the Metro League and are currently in third place in the Central Division.

They are also one of the worst clubs that scoring power wise, with only three of their regular starting team members back.

Most of these boys are 18, 19 and 17 years old and make the mistakes of players in that age bracket," said Wings coach Fred Fess, "but they're coming along and we expect to be in there for the finals, if not this year then next."

Bruce Clark was in the nets for Belleville and a busier man on the bench. They saw 51 shots.

Fess' team proved to be even better than the coach led on making few if any mistakes during the course of play.

Clark was tested time and time again, but the Cats' netminder sparked kicking and stopping.

Belleville point blank shots.

"He (Clark) just played a hell of a game," noted Boyle "He really kept us in there."

The only shot to shake the local goalie in the first period was an intended pass By Danny Stothers that hit Cats' defenceman Turner in front of the net and went into the corner.

Both teams had numerous opportunities in the second period. Andy Ricketts and Wayne Calberry each had a break-away on Wing's goalie Bob Enos but Rene came up with the save on both instances.

"They capitalized on their opportunities and didn't," commented Boyle later.

The second period went much the same as the first with the visitor's defence still having trouble getting on track and missed scoring opportunities leaving them shaking their heads.

"At Jeffrey, a sturdy forechecker for the local squad had the best chance of the period as he blasted a shot just wide of the open Toronto goal with goalie Rene taken out of the play by Scott Sands.

Forward Mike Watt was back in uniform for the Cats after missing several weeks due to shift work and looked very invigorating, forechecking and setting up plays.

The home team held a 5-1 lead after the final 20 minutes on goals by Paul Mancini and Jeff Spencer, his first of two.

The Cat's moved to within one goal of the Wings early in the period as a Toronto defenceman in an attempt to clear the puck shot it into his own net. Jim Richardson was credited with the tally.

The second later, however, the home team came back on a break away with Spencer getting his second of the night.

Lance Graziosi made the score 5-3 in favour of King City just minutes before Crt goal.

The Cats have one more road game, this Friday Night when they travel to Pine Point Arena to take on the Etobicoke Selects.

The Belleville squad will then return to the confines of the Memorial Arena Sunday night when they entertain the Red Wings in an 8 p.m. start.

Top Female Athlete

The style of Canada's Wendy Cook is clearly shown as she powers up the pool enroute to winning the gold medal in the Commonwealth Games 200-metre women's backstroke in Christchurch, New Zealand. Wendy went on to win three gold medals.

Voted Female of Year

Cook a Canadian Dish

By MEL SUFRIN
CP Sports Editor

Wendy Cook, who twice failed a beginning swimmer's course as a child but persevered to become one of the world's best backstrokers, is Canada's female athlete of the year for 1974.

A triple gold medal winner at the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand last winter, the 18-year-old University of British Columbia physical education student, the No. 1 choice of sports writers and broadcasters in the annual year-end poll conducted by The Canadian Press.

Runner up is Secretary Boys 25-year-old driver from Guelph, Ont., who won a gold in the 400 metres and a bronze as a member of the 1,600-metre relay team at the Games.

Miss Cook, a quietly confident athlete who doesn't feel the pressure of the people her opponents, put on a three-day blitz in New Zealand, winning the 100 metres in a games-record 1:08.97, setting a world record of 1:04.78 in the first leg of the 400-metre relay and the 200 metres in 2:32.37.

Her world record did not survive the year, however. It was subsequently beaten by Ulrika Richter of East Germany in 1:02.98 and Margie Moffitt of the United States in 1:04.98, a situation Miss Cook would like to rectify at the Olympics in Montreal in 1976.

Wendy received her first swimming lessons at the age of four, tagging along with some friends to Vancouver. At six she failed the advanced beginners' course a couple of times because "I wasn't breathing properly."

That is no longer a problem. Not only is she a superb backstroker—her 2:18.69 in the 200 metres individual medley is the world only to Miss Richter's 2:17.—she is an excellent freestyle swimmer as well.

Her 1:09.41 in the 100-metre freestyle is fifth best in Canada, behind Gail Amundrud of Ottawa with 58.75, and her time of 2:37.69 in the 200-metre individual medley is fourth behind the 2:32.65 of Becky Smith of Thunder Bay, Ont.

A member of the Canadian Dolphin Swim Club whose coach she has been coached by Peter Daniel for the last seven years, Miss Cook receives three personal suggestions in her swimming career. Her father David, a teacher, is a source of perspective, support and her mother Donna is a listener who can always adjust the food for competitors and officials.

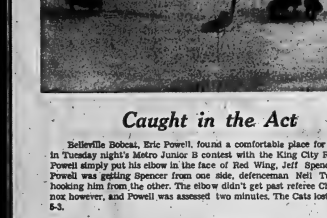
But her two sisters and a brother, all younger, are not likely to follow her example. They're strictly summertime swimmers.

Sculling, who coached successfully in England before coming to the Dolphins, says Miss Cook is typical of the "really good swimmer."

"She is not sort of outward going in the sense of trying to boost her own confidence by talking loud in try to convince herself," he says.

But she is probably also her own toughest critic. After easily winning the 200 metres in New Zealand she remained dissatisfied, saying "I started too fast and then ran out of steam."

And although she is a widely travelled young woman, having swum in Brazil, Europe and the United States as well as New Zealand, she regrets that she hasn't seen much of the places she has visited.



When I'm swimming I don't do anything except go to the meet. I think I could be more sociable sometimes, as long as there is a pool. It isn't like being a tourist. You don't get to know the pool you have an idea of what it's like."

Miss Cook received 19 first-place votes, 13 second and 13 thirds in the annual poll in which voters are asked to name their three top choices. The ballots, rated on a 3-2-1 basis, give Wendy 94 points.

Miss Boys is 16-10-7 for 78 points and Miss Sanders 14-6-5 for 59 points.

Fourth is Jane Nicol of Thornhill, Ont., winner of Commonwealth Games gold medals in the discus and shot put, with 31 points, and fifth is Susan Natrass of Edmonton world champion trampoliner, with 30.

Last year's female athlete was Karen Magnussen, the world champion figure skater from North Vancouver who has turned professional and retired from competition.

Caught in the Act

Belleville Bobcat, Eric Powell, found a comfortable place for his elbow in Tuesday night's Metro Junior B contest with the King City Red Wings. Powell simply put his elbow in the face of Red Wing, Jeff Spencer. While Powell was getting Spencer from one side, defenceman Neil Turner was hooking him from the other. The elbow didn't get past referee Charlie Leonard however, and Powell was assessed two minutes. The Cats lost the game 5-3.

Cranston Idol in Europe

TORONTO (CP) — There's no place like home to Toller Cranston, but the European scene has more than its share of encouragement for the world's freestyle figure skating king.

Unless you're a figure skating buff, Toller's name doesn't conjure up visions of a "Surveyor on Ice," as he's been billed in Europe where his name is almost a household word.

The superb figure skater has been packing them in in London, Moscow and Munich in recent weeks.

"It's totally incredible," Cranston said following his most recent European venture. "I can walk down Yonge Street (in Toronto) for hours and no body would recognize me.

"In Munich or Moscow, for instance, I'll wave down a taxi and the driver instantly knows my name."

Little wonder Toller skated before capacity houses of 20,000 in Munich and Moscow during his recent exhibition tour in which fans paid scorching prices just to watch him.

He's in such demand in Europe that organizers of glamorous sporting events book him as a one-man feature to assure their area shows of a sellout house.

Toller was the headliner in Munich last week at the annual super decathlon competition.

The decathlon featured a number of outstanding athletes but it took Cranston to fill the arena although his contribution was strictly an exhibition on a risk act up solely for him.

VAH, Colo. (AP) — Margie Richter of the United States and Lisa Sulkonen of Finland tied for first place in the women's competition, and Arto Koivrato of Finland won the men's division Tuesday in the Vail International cross country skiing race.

McDonald's Gets First

Jack McBride, manager of McDonald's Minor Atom's, finally got his first point in Ontario Minor Hockey Association action. The locals tied Kingston 1-1 Tuesday night.

Belleville's goal was scored by Archer.

Record Falls to McCarron

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Chris McCarron, who looks as if he should be in Silver High school rather than at a racetrack, set a world record by riding his $183th winner of the year in the seventh race Tuesday at Laurel.

The 19-year-old apprentice who had won two races Monday to tie Canadian Sandy Hawley's one-year record of 515 winners, broke the mark by winning a stretch duel from his older brother, Gregg.

Chris, riding 3-to-5 favorite Chrysler, led Gregg's Boston Gem to the wire in the seven-furlong race but regained it nearing the finish and won by a nose.

The record breaker came a little more than 10 months after Chris won his first race and "it's about the same" when it comes to his top thrill.

"You never forget that first winner," said McCarron, who had five shots at breaking the record Tuesday before he finally succeeded.

Then he added to his record, guiding Apres Vous to victory in the eighth race for his 817th winner of the year.

The frecklefaced, red-haired kid from the Boston suburb of Dorchester finished third in the first race, skipped the second and then had three fourths and a third.

Then came his record-breaking ride with his brother, which was watched by their father, Herbert, from atop a stand in the winner's circle.

"My God, it's Gregg in back to the inside!" the elder McCarron as his sons battled through the stretch. "Come on Gregg, come on Chris."

When it was all over, the father said: "This is great, this is great, my God this is great".

It was Gregg's success as a rider that made Chris decide to give it a try. Gregg, a successful rider for several years, won more than $100,000 last year and will top that figure again in 1974.

Chris' earnings by the end of the year will be about $200,000.

McCarron broke Hawley's record with his 1,893rd mount in 1974. Hawley set his record in 1973. Chris was working as a private boy at Laurel last year and saw Hawley break Bill Shoemaker's record of 485 winners, set in 1953. He also watched Hawley win his 300th and his 350th on the final day of the year.

In Toronto, Hawley said he had not expected his world record to fall so fast.

"I didn't think it would go this

69 to 1 Pays Off Big

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A maiden victory at odds of 69 to 1 by the four-year-old gelding Indo Hanover swelled the fourth-race trifecta payoff to $7,272.30 Tuesday night at Windsor Raceway.

Five lucky bettors collected when Indo Hanover crossed the line ahead of Lady Quill and Deanbridge. Indo Hanover paid $140.10, $28.30 and $18.20.

The daily double of Torrid Encounter in the first and Hideaway Andy in the second was worth $48.80.

The seventh-race tractor of following year, maybe within the next 10 years, but not in 1974."

"It's a great feat," said Hawley, who has 272 wins this season. "I have to give him a lot of credit for riding seven days a week. I don't think the fact that he's an apprentice meant too much.

"You have to have a lot of ability to keep on riding the way he has been doing."

Bart Starr in Waiting Game Again

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, a 37th-round draft pick out of Alabama in 1956, had to wait three years for a starting assignment with Green Bay Packers under the late Vince Lombardi.

But the wait was worth it. The Packers dominated the National Football League for most of a decade and Starr established himself as one of the sport's stars.

Now he's playing the waiting game again, this time for a chance to become the third Packer head coach to work in Lombardi's shadow.

Starr, a businessman, and Packers' defensive co-ordinator Dave Hanner are said to be the main candidates for the job.

The first two who filled the shoes of cowboy's tabs it—Phil Bengtson, Lombardi's longtime assistant and chosen successor, resigned under fire after the 1970 season, while Dan Devine stepped down under perhaps even more heat Monday to take the head coaching job at Notre Dame. Both had losing records, Bengtson 20-21-1 and Devine 31-27-4.

Other names being bandied about for the job include Miami coach Don Shula, former Atlanta coach Norm Van Brocklin and Florida coach Jack Pardee of the World Football League. But Starr appears to be the people's choice, and for Green Bay, the only NFL franchise actually owned by home townfans, that is significant.

However, Starr, whose rejected rejection of other NFL coaching jobs include a multi-million dollar deal with Los Angeles Rams last year, is also playing the coolness under pressure role which he was noted during a 15-year career ended in 1971.

"If you ask me if I'm interested, the answer has to be yes" said Starr, 46. "But I want to make it quite clear that I have not talked to anyone from the Packers about the job, nor has anyone talked to me."

Selects Edge Voyageurs

HALIFAX (CP) — Moscow Selects combined steady play with the happiness of their opponents for a 4-2 victory in international exhibition hockey Tuesday over the Nova Scotia Voyageurs at the American Hockey League.

Serge Kornilov, Vladimir Dervjov, Alexander Lochnov, and Victor Zhulstov scored for the Selects.

Louis Chaisson and Richard Latulippe replied for the Voyageurs, who outshot the visitors 42-38.

The game's turning point was in the second period when the Voyageurs were unable to score on four consecutive power plays, including one 30-second stretch when the Russians had two men in the penalty box.

Moscow led 1-0 after the first period and 3-0 after the second. Zhulstov started the Russians with a power-play goal early in the first period when he steered Vladimir Popov's centring pass into the open corner of the net.

Dervjov scored from about 30 feet out early in the second period when he drifted the puck into the top right-hand corner of the net.

Kornilov's musculoist goal early in the third period put Moscow ahead 3-0 before Chaisson batted a rebound into the Russian net, and Lochnov scuttled a brief Nova Scotia revival four minutes later when he deflected a puck past a couple of Voyageurs.

Philippov rounded out the scoring when he knocked in a rebound with 35 seconds to play.

British Tradition Saved

LONDON (Reuter) — One of the oldest events on the British calendar, the Professional Golfers' Association match-play championship, has been saved from extinction by a new sponsor.

The event, a fixture since 1908, was threatened when a cigarette company withdrew its sponsorship for next year as part of a general reduction in its sporting activities.

But Tuesday, an insurance group moved in with prize money equivalent to last year 246,000 over-all and $8,000 to the winner.

Until next year's event will be played Sept. 3-6.

The new sponsor's contract for the event will run three years.

Landers Leaves OFL

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Football League (OFL) has lost one of its top pitchers and its league champion team in one blow.

The league learned Tuesday that lefthander Pete Landers, 27, was leaving Toronto Globals to sign with Niagara Falls McHawks.

With the signing, Niagara Falls withdrew from the league—the team would have been ousted anyway if league rules do not permit player tampering.

League president Matt Zilch of Stoney Creek, Ont., said Niagara Falls withdrew at a meeting last weekend.

Landers confirmed he was leaving the Globals where he gained the league's most valuable player title last season after a 27-7 won-lost record.

Neither Blair nor Landers would say which league the McHaw's will play in next year.

"I think it was a real gamble for them," Blair said. "The OFL is really the only Canadian football league to play in."

Landers started with Oshawa Tonys and pitched with London before signing with Globals.

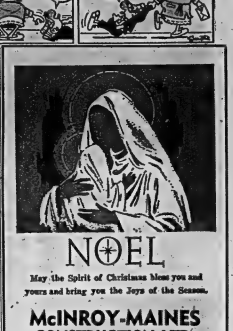
Warriors Dump Knicks

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Barry scored 44 points Tuesday night in leading Golden State Warriors to a 130-108 National Basketball Association victory over New York Knicks.

In other NBA games, Atlanta Hawks defeated Washington Bullets 96-85, Kansas City-Omaha beat Buffalo Braves 111-110, Philadelphia defeated Boston Celtics 113-109, Cleveland defeated Los Angeles 119-108, Portland defeated Milwaukee 129-103, Chicago edged Seattle 97-94 and Houston beat New Orleans 109-95.



In the only American Basketball Association game, Kentucky beat Atlanta 125-98.

Earl Monroe's 38 points and 26 by Walt Frazier led New York, but Barry stole the show.

"When you get a guy like Barry, you expect him to score 35 or 40," Phil Jackson said after fouling out of the game in a futile attempt to stop him.

SUIT NAMES BLUE

OAKLAND (AP) — Pitcher Vida Blue of Oakland A's was named Tuesday in a paternity suit filed in Alameda County Superior Court by Patricia Duncan, 20, a college student. She said Blue is the father of her daughter, Joy Blue, born Oct. 17. She said Blue has refused to support the child.

Three Maritime Premiers Armed with New Mandates

HALIFAX (CP) — Armed with fresh political mandates, the governments of three of the four Atlantic provinces free to devote their full attention to economic matters in 1974.

In Newfoundland, Premier Frank Moores has told his Progressive Conservative supporters to prepare for a possible election but many political observers believe he will wait until 1975.

Voters in the other three provinces returned their governments with healthy majorities, re-electing the liberal administrations of Premiers Gerald Regan in Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island and Richard Hatfield's Conservatives in New Brunswick.

The chief political activity in Newfoundland was the bid by Joseph Smallwood to return to the limelight. The former premier, approaching his 78th birthday on Christmas Eve, made an unsuccessful attempt to unseat Ed Roberts as the province's Liberal leader.

While political activity is likely to slow down in 1975, regional economy watchers see several key developments which might take place during the year.

—A start on development of hydro-electric resources in Cape Breton to reduce Nova Scotia's dependency on thermal-generated power and to help alleviate what Nova Scotia Power Corp. President L. F. Kitchin describes as a critical power squeeze. Fears of environmental damage have been raised.

—New studies on the feasibility of harnessing the power potential of the huge tides which flow in and out of the Bay of Fundy between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, a long-proposed project and one which federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says is now much closer to reality.

—Possible development of a major steel industry in the Industrial Cape Breton area to bolster the economy of the long-troubled steel and coal belt.

—Possible direct government subsidy to New-foundland's crucial fishery. A report by Dr. Leslie Harris at Memorial University of Newfoundland says the fishery is in deep trouble and needs government help in the short term while the long-term solution would be full Canadian control of fishing on the continental shelf.

The Atlantic Provinces Economic Council, which keeps its finger on the region's economic pulse, has long contended that such problems as inflation and economic slowdown hit this region harder and last longer than elsewhere in the country.

An aide to Premier Regan of Nova Scotia said any financial, belt-tightening by Ottawa as a move toward fighting inflation would have drastic results in the Atlantic region, creating severe unemployment.

Although some labor leaders forecast grim unemployment in the region this winter, construction was proceeding at a rapid pace in several areas—notably Saint John, N.B.

Prince Edward Island farm production remained high but farmers continued to leave the land. In Nova Scotia, an estimated 50 dairy farmers quit during the year and Gordon Zwicker, president of the Annapolis County Federation of Agriculture, said many farmers feel the only way the consumer will understand farm problems is if a real food shortage occurs.

Politically, 1974 likely has no regional precedents.

Premier Peter Higgs, who spanked into office in 1970 after snapping a 14-year Conservative string started by Robert Stanfield, rolled to a one-sided victory April 2, with the Liberals electing 31 members to the 49-seat house. The PCs elected 12 and the New Democratic Party three.

Twenty-seven days later Premier Campbell led his Liberals to easy victory in P.E.I., winning 26 of the legislature's 32 seats with the PCs picking up the other six. Mr. Campbell, who later in the year marked his 41st birthday, now is the longest-serving premier in Canada.

Following months of speculation, Premier Hatfield called a New Brunswick general election for Nov. 18 and in the early counting that night it appeared the Liberals—ousted by the Conservatives in 1970—might be on the way back to power but when all the votes were in the Tories were back with a slightly increased majority. They won 33 of the 58 seats and the Liberals 25. In the 1970 election, the PCs won 32 seats and Liberals 26.

Energy Crisis Just Serves To Divide French Further

PARIS (CP) — It was hoped that the energy crisis would rally Frenchmen together as national disasters are known to do, but instead it has divided them further.

The Communists, Socialists and Radicals of the left continue their severe criticism of government policy aimed at ending energy waste, limiting inflation and restoring balance of payments equilibrium by the end of 1975 — while at the same time agreeing with the objectives.

The policy includes reducing petroleum imports in 1975, stricter highway speed control, industrial fuel rationing, reduced gas and electricity consumption and requiring that room temperatures be kept below 68 degrees fahrenheit.

The left contends that these measures are unjust and inadequate because France "is under the control of oil cartels that manipulate supply while reaping scandalous benefits."

Georges Marchais, first secretary of the Communist party, has said that Frenchmen are not prepared to retire, shiver and die for international corporations.

Present government policy cannot form the basis for national unity," he said.

Socialist party leader Francois Mitterand has said the leftist opposition parties would not accept any sort of compromise with the government. He said his party is ready to restore economic order with the help of the Communists, various leftist groups and workers.

In retrospect, these positions are predictable because the current economic situation favors the Communist-Socialist opposition. Frenchmen are worried and unhappy and many who voted for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing are wondering if they should have instead voted for Mitterand.

The economic crisis is also undermining presidential support among Gaullists, Independent Republicans, Centre Democrats and Reformists.

Former Gaullist cabinet ministers have been travelling throughout France telling their countrymen how serious the situation is and pressing the government is not more forcefully and efficiently against inflation. They have also been demanding that some leftist platforms be incorporated to combat economic problems.

They are not in favor of a left alliance, much less fear that if an election was held today on current issues the government would be defeated.

Six recent by-elections clearly showed the increasing popularity of the left. Two former Gaullist cabinet ministers were defeated and four others were re-elected with reduced majorities.

Other political leaders and even government cabinet ministers have also been demanding a shift to the left.

The leader of the Radical party, Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, and four government ministers recently formed the Radical Socialist and Reform party to influence policy.

The majority of Frenchmen want to be governed by the left, but are not in favor of a left alliance, much less fear that if an election was held today on current issues the government would be defeated.

"Only a shift to the left will permit Valery Giscard d'Estaing to gain the support of Frenchmen temporary is needed," he said.

Arabs Have Lots of Money But Lack Plans to Use It

BEIRUT (AP) — Rising oil prices have shifted much of the world's wealth to the Arabs but they have failed to develop a plan for putting this capital to work.

Lack of skilled money managers and a reluctance to recycle their petrodollars led to an accumulation of huge monetary reserves in 1974. Inefficiency, manpower shortages and technological gaps curbed industrial development.

Sparsely populated oil-producing states in the Arabian Peninsula, Persian Gulf and North Africa enter 1975 with surpluses exceeding $60 billion.

How they spend it will affect both the development of the Arab world and the recession in the industrialized West.

Non-oil-producing countries like Egypt and Syria, whose only riches are manpower, will also benefit from the oil boom because of a new sense of Arab unity generated by the October War of 1973.

With war clouds gathering again in this volatile region, potential Arab belligerents have been assured that their military needs will be paid for by the oil giants. Egypt, Syrian, Jordan and the Palestinian guerrillas were promised $2.3 billion for arms purchases at an Arab summit conference in Morocco.

The Arabs are slowly gaining control of foreign firms exploiting their resources—radicals like Libya and Iraq through nationalization, moderates like Saudi Arabia and Kuwait through bigger participation agreements—but they are still eager to import Western technology and expertise.

The economic picture is much gloomier in Israel, inflation fuelled by high defence spending has drastically cut the purchasing power of Israeli's overtaxed citizens. Fears of another war are scaring off investors.

There were three developments and prospects around the Middle East in 1974:

Egypt—Late November saw the completion of Suez Canal clearing operations that may be a response of the strategic waterway.

It is the first step in President Anwar Sadat's ambitious development plan to regain $220 million in annual canal transit dues and undertake a rebuilding and development program centring on the canal.

Syria—President Hafez Assad announced an "open-door economic policy" in 1974 to spur foreign investment in domestic development projects. Tax exemptions, guaranteed against nationalization and the easing of currency restrictions have reassured a nervous private enterprise sector, but Syria's militant stance in the Arab-Israeli dispute is still scaring off investors.

Jordan — Rising phosphate prices, to $40 from 14 a ton, provided a substantial boost for the economy in 1974. Jordan exported 1.8 million tons of phosphate and hopes to double production to 1975.

But the new political power of Palestinian guerrillas in the Arab arena cost King Hussein his fertile west bank. Arab pressure forced Hussein to recognize the Palestinians right to establish an independent state on the west bank if it is relinquished by Israel.

Israel—Despite heavy infusions of American aid, half the Israeli budget goes for defence spending, with disastrous effects on the economy. War-weary Israelis, who pay up to 55 per cent of their income in taxes in inflationary times, were dealt another blow in 1974 by a 43-per-cent devaluation of the Israeli pound.

Lebanon—Commerce, tourism and transit trade had a boom year in tiny Lebanon despite Israeli reprisals for Palestinian guerrilla operations across the southern border.

This country is the Mediterranean funnel for imports to the Arab interior, an investment capital for Arab oil money and a holiday resort for Westerners and Arabs that netted $960 million from tourism, up 46 per cent from 1973.

Saudi Arabia—The world's largest oil producer is also becoming the richest country in the world with income exceeding $80 billion a year.

Much remains to be done in domestic development, however; Saudi Arabia has signed an agreement with the United States which makes the U.S. its chief financial adviser.

Although Saudi oil reserves total 180 billion barrels at the last estimate, 40 per cent more in unexplored fields, King Faisal and his advisers are eager to develop alternative sources of revenue.

Kuwait—With oil income of $9 billion a year and only half a million citizens to spend it on, Kuwait already is the ultimate welfare state. Now it wants to beat its oil in the ground, to avoid unwieldy monetary surpluses.

Kuwaitis say industrialization is not practical in their small sheikhdom and are investing most of their money abroad.

Iraq — Economic development was slowed by the continuing civil war with Iraq's rebellious Kurdish minority.

But Iraq oil wells mainlained peak production of two million barrels a day and monetary reserves jumped from to $3 billion from $1.3 billion in 1974. Iraq also is actively expanding trade ties with the West.

Iran—Another Persian Gulf oil giant, Iran's oil income jumped to $22 billion from $5 billion in 1974, of which 16 billion was spent on investments to improve the country's economy and armed forces.

The Shah of Iran is building one of the biggest military machines in the Middle East, re-equipping his 180,000-man army with British and American equipment.

Nitrate Use May Result In More Cancer

LONDON (CP) — An important environmental problem will be investigated by Britain's Food Research Association under a three-year contract, worth more than £180,970 ($320,600) awarded by the European Economic Community.

Under the community's environmental research program, the association will investigate what happens to nitrate draining from land treated with fertilizers containing soluble nitrogen.

There have been reports that water in some areas has been so badly contaminated with nitrates that babies have had to be put on bottled water.

But, in theory at least, the problem could be worse. Nitrates can be turned into nitrites by bacteria or enzymes from plants and these, given the right supply of other chemicals from natural sources, might be transformed into compounds that are suspected of having cancer-forming properties.

The association will make a detailed study of levels of nitrates, nitrites and other substances that might produce the suspected carcinogens in root crops, green vegetables, grain fruits and water supplies. It will collaborate with other research organizations in Europe, Canada and the United States.

Duty to Aid Afflicted Is Being Widely Ignored

By GEORGIE CORWELL
AP Religion Writer

God "stands at the right hand of the needy," scripture declares, "Maintains the right of the afflicted and destitute. Rescue the weak and needy."

It's a constant biblical theme. "He who oppresses a poor man insults his maker." Yet in the modern world of great wealth and skills, the poor face gathering disaster.

Already a billion of them, nearly a third of the planet's population, suffer confusion, crippling disease and 10,000 die each week of malnutrition or starvation. Under new pressures of colonized world economics, increasing population and climatic shifts, the poor are threatened by worsening famine.

As "explosive global catastrophe" is in the making, concluded a June, 1974, conference of economists, agriculturalists and specialists in relief efforts in the poor regions of the earth.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says: "Whole peoples and countries could disappear from the map."

As U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger put it in connection with November's World Food Conference in Rome:

"A condition in which one billion people suffer from malnutrition is consistent with no concept of justice."

The offence of it cuts against the entire fabric of biblical demands for human decency. Over and over throughout both the Old Testament and the New, scripture hammers away at society's obligation to brace up the poor, to protect the weak, relieve the suffering and stop the exploitation of the downtrodden.

God is regularly portrayed as a partisan of the poor.

"The Bible is on the side of the poor, the impecunious and the destitute," said the late scriptural scholar Karl Barth. "God is no wise taken up a neutral position between the poor man and the rich man. The rich may take care of their own future; He is on the side of the poor."

However, at Christmas, 1974, in the richer countries of Europe and North America, in the predominant areas of professed Christianity and Judaism, the people consume a mounting proportion of the world's goods and grapple for more. Across the borders in poorer lands, millions go under-fed and enfeebled beneath a lowering cloud of mass starvation.

Authorities differ on when the crisis will take on calamitous proportions—possibly in 1975 or as late as 1980—but they agree that conditions are accumulating toward an imminent tragedy of world-wide magnitude.

A variety of causes are blamed for the grim prospect, including:

Newly apparent scarcities in basic raw materials, passions among affluent nations for ever greater consumption, their pre-eminent technologies, the comparatively meagre purchasing power of poorer countries in international trade, swelling inflation, burgeoning populations, twists of nature.

As the prosperous countries sharpen their scramble for the earth's limited resources, resulting in bloated costs, many poorer countries are largely squeezed out of the market, unable to afford productive necessities of fertilizer, fuel and equipment to feed surging populations. For example, North American lawns and golf courses absorbed enough fertilizer to meet the 1974 shortage of it in India.

Altogether about 40 of the poorest countries involving 800 million people already are suffering general malnutrition damaging to body and brain. Another billion people in poor lands are deficient in proteins and other dietary needs.

Half the world's population lives along on only eight per cent of the world's income. Approximately a fifth of the world's people consumes four-fifths of the world's total output.

Nevertheless, aid from the richest country, the United States, has gone down during recent years, despite expressed forgiveness of surpassing generosity. Actually, the country ranks 14th among the 18 better-off nations in aid to poor areas, as measured by percentage of gross national product.

U.S. aid amounts to only one 38th of what it was 25 years ago, less than one per cent of the budget.

"The record of the United States in this field is remarkably melancholy," says economist James P. Grant, president of the Overseas Development Council. He said that an increasingly interdependent world is facing either "the law of the jungle or co-operation."

Concert Tickets Scarce

TRENTON — Tickets are becoming scarce for the 18th annual Christmas concert by the Trenton Citizen Band.

Band Conductor Ted Sadler said Tuesday he cannot be sure tickets will be available at the door.

The concert, one of the major events of the Christmas season in Trenton, will be held at Trenton High School Thursday at 8 p.m.

The 39-member band is a self-supporting group that regularly enters Santa Claus parades in the Quinte area. Many of their concerts, specifically the annual Christmas affair, have been rewarded.

For the third year, the Trent Chapter of the Barbershop Chorus makes a return appearance. Soprano Gayle D'Eon is featured as the guest vocalist.

Since the band's formation, says conductor Sadler, the popularity of the annual concert has increased greatly and thus the popularity of tickets. Some can be obtained from band members.

He said concert encouragers include allowing children in the audience to conduct the band, general choral singing and one new number.

Special photographic effects will be provided by a Trenton camera club.

Solo in Jazz

As Trenton Citizens Band conductor Ted Sadler (left) conducts the band, clarinetist Ed D'Eon rehearses a jazz solo he will perform during the band's 18th annual Christmas concert, Thursday. The 38-member band will present their annual Christmas musical offering in the Trenton High School auditorium.

Swim Course Popular

TRENTON — More people than in previous years are registering in the higher levels in the town's swimming program.

The trend, says Trenton's assistant recreation director Sharon Gardiner, is an indication that more people are returning for further swimming instruction.

One of the town's recreation department programs, swimming instruction in the pool at Trenton High School is broken down into 8 levels.

Judging by the registration of last week, the assistant director said, more than the usual number of people are entering the junior, intermediate and senior levels.

About 300 registered for classes last week. Swimming classes start at the high school in early January, 1975.

Only 14 people entered their names for the town sponsored skiing program at the Batawa Ski Club. The figure is down from the 45 of last year, the first time the ski program was offered by the recreation department.

The low registration does not worry Mrs. Gardiner, who said prospective skiers can register to the date the program starts in January.

However, she said, the department would like to receive all registrations by the end of this month.

Snow Removal Urged

PICTON — Home owners clearing snow-blocked driveways and paths of snow on the road says Prince Edward County engineer Donald Clark.

Mr. Clark told county council Tuesday some persons leave the snow they have cleared on the road instead of cleaning it away.

This creates ridges of frozen snow that may lead to an accident, he said.

Mr. Clark said there is no action that can be taken to prevent the homeowners from shovelling snow onto the road but if an accident occurs in front of a driveway and the motorist blames snow ridges, the shoveller has no recourse.

Pay Boost Requested

PICTON — Employees of the Prince Edward County roads department have petitioned county council for a 50-per-cent increase in wages and other benefits.

The petition has been filed until a salary study for all county employees is completed.

Council noted it lacks the legal power to commit a future council to an expenditure that it would be required to levy.

In addition to a 50-per-cent wage increase, the roads department employees are seeking 100-per-cent payment of OHIP by Prince Edward adjustment every six months.

County Home Tour Postponed

PICTON — Prince Edward County councillors planned to tour the new H.J. McFarland Memorial Home for the Aged Tuesday night but weather conditions forced a postponement.

Administrator for the home, George Ross said the approach to the new building was extremely muddy due to recent snow and rain.

He suggested a tour would be more feasible at a later date, when floor would not be tracked because of the muddy footing.

A report of the construction of the new home was made to council Tuesday by Chester Wood of Chester Wood Associates.

Broken Cable Repaired

TRENTON — Pumping of water from Tremur Lake into the recharge pond for Murray Wells resumed Tuesday after town utility workers repaired a ruptured power line.

The line is the source of electricity for the pumping station.

Trenton Public Utilities Commission manager Douglas Maslow said when a three phase power cable blew up, or ruptured, He said it is not known if the rupture was due to natural causes or vandalism.

"It was severed in some way," he said Tuesday.

Mr. Maslow said he feels Monday's storm was not the cause of the rupture. The break occurred before the storm struck.

Power to the station was not reconnected until Tuesday afternoon, more than 24 hours after the break.

The town's water supply was not affected by the cable rupture. The station pumps water from Tremur Lake into the recharge pond, from where it seeps into the Murray well field. Trenton pipes its water directly from the field.

Enough water was already in the system to supply Trenton.

Repairs to the cable were complicated and delayed when PUC crews were forced to wait for necessary parts.

Prepared for the Cold

A portable electric heater sits by the desk of Trenton town hall employee Bet Cole on Tuesday. The heater is ready for use when the next cold snap hits the Quinte area. Town officials were forced to buy the heaters when the heating system proved inadequate to ward off cold seeping through the floor of the third-story offices.

Cement Plant Gets Contract

PICTON — Martin Marietta Corp. of Rockland, Maryland, has awarded the Picton plant of Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. a $30-million contract for production and supply of Portland cement clinker.

The announcement was made Tuesday from the head office of Lake Ontario Cement in Toronto.

The contract will extend over a three-year period and delivery will begin in April, 1976.

The Cement company's plant here at that date will complete installation of a new $16-million kiln to double the plant's capacity.

TRENTON — Town hall employees shiver from the cold and switch on portable electrical heaters once winter temperatures drop below zero, Arie Hoorweg, Trenton commissioner of works, said Tuesday.

In an interview, Mr. Hoorweg said the system used to heat the third-floor office in the town hall-municipal garage building is not adequate.

He said there is a definite lack of engineering skill in the design of the heating system: "The heating system isn't 100 per cent."

Cold, relayed through the floor of it offices, has forced the town to buy portable heater to keep employees warm, he said.

The heaters aggravate another problem. The electrical circuitry of the building is not able to stand the extra load and fuses are constantly blown.

Siting an example, Mr. Hoorweg said he cannot use a heater in his own office. If it is turned on and someone uses a coffee pot in the staff lunch room, a fuse will blow out.

The latest problems add to a growing list of troubles which Trenton has experienced with its new $438,171 town office.

Trenton officials were forced to call in engineers and set an elevator which, once installed, malfunctioned. Leaks developed in the buildings's dome. As late as this summer, a leak in the roof partly damaged the ceiling in the council chamber. Problems with the air conditioning unit have also occurred.

Part of the current problem stems from the location of cold air vents in the lighting fixtures on the third floor. The heating system is not adequate.

"In a normal building, it (the heating system) would work," he said. "But we have to contend with a tremendous open space underneath.

"If this office was on the first floor, the system would work."

Town offices are on the third floor of the Dundas St. West municipal building. Immediately underneath is the second storey of the garage. Both ends are open the the elements.

When the temperature drops below zero, the cold is in the garage steps through the office door and a covering of plywood and carpet, to chill employees.

Mr. Hoorweg, said Tuesday he is looking into installation of cold air vents near the floor of the offices. The costs, he estimated, would be several thousand dollars.

Additional electrical circuits will also be installed.

He said insulating the floor of the third storey from beneath can be done, but with the many difficulties to make is practical.

Warden: '1974 Year of Solid Achievement' in County

PICTON — Keith MacDonald, Prince Edward County Warden, described 1974 as "a year of solid achievement".

In a brief address to meeting of 1974, Warden MacDonald referred to progress in recent months.

The new county home for the ages in Picton has been completed and represents a structure to allow senior citizens to live "in comfort and dignity".

Wellington areas, stated for an official opening Jan. 4, was assisted by county council through a $154,000 grant.

Prince Edward County museum, opened in 1973 this year doubled its attendance. The building now is used in the winter months for programs of public interest such as art displays.

Substantial work has been accomplished on Prince Edwards' draft official plan, Warden Macdonald said he hopes for its approval by the provincial government in 1975.

A new system of county government was also investigated in the past year.

"We must remain alert to the need for change if we are to progress," commented Warden MacDonald.

"It's been a rewarding, educational and busy year for me," he said in summary.

The retiring warden was presented with a gold watch by North Marysburg deputy-reeve Avis Head on behalf of county council.

Hillier reeve Lewis Wight, defeated this month in a bid for re-election, expressed satisfaction with council's accomplishments, including completion of a new home for the aged and progress with the county museum.

Prince Edward's 1975 warden, Keith MacDonald who will step down next month accepts a gold watch presented on behalf of county council by North Marysburg deputy-reeve Avis Head. Mrs. Head, now a Belleville resident is the first women member of county council. She, too steps from office following a two-year term. Warden MacDonald has been re-elected as reeve of Hallowell.

Wellington Arena Open to Public

PICTON — Wellington District Community Centre will open officially Saturday, Jan. 4, says village reeve Robert Boyce.

Reeve Boyce Tuesday told Prince Edward County council skaters were on the ice early this week.

The arena's first hockey games were played Tuesday night.

All members of county council are invited to attend the opening in 1975.

The contractor did a marvellous job. It's just like a palace," remarked Reeve Boyce.

"The great thing about it is that it's paid for without too much burden to any individual in the county.

"We will continue in the next year or two in council to help finance progress regarding recreation in our county," he said.

Reeve Boyce referred to some "unwarranted criticism" of council's grant of $154,000 to assist the arena this year.

"I feel council will be proud of the arena and feel this will offset any criticisms," he said.

Reeve Boyce emphasized the new building is a distinct asset to the district's recreation area, serving Wellington, Hillier, Bloomfield, Hallowell and Ameliasburgh. It is not just a village project.

MADOC — Five men charged following a shooting incident in Marmora Dec. 7 were remanded to Jan. 7 when they appeared in Madoc provincial court Tuesday.

U.S. Senator Defends Canada's Oil Policies

WASHINGTON (CP) — An influential Democratic senator seconds the United States' argument of taking an "unreasonable" position with Canada in asking the Canadian government to cut the price of oil exported to the U.S.

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington acknowledged as a leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976 and currently chairman of the Senate's energy-promoting interior committee, made the comment Monday night in an interview on Public Television.

Asked by Peter Lisagor of the Chicago Daily News why the U.S. could not apply "reasonable pressure" on Canada and other oil - supplying nations Jackson replied:

"We sure looked foolish putting the pressure on the Canadians. We asked the Canadians to roll back the price of their oil. Do you know what the Canadians told us? 'Look, all we're charging is what you permit your producers to get on unregulated oil.'

He said the U.S. government should roll back the price it allows domestic producers to charge on certain categories of newly-discovered oil.

The Canadian position "certainly is" justifiable, Jackson said.

"I think we have taken an unreasonable position with the Canadians and we got just what we were looking for when we tried to insist that they roll back their price while we roll our prices up."

Small Firms Require Aid in Going Metric

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's small business community faces the "real harm" if conversion to metric measurement is not handled properly, John Bulloch, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said Tuesday.

He said the federal government should establish a program of low-interest loans and grants to aid small businesses in making the conversion.

"Because of the economic advantage enjoyed by large firms, metric conversion could hasten the current trend towards concentration of industry by a few large firms," he said.

Mr. Bulloch was on a panel at a one-day seminar on metric conversion sponsored by the Conference Board of Canada and attended by about 80 businessmen.

A joint resolution outlining the metric conversion program is expected to be introduced in the spring Parliament, and the metric commission already has made some moves towards the change, expected to be completed by 1980.

CBC Plans Costly Coverage

OTTAWA (CP) — The northern service of the CBC, which provides the only radio service across the Arctic, has startled headquarters brass here with a request for $1 million for a single news story.

But officials of the northern service appear convinced that they can persuade the corporation that the money will be well spent.

The news story is the pipeline hearings to start in the North in March. Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. is seeking a right-of-way through the North for a line which would bring natural gas from Alaska and the Mackenzie Delta to the energy starved south.

CBC broadcasters in the North want to keep informed the more than 20,000 Indians and Eskimos whose way of life could be highly affected if the pipeline is built.

To do it, they want to hire broadcasters to prepare daily reports of the hearings by Mr. Justice T. R. Berger in the Eskimo, Slavey, Dogrib, Gwich'yan, Hareskin and Loucheux languages.

Native groups, including the Northwest Territories Indian Brotherhood and the Committee for the Original People's Entitlement, will be represented at the hearings. Their position will be that no major development, such as the pipeline, should go ahead until native land claims are settled.

Mr. Justice Berger is keen on the CBC keeping the native people informed on what goes on at his hearings as much as possible.

The judge who also will hold hearings in major centres such as Yellowknife, Inuvik and Whitehorse, also plans to visit more than 30 small, isolated communities which lie along the Mackenzie Valley route of the pipeline.

Getting out one news report, let alone six, will require large amounts of money. The northern service wants to broadcast reports once hour a day while the hearings go on. It also wants to package television reports which would be sent to Edmonton and then relayed back to northern viewers by communications satellite.

In addition to laying costly transmission lines, the northern service sees a need to charter an aircraft for three weeks.

There also is the expense of hiring native broadcasters and paying their expenses while on tour with the commission.

A final decision on the request is expected soon.

Treatment of Indians Deplored

THUNDER BAY, (CP) — In six years of working in remote communities in northwestern Ontario, public health nurse Yvonne Knipe has seen a lot of troubled people.

"If I were a Canadian citizen I would feel very guilty about the state of the Canadian Indian," says Miss Knipe, 37, who comes from New Zealand.

Miss Knipe provides health services to 1,200 people scattered over the thinly-populated area. About 75 per cent of her patients are Indian or Metis.

"It is most unusual when an Indian baby does not have to be hospitalized during his first year for a serious chest, gastro-intestinal or skin disorder, and they will probably have to spend a good deal of time in hospital," she said.

Miss Knipe regularly visits settlements such as Umphreville, Savant Lake, Ghost River and Pickle Lake, mostly along the CNR main line. She says she's glad that many Indian families are gradually improving their living conditions.

However, the standards of hygiene and nutrition are accordingly low, and drinking and child neglect are all too common.

Newman Raps Shulman For Report on Asbestos

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister William Newman and Dr. Morton Shulman exchanged accusations Tuesday over handling of a report on asbestos fibre levels of drinking water in Great Lakes communities.

Mr. Newman charged that the NDP for High Park had hardened "on the" sensationalism by revealing to the legislature Monday the report which the minister said is a draft document to the International Joint Commission from the Great Lakes Advisory Board.

Dr. Shulman countered that the environment ministry had sat for four months on the report which he said is a completed document and shows definite health dangers from asbestos.

"Stop making irresistible statements and putting people upset," Mr. Newman shouted.

"We have been advised by the ministry of health and others that the research available indicates that the levels of asbestos in the drinking water of the cities we sampled does not constitute a hazard to human health."

Outside the legislature Dr. Shulman said a positive link has been established between cancer and asbestos, whether the asbestoses is inhaled or ingested.

What is not known, he said is at what concentration in drinking water the particles constitute a health hazard.

"The danger has been established. If it hadn't been why do you think they'd be putting the new plant in Sarnia?" Dr. Shulman said.

Mr. Newman said the legislature a new filtration plant is to be in operation this spring would be capable of removing more than 99 per cent of fibre from Sarnia drinking water. That city showed the highest concentration among 22 cities tested with a fibre count of 3.37 million particles per litre of water.

He said samplings at Duluth, Minn. showed concentrations of 30 and 39 million fibres per litre.

Outside the house, he denied that the new Sarnia plant was aimed specifically at asbestos removal.

"We're always updating our systems."

Among other cities which showed high levels in the report were Pembroke 2.25, Niagara Falls 2.58, Cornwall 2.11, Toronto 1.20, Peterborough 1.36 and St. Catharines 1.62.

Belleville's reading was 333.

MPs Demand Caouette Prove Bribery Charge

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal, Conservative and New Democrat MPs demanded Tuesday that Social Credit Leader Real Caouette produce evidence to support charges that MPs have bribed the press to obtain news coverage.

Roch LaSalle (PC—Joliette), one MP "named" by Mr. Caouette, proposed a motion ordering the Social Credit leader to explain his allegations before the Commons privileges and elections committee.

But Speaker James Jerome, requesting time to study the matter, reserved judgment until today on whether the motion is proper under House rules.

Mr. Caouette said last week he paid reporters personally for news coverage, giving $150 to one CBC reporter and $20 to a reporter for an unnamed Quebec newspaper.

He was not in the House Tuesday when his statements were questioned.

Mr. Caouette refused when he made his allegations to name the reporters concerned. But he accused other MPs of making similar pay-offs to the publicity.

At one point, he named Mr. LaSalle as an MP he suspected of bribing the press during the July 8 federal election campaign.

Mr. LaSalle objected Tuesday, as well as other members, have been defamed and accused of bad faith."

Andre Fortin, Social Credit House leader, spoke for Mr. Caouette, arguing that the motion was out or order on technical grounds.

He also said Mr. Caouette "had the courage" to name himself and make direct accusations, something that Conservative MPs were afraid to do when they attacked cabinet ministers for taking campaign donations from the Seafarers' International Union (SIU).

Gerald Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said the reference to SIU donations was irrelevant.

MLAs' 'Boisterous Mood' Blamed on Press Party

TORONTO (CP) — A Christmas party given by the legislative press gallery Tuesday for members of the legislature was blamed for debate that "wasted 3½ hours" of the evening session.

Allan Grossman, provincial secretary for resources development, told the legislature that the press gallery party was to blame for the boisterous mood of legislature members.

Mr. Grossman made his comment after James Foulds (NDP—Port Arthur) was reported to Speaker Russell Rowe by William Hodgson (PC—North York) chairman of the committee of the whole house for the evening session.

Mr. Hodgson said Mr. Foulds refused to take his seat after being warned three times. Mr. Foulds was protesting a motion by Eric Winkler, chairman of the management board of cabinet, that the house should sit beyond the usual 10:30 p.m. deadline.

Mr. Winkler said the extra time was needed to allow opposition members time to debate supplementary spending estimates of about $200 million.

Mr. Foulds protested that such a motion required unanimous consent of the legislature.

Davis Plans New Ministry

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis announced Tuesday the government will establish a ministry of culture and recreation to preserve Ontario's "rich and diverse cultural history."

"This new ministry is in response to the significant role which culture and recreation play i nenhancing the quality of life and good citizenship," Mr. Davis said in a statement to the legislature.

Local Decision

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller told the legislature Tuesday that decisions on specific cuts in hospital spending rest with hospital management boards.

He was replying to Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) who asked the minister to review forced cuts at Toronto General Hospital resulting in the loss of jobs for about 20 employees.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tiver-ry, December 19

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your good intentions will be taken advantage of by one who expects more than you offered to do in the first place.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) A friend's affairs are candidly explicated at this time. If you are not careful you will be drawn into the situation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If a subordinate's actions are displeasing, it is best to bring the matter out in the open rather than pretend it doesn't exist.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) A frustrating situation today will look like it's under control. As it progresses, however, it becomes more baffling.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be alert for loopholes in commercial transaction you are part of today, especially if high-pressure methods are used.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are a little too concerned today about whether the other guy is pulling his weight. Just worry about yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will begin a task you are not too fond of, then set it aside. Later you will go back to it with more keen enthusiasm.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be impulsive regarding things you buy now or you will settle for second best, rather than wait for what you want.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you try to win another's favor through flattery or gifts, it won't come off quite as well as you hope.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to be more talkative than is wise to the wrong people. Information you should withhold will slip out.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days where you will have to be careful not to lend things to people who forgot you are the owner.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You will select alternatives today that after you the easy way out, rather than face issues as you should.

Ordinary Spanking Not Child Abuse

By G. C. THORESEN, MD

Dear Dr. Thoresen: Much is at present being said about child abuse, but exactly what is child abuse?

I am a father who believes in teaching his children to be responsible members of law-abiding and God-fearing, and in order to do this I consider it an absolute necessity to apply an occasional (once or twice a year) good old-fashioned spanking to a child when such punishment is really deserved.

These spanking are applied only to the buttocks using a piece of flat board or a section of a broom handle, etc. Never does with a sharp or jagged or switch-type implement — and never to hurt behind.

Granted slit or seven or eight welts are felt and there is redness of the skin but what good is a spanking or any type of punishment if it isn't felt or doesn't hurt?

By today's standards considering primarily of "child psychology" which, considering the ever - increasing percentage of child crimes, child drug addicts, etc., can't be all as good as some people would like to believe!, is the type of punishment I believe to be considered to be "child abuse?" —N.F.S.

No, I don't think we have you in mind when we are talking about child abuse. Your letter doesn't mean I can accept all that you say.

"Child abuse" centres around physical beating which crippled and sometimes kill children, usually not much more than babies. Many shocking old fractures are part of the evidence — small children taken to hospitals, unable to tell what happened, and parents who offer lame excuses such as "He must have fallen down."

These flagrant cases are the ones that most need attention. Incidentally, your instance that beating is "an absolute necessity" may perhaps be shaken by one thing that has been discovered in the children's hospitals — the child-beaters, it turns out, usually are people who, in their own childhood, were beaten by abusive parents. Violence and pain, you see, often beget further violence and pain, not goodness.

On the other hand, I can't accept the belief that a spanking is never justified. Sometimes it is — but the methods of training depend on the child and the child's reaction. I am sure that plenty of the adults grew up without ever being spanked.

Finally, to my way of thinking, the hand is the proper instrument in the rare cases that demand spanking.

I am absolutely opposed to beating children with boards and broom handles, and I hope you will rethink your position. Considering other things, a spanking child may some day be seen as a child who was being "spanked" with such a weapon, and a lawsuit or back bothering is inexcusable.

South's two-heart call was a Michaels' cue bid, named after the late Mike Michaels who invented it. It showed a hand with four or five spades, a six-card minor and a reasonable amount of high cards.

North's two notrump said, "Tell me which minor you hold." Eventually South got to five clubs, which West doubled.

West opened the King of hearts to East's queen and South's ace. The hand looked like a cinch, except that West's double might well have been based on all four missing trumps. South saw there was hope anyway and proceeded to make his contract.

He led a diamond to dummy's ace and played the nine of spades. East rose with the ace and led the king of hearts which South ruffed. The next tricks went quickly. King of spades; ruff; diamond to the king; ace of trumps; ruff of the last spade, and then pause.

South held nine high-eight-seven of trumps. West held queen-10-five of trumps and a mystery red card. West had dropped the queen of diamonds under South's king, but South knew what to do. He led and ruffed a diamond; while West had to follow. Then he led a low club and made his contract.

How did South know what to do? It seems East and West were playing a modern convention called, "Flannery" which, after a preliminary opening with five hearts and four spades, force East did not make this Flannery two-diamond opening he had to hold six hearts and just three diamonds.

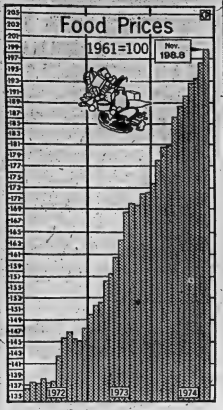
What do you do now?



A—Bid six clubs. Your partner has just shown you the ace of spades. The heart finesse should work and six clubs should be in the bag.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of passing, West has bid two spades over your notrump. North and East pass. What do you do now?

Motion Picture Plays New Lure for Movies

MONTREAL (CP) — The American Film Theatre will launch its second season of "motion picture plays" in January amid hopes by AFT officials that the program can lure audiences back into the movie houses.

"In a way it's a kind of crusade against a lot of the tripe being dished up as family fare by some of the major studios," said Edythe Landau, AFT's vice-president in a recent interview.

"What's more, we have a small army of talented and dedicated people who think the effort is well worth it."

The galaxy of stars who headlined last year's program read like a who's who of the movie industry and Mrs. Landau said this year will be similar.

"We've got some great names—both actors and directors—working for a fraction of their regular fees because they have faith in the program and what it is trying to accomplish.

Wife of producer Ely Landau, who created the idea of bringing together some of the best plays and turning them into films, Mrs. Landau said AFT's second season is much more organized than the first, when the project nearly foundered.

"Last year there were enormous problems because both Canada and the United States were combined for the purposes of ticket distribution and the American Express computer we used didn't do the job as we expected. There were also hassles with overbookings."

Five productions will be offered this year on a subscription basis only and a Montreal firm has been hired to deal exclusively with Canadian bookings.

The composer, she said, has been scratched for the tried-and-true method of direct mail.

This year's playlist includes Jean Genet's The Maids with two-time Academy Award winner Glenda Jackson, Susannah York and Vivien Merchant, Maximilian Schell will star in Robert Shaw's Man in the Glass Booth and Alan Bates heads the cast in David Storey's In Celebration.

To round out the program Topol and John Gielgud will star in Brecht's Galileo and Jacques Brel in Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris, filmed in Montreal under the direction of Denis Heroux.

The films will be shown one a month from January to May. There will be four performances of each picture, a matinee and evening showing on one Monday and one Tuesday each month, in selected cities across Canada.

The AFT also hopes to line up schools for large bookings at reduced rates.

"We want to bring good theatre to the widest possible audience, to let them enjoy through film what they might have neither the chance nor the inclination to see if they were in the conventional theatre setting," Mrs. Landau said.

This Cure Sounds Bad As Disease

LONDON (Reuter) — Here's a doctor's prescription for that Yuletide hangover but be warned: You may find the cure worse than the ailment.

Before drinking, take a one gram injection or vitamin B-12 into the muscle followed by a one-gram tablet of effervescent vitamin C and two of vitamin B complex. Eat well and eat oily foods and drink at least half a cup of corn oil.

At bedtime, down a glut of orange squash with another gram of Vitamin C, two Alka Seltzers with a tablespoon of sugar stirred in.

On waking, take a dose of Inocaine (for heartburn), visit the bathroom and then beat a raw egg, add two tablespoons of honey, three teaspoons of instant coffee, two ounces of vodka and blend them all together, add three-quarters of a pint of cold milk and drink the mixture.

"It sounds awful," says Dr. Dick Richards, who prescribes the cure in the recent issue of World Medicine magazine, "but it's very good."

No Trend In Beef Prices Seen

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Food Council study shows "no consistent increasing trend" in 1974 in beef markups in Metropolitan Toronto stores, Agriculture Minister William Newart said Tuesday.

He told the legislature markups from carcass wholesale cost to retail price averaged 38.7 cents a pound in the 48-week period of the study.

Variations ranged from a low of 17.99 cents a pound in a high of 54.46 cents a pound, he said.

Mr. Stewart cited the November 1974, report of the federal food prices review board which noted "the average spread in 1974 is similar in the average monthly figures of the 1967 to 1973 period."

He was replying to a question posed by Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader in the legislature several weeks ago. Mr. Lewis was absent from the house for the reply.

Police Report Car Is Found

HAMILTON (CP) — Police say they believe they have found the sports car that struck and killed Joey Bellenke, 7, near his home here Friday and are searching now for the driver.

A 1969 red Triumph TR-6 was found in a north Burlington, Ont., garage Tuesday by regional police. They would not release the owner's name or licence number.

Police said an all-points bulletin has been issued for a Burlington man wanted for questioning in connection with the fatal accident.

They said the man may have left the country Tuesday in a 1973 yellow Oldsmobile. Border points have been alerted.

Resume Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) and the Ontario government were to resume talks today after an inconclusive meeting Tuesday.

Only 10 days remain before CSAO membership meetings and a ballot vote that will decide whether there will be a strike Jan. 1 by 10,000 government operational employees.

Gets Million

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A 25-year-old woman, blinded after taking birth-control pills has been awarded $1.14 million in damages by a Superior Court jury.

Michelle Abears of San Jose was awarded damages Monday after a seven-week trial before Judge Bruce Allen. Mrs. Abears's husband, Dennis, was awarded $105,000 in damages.

Advice Given

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Ald. Joe LaPlante had a suggestion Tuesday for St. Catharines transit commission members who complained about lack of parking spaces near city hall on weekdays.

"So leave your cars at home and take a bus," said Ald. LaPlante.

The advice came when some commission members said commission offices on the outskirts of the city would be a more convenient location for some talks than city hall.

Deny Blows

TORONTO (CP) — Two Metropolitan Toronto police constables testified Tuesday that they did not strike Freelance photographer Jeffrey Berman, a 127-pound epileptic, after an altercation at the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 26, 1973.

Constables Robert Campbell, 29, and Eric Rowe, 30, have been charged with assaulting Mr. Berman and causing him bodily harm.

Grants Made

Settle Case

OTTAWA (CP) — A tentative contract settlement covering 1,600 federal nurses has been reached between treasury board and the Professional Institute of the Public Service.

The parties have agreed not to disclose terms of the agreement pending a ratification vote.

Want Action

OTTAWA (CP) — The government wants its proposed Canada Business Corporations Act to become law before the end of the year, Norman Cafik (L—Ontario) told the Commons justice committee Tuesday.

FRANK MILLER

Acupuncture Plea Presented

TORONTO (CP) — The Acupuncture Foundation of Canada, composed of doctors and dentists, met privately with Health Minister Frank Miller Tuesday night to argue that only doctors be allowed to practice acupuncture.

May Be Only Beginning

OTTAWA (CP) — If Industrial wages continue to rise in the next four years the way they have from 1969 to 1973, MPs could get a further 35-per-cent pay increase at the start of the next Parliament.

The average length of a man-forty Parliament is four years, so the next pay increase could occur in 1978.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said Monday the government bill increasing MPs' salaries and allowances will make future pay increases automatic at the beginning of each Parliament based on the composite average of weekly earnings compiled by Statistics Canada.

This outsize children's cuddly toy is in the right place — the children's ward of Belleville General Hospital. And like many other tots under care of nurses like Iona McInroy, Krista Darling, 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Darling of Picton, finds plenty to like about the big stuffed play dog. Donated by a city store, it's part of the Christmas decorations for the hospital's pediatrics area.

Quebec Seats Placed on Line

QUEBEC (CP)—Accusations and counter-accusations were levelled across the floor of the national assembly, Wednesday.

Immigration Minister Jean Marchand started the ball rolling when he accused Opposition Leader Jacques Yvan-Morin of violating the Legislature Act by cashing a $1,798 cheque to defray costs of a government-sponsored trip abroad.

The Opposition leader said he went to attend a French-language parliamentarians' conference in Brussels in September as the official Parti Quebecois delegate at the request of Speaker Jean-Noel Lavoie.

Mr. Bienvenu's accusation set in motion a legislature committee to judge whether Mr. Morin did violate the act which prohibits allowances to members of the executive council or to the leader of the Opposition.

If the accusation is found to be true, Mr. Morin is liable to lose his seat. If he is cleared, however, the immigration minister will suffer the same fate.

Industrial Commission Proposal

Development Control Sought Downtown

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's industrial commission has asked for a city bylaw that will completely control all development in the downtown core.

The request Wednesday night at a city planning meeting follows a year-long "confidential" study of the downtown area. The report concluded "there are requirements for additional hotel and restaurant facilities . . . further requirements for retail and commercial space".

Industrial commissioner Fred Bemis amplified this conclusion saying "there is a requirement to upgrade and re-develop additional space".

The commissioner said downtown space is "being misused," referring to "third-story facilities used for warehousing if used at all".

The bylaw proposed by Mr. Bemis and a committee of his commission is possible under the Planning Act and would designate the downtown as a controlled area, leaving complete control with council. Within the recommendation, the commission asked that it be designated as the body to meet with developers interested in locating in Belleville's downtown. Mr. Bemis said during an interview there have been "numerous inquiries".

"The committee is in a position to understand, organize and assist in the co-ordinated development of the central business section," said Mr. Bemis.

The proposal — soon by the mayor and members of council as a strong step in re-vitalizing the city's core — will require the owner of land to enter into an agreement to provide specific features requested by the municipality. These features could include street signs, sidewalks, refuse collection, landscaping and snow removal, among others.

Mr. Bemis said it is not the intent of the zoning bylaw to discourage or restrict building but to "ensure new development is harmonious".

The site plan control bylaw will ensure, through contractual agreement that phases of downtown growth are looked after.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said this new bylaw, if passed by council, would not affect existing businesses in the downtown area. "When new buildings are going up — in burned-out locations for instance — the inhabitants might be encouraged to upgrade their business places," said the mayor.

He was definitely not said Mayor Jeffrey, though she added that she is interested in hearing what recommendations will come from Quinte Planning Board staff.

The question of downtown control was referred to the staff of the Board for their comments which is expected in the early part of January.

GM Lays Off One in Four

Distress Signals Are Flying in U.S.

DETROIT (AP) — Distress signals were flying almost everywhere as the United States economy prepared for the new year, with more unemployment, a lower personal income average and the balance of payments position deteriorating.

Worst news came from General Motors, one of the world's largest industries, which will send more than a quarter of its 379,000-man hourly workforce to the industrial sidelines next month.

The cuts at GM, and reports of similar moves at other recession-plagued car companies in the United States, boosted new industrial layoffs toward historic proportions.

GM announced new indefinite layoffs for 8,000 blue-collar workers Wednesday. The firm also said indefinite layoffs will total 21,000 by the end of January, an increase of 18,000 over previously released figures.

GM said it will limit first-quarter 1975 output to the depressed level of a year ago when the gasoline shortage took the legs from under expected sales levels.

Sources said Ford Motor Co. also will limit first-quarter output by 40 to 45 per cent from a year ago—down from its usual official double—and Chrysler Corp. is expected to announce it will keep three U.S. plants closed another month.

By January, an estimated 260,000 auto workers, 34 per cent of the U.S. industry's 880,000-person hourly workforce, would be idled as a result of this winter's 30 per cent drop in sales from 1,451,000 cars. Most layoffs will be for indefinite periods.

Study Pipeline

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction of a pipeline to carry imported oil to Montreal from a deepwater port on the east coast still is being considered, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

People within the industry are trying to assess the possibility of building such line, the minister said in an interview. But he refused to name the company involved.

"It's still in the preliminary planning stages."

Metro Postal Workers Return to Their Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Postal workers, who went on a wildcat strike in Metropolitan Toronto as a protest against the abolishment of their contract negotiations agreed to return to work Wednesday night after being off the job for about a week.

The workers, most of them vehicle mechanics, agreed to return to work after meeting officials of the Public Service Alliance, their union. They are members of the alliance's general labor and trades section.

The post office estimated the number of strikers at 15 to 20.

Ken Lloyd, alliance area regional representative for the alliance, said the number was closer to 100.

Post office truck drivers would not cross the strikers' picket lines.

Post office spokesmen estimated that the work stoppage held up delivery of more than 100,000 Christmas parcels and tens of thousands of letters.

Picketing began at 7:30 a.m. and ended at 11 p.m.

Mr. Lloyd said the main reason for the strike was the strikers' protest against the slowness of their contract negotiations in Ottawa with the treasury board.

Sharp Sidelines Pay Boost for Revision

Pared Pay Increase for MPs May Pass House by Christmas

OTTAWA, (CP) — The New Democratic Party made it clear Wednesday that only a cost-of-living salary increase will gain their co-operation in passing a bill that originally proposed 50-per-cent pay increases for MPs and senators.

NDP parliamentary leader Ed Broadbent, outside the House, said the government, which is reviewing its position, must "move rather significantly away from that 50-per-cent figure."

He told reporters his party might support an increase that catches up with increases in the cost of living since the last raise, in 1971.

But that is estimated to be between 25 and 30 per cent, which, if MPs got an immediate raise to bridge the gap, would boost their annual salaries and tax-free expenses to a total of $33,500 from the present $26,000.

The government had proposed, in a bill introduced Monday, to boost it to $39,600.

Senators under the proposed legislation were to get $33,600 in pay and benefits, up from the present $21,972. Under the NDP suggestion they would get a total of about $27,500.

There had been vague hopes that the bill might be approved before the Christmas recess, but the 18 NDP members in the 264-seat Commons vowed to fight every step of the way, virtually eliminating any possibility of early passage.

This, combined with a growing public outcry against the proposal, has forced the government to have another look at the situation.

Government House leader Mitchell Sharp told the Commons that after a meeting with other party spokesmen, including Mr. Broadbent and Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the bill would be sidelined for the time being.

"There is some possibility that we can make progress," he said, explaining that the House could go to other proposed legislation.

"I have had some suggestions — and it does look as though out of this might come a motion that would command an even greater proportion of support in the House and which might be understandable to the public at large."

He would not elaborate and was not available for comment afterward but Mr. Broadbent said any increase would have to be equitable if it was to gain NDP support. An immediate increase would likely be followed by increases tied to the cost of living.

"I can't be more specific . . . but if they want a settlement it seems to me that they must know that they have to move pretty clearly in our direction."

Mr. Broadbent said there still was a slim possibility that an increase could be approved before the House adjourns for its Christmas recess—scheduled to begin Friday—but only if the government co-operated.

"It has to be substantially lower," he said. "Then there are grounds for very serious discussions and the very serious possibility of acceptance."

He declined to say when the no-party negotiations might begin, but said "a substantial revision" might find the House debating the bill again today.

Mr. Stanfield, who obviously was conscious of public opinion and who said later he expected many protesting letters and telegrams, said the 50-per-cent increase might be interpreted as inflationary.

"We do not wish to be a party to something that would be so interpreted. . . .

Judges' Salaries to Be Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang today introduces a bill in the House of Commons that would increase federally - appointed judges' salaries by as much as 72 per cent.

The bill, notice of which was given Wednesday, would affect about 500 judges in the Supreme Court of Canada, the federal court, the provincial superior courts and county and district courts.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court, for example, would be earning $65,000 a year by next April 1, an $18,000 increase over his present salary. This includes a $3,000 bonus for being senior of the nine justices in the high court.

Retroactive to last April 1, the eight other Supreme Court justices would find their $42,000 salaries boosted by $18,000 with passage of the bill and then to $48,000 next April, a 43-per-cent increase.

The 71 justices in the federal court, who now get $52,000, also would get a 43-per-cent increase, to $59,000 in April after an interim jump to $42,000.

The same increases would be effective for all 299 provincial superior court judges while the remaining 315 or so federally-appointed judges in county and district courts would get a 72-per-cent raise.

This would boost their $35,000 salaries to $51,000 on approval of the bill and then to $42,000 in April.

Bitter Kremlin Blast Greets U.S. Trade Bill

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Kremlin, outraged at an implied affront to Russian sovereignty, has released an icy blast that may mean rough weather ahead for Soviet dealings with the United States.

Soviet leaders, Brezhnev in particular, have long sought preferential treatment in trade with the U.S. But the U.S. Congress this week moved closer to passing a trade bill which demands, in return, a more liberal Soviet attitude toward emigration, especially of Jews.

The Soviet Union reacted in public outrage Wednesday, in content of a secret letter, written several weeks ago to U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, was published by the official Soviet news agency, Tass. Interference in Russia's internal affairs, it said, is totally unacceptable.

The bill to which the Soviet Union took exception provides for an 18-month period during which the Soviet Union would show its good intentions by allowing freer emigration. In return, it would receive U.S. trade concessions.

Democratic Senator Russell Long, chief sponsor of the bill in the U.S. Senate, said the provision will stay in the bill, despite the Soviet protest.

The full Congress completes action on it today or Friday.

The Soviet attitude was known to Kissinger, though apparently not to Congress, for several weeks.

Mr. Broadbent said there still was a slim possibility that an increase could be approved before the House adjourns for its Christmas recess—scheduled to begin Friday—but only if the government co-operated.

"It has to be substantially lower," he said. "Then there are grounds for very serious discussions and the very serious possibility of acceptance."

Mr. Stanfield, who obviously was conscious of public opinion and who said later he expected many protesting letters and telegrams, said the 50-per-cent increase might be interpreted as inflationary.

Trenton Scouts To Join Jamboree

TRENTON — Nine Trenton boys will participate in the scouting movement's World Jamboree in Norway this coming summer, Trenton District Council commissioner Clarence Whitman said Wednesday.

The $9,000 needed to cover travel expenses of the boys will be raised, guaranteed the commissioner, "even if I have to put up the money myself".

There's no way that I'll have them disappointed," he stated. "It's an opportunity that the boys may never get again."

Funds for the trip were are being raised by the Trenton District Council, the governing body of the town's 300 to 350 boys in the scouting movement.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Mr Whitman said the council must raise the entire $9,000 — $1,000 per boy — through various fund-raising projects or through public donations.

Even in the face of a poor financial showing on its recent walk-a-thon, Mr Whitman said he feels the council is not over-extending itself in its plans.

Walk-a-thon organizers were disappointed when only $1,500 was raised earlier this year. The group had hoped for about $2,000 from receipts of the previous walk-a-thon.

Mr. Whitman said several fund raising projects have already been lined up if those fail, there is a possibility of receiving provincial or local government grants.

An anticipated large source of funds for the boys' trip may not come through.

A town-wide, door-to-door drive for waste paper Feb 15 is unlikely to produce a big return.

Mr Whitman said paper prices at $1 a ton — have dropped a rock bottom levels from previous highs of $20-$30. "It'll take a lot of paper now," he said.

On top of the big push for paper in February, scouts will also operate a depot on the third Saturday of the next six months in the Loblaws parking lot on Dundas St. East.

Another fund raising effort is scheduled for Feb. 23 — a cake and handicrafts sale at the Canterbury Hall in Trenton.

Mr Whitman said the council will keep its eyes open for other fund raising ventures.

But "by hook or by crook, we'll get the money," he said.

Police say the Werth vehicle was in the process of passing a westbound truck on Highway 401, two miles east of Colborne, when the accident occured. The car went into the median, and flipped over several times before coming to rest.

Bureau Still Waiting For Funds

TRENTON — No word has come down from Ottawa indicating that the Citizens Bureau will receive funds to allow it to operate past the end of the year, Allen Baldwin, bureau board chairman, said here Wednesday.

Since late last week, the consumer help group has been expecting to receive some indication from federal government officials whether money is forthcoming.

A series of meetings in Ottawa last week had bureau staff to believe some funds could be expected.

The often controversial consumer group finds itself in the uncomfortable position of having an empty purse. This has led to speculation the bureau will close its doors in Trenton at the end of this year.

Since the group's last Local Initiative Program grant ran out in mid-summer, the bureau has operated with volunteer, near-paid staff and on a few public donations.

Mr. Baldwin said Wednesday he is optimistic Ottawa will hand down some money.

He said the secretary of state department said they'll have some money for the bureau in April.

"Right now they don't," he said.

The chairman said the department is approaching several government ministries in an effort to find funds for the Trenton bureau.

If that fails, "we'll try to hustle funds up in the community," he said, while admitting that it would be a difficult task.

No Need to Panic

It may be fashionable to look upon Dr. Morton Shulman as the Ontario legislature's resident gadfly, and to take with a grain of salt his many revelations and warnings.

However, Dr. Shulman's latest presentation concerning asbestos fibres in the drinking water of various communities, including our own, is much too serious to dismiss out of hand.

For one thing it is based on a report for the International Joint Commission relative to the Great Lakes, and specifically to infiltration of asbestos from a mining company on Lake Superior.

The reading quoted for Belleville — .533 particles per litre — is considerably lower than the highest count of 3.87 at Sarnia, but nevertheless it cannot be taken seriously. And especially since any potential evidence of it being a "cancer - causing agent could take years to developing.

Yet alarming as it may be, authorities are cautioning against a panic reaction.

Environment Minister Newman is quoted as saying his information is that the water "is absolutely safe for drinking." Be that as it may, constant monitoring will be necessary, in light of what has been revealed.

Public health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward, Dr. C. R. Lenk, puts it this way: "Cautious we must be, but over-cautiousness can be just as harmful."

"Over-reaction," he suggests, could lead to "ridiculous removal of everything we eat and drink."

The authorities must continue to watch this situation very carefully.

The Other Side

The transitory nature of this life is something which, the older we get, bears down on the human spirit.

The nature of our times moreover has its own peculiar peril and one which finds a premature entry a seed in the ground, many a promising future, many a lifetime of potential value.

Thus, there is grief in Moncton, N.B. this Christmas, at the loss of two police officers, brutally done to death in the execution of their duty.

The word "execution" of course has other connotations which will be debated once again in this situation, and remembering that the death penalty remains in force if seldom carried through, in the event of the slaying of police officers.

Other macabre events intrude into these mid-winter days. The sort of thing which Robert Cullen, gentle author of novels on the violence of U.S. life, and an assistant professor of English at the University of Windsor, writes about. Read life horror stories such as the one about the three-year-old Detroit youngster who recently spent a week alone with the body of his slain mother. An event, incidentally, which brought the city's notorious homicide mark for the year to 753, two more than last year's record number of slayings.

Then in Belleville, Ontario, female a 14-year-old called Heidi Biggs. Shown in a recent picture reading from the Bible with her young brother, Heidi is dying of cancer — and fighting for a final Christmas at home.

Life is at once transitory as well as permanent — being carried on through each succeeding generation; but there is no guarantee of a full life span for all. There is the divinity which shapes our ends; perhaps it is the only thing that carries with it any degree of certainty in this life.

Words That Inspire

An editorial reprinted elsewhere on this page today recalls the Christmas broadcasts of the Sovereign in years past.

One in particular, by King George VI stands out; the first such message by the late monarch. It was memorable not only for the moving words of a then unknown author, Minnie Haskins, whom he quoted, but also for the way in which the King overcame his speech impediment.

There is more to the Haskins soliloquy than is quoted. Thus: "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year: give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown. And he replied: put your hand into the hand of God; that shall be to you better than light, and safer than any known way."

Words that endure, and a message for all seasons.

Arnold Edinborough's New Book

A Fresh Look At The World And The Church In Our Time

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Toronto News Services

TORONTO — When Arnold Edinborough asked me if I would like a review copy of his new book Some Canadian Stones Weeping, a personal inducement of a promised man's faith, I demurred saying I write a column on foreign affairs."

The affable Arnold shot back, "I also heard the New Zealanders, will that do?"

"His pickings you might say for giving Mr. Edinborough space in a column which should be delivering me lashing more about the oil crisis, nuclear deterrents, Cyprus or the Middle East.

But again perhaps not, since Mr. Edinborough is looking at mankind in our time, at both its joys and Canada's community through the corrections of a Christian person.

Indeed the flurry of current books by Canadians about insecurities or their solutions to Canadian and global problems, gives me that sort of interest to rank on Christian conviction as part of their message. Among them Arnold Edinborough.

Mr. Edinborough is in that urbane Toronto establishment of writers, public speakers, communicators none of whom are suspected these days to express strong personal Christian conviction, Cross, CARE, Oxfam, even many others that in effect relate directly to Christian doctrine.

How Arnold Edinborough expresses them and copes with them as a Christian is outlined early in his book:

"What should one resolve to do for one's faith?...Put a tenth of my gross income at the top of the sheet, then deduct from it the total of all charitable donations last year (Red Cross, CARE, Oxfam, UNICEF). From this deduct that part of my municipal and federal taxes which goes toward social security and public welfare, and whatever else (these are my public contributions, they have become so through the adoption of the Christian ethic in our time)."

"What is now left is the tenth I pledge to the church."

Mr. Edinborough doesn't stop hear. He also suggests there is, "something more," meaning one's time in a good deal more important than money for many of us, and that some of it should also be deducted for "God's church."

That's early in the book. For much of the rest of it, Mr. Edinborough through light, humorous anecdotes analyses modern trends, events and personalities in a realistic and for many of us, a forgotten Christian context.

He told me these kinds of relationships, putting the faith back in the marketplace as it were, initially inspired the writing of the book.

It's full title is Some Canadian Stones Weeping and Other Thoughts for The Day, concerned him while listening to the bestseller theme of Godspell which is of course Day-by-Day.

And it is in this spirit and at this pace, since most of us in a world of upheaval and the unexpected live more or less day-by-day, that much of the book is written.

It is therefore a kind of calendar of inspirations and thoughts of the modern Christian raised by the many problems and issues present in which the author has either participated personally or shared like all of us through the media.

Moreover Mr. Edinborough writes from within the Anglican tradition in which he participates in modern Canadian society as a Christian, and makes no apology that what he feels he should do, or should have done, occurs during such events as a meeting of Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Toronto, while speaking to a "London youth group, as from his informed seat as a lay preacher within the church.

Nor is Mr. Edinborough's any way on the defensive. There is no perceptible defence of the church against the journalistic stings of a few years ago from inside and outside and his book, The Comfortable Pew,

Rather it is his demolition of basic and silly attacks on the church by people like you and me who which gives this book its strength.

Mr. Edinborough explains in contemporary terms and contexts Christ's message that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

A treasure of the book is the author's gentle yet thorough discomfiture of many of the rich in our society, lawyers, doctors, businessmen and unscrupulous politicians who turn their back on the church because it has been corrupt or spends too much money on itself.

The author reminds each of them that we are members of their profession who has children on his payroll, confirmation city council. The organizational church might be built somewhere in their image. The faith it contains is not.

Or the man who button-holed the author after an inspirational Harvest Festival on a Sunday that the service was "a bunch of folksy nonsense" and that the grapes on the altar, part of the Thanksgiving motif, probably came from South Africa or California, scenic of apartheid and exploitation.

Mr. Edinborough doesn't quite storm the barricades on this one. He replies he doesn't know! What he does know is that the Harvest Festival is as essential to the city church as in the country and, "growing food is a miraculous process." It is hard labor and the people who from inside Canada had remembered, says the author, as should the food itself in its original form.

There is a verse both Mr. Edinborough and this author have heard said many times in Anglican churches, more often in comfortable than worthy ones, congregation is mainly successful or from the well-to-do.

"O Master Builder, who hast made the plan and supplied the means and called the workmen Give us minds to know Thee, hearts to love Thee, and lives to serve Thee."

This is a book for those who have forgotten how to believe as well as those who would believe, would make it at Christmas time but for the year-round when we drift far from Us.

Have a happier Christmas by reading this book even if the $2.95 outlay dutifully reflects the hard economic realities of publishing a book about spiritual things.

Some Canadian Stones Weep Credits and Other Thoughts for the Day By Arnold Edinborough. Lester and Orpen, Toronto, ($2.95).

Poor Alice In Ottawa's Economic Wonderland

By VINCENT EGAN

Miss Alice didn't know whether to turn right, toward the Hatter, or left, toward the March Hare, since the Cheshire Cat had told her they were both mad.

Just then she was hustled into the presence of the Red Queen.

"Excuse me, but I was confused," said Alice.

"That's the effect of living backwards," the Queen said kindly. "It always makes one a little giddy at first—"

"Then why is everybody in Wonderland taking a 50 per cent salary increase?"

"It's inflation, child," replied the Queen.

"Naturally," responded the Queen.

"But when foreign prices go down," said Alice, "we destroy millions of eggs!"

"You are a tedious child," exclaimed the Queen. "Surely even you can see that people can't be allowed to buy and sell eggs at any price they fancy. The marketplace would be in utter chaos!"

"Then it's better to let the eggs go bad than to have a disorderly market!"

"Right," replied the Queen.

"And so there's no inflation in a land because the market is controlled?"

"Half-right."

"Then," Alice persisted, "why not stop inflation by putting controls on all other prices, and on incomes 1st?"

"Confound it, because controls are the very mischief!" the Queen exploded. "Bureaucracies. Black markets. Pressures for exemptions here, there everywhere.

"I say, this is a strange land," Alice mused. "Controls to prevent lower prices. Tariffs to keep out cheaper imports. A free market so that prices can go up. A 50 per cent salary increase. A $5-billion cash deficit."

"You want growing and flourishing," the Queen fired back. "We have to spend, spend, spend. Haven't you heard about the recession?"

"Excuse me," said Alice, "but I thought the recession meant that the economy had stopped growing. So how can there be 50 per cent and 50 per cent and 100 per cent race to take out of it?"

"Off with her head!" thundered the Queen.

Christmas Message From Monarch

Brockville Recorder and Times

There are still people around who recall what a thrill it was to hear the voice of King George V when he made the first Christmas broadcast to Great Britain and the Commonwealth. That was back in 1932, if memory serves correctly.

The youngster sanity heard that first Christmas message, delivered by the King from Sandringham Palace. "Through one of the marvels of science," he said, "I am enabled to speak to all my peoples throughout the Empire."

Since then radio and now television, has played a considerable role in the relationship of monarch and the people. In December, 1936, King Edward VIII made his abdication broadcast from Windsor Castle and the next year King George VI spoke to his subjects on Christmas Day.

December 1940, at the height of World War II, Princess Elizabeth and Queen Elizabeth and her sister, Princess Margaret, spoke to children, and provided encouragement at Christmas in a world that had been turned upside down. Their father continued his Christmas broadcast throughout the war.

Thus the Christmas broadcast of the monarch has become a tradition, one which existed for more than 50 years and now of the most memorable was that of King George VI, when during his first Christmas message, he quoted from a poem by Minnie Louise Haskins. It was during wartime and went thus: "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, Give me a light." It is as timely today as it was then.

Canadians, generally, don't like monarchies, but the Royal broadcasts at Christmas in the same way that children generally did when radio was in its infancy. It was a marvel then. Today it is possible to watch as well as listen to the Queen and much of the mystique of the monarchy has thus been dissipated. Very little seems special any more. Yet the Christmas message of the Queen remains special to those who believe in what the British monarchy stands for. It is still a symbol of freedom in a world where freedom is taken too much for granted by those who enjoy it and is looked upon as a forlorn hope by those who are oppressed, in a world where such things as radio and television are also taken for granted.

Regulatory Legislation

Travel Agents In Mainland Are Believed Satisfied With It

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It is eight years since the first air charter group from Ontario was attracted to England.

You remember it. There was frenzy for a few days while frantic arrangements were made to get the stranded passengers back to Canada.

And you will remember the many incidents since when other charter groups struggled or didn't even get off the ground in time.

And along with this the constant cry there has been for some regulation of travel industry.

For a long time there was a plug-pong match between Ottawa and Toronto officials as to who should handle this regulation.

But the cry now has been answered.

Travel Industry Act was introduced, speedily put through the house and is now law.

Its main provisions is that all travel agents must now be licensed, have to post financial bonding and contributions to such an assurance fund.

As you may have gathered not all of the agents are exactly in love with the new plan.

In fact some 300 of them gathered in Toronto from across the province on Sunday in a protest meeting.

Their main beef was that they hadn't been sufficiently consulted, and particularly that the legislation had been put through the house without them having had the chance for official comment.

The government, however, says there was a great deal of consultation with agents in drafting the act, and claims there was one problem in that there was no single body which represented all agents.

Privately it is said that the same people for the most part are pleased enough with the act.

Insiders say their great fear was that they would have to put up their cheque book and trusts as lawyers do.

The result here called for a lot of bookkeeping and office work.

The government, however apparently has assured them that this is not to be required.

Incidentally this legislation is the result of the achievement of former newspaper man Fred Gaisford, who now is parliamentary assistant to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Affairs John Clement.

A Time To Be Together

Editor:
The Intelligencer,

Have you ever been forgotten on your birthday? I was once. It is a sad and lonely feeling. Therefore let us celebrate in family togetherness with good gifts and good cheer and glad hearts the birthday of Jesus Christ born so long ago. For the scripture cannot be broken unless it is the will of God; by keeping it we are taught to keep alive tradition and break not with the past but seek about, as it were the reality of the past and make alive the story of Jesus. Thus I have sent myself long ago as among the Shepherds gathered in the field by night when the angel of the Lord appeared and brought us unto the glory of the baby Jesus. Let us not forget those words our good times and even the bad times so we may not bring ourselves down to the level of beasts.

If we are to keep Jesus from being crucified we must ask him receive him as your King and Saviour. Let us remember and again, but take every figure of Jesus off the cross and leave Him risen in the appearance of life and resurrection, and not of forgiveness and mercy.

The words of the true Christ were words of peace and love and forgiveness.

Merry Christmas, peace on earth and good will toward all.

In Italy:

Secluded Nuns 'Liberated'

ROME (Reuter) — Italy's 160,000 Roman Catholic nuns are throwing open the shutters of their convents to the outside world. While this is a liberation for many, for others the peering is contemporary life is traumatic.

Television serials are sprouting on convent roofs. Many congregations subscribe to lay publications. Even in some strict cloisters, where five or more hours each day are spent in silent prayer, nuns now receive occasional lectures on current events.

Most important, the nuns' personal contacts with lay people are rapidly increasing. In hospitals and schools they work side by side with lay men and women. Since most of the Italian orders have modified their habits and some have adopted normal street clothes, the lay people are treating the nuns more as women than as a separate species of humanity.

Nuns also are becoming more directly involved in community life. There is a trend among younger nuns to live in small flats far from the convent in the working-class areas where they teach or do family counseling.

"The problems this awakening creates are indicated in an increase in the numbers of nuns who return to lay life. Almost 250 nuns did so in 1969, but by 1973 the figure had risen to 317.

Only a few months ago three southern Italian nuns fled their convent because of what they claimed were harsh conditions and overwork. They have since been resettled in another convent.

In many ways the Italian nun is a forgotten woman. A psychiatrist foreign nun in a vashing Vatican post said:

"I have the feeling that the Italian nuns are more self-effacing than we are. They keep their good qualities hidden and don't put themselves forward. Even some priests treat them as mere scullaries."

A recent survey by two Italian nuns suggested that many priests as well as laymen consider them anachronisms.

Where television sets have been installed in convents, the younger, better-educated nuns complain that their older sisters "role only to watch silly programs with pop singers and the like. We want documentaries."

Many nuns speak of a sense of futility. The head of a large psychiatric hospital with a staff of nursing nuns said:

"Some seem to feel deprived, lacks of lay people, including their normality. They abortion and the pill. They are sometimes give me the feeling all opposed to abortion, but a few of dams about to burst."

Nuns who do social work run agreeing with church teaching into the modern sexual problopposing the pill.

Bailiffs Don't Buy On Credit

VANCOUVER (CP) — "We've got a right to hurt. I don't think there's a creditor in town that will repossess furniture between Dec. 1 and Jan. 1," said the secretary-treasurer of the British Columbia Bailiff Association.

With that statement, John McLeod qualifies as sort of an expert in selecting the trouble with debt, and his advice to a man failing behind with the bills is to stay in touch with the creditor.

"People who fail to do so constitute 70 per cent of our business.

"If you change your address or don't answer his phone calls, what else can he think but that he should get his collateral back? The public image of bailiffs is that we go around repossessing barring sids from old age pensioners.

"We don't brow-beat people or exercise physical force. We merely exercise the right they gave us when they signed the chattel mortgage or the conditional sales contract."

Bill Henke, president of the bailiffs association, said legislation affecting bailiffs changes constantly.

He said it should be noted that bailiffs have to be licensed by the provincial government.

"Each finance company representatives look a bailiff's rights," said Mr. Henke.

"They do have the right to seize goods, but not through inforing that they are bailiffs. If a consumer asks one of those fellows to leave his property, the finance company representative must go. We bailiffs are very aware of the rights of the public," said Mr. Henke, adding that bailiffs are required to carry proper identification or a letter stating their purpose.

Only three per cent of the public are ever visited by bailiffs but it can be a tense experience. Both Mr. Henke and Mr. McLeod have been assaulted while performing their jobs.

"One woman got so mad she bit me," said Mr. Henke.

Mr. McLeod doesn't buy on credit and Mr. Henke uses only 30-day credit.

"Christmas seems should prevail. You don't have everything at once. Some people go to four different department stores, three different finance companies . . .

They want to be up there with the Joneses, until the day a sickness or disability hits.

"Then when things go wrong they find us at the door."

More Love Needed

"Children need love, especially when they least deserve it!"

— Farmers' Almanac, 1973.

There is a whole course in child psychology in that statement. The behavior is a rebellion - a rebellion against not being cared about, not getting enough attention, not feeling like a person.

Karen from Tiger Dee of his Ma, your little fellow is a person, an human individual. He will react surprisingly soon to being talked to, and he will react immediately to being cuddled and stroked.

Part of the explanation lies in the brain development which, in a very small baby, takes place at a speeded-up rate immediately after birth and for several weeks.

When he gets older he finds that not everything in the world is to his liking. His stronghold then is the love he is given by the people closest to him. If they react to his frustrations by punishing rather than understanding, he suffers.

It is still better to give a child love, praise, encouragement, than to turn on him every time his behavior is not just what his Favorite Adult thinks it should be.

Dear Doris: Thank you so much for the poem "The Two Little Kittens." Your request for me was read, and was recognized, and this led to a lively discussion in my writers' group. Each was stumped where I was. Now they all will know the poem.

As I get older I feel so frustrated when I try to recall some poems I memorized as a child.

Will look for your column when we go to Georgia next month.

Dear Donalda: It is frustrating when you can't dredge up the missing words from an old favorite, isn't it? My psychiatric consultant says we should fight for the words and names which seem to slip away as we get older. Memories can continue to be stimulated.

Often we can work on a name or a quotation until it pops into our mouth. Keep the blood circulating and you keep mind and spirit young.

Dear Doris: About this atheist - you asked for comments from readers.

Well I was like him until the day I needed help, then I prayed to a God.

I heard a sermon about people all over this world who pray to or worship some kind of god! They have heard that there is one, some place in their lifetime. People when dying will say some words to the God they hope is there.

So Atheist is no different. As for me, I learned who this God is I pray to, and live better for it. God gives strength and knowledge.

Bible John.

Dear John: Thank you. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

Rotary Club Brings Santa Claus to Handicapped Children

Terry Mangan's mother Janice watches with delight as her son tears open the gift Santa gave him Tuesday, chosen by Belleville's Rotary Club Crippled Children Committee.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/Isabel Huggan

Santa Claus arrived at the Belleville Recreation Centre Tuesday evening to bring presents to a gaggle of happy boys and girls, ranging in age from two to 16.

Accompanying the children were their parents, many of them members of the newly-formed Parents' Group for Handicapped Children.

The occasion was the annual Christmas party given by Belleville's Rotary Club, featuring a chicken dinner and candy, followed by a rousing singsong and Santa's visit.

The children, some in wheelchairs, some with crutches or braces, and some simply held by parents, had an exciting evening. For several it was a rare social outing, since there are few facilities for handicapped children in the city.

Hoping to remedy this, their parents have organized themselves into a group that hopes to "get things done". Their main objective now is to establish a satellite clinic at Belleville General Hospital, in connection with the multi-discipline clinic now being attended in Kingston by more than 30 Belleville families.

The team approach in Kingston — surgeons, therapists, podiatricians and psychiatrist working together — will be continued here, so that every child and his family can get all the help they need.

President of the Belleville group, Noreen Davis says that most meetings since their formation in September have been to discuss ways they can get the clinic in operation.

"The bigger our group, the more effect we'll have in the community, the more we'll get done," says Mrs. Davis.

At present there are fewer than 20 adults in the organization, but more are expected to join as the word spreads that there is a place that parents of handicapped children can compare notes and share experiences, or take two children w. pags thurs. o.k.

"There are so many things we want to do," says Mrs. Davis.

She believes that movement has already begun towards better conditions for children like her three-year-old Adam, who has cerebral palsy.

The First Adventure Nursery has been one positive improvement for handicapped pre-schoolers. And there are plans being made for summer camps for school-age children in this area.

Much of the encouragement for these projects has come from Grant Young, District Nurse for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. He has been instrumental in getting parents together and helping them start out on new ventures.

The important goal, according to Mrs. Davis and Mr. Young, is to help handicapped children become integrated into ordinary community life. This means there must be special provisions made for their care and transportation so that they can attend schools and take part in recreational activities.

"I think people just don't realize how many handicapped children there are in Belleville," says Mrs. Davis.

"Until we get together with Grant Young and started the parents' group, I had no idea there were so many families like ours. People tend to keep their children at home unless they realize there's help available from other families just like theirs."

The feeling of sympathy and "understanding the problems we have to face" helps parents of handicapped children become friends very quickly. The knowledge that other people know what you and your child go through makes you feel immediately comfortable, says Mrs. Davis, even though the problems aren't always the same.

The children who come under the care of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children have difficulties as diverse as muscular dystrophy, cleft palates, cystic fibrosis and hydrocephalus, as well as those who have been crippled through injury.

Parents of these children meet every other Monday at Hastings Park Bible School at 8.30 p.m. to enjoy informal discussion as well as making plans for better facilities for their children's future.

Plastic or Real, What's It to Be?

Eavesdropping on a seasonal dilemma:

"You bought your Christmas tree yet?"

"Yeah, picked it up yesterday. Got a real beauty, a Scotch pine for $8."

"You bought a real tree?"

"Well, what else? You don't think my family goes in for sick, phony commercial stuff, do you?"

"No, I didn't mean that. I know Christmas means a lot to you. That's why I'm surprised you bought a pine tree.

"Millions of young trees chopped down and sold as decoration — what a waste! Don't you think about that? Conserving our resources seems to me more important than having a Christmas tree. We need those trees for paper and lumber...

"If you get an artificial tree, you could use it year after year. Kind of an annual Christmas gift to the future.'"

"Oh boy, can I ever shoot holes in that!!

First of all, I want my family to have the best Christmas they've ever had. And for that, we need a real tree, the tradition of choosing a tree and decorating it. We deserve one tree a year.

"Secondly, if you're talking about this country's resources, you've forgotten that trees are a renewable resource. Especially in Canada where we've got forests to spare.

"Oh, on the other hand, used to manufacture plastic for synthetic trees, or burned as fuel to process metal for aluminum trees. Is a non-renewable resource. So if you really care about the future, you'll avoid these artificial trees."

"Okay, but listen . . ."

"Be quiet, I'm not finished!

"You think artificial trees can be used forever? You're wrong!

"They're only meant to be used for eight years at most. Human nature being what it is, they'll get thrown out sooner than that, as soon as they look a little bedraggled after four or five years.

"They're more than $20 to start with, so you don't even save much money your way."

"Even if that were true, have you thought about this? The land that Christmas trees grow on could be better used growing vegetables and grain. Food shortage is a serious issue, we have to think about it now before it's too late.

"Christmas trees are a foolish luxury."

"But life would be so dreary without a little luxury. Are you going to abolish roses gardens as well?

"The happiness a tree gives lasts longer than a bouquet of roses.

"Anyway, the kind of soil that evergreens thrive on isn't good for food crops. So how about that?

"Okay, that might be true. And it might be true that Christmas trees make families happy.

"But does it have to be a real tree? Surely my kids will have just as much fun with an artificial one!

"And we'll be safer too. There isn't the same fire hazard there is with a tree that gets tinder-dry in a week or two."

"Well, there's no danger with a real tree if you're as careful as I am. And yes, my family will have a better time than yours. We make popcorn and cranberry strings, paper chains and gingerbread men and the whole house of us gets involved.

"You could hardly pet popcorn on an artificial tree, it would look ridiculous. So you'll have to buy ornaments. You'll spend more money than we do . . . and your won't have nearly as good a time."

"You've got to admit that an artificial tree is cleaner."

"I'll grant you that.

"But I'll sweep up any number of pine needles if I can have the excitement of decorating, the feel of the resiny smell, and the absolute mental comfort that a real tree brings."

Whose side are YOU on?

ROSLIN W I

Joan Reid was the hostess when the Roslin Women's Institute met recently.

A gift for needy persons was contributed by each member to be forwarded to the Tweed Salvation Army for distribution.

Leola Alexander and Florence Meeks were program leaders for the meeting which also included holiday readings by Annie Bates, Cathy LaBarge and Helen Howes.

TWEED SENIORS

A record numbers of persons attended the annual Tweed Senior Citizen's Christmas Party held recently at St. James Anglican Church Hall. Carols and narration made up the program.

Adam Davis, in the arms of his father Jim, suddenly felt just a little shy when confronting the great white-bearded man himself. Like the other children at the Christmas party held in the Recreation Centre, Adam had an exciting evening.

Ann Landers

'Loony' Should Read Bible

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for that loony clergyman who told his wife that if she was a true Christian she wouldn't need any sex in her life. He said, "Jesus fills my every need and that should be enough for you, too."

The "true Christian" should read his Bible. Here are a few recommended passages.

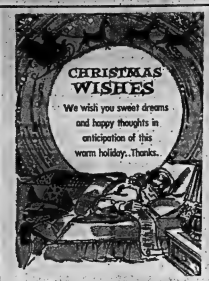
Genesis 2:25: "And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed."

Matthew 19:4: "Have ye not read that he which made them at the beginning made them both male and female and said, for this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and cleave to his wife and they two shall be one flesh? What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

The Apostle Paul said (Ephesians 5:28, "Husbands, love your wives." — Mississippi Pessoo

Dear Person: Thanks for the Good Word. I doubt that anything will change in that particular household since the man is clearly off his rocker. Your letter, however, might be helpful to other married couples who are still hung up on childhood notions about sex and suffer from guilt because they can't get over the feeling that somehow it is wrong.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a word to that so-called poker expert who tried to define a double-ace flush.



He starts out by saying, "According to The Book of Hoyle, on page 57"—and ends up with some cockamamie explanation that makes no sense to us yet-erans of the table.

That man never saw The Book of Hoyle. Page 57 tells about Canasta Bridge. Poker starts on page 74.

Just sign me—Calling His Nineff In Grand Rapids

Dear Call: I don't know one poo-pickin' thing about poker, but there are a number of versions of Hoyle, which could account for the difference in the page numbers.

As for which heals what; I'm willing to take Hoyle's word for it, any version.

Canada Defended By Simon

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon renewed his defence of Canada's oil-export policies Wednesday night in the face of recent criticism from some members of Congress about Ottawa's decision to end oil exports within a few years.

"I rather believe that we would act the same way," Simon said.

Appearing on the public-television show Firing Line with columnist William Buckley, Simon said the Canadian decision was related to plans to pipe western Canadian oil to the Montreal market.

But when Buckley suggested that Canada was "guilty of a little historical profiteering" by following the oil-producing cartel's rise in prices, Simon replied:

"Well, this is the one disagreement that I have with them, that for years they had the benefit of exporting their oil to us at a higher-than-world price because we were controlling our oil through the quota system . . . at a high price.

Six Face Charges Of Secret Rewards

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial and Metropolitan Toronto police say they are looking for a 7th count man facing 29 counts of accepting secret commissions worth $36,128.

Five other persons were charged Tuesday with accepting secret commissions after a seven-month hearing into corruption and violence in the Ontario construction industry. The inquiry report is expected to be released today by the government.

Those charged Tuesday were released without bail to face trials in January and a police spokesman said the investigation is continuing.

They were charged under the Criminal Code which prohibits acceptance of a secret commission, reward, advantage or benefit in business dealings.

The five charged and the sixth man being sought all testified before the public inquiry which sat from September, 1972, until last April. It was an offshoot of Ontario's royal commission on crime in the construction industry.

Charles Gaughran, 54, of Hamilton, business manager for Local 18, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, faces two charges; Danilo Demonte, 48, of Toronto, business agent for Local 31, Labourers' and Terrazzo Mechanics' Union, one charge; Robert Naish, 38, of Toronto, former project estimator for Mason-Elcwit Joint Venture, 13 charges; Atanas Popov, 49, of Mississauga, Ont., co-owner of Kanoff Development Mississauga Ltd., four charges; and David Willoughy, 47, of Belleantula, Ont., former general superintendent of Allenwood Investments Ltd., five charges.

In another case prompted by March and April trial dates were set Wednesday for 17 present and former employees of the Ontario Housing Corp., charged with illegally accepting benefits from persons doing business with the corporation.

Late last month, seven other persons had trial dates set.

Loan for New City Not Yet Forthcoming

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario government officials say the federal government has not kept its part of an "agreement" to provide a loan for 90 per cent of the land acquisition and development costs for the new city in nearby Pickering.

Michael Warren, deputy housing minister, said Wednesday the ministry cannot understand why Ottawa has not responded to Ontario's pursuit of the loan.

Hamilton Mansell in a review has written at least two letters since October and has discussed the loan with Barnett Danson, federal urban affairs minister.

Figures released Wednesday by the province showed Ontario, to the end of September, has paid $186,089,000 for 36,813 acres of town site and 2,729 acres of a planned 8,000-acre green belt.

Provincial housing officials say they understood when the project was announced in 1973 that a federal loan would help finance the acquisition and it was included in the official announcement.

Mr. Warren said the federal government may be interpreting the loan as being conditional on the building of a proposed international airport in Pickering. There has been no confirmation of airport plans.

Constables Convicted Of Common Assault

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Stanton Hogg convicted Metropolitan Toronto constables Robert Campbell and Eric Bires of common assault Wednesday on Jeffrey Berman, a free-lance photographer but granted each constable an unconditional discharge as requested by the defence counsel.

The judge ruled that the constables used excessive force while they arrested Mr. Berman, 22 an epileptic, during an Osmond Brothers concert at the Canadian National Exhibition August 30, 1973.

The policemen were charged originally with assaulting Mr. Berman and causing him bodily harm. Judge Hogg said he could not find, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the constables kicked or kneed Mr. Berman in the face while subduing him after a dispute over his right to approach the stage where the Osmond Brothers were performing.

Judge Hogg said Mr. Berman had been acting properly and was arrested unlawfully, having taken no action to warrant his arrest.

News Media Exempted From Ad Prosecution

TORONTO (CP) — Philip Griffin, spokesman for the Institute of Canadian Advertising, said Wednesday any person should be allowed to prove he exercised "due diligence" in avoiding a deceptive business practice.

"My approach is to place the civil liability on the person who engages in unfair practices," Mr. Griffin told a legislative committee conducting a clause-by-clause review of the new Business Practices Act.

The committee approved a draft amendment to the act that exempts the news media from prosecution for an advertisement published in "good faith," even if the consumer may be deceived by it.

Imported Hamburger Irritating to Whelan

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday that most of the beef imported from Australia, New Zealand and Argentina is ground and cooked before it arrives in Canada to counter concerns that it is tainted with deadly hoof-and-mouth disease.

Outside the Commons, the minister told reporters small meat traders . . . hoping to make a fast buck" were importing meat from the three countries.

"But we don't need a bit of it here."

He apparently was referring to a glut of hamburger-quality

Turner Talks In Washington

WASHINGTON (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner of Canada held another round Wednesday in his series of Washington meetings concerned with international efforts to resolve the difficulties created by increased oil prices and other monetary problems.

John Sheil, an aide travelling with the minister, said Turner would have no comment in talks about his one-day visit here.

cow meat now choking the market as domestic cattlemen sell off breeding stock in an effort to cut down cattle numbers and raise prices.

Mr. Whelan said chain restaurants, in particular, use a lot of imported beef, some of them unknowingly.

The issue came up in the Commons because of a health department report Tuesday which said 31 of 597 hamburger samples taken during a recent survey contained poisonous salmonella organisms.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde reiterated Wednesday that the contaminated samples represented only two per cent of the number taken, adding that Canada has an excellent record of selling pure beef.

He said in reply to questions by Progressive Conservative consumer affairs critic James McGrath (St. John's East) that the department was doubling to 2,000 the number of meat inspections undertaken in the country.

Mr. McGrath called for stiffer penalties for businessmen selling contaminated meat and for better inspection of imported meat by the agriculture department.

Chlorine in Water May Spread Cancer

TORONTO (CP) — Bernard Newman (Liberal — Windsor-Walkerville) asked the government Wednesday to investigate reports that chlorine used to purify drinking water may, in fact, produce cancer-causing agents.

Mr. Newman told the legislature that research in the United States has raised some doubts about chlorination, and alternate methods are being developed to purify drinking water.

European cities, including Milan and Nice, treat drinking water with ozone—a chemical that does a better job than chlorine, is safer, but costs more, the Liberal member said.

Environment Minister William Newman said officials of his ministry are confident that chlorine poses no problem when used in water supplies for Ontario.

In some parts of the U.S., such as in New Orleans, chlorine is being investigated as a purifying agent because of its chemical reaction with other chemicals peculiar to that water supply, the minister said. But the same concern does not apply here.

Death Car

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton-Wentworth regional police said Wednesday a sports car found in a nearby Burlington, Ont., garage Tuesday has been linked to an accident which killed a seven-year-old Hamilton boy.

Police said investigators from the centre for forensic sciences in Toronto examined the car and confirmed it was the vehicle which struck and killed Joey Ballenie last Friday.

Civil Servants Say Strike Would Cripple

TORONTO (CP) — A strike by the province's 30,000 operational employees supported by most of Ontario's powerful unions would "cripple" Ontario, a spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said Wednesday.

"We'll retain optimism for a settlement until the very last hour," said John Norman, CSAO general manager. "But right now it doesn't look good."

The CSAO has threatened to pull employees, including snowplow drivers and water treatment plant technicians, off their jobs beginning Jan. 1.

The workers are prohibited by law from striking.

Arthur Rieskey, Ontario regional director for the Canadian Union of Public Employees and Len Murphy, president of the Toronto local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPE), were two of 30 union leaders to face reporters with Mr. Norman at a CSAO press conference.

The group met Wednesday afternoon to discuss co-operative strategy in the event of a CSAO strike.

Mr. Rieskey said he will direct CUPE locals throughout Ontario Thursday morning to advise members to resist any orders from superiors to do work usually carried out by provincial government employees. The directive would affect municipal roads crews who are asked to plow highways or roads under provincial jurisdiction.

"The CSAO is fighting for justice and we intend to help them get it," he said.

Mr. Murphy said that in the event of a strike postal workers would continue to handle mail normally handled by CSAO members.

He said "millions of pieces of mail" would be affected.

Stu Cook, a spokesman at the United Steelworkers of America, said his union would provide CSAO with expert advice on handling strike functions.

"We are prepared to provide the CSAO our full moral backing and public relations support," he said.

Representatives of various teachers' associations offered similar support.

Mr. Norman said he expects 80 per cent of the operational employees would obey a strike order and that other CSAO members would refuse to report to their jobs rather than cross picket lines.

"I can see 25,000 to 30,000 people out," he predicted.

Plumptre Says Turkey Prices Are Still High

OTTAWA (CP) — Grocers are selling turkeys at a loss to lure people into their stores, but Beryl Plumptre says prices still may be too high

"Turkeys should be a good buy," the chairman of the food prices review board said in a recent interview. Stocks were abundant.

"But I think prices are pretty high, frankly."

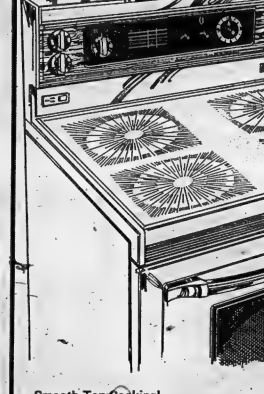
Turkeys weighing more than 20 pounds were selling at prices about seven cents a pound less than it cost merchants do buy them from wholesalers here Wednesday.

Prices ranged from 45 cents a pound for utility grade to 53 cents a pound for grade A. Ten to 16-pound turkeys—the size usually bought by families—were about three cents-a-pound higher than the current 62-to-65-cents-a-pound wholesale cost.

Retailers use the birds as "loss leaders" to attract customers who will load their grocery carts with trimmings and other food.

Mrs. Plumptre said she was particularly concerned that turkeys are not moving freely from provinces to provinces and that prices were as much as 20 cents a pound higher in Prince Edward Island than in Ontario earlier this month.

Mrs. Plumptre said consumers should buy Christmas turkeys as carefully as possible, adding that utility grade turkeys "are a very good buy."



Such birds are at least grade A, but are sold with a missing wing or other part.

However, Mrs. Plumptre said it is better than being taken in by advertising that says "you must have a special turkey."

She was referring to birds injected with margarine or vegetable oil, generally described as deep basted or, self-basting.

These turkeys are generally lighter priced and cost between 72 and 73 cents a pound in Ottawa on Wednesday.

Merry Christmas one and all. Hope it's abundant in joy and peace. Thanks to all.

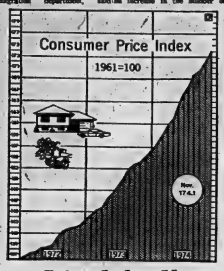
Newfoundland Gets More New Citizens

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Compared with other Canadian provinces, Newfoundland has had a small influx of immigrants through the years.

But the situation appears to be gradually changing. A report from the immigration office in Gander says the province had 994 immigrants last year, approximately 300 more than in 1972, and this year's total is expected to reach at least 1,000.

R. M. Casselman, assistant director-general of immigration operations for the Atlantic region of the manpower and immigration department, said recently changes in Canada's immigration regulations which are expected to result in about a 40 per cent decline in landed immigrants on the national scale, are not expected to affect in any noticeable extent the number of immigrants coming to Newfoundland.

Mr. Casselman was in St. John's to outline the changes announced in Ottawa recently to stabilize the immigration flow and tie it more closely to the needs of Canada's labor market.



He said there might even be an increase in the number of immigrants settling in Newfoundland because the people who come here are in the skilled and professional categories. They have definite employment lined up before they immigrate and do not compete in jobs in the high unemployment categories.

"There are very few immigrants who come in Newfoundland on speculation and there are likely a very small number of illegal immigrants in the province. If there are any in that category, it would be because of ignorance of the regulations rather than deliberately."

Mr. Casselman said two things in particular are holding down the population of the province: emigration to the Canadian mainland and a decreasing birthrate. An increase in immigration would assist and increase the over-all development of the province by filling job vacancies for which there were no trained and skilled local workers.

Price Index Up

The consumer price index rose by 1.1 per cent in November with food and higher car prices accounting for about two-thirds of the increase, Statistics Canada said Wednesday. The index climbed to 174.1 in November up from 172.2 in October. Based on 1961 prices equalling 100, the index level was 12 per cent above the level for November 1973. (CP Newsmap)

Canteens Profitable

Canteens at city recreation facilities have served up satisfying financial profits during the year.

Fiscal statements to the recreation committee this week showed these operating profits:

Memorial Arena, $8,621. Dick Ellis Rink $3,089; Ron Kloecker Anderson Rink Quinte Skating and Tennis Club, $300.

"I think they (the canteens) did only do a fine job," said board vice-chairman Joan Guthrie, "but it's money we can use for a good purpose."

New Roses For Park

Belleville's Corby Park rose garden should include a new variety of rose next year.

At least 100 bushes of the new variety could be installed — courtesy of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire (IODE), the city's parks board was told this week.

The rose is a new species — developed to mark Derrah anniversary y of the IODE, said Lloyd Ryer, parks director.

Both local IODE branches — the AGZI and St. Julien chapters — intended contributing the new rose bushes, he said.

The proposal is to make a special rose bed for the new variety.

Tree Nursery Suggested

A tree nursery is needed in the Belleville area, the city's parks board was told this week.

The problem: Where to find a site.

Ald. Stu Meeks had one solution. He suggested the Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) be requested to establish such a project on the Potter conservation creation property west of the city.

A nursery suggestion for MRCA consideration would not be inappropriate, he suggested.

Spirit of Giving

Even Santa Claus gets into the act when it comes to giving to the Salvation Army's Christmas Cheer Program. Here Santa, watched by Mrs. Robert Westlake of the Salvation Army contributes his share into the plastic bubble set up at the Quinte Mall from now until Christmas.

Drum and Bugle Event Requires Park Change

The city's parks board wants more information on this year's international drum and bugle corps competition before considering requests for waiving a planned 1976 edition of the big musical event.

The board Tuesday viewed written requests for some alterations in Quinte Exhibition grounds facilities to ease public presentation of such a musical events.

Hugh Boody, director of the Belleville corps which staged the event, said intentions are to make the production an annual program for visiting musical groups.

Among work needed — he wrote — would be sodding and rolling of the infield for the bands and removal of rails and light stands which block performances from the grandstand.

Board member R.W. Phillips suggested Mr. Boody be asked to furnish details on this year's events before any decisions are made.

Ald. Stu Meeks also won agreement for his request that the requests also be sent the Belleville Agricultural Society, whose use of the grounds includes harness racing.

Rotary Music Festival Entry Deadline Near

Those hoping to enter the Rotary Music Festival are reminded that the deadline for entries is Dec. 31.

The festival itself will take place the week of Feb. 24 winding up with the Festival of Stars on Mar. 1, which, this year, will be split between Centennial Secondary School and Trenton High School.

Something new this year is the combined forces of the Belleville and Trenton Rotary Clubs is putting on the event. Also, for the first time this year, there will be an adjudicated day during which participants are asked to perform for celebrating members of their clubs, at which they will be adjudicated.

Each year for the last seven years, the Rotary Club has sponsored a music festival.

"Entries are received each year in such categories as piano, choir and accordion among others.

The locations for such events are unchanged from last year with the exception of the Corby Public Library for some younger entries. Other events take place at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Centennial Secondary School.

"The reason for such a music festival," says Bill Campbell, chairman of the event, is to give each performer an opportunity to pace himself on the road to excellence.

"For this reason, although the festival provides awards and prizes for the winners, the competition is not the important outcome," says Mr. Campbell.

"Because of the professional quality of the adjudication, each participant learns more about his own performance and ways to improve."

New Men Will Take Over Toronto, Montreal Orchestras

OTTAWA (CP) — New conductors of international repute will take over leadership of the Montreal and Toronto symphony orchestras in 1977, after a year for which the country's music scene was largely a holding operation, waiting for better things to come.

Financial constraints brought on by inflation and deterioration by the Canada Council to hold the line on major arts grants in 1974 resulted in a year in which there were few of the creative new developments that marked 1973.

But after coming close to financial collapse a year ago, the Montreal Symphony embarked on a program of taking concert music out of its home in Place des Arts and into places where people gather, including shopping centres.

Rafael Frubbek de Burgos, who built the National Orchestra of Spain into a leading symphony in commercial recordings, succeeds musical director Franz-Paul Decker next fall.

In Toronto the orchestra has worked for almost two years under great conditions following the death of Karel Ancerl, former of the Czech Philharmonic. Now in Seiji Ozawa, conductor, Andrew Davis, has been engaged to take over full-time duties next fall.

The Toronto Symphony toured Europe in 1974 under guest conductor Kazimierz Kord. The Vancouver Symphony went to Japan in 1970 and still hopes for a tour of China, postponed last summer when the Communist regime there went through internal re-examination of Western music.

The Vancouver Radio Orchestra forced Manitoba, Alberta and the Northwest Territories in May and June, ending with eight performances in Ottawa.

New music flourished in jazz and some spilled over into 1974. The Canadian Opera Company produced Malcolm Sent

Britain's Economic Power Pared Again During 1974

LONDON (CP) — The decline in Britain's once-mighty economic grandeur gathered momentum in 1974 as shaken treasury officials prepared for a furious fight to arrest the nosedive in the new year.

The downward drift of British power, for nearly a century the envy of the world, has been taking place with frequent bumps and alarms since the end of the Second World War.

But 1974 will likely be remembered as the year when a final shuddering crash at times seemed inevitable. That it was avoided is a monument to British ingenuity and financial wizardry.

And if, during the next 12 months or so, the economy can be raised to a steady course it will undoubtedly stand as one of the country's most prodigious achievements of the decade. But the task facing the Labor government and its advisers is singularly forbidding.

Britain entered 1974 with industry on a three-day week because of a national coal strike and an international energy crisis.

It enters 1975 with industry back in full-time working but in the red by the equivalent of about $15 billion. The country itself has a record balance of payments deficit of nearly $10 billion for the year, the lowest growth rate of all developed countries, one of the most uncompetitive economies and a standard of living declining at one of the fastest rates in the Western world.

A charge of government to the Labor party of Prime Minister Harold Wilson from the Conservatives last February brought an end to the miners' strike by giving the union the wage increases it demanded.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey then introduced three budgets in the space of less than eight months in a desperate attempt to cool inflation, now raging at an annual rate between 17 and 20 per cent, and at the same time keep the unemployment rate below 2.5 per cent of the labor force.

The situation when he took office last March was one of the most serious to face any chancellor during this century.

Healey's first objective was to woo the trade unions which had rebelled savagely against income controls imposed by the former Tory government. The ceilings were quickly removed and a social compact, between the unions and the government was forged.

Although it still is too early to say how the compact will work, its central feature is a voluntary agreement by the unions to restrict wage claims annually to no more than increases in the cost of living.

Within weeks, the chancellor introduced his first major budget, adding the equivalent of $1.4 billion in taxes, falling mainly on the middle classes and industry, and introducing $1.5 billion worth of food subsidies.

The budget was a fairly orthodox attempt to curb inflationary demands.

Living standards, defined as personal wealth, fell back to 1972 levels and the stock market plummeted toward levels not seen in the dark days of the Depression. Total production actually dropped by one per cent from the previous year.

Inflation reached an annual rate of nearly 30 per cent and the London Business School, one of the top forecasting bodies in the country, predicted that "Britain is entering a three-year period of extremely slow growth with a high rate of inflation."

In fairness to the Labor government, most observers concede that Britain's present problems are partly a result of the general world recession and the sky-high price of raw material imports, especially oil, and largely the outgrowth of past Tory policies which inflated demand far beyond the capacity or willingness of Britons to produce.

Healey argued that there was little he could do to improve the lot of the ordinary Briton unless the payments deficit was first solved. To do this exports would have to be increased. But how was this to be accomplished when Britain's main trading partners were also in recession and unable to buy her products? In the meantime he announced Britain had negotiated a $2.5-billion foreign loan to help finance the deficit rather than raise taxes further.

A survey by The Financial Times then showed business confidence had sunk to its lowest level in 30 years, a malaise that has been developing since 1962. Pressure was growing on the tiny minority government and in July Healey brought in a mini-budget, looking forward to a fall election, with cuts in sales taxes and more food subsidies this time providing a mildly inflationary effect.

Those measures did little for the economy but they did help return a majority government in the October general election. The chancellor borrowed another $1.2 billion abroad and prepared yet another budget.

In it, Healey reversed his previous tough attitude in business, gave it an immediate cash injection of the equivalent of $2.48 billion, through tax relief and the removal of price controls, and set up a $2.3-billion loan fund for industry.

The action brought a little relief and a lot of confusion. The immediate reaction of the key manufacturing sector: It plans to reduce investment by a whopping 10 per cent in 1975, an almost unheard-of phenomenon in a country already producing far below its potential.

The British government now is pinning its hopes on the new year bringing a sharpening in the recent decline in import prices as, perhaps the most crucial weapon in their fight against inflation and the payments imbalance. It is one of the more realistic hopes in an otherwise chaotic situation.

Budget-maker

Britain has a record balance of payments deficit of nearly $10 billion for 1974, the lowest growth rate of all developed countries, one of the most uncompetitive economies and a standard of living declining at one of the fastest rates in the Western world. Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, shown with budget box, has introduced three budgets in less than eight months in a desperate attempt to cool inflation and at the same time keep the unemployment rate below 2.5 per cent of the labor force. Fatal Tree Felled

Two trees, proclaimed serious safety hazard in city council this week, today are being removed from a busy Belleville traffic route.

The trees are on East Dundas St. near Bleecker Ave.

City hall action followed a warning to council Monday by city surgeon Bruce Morgan whose office is nearby that the trees were a "real and present hazard."

Dr. Morgan noted one of the trees — closest to the Bleecker intersection — already had been a fatal accident last month.

AM. George Zegouras said there had been six traffic accident this year at the spot where the long-term strip of Dundas narrows to two lanes.

Drivers, taken unawares by the road narrowing, could mount the sidewalk at Bleecker and find themselves heading for the tree, council was told.

Poor visibility in winter weather complicated the threat, warned Dr. Morgan.

Today, city manager Ken Purcell said a tree-felling service was contracted for removal. work followed the council discussion. Both trees now will be cut flush to the pavement.

Hazards Felled

Work crews today moved in on two trees on East Dundas St. after city council was told Monday they posed serious traffic hazard on a major traffic route. Near Bleecker Ave., the site has seen six mishaps — one fatal — this year.

Station Robbed Of $5,060

PICTON — A thief or thieves early today netted $5,060 in cash and changed in a break-in at Loblaws Supermkt in Picton.

The theft was discovered by a station owner, George Hanna during a building check shortly after 7 a.m. Thursday. The break-in is believed to have occurred after midnight.

Constable Donald Camp of the Picton police department said entry to the garage was gained by smashing a small window in an overhead door. The thief or thieves then reached in and released the door lock.

The identification unit of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police was on the scene early today and Constable Camp.

The robbery is under investigation by Constable Harry Daly of the Picton police department.

Cards Still Popular Despite Rising Cost

By RAY MacLEAN

It's that time of year again!

Time to get out last year's Christmas card list and prepare for that annual bout of writer's cramp.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she has mailed in excess of 300 Cheshire Home Christmas Cards this season to civic members of the community, citizen members of council committees and to federal and provincial ministers whom she has dealt with during her term of office".

"I sign all of them and put a little note in many of them," said the mayor.

For her private mailing list, the work is handed over to her husband Roy.

"We've got down our personal list . . . It's getting to costly," said the mayor, "to try to personally wish greetings of the season to our friends rather than a card."

Belleville Police Chief Doug Crosbie says he sends out about 100 cards every year, and usually receives close to that same number in return. He says he sends out cards to local people and other police stations across the province.

Herb Young, president of Loyalist College, says he mails about 300-350 cards on behalf of the college and sees that every one is signed personally.

Mr. Young says he dislikes the idea of sending his signature on the cards, because it loses the personal meaning. Added to what type of card he prefers, he says those with a meaningful as well as a personal message, are best.

Avco finance manager, Mike Barker, says he usually sends out about 25 cards, most of which are inter-office correspondence.

"I am not really in favor of sending Christmas cards," Mr. Barker says. "They have lost their meaning lately, it seems — only back on a card some people once a year and that's at Christmas."

Ray ripp, manager of a local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, says he mailed from 75 to 100 Christmas cards this year. He says he reserves to close to the same number in return.

Mr. Tripp says he would just as soon buy the cards from a charitable organization rather than buy ordinary cards at a store.

"The only problem this year is I haven't seen anyone around selling them."

Belleville Chamber of Commerce manager Don Sutton says he puts up advertisement in the newspaper rather than mail Christmas cards.

"This way more people are reached," says Mr. Sutton.

He says that the Chamber of Commerce is a community-related organization and therefore has a responsibility to reach everyone.

Turkey Still No Bargain

The fabled turkey price war, purportedly, sweeping Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, isn't doing much for Belleville prices.

In fact, you're paying more for your turkey today than you did for your Thanksgiving turkey ... but not much.

Current prices at city supermarkets put small turkeys — all Grade A — at 48 cents. Birds over 20 pounds are 39 cents and some over 25 pounds are 43 cents. In most cases turkeys 24 pounds are 41 cents.

At Thanksgiving you could have purchased a small turkey for 56 cents and an 18-pound turkey for 35 cents per pound. Twenty-pound turkeys were 36 cents, but one cost less per pound than today's price.

Fancy pre-basted turkeys are currently 84 and 74 cents per pound depending on size; at Thanksgiving they were 77 and 68 cents per pound.

In Ottawa, on Saturday, you could buy an over-20-pound turkey for 33 cents a pound, the same price you'd pay in Peterborough today. Kingston prices today are equal to Belleville's.

If there's no sudden drop in prices from autumn levels, at least you're playing less than you did last Christmas.

In 1973, turkeys averaged 56 cents a pound for small birds, 46 cents a pound for over-24-pound birds. It will be a personal message, are best.

Avco finance manager, Mike Barker, says he usually sends out about 25 cards, most of which are inter-office correspondence.

"I am not really in favor of sending Christmas cards," Mr. Barker says. "They have lost their meaning lately, it seems — only back on a card some people once a year and that's at Christmas."

Delicate control makes this intravenous infusion pump an essential piece of equipment in the care of premature born babies and in other critical situations. A gift from the Belleville Shrine Club to Belleville General Hospital, it is accepted by Dr. James Nelles, chief of pediatrics. Presentation was made by Frank Scobel, Shrine crippled children committee chairman (left) and Jack Lazenby, Shrine president.

United Way Campaign Tops 1973 Contributions

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Despite a threatened labor boycott and a tight economic climate, Belleville's United Way campaign today managed to top last year's mark of $118,208.

Gord Mullen, executive director of the United Community Services, said today the fund had reached the $117,200 plateau, a figure which represents 83.5 per cent of the campaign's $140,000 goal.

The United Community Services serves a dual function in the city, providing social planning and co-ordination of 14 "help" agencies and also administrates the annual fundraising campaign.

The most recent contribution to put the campaign over the top mark came from an auction sponsored by the Quinte Homebuilders Association Wednesday night which raised $2,060. A major auction commodity was a Stanley Structural donation of 8,000 cement blocks.

Controversy has surrounded the UCS for the last year as area labor representatives threatened to withdraw support of the campaign until certain agencies in the group stopped "double dipping." The Quinte District Labor Council charged that agencies should not have to first go for the voluntary appeal dollar and then request city tax dollars.

Those boycott was eventually called off a month before the October appeal month.

Mr. Mullen said the preferred net to be operable on how much money is still to come into UCS coffers other than the appeal might reach $118,000 before final budget considerations in January.

While the current return is $23,000 short of the campaign goal, Mr. Mullen interprets this year's proceeds as a vote of confidence.

He conceded that in the early fall there was a sentiment that the campaign would fall flat but that the end result as we now see it shows "the overwhelming majority of Belleville and area citizens believe in the integrity of the UCS and the United Appeal".

The problem which now faces the UCS is re-aligning the budgets of the 14 agencies which depend on appeal support. The budgets which received tentative approval earlier in the fall are based on reaching the $140,000 goal.

"The budget committee will now have to go back over all the budgets and assess the merits of each program in each agency," said the executive director. "Budgets will be modified on a merit basis and not on a flat percentage cut across the board."

Auction Brings $2,060

The Quinte Homebuilders Association raised $2,060 for Belleville's United Way campaign. The fund raising took the form of an auction at the association's Christmas meeting Member brought wrapped gifts and bid blind on a package's contents.

Extra Police Checks During Holiday Season

Christmas is a time for getting together with your family and friends. And in many situations such get-togethers involve having a drink or two at a tavern or at home.

But for those who must drive after drinking Police Chief Doug Crosbie offers some advice.

"We will be checking all vehicles more closely during the time of your "I advise those who have been drinking to take a taxi or walking.

"And if someone has their vehicle parked on a city street while at a party, they can call the police station, and be given the opportunity to have their car on the street overnight without being ticketed," said the Chief.

The Chief said the city department will be busiest the weekend before Christmas. "We find we are busiest at this time and everything starts to die down after Christmas."

For those who still insist on mixing drinking and driving, Chief Crosbie advises that the city's two radar units will be working, weather permitting. And there will be spot checks as well during the Christmas holidays.

If you are one of those picked up by the police for driving after drinking, you face certain loss of your license for a minimum of three months depending on the discretion of the judge.

Also, there is a fine to pay, the maximum being $1,000 found guilty of impaired driving, driving with a blood alcohol count of .08 milligrams per 100 milliliters of blood, or refusing to take a breathalyzer test.

Hospital Has Festive Air

Many Won't Be Home for Christmas

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Little Lorelei Anderson won't be home for Christmas. She's a patient in Belleville General Hospital children's ward.

As such, Lorelei will be among several hundred people — of all ages — for whom Christmas will mean another day in Quinte hospitals.

But, not just an ordinary hospital day.

For hospitals become a focal point of cheery, festive endeavor at Christmas, involving staff, families and the community at large.

Even the patients get involved.

For instance, the children who share the ward with Lorelei at BGH some time ago helped their nurses create the colorful decorations that brighten their floor.

It was one indication that Christmas begins arriving long before Dec. 25 at such centres.

In fact, the youngsters at BGH had their first visit with Santa Claus as early as Nov. 30.

It started the series of program involving community groups now brightening the festive season for BGH patients.

Church choirs, teachers, students and local musicians have successively paraded the wards in the weeks before Christmas, filling hospital corridors with Christmas music.

Entertainment has bounded at ward parties for the patients.

Such is the volume of community participation at Christmas, says nursing director Kerry Marshall.

"With the entertainment we've offered at this time of year, it would be quite a benefit if the community could have it going at other times," she says.

Such activities also mean extra work for the staff, but they readily "enter into the spirit of the thing", says Miss Marshall.

For instance: Gifts of candy or fruit are sometimes dispensed by visiting festive groups. But, in the background, nursing staff must already have tabulated patients' diet restrictions so the distributions can be cheerily dispensed — but with unobtrusive care.

BGH has 435 beds. Miss Marshall estimates about 300 patients will be in the hospital Christmas day.

For the rest, where possible, they will be allowed to spend the day with their families. Getting patients ready, released and re-admitted also means extra work.

For young patients, spending Christmas in hospital usually causes no sentimental side affects, believes the nursing director. With their gift-bearing families in to visit, with all the special activity, they likely don't notice much difference, she says.

For adults it may be more difficult — especially "those who maybe have children at home".

"Although, when you are in hospital families go out of their way to make the day — in such a way it can also become a Christmas to recall," she says.

Belleville Home To Arab Student

By JIM SHELLE
Staff Reporter

With winter winds blowing and snow blanketing city streets, many people are thinking of warmer climates. For Samir Zeine, the thought of warmer climates makes him think of home.

Or to be more specific, Jordan, about 5,900 miles from here. Samir left Jordan two months ago to attend a business administration course at Loyalist Regional College here.

The 19-year-old student said he hopes when he finishes his 18-month course here to return to Jordan to help his father, who runs a large soft drink company in Amman, the capital of Jordan with a population of about 700,000.

Samir said he found many differences in the short time he has been here. One is the higher cost of living while another is the currency here. He said he had trouble changing the currency he brought with him to Canadian currency.

"Another problem I've found is with the metric system which we have in Jordan. I had to get used to the system used here," said Mr. Zeine. Canada is currently undergoing a change to the metric system.

The social situation is also different here, he said. He said that while women in Jordan are more liberated now than they once were, they still can't do many of the things Canadian women take for granted.

Mr. Zeine said he found about the school here in Belleville from a friend living in England. "He said he wanted to attend school here, but wasn't able to and told about it, so I came."

He said he hasn't seen as much of this country as he would like to but added that what he has seen he considers beautiful.

"I've seen Fort Henry and Trenton but not much else. I'd like to see Toronto, Montreal and Niagara Falls while I'm here."

Stolen Car Damaged

A 16-year-old youth, David Gordon McLintock of Farmer Rd., has been charged by city police with automobile theft.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the youth was arrested and charged Wednesday in connection with a Dec. 16 incident in which a car was taken from Motorland Chrysler on N. Front St.

The chief added that the car hit a tree, causing about $200 damage to the vehicle.

Police said he youth was arrested shortly after 5 p.m. Wednesday at his Palmer Rd. residence.

Local Rink Disqualified From Winter Games

In sports there are two ways to be disappointed. You either have the rug pulled out from under you or you have the roof fall in. Both instances may be chalked up to faulty construction.

Such was the case for Belleville's Steve Bennett rink. The foursome — Bennett, skip, Barry Ray, vice Bruce Sniffen, second, and Peter Tummon lead have been building toward the Ontario Winter Games in Thunder Bay for the last three months. Then, on Tuesday a demolition crew moved in and knocked down what the boys had taken so long to build.

"They disqualified us from the Games," said Bennett, "I guess Barry was a few days over age."

The Ontario Sports Foundation, organizing group for the Games, stipulated that all curlers must be under the age of 19 until January 1, 1975. Barry's birthday was December 4 He turned 19.

"It was a question of semantics," said Murray Johnson, Ontario Curling Association convenor for this area. The age limit for competitive curling in Ontario is 19 and under as of January 1, 1975. For the Winter Games it was listed as under 19 as of Jan. uary 1, 1975."

"It's a hell of a thing to have happen right now," said Johnson, "especially after the boys have worked so hard."

Johnson was informed of the discrepancy a couple of weeks ago and attempted to have the disqualification ruling overturned.

"We thought that it might be all right if we just replaced the boy," he said, "but the the rest of the rink would still qualify."

The Ontario Curling Association agreed to go along with the appeal if the Canadian Curling Association and the International Curling Federation also agreed.

The CCA and the ICF, along with a representative of the Federal Government, decided that there was no way around the disqualification of the entire rink.

The implications wouldn't have been restricted to just the Ontario Games," said Johnson, "Them boys were good enough to win the Ontario title and that meant going to the Nationals and possibly even as far as the World Championships. The worst could have gone as far as 1977 and a change in the ruling for one sport could set a precedent for every sport."

"It's just a shame the age illegality wasn't discovered before this," he added.

Bennett's rink won the zone competition, beating out seven other rinks from this area. They then advanced to the regional competition where they routed four other rinks.

The locals had to play a sudden death match against Packisham at the regionals to advance to the Provincial Games. Packisham was named as their replacement for Tu---ee Bay.

Whether the roof fell in or the rug was pulled out it was all de to poor workmanship.

The mark of a champ though, is not how well you accept victory, but how gracious you accept defeat.

A few hours after learning of his rinks disqualification Bennett said, "Oh well. There's always next year."

Sanderson Displays A Little Of Old Form

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Derek Sanderson rolled back the years for New York Ranger fans Wednesday night, but he wasn't overly impressed with his three-goal performance.

The former Boston Bruins star scored all of his goals in the second period as the Rangers— walloped Minnesota North Stars 5-1 in a National Hockey League game.

"I wasn't going to argue," Sanderson said of his first goal. "Heck, the scorer made a nice gesture, how much can you argue?"

The official scorer said the puck went in off Sanderson's right knee after being passed out from the corner by Bill Fairbairn but videotape replays showed the puck went in off the skate of Minnesota defenceman Tom Reid without touching Sanderson.

"I tried to get the scorer to change it, but after the third one, Billy (Fairbairn) said to keep the goal because he got an assist and a point, is a point," said Sanderson.

Wednesday's goals brought Sanderson's December total to seven. He pelted Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago with seven shots in the middle period.

Obtained from the Bruins in the off-season, Sanderson struggled through the early part of the season trying to regain the form that made him a star in the late 1960s. He had only five goals at the end of November.

Jean Ratelle added a pair of goals for the Rangers, who moved two points in front of third-place New York Islanders in the NHL's Patrick Division.

The Islanders were edged 3-2 by Buffalo Sabres in another game Wednesday. In other games, Chicago Black Hawks downed Detroit Red Wings 7-5, Toronto Maple Leafs topped Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, Los Angeles Kings blanked Kansas City Scouts 4-0 and Montreal Canadiens edged California Golden Seals 4-3.

Don Luce scored his 18th and 19th goals of the season for the Sabres, who stopped their longest winless streak of the campaign at three games.

Jerry Korab scored the other Buffalo goal as the Sabres posted a second-period lead over Boston in the NHL's Adams Division.

Cliff Koroll scored the Hawks' winning goal from point-blank range midway in the third period after Detroit overcame a 5-1 deficit to tie the score.

Koroll, Ivan Boldirev and Alain Daigle scored twice each for Chicago. Danny Grant and Earl Anderson each had a pair for Detroit.

Right - winger Lenny McDonald scored twice for the Leafs, who were helped by the return to their lineup of defenceman Borje Salming.

Salming, who missed the last seven games because of a heel injury, was impressive on the blueline and played aggressively, but had difficulty behind his own blueline.

Mike Murphy scored two goals himself and had a hand in three others and Gary Edwards picked up his third shutout in 11 starts for the Kings.

Jacques Lemaire scored the go-ahead and winning goals for the Canadiens, who did all their scoring in the third period after California built a 3-0 lead in the first two periods.

Tonight's schedule has the Rangers at Boston, Toronto at Philadelphia Flyers, Washington Capitals at Los Angeles and Kansas City at Pittsburgh.

Seven Vikings in Pro Bowl

NEW YORK (AP) — Minnesota's Central Division champion Vikings placed seven players, most for any team on the Pro Bowl squad announced Wednesday.

Five of the Vikings selected— running back Chuck Foreman, offensive tackle Ron Yary, defensive end Carl Eller, defensive tackle Alan Page and safety Paul Krause—will be in the NFC starting lineup. The other Minnesota players on the squad are quarterback Fran Tarkenton and wide receiver John Gilliam.

Foreman, Tarkenton in the starting offensive backfield is quarterback Jim Hart of St. Louis Cardinals, running back Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles Rams and wide receivers Charley Taylor of Washington Redskins and Drew Pearson of Dallas Cowboys. The tight end is Philadelphia Eagles' Charles Young.

Besides Yary, the offensive line has Rayfield Wright of Dallas at the other tackle, Green Bay Packers' Gale Gillingham and Tom Mack of Los Angeles Rams at guards and Jim Langer of Miami Dolphins at centre.

On defence, Atlanta's Claude Humphrey and Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles join Page and Eller as the front line. The linebackers will be Ted Hendricks of Green Bay, Philadelphia's Bill Bergey and Chris Hanburger of Washington with Krause, Washington's Ken Houston, Rams' Werbil of St. Louis and Green n's Willie Buchanon in the defensive secondary.

Gas House Goals Come in 12 Packs

Things may be cheaper by the dozen, but the boys at Stanley Structures and Checkwagon Foods got a bit carried away in Gas House Hockey League action Wednesday night.

Stanley trounced Belleville Yardmen 12-3 and Checkwagon whitewashed Canadian Dredge.

The Structuremen got a hat trick each from Don Fuller and Ron Garvin and two goals each from Wayne Storms and Ray Summers. Ross Harrington and Bob Mayhill added one apiece. Frank Wiles and Charlie Reetzbaum drew three assists each.

Pat Mullins and Rob Rivers replied for the Yardmen.

Cliff Jamlech scored four times and added an assist in leading Checkwagon to their victory. John Smith scored three goals. Wayne Brown had two and Terry Casselman had a goal and three assists. Other singles went to Al Walker and Dave Middleton. Bill Bennett had three assists.

Dale Card had the only Dredge marker.

All in Stride For Cook

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's female athlete of the Year for 1974 takes her honor in stride.

Wendy Cook, 20, a triple gold medal winner at the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand last winter, heard of the Canadian Press poll results Tuesday night.

But this morning she was at the pool.

"I still have to train four hours a day," she said.

"I was pretty pleased about being named. It's a great honor."

She's training now for a swimming meet in Montreal in early January and a meet in New Zealand later that month.

Yardmen Earn 4-4 Tie

OSHAWA (Special) — The Belleville Yardmen Minor Midgets played probably their best all-round game of the year Wednesday night to earn a 4-4 tie here with Oshawa.

Belleville quickly jumped into a 2-0 lead on goals by Randy Bell and John Stampopulo.

The home team came roaring back with four unanswered goals to put them in front 4-2.

Late in the second frame Howie Coons narrowed the gap for the Yardmen and Fred Hipkin's lone goal in the third period gave the visitors a well-earned tie.

Glenn Watson of BCI counts two points in this scoring attempt with Moira defender Bob Diamond last on his heels. Watson, besides scoring, came up with a strong defensive game as the BCI seniors rolled over Moira by a 58-37 score.

BCI Takes Trio From Trojans

The Belleville Collegiate Wanderers' senior boys basketball team counted to an easy 58-37 victory over the Moira Trojans in high school play Wednesday at BCI. In junior, BCI handily defeated Moira 51-35 and the midgets outscored their Moira opponents 6-10.

Larry Wilson continued to sparkle for the Red and White, hooping 26 points in the contest, playing only three-quarters of the game.

BCI coach Brian McKenzie was cautiously optimistic before the start of the game. "We should walk all over them."

Walk all over the Trojans they did but BCI was most impressive when they were shooting from outside. The Wanderers shot with amazing accuracy from just about every position on the floor, including a basket from centre court near the end of the first half.

At half-time they held an overpowering 36-13 lead reasoning about the floor scoring at will.

One bright spot on the Trojan attack was Mike Meagher, who counted 12 points in the team's losing effort.

Meagher, combined with Al Jeffery, were the only two players on the Moira team who had a ghost of a chance against the defence of BCI's Rob Thompson and Glenn Watson.

The home teams passing let the Trojans stading still in the second half as it was all Moira could do to keep from being badly embarrassed on the score board.

Both teams appeared content just to run out the clock in the fourth quarter. Moira got scored the Wanderers in the final quarter 18-4.

In the junior game Mitch Mensah of BCI had a good day scoring 13 points in his team's winning effort with Mike Riley counting 12.

Colin MacKay had the top point total for the losing Moira squad with nine points. Scott Gibson and Ken Manning were right behind him with eight points.

In the midget game BCI came up with a good team effort in top Moira. The scoring for the home team was divided quite equally between four players. Mike Wright had the most points dropping 10 points into the Moira net. Chris Millett had eight points, and Jeff Cass and Tony Barrett scored six and seven points respectively.

Ray Cox was the top point getter for Moira with seven points.

Full House Watches Nordiques Dump Jets

Line Shuffle Like Money in the Bank for Phoenix

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A line shuffle at the start of the second period paid big dividends for Phoenix Roadrunners in a World Hockey Association game Wednesday night.

After the Roadrunners emerged from the first period with a 2-1 lead, coach Sandy McCarthy moved Michel Cormier onto a line with Jim Boyd and Don Borgesan.

Cormier responded with three goals and an assist to lead the Roadrunners to a 5-3 victory over Vancouver Blazers.

Borgesan, who also scored the first Phoenix goal, helped Cormier set all three of Cormier's goals. Boyd had two assists.

Phoenix goalie Gary Kurt extended his record to seven wins and a tie in eight starts, stopping 37 Vancouver shots. The win moved Phoenix to within three points of second-place San Diego Mariners in the WHA's Western Division.

Borgesan, a rookie who played with Providence Reds of the American Hockey League last season, had been benched for four games before Wednesday.

Hugh Harris, traded to Vancouver by Phoenix earlier this season, Butch Deadmarsh and Bryan Campbell had the Blazers' goals.

In Wednesday's only other game, Quebec Nordiques topped Winnipeg Jets 8-2. The win moved Quebec to within one point of first-place Toronto Toros in the WHA's Canadian Division, the Toros have played two more games than the Nordiques.

Defenceman Pierre Jarry's combo scored two goals and assisted on a third for the Nordiques, Serge Bernier got his final goal of the season, Rich Jordan and Robert Caldwell were the other Quebec scorers.

An overflow crowd of 12,357 jammed the Le Colisee at The Coliseum, which has a seating capacity of only 10,861.

Tonight's schedule has Vancouver at Houston Aeros, Minnesota Fighting Saints at Indianapolis Racers, Edmonton Oilers at San Diego and Cleveland Crusaders at Michigan.

Another Chester Surprise

LONDON (CP) — Fourth Division Chester continued a surprising run in the English League's Cup soccer competition.

Chester, unbeaten at home this year and well up in the Fourth Division standings, eliminated First Division Newcastle United with a 3-2 victory in a quarter-final replay.

In an earlier round, Chester blanked Leeds United of the First Division 3-0.

A goal by John Jones earned Chester a semi-final berth against Second Division Aston Villa. If Chester wins the two legs of the semi-final, it will be the first time a Fourth Division club has reached a Cup final at Wembley Stadium in London.

In another Cup game, Manchester United of the Second Division beat Middlesbrough 2-0 to gain a semi-final berth against Norwich City.

Middlesbrough replaced Manchester United in the First Division.

McCarron Adds to Record

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Chris McCarron, who sets a world record with each winning ride, ran his one-year total to 232 Wednesday with four victories at Laurel Race Course.

The 19-year-old apprentice won both ends of the daily double, with John The King, $4.40, and Counterclear, $11, combining for a payoff of $21.35. He also took the third season.

Foreman to Meet Bonavena

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foreman is expected to meet Oscar Bonavena of Argentina in the spring in his first fight since losing the world heavyweight championship to Muhammad Ali last Oct. 30 in Africa.

Don King of Video exhibitions, Inc., said he hoped to make such a match for New York.

Alouettes Second to None in Team of Year Voting

By IAN MacLAINE
The Canadian Press

Montreal Alouettes are like old slippers—you wouldn't want to be seen in public with them but they're so comfortable to have around.

The 1974 Grey Cup champions, plagued by dismal fan support in a facility Eddie pulled as a football stadium, may be No. 2 in the hearts of Montreal sports fans but they're No. 1 in the estimation of Canadian sports writers and broadcasters.

Voting in the annual Canadian Press year-end poll, they chose the Als as the team of the year by a wide margin.

The Memorial Cup champion Regina Pats finished second in the voting with Team Canada '74 a close third.

The Als received 32 first-place votes, 77 seconds and seven thirds for 139 points based on a 5-3-1 value.

The Pats, Canadian junior hockey champions, collected 88 points and Team Canada, with a surprisingly strong show against the Soviet national hockey team, collected 46.

The Regina hockey club, which survived a three-team round-robin series against the champions from the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series and the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, added the Canadian title to its Western Canada crown.

The Pats' efforts won them seven first-place votes, 21 seconds and 23 thirds while Team Canada, while winning only one and tying three of its eight-game series with the Russians, picked up nine firsts, seven seconds and eight thirds.

The Als can find some consolation in finishing atop the team-of-the-year poll, even though one game—the Grey Cup championship victory over Edmonton Eskimos—is responsible for putting them there.

They beat out two city rivals for fan support—the baseball Expos, 1973's team of the year who finished fourth this time, and the Canadiens of the National Hockey League who weren't even mentioned in the voting.

The Expos, contender in the National League's East Division race for most of the season before fading in the closing weeks, earned 51 points on the strength of five firsts, 10 seconds and 10 thirds.

Peterborough PCOs, undefeated in two years at Canadian Junior Lacrosse championships, took fifth place in the voting with 21 points, followed by Edmonton with 18.

Also regarded highly by the writers and broadcasters were:

Ottawa Rough Riders, nine; University of Western Ontario Mustangs, eight; and Barrie Flyers and the 1974 Commonwealth Games team, six each.

The Riders finished second to Montreal in the Eastern Football Conference. They were third in the balloting a year ago after winning the Grey Cup.

The Mustangs upset University of Toronto in the national intercollegiate football—final, winning their second College Bowl title in five years.

Barrie notched the Canadian senior hockey championship while the Commonwealth Games team was surprisingly strong at Christchurch, New Zealand, particularly in the home-town events such as wrestling, weightlifting, shooting.

The Als have been poor cousins in Montreal's sport scheme for more than a decade—long before the Expos came—simply because they have been without an adequate stadium.

They've alternated in recent years between the Autostade—far removed from the city core with a fan sightline far reminded from the arena's action—and McGill Stadium, which offers little or no parking facilities.

Sam Berger, who bought the team and a subsequent Canadian Football League championship in 1970, has been millions trying to keep the franchise active and reasonably solvent until 1976 when the Als are scheduled to move, into an 80,000-seat Olympic Stadium, now under construction.

Second Large Triactior in a Row at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The combination of Benji Kai, Guy A. Gratton and Jambo Artie produced a $1,494.30 trifecta in the seventh race Wednesday night at Windsor Raceway.

Another large trifecta payoff occurred in the fourth race when the combination of Darby Marneck, Pana Mendata and Jubilee Penny paid $758.40.

The daily double of J. P. Gratton and Irish Champ paid $18.

The crowd of 3,581 wagered $362,836.

In the afternoon program, drivers Gerald Albra of Glanworth, Ont., and Jack Beelby of Saskatoon scored double victories.

Referee Punched Player?

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — An 18-year-old hockey player and his coach plan to appeal a season's suspension imposed on the player Monday.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA) imposed the suspension on Mark Robertson, a right winger for Hamilton Rockets of the Niagara district juvenile league, for allegedly striking a referee in a Nov. 16 game here against Niagara Falls.

The player and his coach, Eric (Scotty) Hagan of Dunnville, Ont., say the referee in the game struck Robertson in the mouth while he was scrambling and exchanging words with another player.

First Half Tells Bullets Tale

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

K. C. Jones was glad he could rest his regulars during Washington's 113-90 victory over New Orleans since his Bullets have to play their next four National Basketball Association games in five days.

The Bullets, No. 3 defenders in the NBA, shot out New Orleans from the field for almost 12 minutes of the first half Wednesday, building up a lead and coasting home.

"We played very good defense," said coach Jones. "We shot them off in the first half and that was it."

Phil Chenier scored 19 points, Mike Riordan added 18 and Nick Weatherspoon had 15.

In Wednesday's other games, Boston Celtics stopped Philadelphia 76ers 121-99 and Seattle SuperSonics topped Detroit Pistons 102-97.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana Pacers tripped San Antonio Spurs 116-104, Virginia Squires beat Memphis Sounds 113-96, Kentucky Colonels downed the Spirits of St. Louis 130-94 and San Diego Conquistadors toppled Utah Stars 113-99.

John Havlicek and Don Nelson combined for 81 points for the Celtics. Fred Carter had 31 points for the 76ers, who led by 21 points at one time in the third period.

Seattle's Archie Clark sank a layup with two seconds to go, tallying a spirited comeback by the Pistons. Fred Brown had 34 points for the SuperSonics.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Robert C. Brown who passed away December 19, 1970.
Sadly missed and forgotten.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf,
And lovingly treasures each word and tone
Dear husband and Christopher.

BROWN — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law and uncle Bob. Who left this world December 19, 1971.
So many things have happened,
Since you were taken away,
So many things to share with you,
Each and every day.
Every day is sacred to us dear,
Memories of you come our way,
Treasured memories of a dear, kind friend.
Sadly missed by brother-in-law Everett, Vivian, Michael and John Parish.

CLARKE — In loving memory of a dear brother George Leslie Clarke who passed away December 19, 1963.
Just a prayer from those who loved you.
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a thought of sweet remembrance
Because we loved you the world of you.
Sadly missed by Reginald and Lloyd, Ethel, Ernest and family.

OHA Roughness Slows Down

TORONTO (CP) — Players in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series appear to have been fighting and fooling one another less since the OHA instituted tougher penalties Nov. 15.

Figures released Wednesday by Commissioner Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz of the Major Junior series showed fighting penalties dropped to 84 in 84 November games from 118 in 76 September-October games.

A new OHA rule calling for a 10-minute penalty for the aggressor in a fight did not affect the first 30 November games. The figures provided by Schmalz did not differentiate between games before and after Nov. 15.

Only 10 fighting penalties were assessed in the first 29 games in December.

The fighting rule requires the aggressor's team to play shorthanded for the full 10 minutes, even if a penalty is called.

Other Nov. 15 rule changes require a five-minute penalty for players penalized for high-sticking if the stick makes contact with another player above the shoulders, imposes two minutes of shorthanded play on teams whose players draw misconducts and a game misconduct on players drawing three major penalties in a game.

Another rule change calls for automatic ejections and suspensions for both players who begin a second fight while a first is still in progress.

In November, high-sticking penalties were down to 85 from 174, slashing to 46 from 87, cross-checking to 26 from 43, misconducts to 13 from 22 and game misconducts to two from 12.

In the 34 games after the rule changes, an aggressor in a fight was penalized three times and a five-minute high-sticking penalty was called nine times.

The rule changes were implemented in the aftermath of a provincial royal commission conducted by Toronto lawyer Bill McMurtry last August.

Both Ends Lose In American Action

The first and last-place teams in the Southern Division of the American Hockey League took solid drubbings Wednesday night from their division counterparts.

Richmond Robins, in fourth place in the five-team division, routed division-leading Baltimore Clippers 7-1 while Virginia Wings scored three second-period power-play goals en route to a 6-1 win over last-place Syracuse Eagles.

At Syracuse, Pierre Jarry scored two goals to lead the Wings, while Frank Bathe, Brian McCutcheon Bob Kreiger and Rene Drolet got singles.

The loss was the ninth consecutive for Syracuse.

At Richmond, Va., Andre Pelolfy and Randy Wyrozub scored two goals each as the Robins ran up their highest single-game goal total of the season.

Richmond took a 3-0 lead in the first period, outshooting the Clippers 15-4, when Paddock got the first Richmond goal at the 40-second mark. Pelolfy scored on a power play and Larry Goodenough on a breakaway to close out the first-period scoring.

Pelolfy and Larry Fullan scored second-period goals for the Robins before Morris Stefaniw scored the only Baltimore goal on a 30-foot screen shot.

The Baltimore loss left the Clippers in first place with a three-point edge over second-place Virginia.

In games Friday, Virginia travels to Baltimore, Nova Scotia is at New Haven, Springfield talks on Providence and Richmond plays in Rochester.

PARIS (Reuter) — Anatole vans Litvak, a former Leningrad shepherd who became a leading Hollywood film director in a career spanning six decades, died Monday night at the age of 72.

Litvak's string of successes included Sanctuary, Sorry Wrong Number, Mayerling, Anastasia and The Night of the Generals.

He was born in Kiev in 1902 and started work at 14 in an avant-garde theatre in Leningrad.

When the Soviet Union nationalized stage productions, he turned to movies. The first one was Tatiana.

He then worked in England, Germany and France where he made Mayerling in 1936, the film which launched him as an international career. He left for Hollywood in 1937.

His early marriage, in Hollywood star Miriam Hopkins, lasted from 1937 to 1938.

During the Second World War, Litvak, who had taken out United States citizenship, joined the U.S. army and by 1945 had been promoted to colonel after the Normandy landings.

Litvak, who adopted Paris as his permanent home, made his last film in 1970—The Lady in the Car, with Samantha Eggar.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Johnny Cash, whose television variety show went off the air nearly years ago, is trying to line up another regular series. The time, says his agent, Cash wants to play a police detective.

The new series would be non-violent, says agent Marty Klein.

"They're going to start him living on a farm," says Klein. "They're going to show his pet.

TORONTO (CP) — The live and film version of the Happy Hooker on together Monday as actress Lynn Redgrave and Xaviera Hollander-Trilogy she portrays in the movie The Happy Hooker.

Miss Redgrave said at a news conference: "The movie doesn't always follow Xaviera's book to the letter but I'm sure there's nothing in it she hasn't done."

Miss Hollander nodded but also said she is trying to get rid of the Happy Hooker image. She said she is living with a man who wants her to quit her former life.

Miss Hollander wanted to star in the movie but she is not allowed back into the United States. She is appealing in Canadian immigration to stay here.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, December 20

Aries (March 21-April 19) Something confidential regarding a family matter is best kept to yourself. Work it out alone in your own way.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't be hesitant about asking advice from an older, more experienced kind if you are stuck on a project now in progress.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) The payoff is near for something you've earned the hard way. Your reward will be in proportion to past efforts.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) When you speak your mind, those you consider compatible will know you mean business. They are not apt to take liberties.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are in a spot today, go to your most reliable friend with your problem. She'll back you up in best she can.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be prepared to compromise and make concessions with a friend though, down deep, you may feel she's not entitled to them.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are ripe for advance of your ambitions. The only other ingredient needed is singleness of purpose.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are bound and determined to push a plan of yours through. You will, with the aid of some interesting guys.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A matter will be concluded in your favor today. There is some profit attached to the victory, but not too much.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Weigh carefully what is told you by a companion. She has some practical advice. It will work if you follow it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Ways will present themselves to firm up your position materially. What appears a nominal opportunity can be expanded later.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Lady Luck may look upon you with favor today in a situation where she frowns upon others. However, she needs your help, too.

Teams Crave Catfish

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-one major league baseball teams have their lures out for Jim (Catfish) Hunter. Twenty want to sign him and one wants to keep him.

And the teams trying to sign Hunter got the green Wednesday from Alameda County, Calif., Superior Court, at least until Jan. 2.

While one team after another was burning up the telephone lines to Hunter's lawyers in Ahoskie, N.C., Judge Spurgeon Avakian refused to grant Charles O. Finley a temporary restraining order that would have prevented the clubs from reading Hunter offers.

However, Avakian set Jan. 2 for a hearing of the case on its merits.

In refusing to grant the temporary restraining order, Avakian said:

"I don't think realistically any club will sign him with the court action still pending. I also think Hunter would want to wait to get the most he probably could out of any contract. I don't see enough basis to challenge the arbitration in the meantime."

On Monday, a three-man arbitration panel decided that Finley had failed to live up to a contract agreement with Hunter and ruled the star pitcher of the world champion Oakland A's a free agent.

Hunter took his case to arbitration after the World Series, claiming Finley had failed to place $50,000 in a special deferred fund.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has ruled that no team can sign Hunter until midnight Sunday.

However, 13 teams contacted Hunter's lawyers within three hours after the legal bidding war for his pitching services started at 9 a.m., EST, Wednesday.

They were New York Yankees, New York Mets, Kansas City Royals, Philadelphia Phillies, Montreal Expos, Atlanta Braves, Cleveland Indians, California Angels, Cincinnati Reds, Detroit Tigers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox.

Eight more clubs got into the act Wednesday afternoon but it was not disclosed which ones.

Indians Sign Gaylord

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pitcher Gaylord Perry, former American League Cy Young award winner, signed a two-year contract Wednesday with Cleveland Indians.

Terms of the pact were not announced but it was believed that it included a substantial salary increase.

The 36-year-old right-hander said last season that he would not sign unless he got $1 more than team-mate Frank Robinson who later was named manager of the Indians. However, in announcing Tuesday at his home in Williamston, N.C., that he had agreed to terms with the Tribe, Perry said: "This is a contract I can live with."

Perry won 15 games in a row in 1974 after losing the season opener.

Isaiah Said True Worship Consists of Sharing Bread

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The temple bells rang. The believers assembled. The choirs gave forth their hymns and the musicians their melodies. Incense floated through the magnificent sanctuary. The neat, respectable people had fasted, repented, cleansed and prostrated themselves and they gathered in prayer and adoration. But it didn't please the Lord.

"Why?" the fervent congregation asked. "Why have we fasted and Thou seest it not? Why have we humbled ourselves and Thou takest no knowledge of it?"

Back came the answer, buried by the great prophet Isaiah:

"Behold, in the day of your fast you seek your own pleasure and oppress all your workers. . . . Fasting like yours will not make your voice heard on high."

Upholding God's purposes, the prophet went on, is not in bowing and ritual but in breaking the yokes of injustice, sheltering the shelterless and afflicted and feeding the poor.

He said true worship is "to share your bread with the hungry and bring the homeless poor into your house."

In the scriptural perspective, religion is real and inward piety but is explicitly directed outward renewing society, righting wrongs and relieving poverty. It expressly involves economic and political responsibility for the lowliest and neediest.

In the contemporary world of unbalanced economic distribution, with a third of the human race weakened by malnutrition, with 300 million of its children being maimed for life by lack of food, with the spectre of devastating starvation hanging over the poorer countries while neighboring states bulge with affluence, the economic aspects of faith take on stark dimensions.

Jesus had stated his destiny on the side of the poor, the captives, the sick and abused. But the reputable, substantial citizenry had thrown Him out. His ethnet was too drastic, too challenging to the status quo.

The modern scope of that rejection echoes in the increasingly yawning chasms between the prosperous countries and the poor of central Africa, Latin America and southern Asia.

The richer countries make up only a fifth of the world's people but control four-fifths of its wealth. They take a third of their industrial raw materials from the poor lands, whose underfed workers usually die before 40, while their children either perish in infancy or grow up scarred by malnutrition.

The great scandal of the world today is that the richer nations impose structures of dependency on poorer nations, Panama's Roman Catholic Archbishop Marcos McGrath told a conference on Capitol Hill.

Yet the present economic-technological imbalances are heavily entrenched, predicated on profit, locked in patterns of production, processing and purchasing power which the rich controls largely dominate. Those factors impinge directly on personal lives in a world that has become increasingly an interwoven, interdependent community.

"If one begins with the Bible, it becomes immediately clear that poverty is not simply a question of economics but one of morality," says Rev. Rogers Darwin Blake, retired federal secretary of the World Council of Churches and now head of its educational agency, Bread for the World.

More than 500 verses of the New Testament, one of 10 verses, concerns wealth and poverty. Jesus talks more about this issue than almost any other, more than about heaven, hell, sexual immorality or violence.

An apostle, in James 5, upbraids the congregation that farms on the rich and neglects the poor or that merely preaches to the poor and fails to act to provide their bodily needs.

The same insistence on helping the poor runs through the Old Testament. The demand is not just for compassion but for tangible action—in food, clothing, shelter, financial assistance.

"He who closes his ear to the cry of the poor will himself cry out and not be heard," declares Proverbs 21:13.

It was through the Exodus, the revolutionary deliverance of a poor, oppressed people from slavery in Egypt, that Judaism first glimpsed the liberating purpose of a universal God.

The laws of faith, set down in Leviticus 25, provided for release of all the poor from debts and bondage every 50th year in a jubilee festival. The prophet Amos graphically portrayed God's disapproval of mere displays of religiosity without accompanying works to obtain justice, saying:

"Then sore the Lord . . . 'I hate, I despise your feasts, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies. Even though you offer Me your burnt offerings and cereal offerings, I will not accept them, and the peace offerings of your fatted beasts, I will not look upon them.

"Take away from Me the noise of your songs; to the melody of your harps I will not listen. But let justice roll down like waters and right-eousness like an everflowing stream.' "

Brainpower Pours into Israel As Soviet Scientists Emigrate

REHOVOT, Israel (AP) — Three years ago Dr. Zev Zaretzki was one of Moscow's leading chemists, secretly teaching Hebrew at an underground Jewish school. Now he is building a mass spectrometry centre at Israel's Weizmann Institute of Science.

Three years ago Dr. Lev Diamant was doing research in wave physics in Siberia. Now he is helping Israel train one of the world's few teams to explore the mysteries of plasma physics.

The Weizmann Institute scientists are part of the brainpower that has poured into Israel since Jews began a mass departure from the Soviet Union in 1971. So many Soviet engineers, scientists, doctors and academics have settled in Israel that the country is having trouble absorbing them all.

Here, under the new American-Soviet trade bill, Jews may start pouring out of Russia at an even greater rate and Israel is preparing to take most of them.

The ministry of immigrant absorption, labor and housing officials and the Jewish Agency are planning crash programs to find the newcomers places to live, places to learn Hebrew and places to work.

Soviet immigrants like Zaretzki and Diamant as well as Israeli officials say the biggest problem is creating work for thousands of academic professionals. About 45 of every 100 Russian reach-ins Israel carry diplomas and many are overqualified for the labor market, which needs technicians and production workers.

"There aren't enough places for scientists," said Diamant. His system of finding jobs is very inefficient, when the immigration gets bigger, this will be a terrible problem."

The 34-year-old physicist told of a group of Russian friends who formed a pioneer settlement two years ago on the Golan Heights, near the Syrian war front, to work on applied science projects. However, as the project was materializing, the group is splitting up.

"It's very simple to get money in Israel to make a kibutz for growing tomatoes but very difficult for applied science," said Diamant.

"Absorbing workers and technicians is no problem but it is difficult to find employment in the highly skilled sector" said Zaretzki. "Still, I don't know of any scientists who are driving taxis or anything like that."

Zaretzki told mastering Hebrew is to pay cost of the problem for newcomers to fit into Israel life.

He spoke it fluently before he arrived, and within a few months of quitting the Soviet Academy of Sciences, he was installed at the Weizmann Institute.

In four years, more than 80,000 Soviet Jews have applied to Israel. With emigration eased by pressure from Washington, the flow may almost double.

Russian musicians have joined the Israeli Philharmonic and are helping revive a symphony orchestra in the desert city of Beersheba. The conductor of the Israel Broadcasting Orchestra is Yuri Aharonovitch, former director of the U.S.S.R. Radio and Television Symphony in Moscow.

Valery and Galina Panov are the best-known Soviet ballet dancers to come to Israel but not the only ones. Among others is Emma Akerovitch, a Bolshoi graduate and veteran teacher who had been training Israeli ballerinas since 1972.

The immigrant airplanes carry many blue-collar settlers but among them are doctors, lawyers and teachers. One veteran animal trainer from Moscow hopes to create an Israeli circus, with bears riding bicycles.

Diamant said Soviet scientists can improve the efficiency of Israeli industry.

"It is underdeveloped and it does not yet know how to use the experience of people from industrial countries."

Despite the drawbacks, Zaretzki said he believes few qualified Jews who quit the Soviet Union will go to countries other than Israel.

"Some will leave after they get here, of course, but some who went to places like the United States and Canada are already writing letters saying they want to come to Israel. Jews going to the United States are immigrants and they can only ask for help—here they can demand it.

"Things in Israel may be bad or good, but there is a program to take us in. There is no such program in America.

"Here, we are immediately full citizens, with equal rights. That makes a big difference.

CP News Roundup

Farm Union Would Oust Macdonald

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture called Wednesday for the removal of federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald "if we can again have confidence" in the National Energy Board.

Gordon Hill, president of the federation, told a farmers conference at Queen's Park that farmers are "damn mad" about an announcement that the Toronto-to-Montreal oil pipeline will be built.

He said that the recent announcement castles within days of the postponement of hearings on the matter before the board.

"If cabinet supports the energy board and believes in its functions, then the prime minister has no alternative, he must remove Macdonald from office," said Mr. Hill.

The farmers are opposed to the pipeline route because they say it cuts through prime farmland. They favor a Northern Ontario route.

Lighter Load

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to lessen the workload of the Supreme Court of Canada was approved by the Commons legal affairs committee Wednesday along with three housekeeping bills.

All four bills previously received Senate approval and now require only third reading in the Commons and royal assent to become law.

8 Get Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — At least eight Liberal candidates defeated in the July 8 election have been given government jobs, the Commons learned Wednesday.

The information was filed by the government in response to a question from Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore).

Too Many MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Gratien O'Leary (PC—Ontario) Wednesday opposed a bill to increase the size of the Commons, saying the government already is too big and bureaucratic.

"We have too many MPs, too many senators, too many laws," he told the Senate.

Blames Knowles

OTTAWA (CP) — Government Leader Mitchell Sharp blames Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) for Tuesday's chaotic adjournment of the Commons, although the move was initiated by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming).

Canal Open

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The 27-mile long Welland Canal which connects Lakes Erie and Ontario will remain open until Jan. 17 in the longest extension of the season on record, the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority has announced.

11 MDs Seek Posts At BGH

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An increasing number of doctors want to practice in Belleville.

But such medical attention may have some side effects.

Such is the interest from physicians, Belleville General Hospital's board of governors now is wondering just how many doctors a community hospital needs on its medical staff.

Popularity also poses a problem: More physicians, particularly specialists, mean heightened demand for such services from the community. This in turn updates pressure on hospital facilities.

"For some time we've been aware of an increasing number of applications for appointment to the (BGH) medical staff," the report of hospital medical director Dr. R. M. Anderson told the board Thursday.

BGH currently has 79 district doctors with active staff accreditation, plus associate status.

The medical director reported three new physicians have been taken on staff. There now are applications from 11 more.

"The thing that intrigues me," said Dr. Anderson in an aside, "is the increasing popularity of this hospital with the physicians who want to settle in this community."

"Not only the popularity of the hospital, but the city and county," added Ald. Ben Corke, the board's finance chairman.

Board member Enos David asked if there was a number for the doctors who should be associated with community hospitals the size of BGH.

Dr. Anderson said the College of Physicians and Surgeons has been asked to study the issue but had not produced an answer to this "very sticky problem".

The 11 MDs the Hospital Association was now reviewing the situation said he had requested the organization for guidelines, said the medical director.

Most significant factor in volved, said Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, was the ratio of specialists involved.

And Dr. Anderson restated a caution he had given the board earlier in the year — how such increases might reflect on hospital operating costs.

The availability of more specialists in the community eventually increases the demand on BGH's services as more patients are referred to hospital facilities, he explained later.

He cited one example to the board: Among the 11 physicians now applying to staff accreditation is an internal medicine physician, specializing in endocrinology and metabolism.

The fact Belleville with a community hospital was only 59 miles from Kingston — a major health care delivery centre — "is something we should look at," said Dr. Anderson. "I don't have the answer."

Lights of Christmas

Senior citizens in the city had a chance to see the Christmas lights of Belleville as the Kinsmen Club chartered four buses to take them around. Over 100 senior citizens went on the two-hour bus trip which included a stop at Don Foster's gally decorated home on Emily St. Taking a closer look at one of the displays there are Kinsmen president Bob Thomas and his two-year-old son, Andy.

Probe Says Organized Crime In Construction Now Foiled

TORONTO (CP) — Organized crime moved in on part of the Ontario construction industry a few years ago but apparently has been thwarted, a royal commission on lawbreaking in the booming trade says

County Court Judge Harry Waisberg, citing links between a "sinister array of characters" who broke into the industry and figures with alleged Mafia associations, said Thursday he believes there was "an association of persons for the purpose of conducting illegal activities" in the 1966-72 period.

But he added in his 344-page findings tabled in the legislature that it appears concurrent commission and police investigations have "succeeded in blocking these activities" in the sectors covered by the inquiry.

Tabling the report, Justice Secretary Robert Welch said he expects more criminal charges to be laid soon in addition to the 30-odd persons already charged. Seventeen employees or former employees of the government's Ontario Housing Corp. have been accused of taking illicit gifts.

Two men have also been convicted of perjury in testimony during the seven months of commission hearings in Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa. They are awaiting sentence.

Judge Waisberg's inquiry focused largely on the lathing, plastering and concrete-forming segments of the industry, in which contractors and the labor forces are heavily Italian.

His report while not stating directly that the Mafia was involved, quoted heavily from police testimony that men brought into the industry in 1971 and 1972 had associations at least on the fringes of the crime syndicate.

Judge Waisberg recalled that about eight union agents had been involved in acts ranging from improper to illegal.

Employers also had engaged in miscellaneous abuses including the use of "shell corporations" to beat down workers' wages and confuse them as well as competitors and the public.

Commission Suggestions

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the report of the royal commission on crime in the Ontario construction industry, tabled in the legislature Thursday.

—Arms and explosives control in the province should be tightened to avoid repetition of the bombings and shootings of the period.

—Union financial practices and union-management relations in the investigated sectors of the building trade should be overhauled.

—A study should be made of the feasibility of licensing contractors to reduce "abuses" by them.

— Unless hiring hall practices should be subject to government inspection, though remaining under union control.

—A system should be developed for efficient handling of union jurisdictional disputes.

Rockefeller Is Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller has been reaffirmed and inaugurated as the 41st U.S. vice-president, completing a turnover of vice-dal in the country's two highest offices.

Civil Servants Reduce Demands

TORONTO (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) lowered wage demands Thursday for the second time in negotiations with the provincial government.

CSAO negotiator Chris Trower told a news conference the union now has proposed a contract agreement with the Ontario government that would give the 39,000 members involved increases of between 21 and 28 per cent over a year.

"It would have to be 23 per cent plus," he told reporters. "We have agreed to drop all cost-of-living clauses."

The CSAO first proposed a 61.5-per-cent wage increase in a one-year agreement. Later amended it to 41 per cent for the same period.

Eric Winkler, chairman of the provincial management board of cabinet, said in an interview Thursday: "We are now getting so close it would be ludicrous to have a strike Jan 1."

Christmas Present Two Years Late

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Raymond Piloo got his annual Christmas present from his brother Thursday — two years late.

Mr. Piloo, 50, a retired air force sergeant, now lives at RR1, Trenton. He was sent the parcel by his brother Real, living in Montreal, in October of 1972. At the time Mr. Piloo was stationed at Canadian Forces Base Baldy Hughes, B.C.

In May last year, he was transferred to Trenton, where he retired in September.

By that time the parcel — he believes it was mailed to a post office — was finally on the move.

It arrived at his home in "first-class condition", he says. The only problem: It contained 1973 calendars.

Minneapolis Holdup Ends Quietly
40 Hostages Held Four Hours

RICHFIELD, Minn. (AP) — Forty hostages were released from a suburban Minneapolis supermarket today after being held for six hours by armed robbers who had threatened to "blow some of them away"

The final 14 hostages were freed and the last of the gunmen gave themselves up to police about six hours after the holdup began.

Police said none of the hostages appeared to be injured. However, one gunman received a minor gunshot wound and another was shot by glass.

An hour before the final surrender, one gunman inside the supermarket surrendered and an initial group of hostages were released.

Police said the robbers, wearing ski masks and brandishing guns, entered the suburban Minneapolis supermarket about 7:46 p.m. Thursday.

They were leaving the store when policeman Duane Iverson arrived in an unmarked patrol car. One was taken into custody. The other three dashed back into the supermarket and took the hostages.

When Richfield detective James Wright arrived at the supermarket he was confronted by a man holding a pistol to the head of a girl hostage about 12 or 13 years old.

Wright said he and other officers backed off, the remaining gunmen went back into the store and later let the girl go back to her mother.

Board Makes Forecast
Higher Prices For Food Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — Grocery costs will jump another 16 per cent next year and will keep on climbing — good crops or not — unless spending and wage demands are reduced, the food prices review board predicted Thursday.

The board said there is "no basis for optimism" that the 1975 increases in food prices will be less than this year, when costs rose roughly 16 per cent. The 1973 increase was about the same.

In its final 1974 quarterly report, the board said more than 40 per cent of retail food costs are backed on after products leave farmst. Hence, prices will not stabilize until all serious moderate spending and income demands.

Although over-all 1974 price increases were about the same as in 1973, the board said different commodities led the climb. Last year, key protein foods such as meat, poultry and eggs rose most rapidly, increasing about 36 per cent in price.

This year, products which increased included milk and "many not-so-crucial products, from the point of view of nutrition at least, such as soft drinks, chocolate bars and sweet baked goods".

As a result, consumers could keep the cost of eating from rising "as fast as it might otherwise" by avoiding non-essential food products.

Although the cost of food has jumped at twice the rate of other commodities, the board said Canadians now are eating more, rather than less.

In its September quarterly report, the board said prospects for some relief from rising prices had been severely set back by a drop in North American grain production. The domestic wheat crop, for instance, yielded only 322.5 million bushels this year, down 14 per cent from 1973.

Thursday, the board said new information about production declines "has made the picture look even worse . . .

"The present capacity of major food-exporting nations, such as Canada and the United States, to assist countries currently afflicted by maladjustion and even starvation has been greatly reduced."

Soviet-made Missile Hit Canadian Plane

OTTAWA (CP) — Separate reports by the United Nations and the defence department conclude that a Canadian Forces Buffalo aircraft was shot down last August by two or three surface-to-air missiles, probably fired within Syrian territory.

The department report, tabled Thursday in the Commons by Defence Minister James Richardson, said a pressure switch cover "identified as belonging to a Soviet-made surface-to-air missile" was found at the crash site, near the Syrian village of Ad Dimas.

Pull-tab Drink Cans Face Ban

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister William Newman tabled in the legislature Thursday a three-volume report of a study group on solid waste and committed the government to banning flip-top tabs on metal beverage containers.

Mr. Newman said the 1,228-page report contains some recommendations already implemented for milk packaging. He said the government is prepared to act on others "to solve the solid waste and litter problem caused by soft drink containers."

Detachable flip-top openers "will be phased out over the next 12 months," he said, "yiable alternatives will be available in the near future."

Council Opposes Riding Shuffle

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough County councillors plan to fight a proposal to divide the county into seven provincial riding boundaries.

Council voted on a protest telegram Thursday to Premier William Davis and planned to send a delegation to Toronto, although John Turner, local member of the provincial legislature, said the written submission will be accepted.

Reeve Jack Cavanagh telephoned Mr. Turner during Thursday's meeting and reported that the Progressive Conservative MPP supported the protest with counsel that the county should not be split.

Mr. Turner also said the new boundary proposals would be passed without debate unless Conservative members force one.

Emilsmere Reeve Bob Young urged council to "dig in our heels and fight."

Reeve Peter Pearson of Galway and Cavendish also recalled the move to create two ridings — the "first step to break up Peterborough County."

"They're coming in by the back door," he said.

The proposal by the Ontario Electoral Boundaries Commission recommends the present riding of Peterborough be altered to create two ridings — Peterborough and Hastings-Peterborough.

The second riding would be primarily Hastings County including the south part of Peterborough County.

110 Workers Affected

Domtar to Shut Down For Thirteen Days

TRENTON — Domtar Packaging Ltd. will shut down its Marmora St. plant here and lay off its 110 shop workers for 13 days starting Dec. 24, plant manager Frank McKenzie said Thursday.

The manager said the shutdown follows closing of plants by Domtar's major customers in Ontario.

"Due to market conditions, many of our customers have closed between Dec. 20 to Jan. 6," he said. "We have to follow our customers' shutdowns."

He added that any shipments from Domtar would be met by the closed doors of his customers' plants.

The 13-day shutdown over the Christmas and New Year's holidays is the longest at the plant in five years. Shop workers will close the plant down at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 24, and not return till 8 a.m. Monday, Jan. 6.

Normally, there are complete shutdowns for only 40 hours during each of the two holiday periods.

About 30 office employees will remain on the job, said the manager. He estimated about 50 shop workers will be involved with general maintenance and clean-up operations at the plant.

The move is geared to provide work for employees who want to work.

Inventories of the mill's product — a corrugating medium paper used in the manufacture of cardboard boxes — is high.

The plant could not keep operating, "our warehouses are full," he said.

Recognizing that the demand for paper products across Canada has fallen in recent months, Mr. McKenzie said the packaging division of Domtar in Trenton has experienced a great loss of orders.

"Our business has remained at high levels all along," he said.

The division ships most of its paper products to 15 plants in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia to manufacturers in Alberta, Quebec and New Brunswick.

Bureau Optimistic For Federal Funds

TRENTON — Citizens Bureau board of directors chairman Allen Baldwin remains optimistic money will be forthcoming from the federal government to keep the group's head above water.

Mr. Baldwin said Thursday he received word from Ottawa earlier that day that the secretary of state department has recommended that the bureau receive funding from the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs.

He said the often controversial consumer advocate group will be contacting the ministry this week.

The possibility of a grant has not been confirmed, he said, but "it looks good".

"I believe, they will take a serious look at us."

The expectation is that the ministry will have an assessment of the bureau's work completed by January.

Earlier this week the chairman said that the secretary of state department indicated it will have some money for the bureau in April.

In an effort to get operating funds until the time the ministry completes its assessment, the bureau will ask the United Community Services in Belleville for money.

The Citizens Bureau was taken under the UCS funding umbrella this year. It is one of 14 members of the United Way, the UCS fund raising vehicle, the bureau was expecting $2,000.

Mr. Baldwin said the bureau will ask the UCS to advance funds that it would normally have obtained in January. This month's rent for Dundas St. West offices and telephone bill must be paid.

Since a Local Initiative Program (LIP) grant ran out in mid-summer, bureau staff have been operating from their office on a few dollars and voluntary labor.

Last Business

Trenton Public Utilities Commission manager Douglas Manlow (left) and commissioner James Macdonald go over accounts at the PUC's final meeting of 1974. One of the shortest meetings on record — five minutes — ends the current term of the PUC in January. Mr. Macdonald will be sworn in as commission chairman and newly-elected member, Barry Box, will join discussion around the table.

Mobile Homes Split Murray Councillors

WOOLER — Mobile homes should be restricted to trailer parks, says Murray Township councillor William Ellis, and he wants a polled vote taken on a bylaw to prevent them from being allowed in subdivisions or any other place even farms.

At a meeting this week, council was discussing an application for a $14,500 trailer to be put on blocks out in the countryside.

Deputy-reeve James Quinn said "There won't be a subdivision there."

Mr. Ellis said, "That is not the point. Somebody wanted to put one in Barry Heights. It would have been a hell of a mess." He added that Sydney Township allows trailers in parks only.

Clerk Ken Rose told council there should not be discrimination.

"Let's face it — some people like to live in mobile homes. But, nine out of 10 people would offer less money for a home with a mobile dwelling beside it. The majority of people don't like mobile homes," he said.

Take 2

Mr. Quinn said he would not object if his neighbor put a mobile home on his farm. Reeve Lafferty, now going along with the discussion, said "We have to look at the whole township."

The clerk, gridding council, said, "You have to realize you are not dealing with isolated cases. If you did a random poll, people would say that they wouldn't want one within 40 miles of their home. That is the way the municipality should be governed."

Councillor Ellis said he is not against the application before council, as long as it was back among the trees. "That is OK as long as he does what he says he is going to do," Mr. Lafferty pointed out.

"I'm going to ask for a polled vote," Councillor Ellis stated. "And if anybody complains I can show them how members of council voted. "A bylaw might be introduced early in the next year.

Lodge Members Honored

PICTON — Ten members of the Bay of Quinte Lodge No. 143, IOOF recently received 25-year jewels during the organization's annual Christmas party.

Recipients were Dwight Reynolds, Robert J. Nelson, David Rose, Donald McGinnis, Ewart Tuckey, William Winter, William Bebbo, Russell Howell, Duncan D'Esterre and Clayton Scott.

Among lodge officials participating in the presentations were Noble Grand of Bay of Quinte Lodge, Robert Pye, District Deputy Grand Master Harry Way, District 47, IOOF and District Deputy-Grand Patriarch, Harley Joyce (Encampment IOOF) District 37.

House Erected Without Permit

WOOLER — A house erected on Stockdale Rd. without a Murray Township building permit being issued will be allowed to stand, municipal council decided this week.

Robert Mitchell appeared before council, told them he had paid taxes on his house, and wanted something for his $19 . . . either a building permit, or a letter stating why he couldn't have one. He originally applied for a permit last May, but went ahead and built his house without getting the proper authorization.

Angus Quinn said the issues building permits, told council that Mr. Mitchell was aware that he could not build without a permit, but told him he was going to build anyway. Deputy-reeve James Quinn said that Mr. Mitchell was not told he couldn't build without a permit, but Reeve Harry Lafferty said the bylaw does not allow building without a permit.

Mr. Quinn wanted to know what Mr. Mitchel could be charged with. Clerk Ken Rose said it was up to council if it wanted to enforce the bylaw.

Councillor Ellis said it is the applicant's duty to get a permit, and if council doesn't issue one in a reasonable time, it is up to the prospective builder to come in and find out why.

PICTON — Picton's Globe Hotel has been purchased by an Ottawa man, George Clermannis, who plans to expand and improve this Main St. landmark.

He says renovation of the hotel will be a long-term project.

Problems Of Farmers

Farmers have to contend with a lot of things, what with the increasingly technical nature of the industry, as well as the high cost of equipment aggravated by inflation, not to mention shortages of fertilizer, of farm help and so on.

A problem of the moment for livestock producers for instance is that of feed. It was raised at the recent Federation of Agriculture conference in Hamilton and is the subject of a report in the current issue of Farm and Country. More information on what good this report is likely to do is awaited by farmers. A Norfolk County speaker, Mary Field, spoke of severe financial hardship because of poor feed in the operation she and her husband run in that area. She spoke of feathers being used as a protein content but questioned its use when the animals couldn't digest it.

Or consider the experience of Napanee egg producer Eric Kaiser who is well known in this area. He asserted there had been a vitamin deficiency in one of his started pullet rations. A substitute for the usual soybeans had been used without his knowledge.

Mr. Kaiser laid it on the line when he said: "A farmer with a confinement operation must know each nutrient in the feed, however obscure or exotic."

Delegates ended up by formally requesting basic information about content on the products they use, rather in the same manner as the food packages we buy in the stores. They want to know about the amount of protein, grains used and in what proportion, and the total digestible and nutrients available to the animal.

It makes sense too. If the animals are off their feed, and it is because of manufacturers, or the scientific people who dream up these things, varying the contents, it makes for unhappy producers and equally unhappy livestock. And all to the ultimate detriment of the consumer public.

Glimpse or Reality

The state of Oregon was a pioneer in energy conservation. They were turning down the heat and dimming the lights before even former President Nixon was urging the nation to get on with it.

Incidentally, the word from the United States is that voluntary curbs that are now in force are not working so well, and usage is increasing.

But back to Oregon, a high school in the Portland suburb of Parkrose has come up with a fine program of social studies. They are pairing off the boys and girls in "trial marriages."

The youngsters then get down to discussion of the practical side of marriage; from budgets to job hunting to birth control, pregnancy and child rearing.

The scheme is proving a real eye-opener; some who had been considering marriage on leaving school have decided to wait, and just as one of three marriages in the U.S. breaks up, none of the pairs are finding the 12 weeks together is quite enough, and they break up too. One pair who do plan to marry say the course has been a help to them.

What better way for the young people to find out something of the realities of marriage than that they should undergo a course such as this. Does it encourage premarital relations? There is no suggestion of this. Cliff Allen, the former football coach whose ideal it was, married early himself. It is an interesting experiment.

Caribbean Interlude

French president Valery Giscard d'Estaing is carrying on (if on a less austere basis) the Gaullist tradition of placing national pride before everything else.

Thus the talks between Giscard and President Pompidou held, not in the U.S., or in France itself, but in a sort of halfway location that happens to be French territory — the Caribbean island of Martinique.

It was rather in the manner of Mr. Ford's recent talks with President Echeverria of Mexico, held on the Mexican side of the border in Texas.

At least Mr. Ford seems to enjoy travelling, and if he has been obliged to give a nod toward the national sensibilities of others, what's better than that it makes for a jaunt to exotic places.

The Martinique talks seem to have produced a fair measure of accord too, something which has been sadly lacking of late in Franco-U.S. relations.

Cuban Missile Crisis

Drama Of October 1962 Comes To Life On Television

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Channel 11 in Hamilton which often secures rights for first world showing of new television programs, presented an excellent drama - documentary which it called The Missiles of October.

This was a recounting, during three hours of gripping television, of what took place in the White House, (based on actual events and documents) and in the Kremlin as the U.S. and U.S.S.R. came close to nuclear war in the Cuban missile crisis of late October, 1962.

The kind of TV drama means the producers must find actors who not only look like great characters of recent history, but who can talk like them. The appearances of unknown actor William Devane as the late president John Kennedy was uncanny. Kennedy's voice, hair style, gestures and sense of humor were all there again on TV.

Little for the actors who played the late Robert Kennedy (then the U.S. attorney general) Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's beefy and devoted press secretary, former and late secretary of state Dean Acheson and senior military leaders. Khrushchev was played by American actor Howard da Silva with appropriate rolling of his face and jowls.

I cannot assume that all or nearly all of Khrushchev's dialogue with the soviet council of ministers in the TV drama was based largely on the script writer's imagination, but certainly on actual words with the two conflicting letters from Chairman K to Kennedy which confused the late president and his cabinet at a very critical point during the Cuban missile crisis.

And even many in the foreign press corps in Washington past and present, have long forgotten that former newsman John Scali, now United States ambassador to the UN and a diplomat, was meeting openly in Washington restaurants with a senior Soviet embassy official to carry proposals from Chairman K, direct to president Kennedy which could not be sent in him any other way.

The Cuban missile crisis which came to a head in October, 1962, moved us closer to a third world war than any other event except the June, 1950, outbreak of war in Korea.

The daily, U-2 aircraft reconnaissance flights of Cuba had already recorded on film the construction of Soviet medium-range nuclear missile bases in Cuba.

By the time the crisis broke, the same high-flying spy aircraft, (one of which was shot down by a Cuban missile at the height of the affair), photographed the initial stages of building launching pads and missile storage sheds.

President Kennedy settled for a blockade of Cuba and boarding of Russian merchant ships which would, and did, stop them bound for Cuba with missiles and knocked-down jet aircraft parts. But he was also very amiable to invade, to the point he had ordered all Caribbean-area forces to the Miami area, in order to be alerted for a quick return to Cuba with the 20 000 marines mobilized in Florida to go.

The Russians on their side had long-range, ocean-going ships lacking up their purchased ships and a number of MiG jet fighters ready to attack any U.S. landing of Cuba, with keen memories of the disastrous Bay of Pigs, a little more than a year earlier.

But it all took place again in this first-class television drama which will be seen again in Canada. We should be reminded that John Kennedy who wanted to be a great liberal president, shook brightest when he rattled America's nuclear sword at the Kremlin and won.

Bank Chief

Donald Fleming Still Maintains Tough Schedule In The Bahamas

by RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA- Remember Donald Methuen Fleming, from 1957 to 1962 the Minister of Finance in former Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government?

In Diet's last year of power, Donald Fleming was sideways in the cabinet as Justice Minister.

Then he retired from federal politics, declining to contest the 1963 election in which Mitchell Sharp took over his old Toronto riding of Eglinton for the Liberals in a one-sided race with a unknown Conservative candidate.

Mitchell Sharp had tried unsuccessfully in a couple of previous elections to win Eglinton. But Donald Fleming was just too solid, simply too successful as a Finance Minister, and so Mitchell Sharp had to wait until he stepped aside and an easy Conservative campaign mark came along.

Donald Fleming in his days as Finance Minister even accomplished the now apparently impossible — balanced the budget — and ran such a tight, fiscally financial ship that his cabinet colleagues including his boss, Dief the Chief, had to wait until he was out of town before they could pry an extra dime out of the Treasury.

They were great days for the taxpayer — rates were low at least in comparison to current levels — and Donald Fleming kept federal spending under tight control with a prudency the Liberals routinely charged usually bordered on austerity.

Donald Fleming made his political mark here with a flawless record of hard work — "forty 17 hours a day," he once told the Commons — clean living and a passion for meticulous accounting of everything he accountable.

He is still the same - unchanged in everything but his job — in retirement.

And what a retirement!

Chairman for the Bank of Nova Scotia in the Bahamas and Caymana Islands, general manager of all its operations, including the trust company, in the western Caribbean.

Jets on business between Toronto and his office in Nassau, holidays with his children and grandchildren here in Ontario, or Florida, or Paris and Mrs. Fleming in their fabulous home on Cable Beach.

He was chatting the other day with people in Toronto, and it was the same Donald Fleming, now a 65-year-old grandfather, as the Donald Fleming Parliament Hill used to know as the dedicated and dynamic 53-year-old Finance Minister.

Yes, he is still working hard, "12 hours a day", he records. Like three

Still keeping those records, too — of just about everything recorded. Sing in the church choir every Sunday, swim twice a day, once first thing in the morning, again late in the afternoon, and usually three times daily on weekends.

The swimming added up, he calculated, to precisely 803 dips last year (there were a few missed on those Toronto trips).

He recalled that he started his new career as a senior banking executive at 62, and says there has yet to be a day when he doesn't feel good about it.

It would be a little difficult to feel bad about it, for viewed from the cold and snows of Parliament Hill, Donald Fleming is living and working on an island paradise — at least in the climatic and horticultural sense, white talcum beaches, emerald waters, hibiscus and bougainvillea and wavy palms — where other people pay high prices to bask in the sun and sand.

He has an office you wouldn't believe.

The whole top floor of a harbourside highrise, serviced by his own private elevator, and distinguished by such luxury appointments as gold-plated taps, and wash basins and toilets fashioned of Spode and Royal Crown Derby.

His air-conditioned home sprawls in luxury across a compound contained by a pink wall over which flowering vines twine in multi-hued splendor, there is blue-green water whispering up on sequestered Cable Beach, a freshwater pool, and a grove of tropical fruit trees.

And Donald Methuen Fleming works 12 hours a day. It's like he never left Parliament Hill and the Conservatives who remember him wish he hadn't.

U.S. Even Further Behind

Transfer To Metric Slow Process

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canada's progress toward the metric system of weights and measures is becoming disappointingly slow.

That's the impression left by a recent one-day business seminar on metrication conducted by the Conference Board in Canada.

Granted that the switch-over is an enormous and expensive undertaking, the fact remains that a good many business leaders seem to be hiding behind the current uncertainty and apparently glacial pace of Canada's progress.

Although the metric system has been legal in Canada for 101 years, the first positive step away from the imperial system and toward metrication came in 1971 with the establishment of the bi-partisite Metric Commission by order-in-council.

The commission first studied other countries' approaches to the same task, then launched its own plan in the early 1972. By 1980, it is hoped that everyday transactions will have taken place in metric units.

Australia's government decided in May, 1970, that that country would go metric. The conversion is expected to be more than three-quarters accomplished by 1976, but virtually complete four years from now.

(Australia has had the added problem of converting its currency from pounds, shillings and pence to the decimal system with the rest of the world, the change-over in Canada can go ahead fully.

Human nature is such that consumers cannot be expected to master the literally thousands of demanding faster change-over.

Many consumers appear to be suspicious that the switch to metric weights and measures will give business a golden opportunity to impose hidden price increases. The Consumers' Association of Canada in presenting legislation requiring unit pricing during the conversion period, to make such profiteering more difficult.

Elizabeth Bond, a federal government economist, urged businessmen at the metric seminar to adopt standard metric sizes that are larger than imperial-measure standard sizes, to reassure consumers that there is no profiteering.

"Inflation is something we often have to bear," she said.

"Metric conversion is not, therefore, is something we want to encourage."

Ford Motor Co. has been building a 24-litre engine, which is used in some cars, and is unscrewed on both sides of the border. But General Motors is planning a "metric car" for the 1977 model year.

But until Congress decides that the U.S. should fall into step with the rest of the world, the change-over in Canada cannot go ahead fully.

LETTERS

Stores Not Open As Ad Stated

Editor:
The Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I read this letter not primarily to express a complaint but rather to show my concern for the health and the growth of downtown Belleville.

Having read the December 9 edition of the Intelligencer I looked forward to shopping in downtown Belleville during the two weeks of shopping time which precede Christmas. It is from an advertisement which proclaimed that "Thrifty Santas ... shop downtown" and stated that as of December 10, downtown stores would be open from 9:00 am to 9:00 pm.

However I was disappointed and perhaps even shocked to find that approximately 50 per cent of the stores were not open. I could give you a substantial list of stores but that is not the purpose of this letter. I became frustrated by closed doors, and my wife and I ask concerned. I hope that perhaps my concerned will be more than a complaint - perhaps an incentive for change before its too late.

BARBARA SMITH

Makeup Of The Education Board

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In the course of the recent election, one incumbent for Hastings County Board of Education ran on a platform of "total objectivity".

The basis of this approach revealed itself at the last meeting of the Board when, in response to the inaugural sitting of the new board in January, the last act of the current Board was to vote a raise for itself.

I do not recall, at anytime, during the campaign, being told by any of the incumbents that plans were afoot to raise the stipend. I am also unaware of the fact that they need such an increase but I object the public should be misled during the course of the campaign.

The campaign also revealed the fact that teachers feel they have an unsympathetic board. Yet we saw no less than four teachers in the election ranks for either school board positions or for a seat on county council.

Either their workload is such that it precludes their indulgence in other extra curricula activities or we have been badly misled again.

I got the impression that the object of the teachers in the course of the election was to elect as many to the various boards as possible who showed sympathy toward the barely concealed concept of an all-powerful and autonomous all teacher board.

If this state of affairs ever reaches fruition we will have arrived at total educational anarchy.

Rendezvous At Marmora Quarry

The Editor
The Intelligencer:

The people of Ontario have a large amount of money invested in many ministries, not the least being that of the Ministry of the Environment.

One would believe that the ministry and its employees would be concerned primarily with the preservation of our environment.

With this in mind, on August 7, 1974, by way of a previous arrangement I interviewed Mr. George Skalin, environmental officer to the site of Artistic Quarry, Marmora, where we arrived at 18:45 p.m. After a short while there was the sound of an explosion and large flames and clouds of thick black smoke emanating from a large pile of mixed garbage consisting of cash, insulation, spray mops, rubber etc.

I stood with Mr. Skalin and watched this cloud travelling across the sky. The aroma was noticeable from a great distance. I expected Mr. Skalin, as an environmental protection officer, to immediately take some action necessary as this burning was taking place at night in violation of the environmental law. He advised me that as a result of corporate lawyers fighting cases in court a decision had been handed down which is an offence to pollute during the day, but apparently not during the night. In other words, it is wrong to breathe poisoned air during the day, but perfectly safe at night.

Mr. Skalin told that all he would be able to do this time was to make a full report to his superiors and submit it to their legal branch, in the hope that a decision be made.

It is my understanding that the Ontario Government has change laws because it does not want to be sued by the Province of the legislature. Therefore it would appear to me that the ministry is nothing more or less than a tiger without teeth.

Mr. Skalin informed me the same evening that this company which was fined before for burning in the daytime, has been warned by the ministry a number of times, before and after the fine was levied.

What the "corporate action" we hear so much about?

NDP Stands Firm Against Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — The government made an offer it thought the opposition couldn't refuse, but it blew up in Mitchell Sharp's hands Thursday and robbed MPs of the lucrative Christmas holiday they were expecting.

Mr. Sharp, the government House leader, faced with the adamant opposition and an outraged public, eased off on his proposed 25-per-cent pay increase for MPs, offering to reduce it to 23 1-4 per cent.

But Ed Broadbent, parliamentary leader of the New Democratic Party, rejected the "so-called compromise" and vowed to fight the proposal any way he could.

"The people will see their proposal as a sham," he told reporters. "The government will have to have some sober second thoughts"

The original proposal, introduced last Monday, would have given the 264 MPs a basic $59,800 a year, 29 per cent more than their present $38,500—$12,- 000 salary and $9,000 tax-free expenses.

Despite the fact the bill apparently had the support of the 141 Liberals, the 95 Progressive Conservatives and the 11 Social Credit members, the 16-man NDP contingent held out for an increase that would be restricted to the cost-of-living increase since 1970, when MPs' salaries were boosted from $18,000.

This would amount to about 10 per cent and the NDP wanted expenses held at the present level, instead of hiked to $12,000.

The government countered with its second proposal at private talks Wednesday night and Mr. Broadbent reaffirmed his opposition.

Debate on the bill, which adjourned Tuesday, resumed Thursday with little hope of being completed today, when Parliament is scheduled to begin a Christmas holiday until Jan. 22.

But the government hasn't quite shut the door. In the adjournment motion, it says the House may be recalled at any time agreeable to the Speaker "after consultation with the government" This means that with a quorum of 20 members the House could be recalled at any time to consider the bill during the recess.

It is understood the Liberal caucus met in emergency session Thursday and agreed there is a possibility of sitting Saturday.

One of the proposals that likely would be considered is the bill to create the position of cabinet secretary responsible for federal-provincial relations. It was passed by the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee Thursday night.

The government intends to put Gordon Robertson, now secretary to the cabinet, into the new post, freeing his job for Michael Pitfield, a friend of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Pitfield, former deputy minister of consumer and corporate affairs at more than $50,000 a year, is on a fellowship to Harvard University that expires at the end of this year.

This and whatever other bills the Liberal caucus decided should be passed could be done easily. More than 30 MPs live within easy reach of the capital and could be on Parliament Hill at short notice.

But the main bone of contention remains the salaries bill, which the NDP had attempted to have referred to a special committee without approval in principle by the Commons. This was ruled out of order Thursday night, on procedural grounds.

Pension Plan Changes Coming Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Changes to the Canada Pension Plan giving equal status to male and female contributors and beneficiaries will take effect Jan. 1, the welfare department announced Thursday.

The amendments, which also eliminate the earnings test for contributors between 65 and 70, were passed last fall and will be proclaimed at the beginning of 1975.

Consent for proclamation has been given by all provinces.

The changes also will allow members of certain religious groups to exclude themselves from the plan and amend the formula upon which contributions are based to bring it more into line with average earnings.

Beginning January 12, you could save yourself a quarter by looking in the book.

Most people use Directory Assistance only as a last resort, when the phone number they need can't be found in the book.

These necessary Directory Assistance requests will continue to be free.

It's unnecessary calls we want to discourage to ensure reliable Directory Assistance service for those who really need it.

That's why, starting January 12, some Directory Assistance requests for numbers that are in your phone book will cost 25 cents each. There will be no charge for the first three such numbers provided each month on your residence phone.* After that, the charge will apply.

Necessary calls — for numbers not yet listed in your directory — will still be free.

And whether the number is listed or not, there will be no charge for anyone who has a handicap that makes it difficult to use a directory or for persons 65 years of age or over.

If you qualify for either of these exemptions, just call your Bell Canada Business Office and ask for a special Exemption form.

The sooner the better.

Also free are emergency calls and calls from pay phones, hotel, motel and hospital rooms.

So remember, check your directory first. Chances are, the number you need has been there all along.

Remember, you could save yourself a quarter just by looking in your book.

*There is no allowance for 3 free calls from business phones.

Ontario Opposes Oil Price Hike

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is opposed in any further increases in the wellhead price of oil at the source, Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

"Until a satisfactory compromise has been worked out between Ottawa and the producing provinces, no increase in prices can, by any stretch of the imagination, be warranted," Mr. McKeough told the legislature.

He said that a dollar-per-barrel increase in the wellhead price of crude oil costs Ontario consumers about $189 million a year.

A 10-cent increase per thousand cubic feet in the cost of natural gas siphons more than $65 million a year from the province, he said.

Higher natural gas and oil prices, "would have a pervading and detrimental effect on both the national and Ontario economies," Mr. McKeough said.

"It is inescapable that higher prices will worsen Canada's most pressing problem—inflation."

The provincial government regrets that the federal government has postponed proceeding with legislation currently before Parliament that would give Ottawa the authority to set policy regarding petroleum and natural gas prices, Mr. McKeough said.

Probe Told Man Kicked By Guard

TORONTO (CP) — A former Toronto Jail prisoner told a provincial commission inquiry Thursday that he saw a guard kick another prisoner "like a football" while six other guards punched and kicked the man because he had a blanket in the wrong place.

Mark F. McPherson, 21, said a guard punched him in the nose when he tried to restrain one of the attackers.

McPherson said the prisoner being attacked was Lloyd Frost, 23, who completed his testimony Wednesday before the royal commission looking into charges of brutality by guards at the Toronto Jail, formerly Don Jail.

Frost said he was so badly beaten that he later escaped from Don Psychiatric Hospital to avoid going back to the jail.

He testified Thursday that he tried to commit suicide twice, the last time in March.

Garry Dassy, the former Toronto jail guard whose reports of guard goon squads led to the inquiry, testified earlier that he saw Frost smashing his head on the iron frame of his cell bed, but also said guards beat him.

Dassy said the beating of the prisoner being beaten up.

Trial to Come After 17 Years In Asylum

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — After 17 years in a mental institution at Penetanguishene, Ont., Walter Lasanoja, 58, will return here next month to be tried on two counts of murder and two of attempted murder.

Lasanoja was charged after the March Feb. 1, 1957, stabbing death of Gerard N. Castonguay, then head of the bilingual department of a Sudbury high school, and his wife, Jeanne d'Arc.

Lasanoja was a boarder in the Castonguay home.

Rotten Eggs Total Higher Than Estimate

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) lost more eggs to rot this year than mid-year estimates of not more than 26 million, a CEMA official says.

He said the total lost was 367,380 dozen of 13 dozen cases. That works out to 29,358,130 eggs.

The inventory check of eggs was completed recently, M. E. Mitchell, director of the federal department of agriculture's poultry division, said in an interview from Ottawa.

Mr. Mitchell said that some breweries were stored as so poorly that the entire lot was dumped. In other cases, the boxes were opened and only the rotten eggs dumped.

The loss of eggs was the subject of a parliamentary inquiry which culminated in presentation of a report to the House of Commons this week. Among its recommendations were one for tighter control of CEMA by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

Egg Board Will Hire Manager

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) said Thursday it has moved to implement some changes recommended earlier this week by the special Commons egg committee but needs time to consider others.

After a two-day meeting, the agency said it is arranging to hire a general manager to handle its daily operations and will consult Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan about appointing two federal representatives to its 10-man board of directors.

Those recommendations, and 32 others, were made by the committee in its report to the Commons Monday following a two-month investigation initiated after 28 million eggs bought by CEMA as surplus were destroyed last year.

CEMA said it will move "as rapidly as is practically possible" to set up an advisory committee of consumers, producers and egg men to give effective voice in its operations.

Ontario Flouting Its Own Standards

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is on a collision course with its own stated goals for ordered long-range planning of cities in the province's Golden Horseshoe area from Oshawa to Hamilton, a comprehensive government study has found.

The Canadian Press learned Thursday that study behind a major planning proposal to be released today shows government action in the last four years has run counter to the announced policy for the Toronto Centred Region revealed in 1970.

To hold to plans to decentralize growth away from Metropolitan Toronto and encourage development in areas east of Metro would require a major political commitment by the province and some early large financial backing, the review by government ministries and regional municipalities has found. It would also require an about-face in some government policy areas, largely housing, transportation and landservicing.

Ontario Treasurer John White told the legislature Thursday the report of the Central Ontario Lakeshore Urban Complex study group will be released today.

"This report is not government policy but is the basis of recommendations to a committee of provincial officials," he said.

He said the report to the advisory committee on urban and regional planning, a committee of 13 deputy ministers, was being released to permit public discussion before any policy recommendations are made to government.

However, the review which led to the report, created as an outgrowth of the 1970 Toronto-centred plan, shows many decisions have been made that hinder possible implementation of the plan.

Others have yet to be made which could be highly political in nature.

And at least some members of the study team doubt the plan, which would require a major shift to growth in the eastern part of the region, now is practical.

Plants Closing

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A Ford Motor Co. cut in car production in the United States will be matched by closures of Ford's Ontario assembly plants in Oakville and St. Thomas, a company spokesman said Thursday.

The Canadian closures for three weeks in January will idle a total of nearly 5,000 Ford employees at Oakville and 2,200 at St. Thomas.

Iran Is Unhappy With Gold Pact

LONDON (AP) — The shah of Iran is unhappy with the recent U.S.-France gold agreement, and his reaction has puzzled Western economists, who say the agreement is only a book-keeping measure, already instituted by Italy months ago.

The shah, in an interview with The Associated Press, said any increase in the official price of gold will be matched by higher oil prices.

The 55-year-old ruler of the world's second-largest oil exporter contended that an increase in the official price of gold would decrease the value of the dollars Iran and other oil nations get for their oil.

"If our purchasing power is lost, everything goes," he said.

Higher oil prices will "surely follow," the shah said. "It would be just a question of a few per cent inflation. It could work finally be the collapse of the whole monetary system."

Financial experts in Europe pointed out that President Ford and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at their meeting in Martinique last weekend did not agree to raise the official value of gold to the free market price. They agreed only that countries could use the market value when pledging their national gold reserves as security for loans to pay their huge oil bills.

It would improve the credit rating of countries hard pressed by the four-fold increase in oil prices.

The two presidents agreed that governments, in order to increase their assets to pledge against loans, should be free to revalue their gold reserves at the market price. This is currently more than four times the official rate of $42.22 an ounce, a key artificial figure set by the major industrial nations.

Bullion dealers said the European gold markets were unsettled Thursday by the shah's warning, although trading was light and the price of gold closed almost unchanged at $185 an ounce.

Obsession with Wealth Common in World Now

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A leading citizen of Pares came to Jesus and, with direct, businesslike efficiency, came straight to the point:

"Good Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?"

The breezy, complimentary greeting carried a subtly patronizing note, and Jesus looked at the man speculatively for a moment. He were expensive linen, edged with the purple born of the wealthy. His beard was smoothly brushed and oiled, and jewelled rings glittered on his fingers.

"Why do you call Me good?" Jesus said. "No one is good but God alone."

The man nodded his ready agreement to dispense with that lesser and cherished of his brows, waiting for the answer to his question.

"You know the commandments," Jesus said, noting the flicker both of impatience and anxiety in the man's eyes. "Do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not steal, do not bear false witness. Honor your father and mother."

The man nodded. "All these I have observed from my youth."

Jesus understood the man, knew his problem, saw his overwhelming concern with the buildings, prestige and comfort that enslaved him, distorted his authentic values and left him discontented.

"One thing you still lack," Jesus told him. "Sell all that you have and distribute to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven, and come, follow me."

The man paled. He stared incredulously at Jesus for a moment, made a small gesture of futility with his hands and silently, sadly turned and walked away.

Jesus watched him go with a pang of sympathy. The man was bright, capable, practical, but he couldn't see the danger, the corrosive, dominating and fiendly defective effect of obsession with wealth.

"How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God!" He remarked to His apostles. "For it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God."

His observation has not been regarded as a blanket condemnation of wealth if used for public good, but the man concentration on amassing wealth was consistently denounced by Jesus.

It is unfathomable doctrine in today's affluent societies, where making money is generally considered the badge of success and a small percentage of the population owns an increasing proportion of personal wealth, while millions subsist in grinding poverty.

It was not that Jesus belittled productivity. Many of His parables stress the importance of fruitful enterprise, reliable workmanship, sound planning and abundant harvests but he excoriated hoarding and waste.

His stance presents a blunt indictment of a world in which a small minority gorges itself with excess calories and commodities while a majority verges on starvation.

It is equally applicable to the prewashed, prepackaged, ready-mixed, air-conditioned, power-steered, vacuum-sealed, vitamin-enriched, computer-baked, polyunsaturated, instant-toned, foam-cushioned and automatic merchandise that pours out in a torrent in fill the ever-enlarging appetites of well-to-do consumers today.

It is relevant in a world where the average resident of the United States consumes five times the basic food millimums suggested for poor nations.

"We spend as much on reducing pills, diet fads and regimes to take off fat as the entire national budgets of several less-developed countries of the world put together," the Bishop Edward S. Swanstrom, longtime executive director of U.S. Catholic Relief Services, said.

But the harried race for more possessions goes on, whipped up by advertising for gadgets and pleasure: Rome, decorations, lotions and lecstatement-pay phase proliferate and inflation moons. Automobiles clog the highways. Crowds line up at supermarkets, sauna baths and shopping centres. The cash registers ring, the traffic thickens and the factories churn as fumes shroud the cities and sludge defiles the rivers and the seas.

"Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you shall eat, nor about your body, what you shall put on. For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. And which of you by being anxious can add a cubit to his span of life?"

Medicine Hat Native Heads World's Largest Oil Company

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — Ken Jamieson remembers an evening as a young boy when his father took him to a gala welcome for a visiting celebrity.

"All the big moment, someone put a torch to the gas anvil, sending a tremendous flare into the night and almost scaring me to death. I assured myself I'll never have anything to do with oil or gas."

Today J. K. Jamieson is chairman and chief executive officer of Exxon Corp. of New York, the world's largest oil company.

When he returned recently for a goodwill visit to his home town nobody lit a gas well to welcome him, nor did he expect it. In the old days, he told the Medicine Hat Chamber of Commerce, "natural gas seemed worth only a little more than air."

"Your natural gas has become more useful and more precious . . . So now I take a professional interest in your natural gas."

John Kenneth Jamieson was born in Medicine Hat Aug. 28, 1910. He spent his first six years in the southeast Alberta city, described by Rudyard Kipling as having "all hell for a basement" because of its natural gas reserves.

FATHER PIONEERED

As a boy, he traveled widely with his father, a Canadian Pacific Railroad engineer who worked in Cranbrook, B.C., Medicine Hat, Ignace, Ont., Kenora, Ont., Vancouver, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Brandon, Calgary and Saskatoon.

His father, John Locke Jamieson, 97, is the oldest surviving member of the North West Mounted Police, forerunner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The elder Jamieson, a native of Halifax, enlisted with the NWMP in Regina at the age of 18 and was posted at Fort Macleod, Alta., for five years before he left the force to join CPR. He retired from the railway as a divisional engineer in 1943 and now lives in Victoria.

Ken Jamieson studied civil engineering at the University of Alberta and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, graduating in 1931.

He finished his education to step into the Depression "to an demand for civil engineers just about died," and took the first job that came his way: straightening tracks on the CPR and prospecting for gold.

He found no gold and in 1932 answered an advertisement that started his oil career, working for a small refinery at Coutts, Alta., operated by the now-defunct Northwest Stellarene Co. of Alberta.

He joined British American Oil Co. in 1934 when it acquired Northwest Stellarene, and later became manager of its Moose Jaw refinery.

During the Second World War, Mr. Jamieson handled liaison with the U.S. petroleum administration for the Canadian government, spending considerable time in Washington. He returned to British American after the war.

Mr. Jamieson joined Imperial Oil Ltd., Exxon's Canadian associate, in 1948. The years that followed saw him moving up in the hierarchy first of Imperial Oil, later of Exxon, then known as Standard Oil of New Jersey.

He became president of Humble Oil and Refining Co., Exxon's principal U.S. affiliate, in 1975 one year after he became a U.S. citizen.

"Because when you're dealing with U.S. government people, you can't deal with them adequately if you're a foreigner representing a U.S. company."

Mr. Jamieson took over as chairman of Exxon Co p. Oct. 1, 1969, succeeding Michael Haider with whom he worked at Imperial Oil and who took him along as he moved up the ladder.

Mr. Jamieson, who lives in Mamaroneck, N.Y., reaches the mandatory Exxon retirement age of 65 next August.

The Chamber of Commerce had a hard time figuring out what they could give as a home town memento to a man who earned $401,866 in salary plus $195,000 in bonus last year.

They finally managed to come up with a school report card which showed Mr. Jamieson had average marks of 65 and a picture taken at his sixth birthday party.

Sticky, steely-eyed and orange-haired, Mr. Jamieson has been described by his company subordinates as a tough but even-handed administrator. To Medicine Hatters, he is "a local boy who made to-bie."

Mr. Jamieson said Canadians seem to know more about the United States than vice versa. A U.S. magazine article said he started his oil career near Calgary. Actually it was at Coutts, 150 miles southeast of Calgary, but to most Americans, Calgary is close enough.

As a former Canadian who heads a corporation which operates in more than 100 countries and which reported after-tax earnings of $2.4 billion last year, Mr. Jamieson said co-operation between Canada and the U.S. in energy matters is in the best interest of both.

It was both foolish and unrealistic he said, for the U.S. to try to attain energy self-sufficiency, which would sever traditional trade relations with such countries as Canada.

It is equally foolish and unrealistic for Canada to close doors in energy dealing. The huge amount of investment required to keep Canada in a self-sufficient position must be generated internally with need for foreign participation, he said.

Celebrating Christmas at the Hospital

Christmas is celebrated just about everywhere and the pediatrics ward of Belleville General Hospital is no exception. Thursday the children were entertained and given gifts and goodies to make their holiday stay in hospital more pleasant.

Angela Dosk and her mother, for example, were among the audience when Linda Payne of Loyalist College presented a puppet show and read stories. Lillian Ashley, president of the Hospital Auxiliary which sponsors the annual party was on hand too.

Lorelei Anderson, centre, met Santa, with the aid of Philip Rickard, hospital administrator.

Tommy Wannamaker got a special hug from Santa and a boost up for a better view of the proceedings.

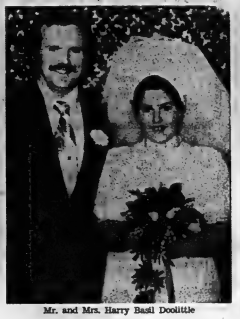
Dancing Snowballs

Putting a Bible slip into your Christmas decorations doesn't have to be costly. Here's a simple, tried-and-true way to add a bit of bounce and zest to your dinner table.

In a pretty glass or crystal bowl - even a fishbowl, minus fish, will do - pour one pint water, one tbsp. citric acid and two tbsp. baking soda. Add a Bible red or green food coloring to the water if you like.

Citric acid can be bought at a drug store as a white powder.

Now throw in a handful of marshmallows, 10 or 12 will be enough, which can be dyed another color with food coloring or left white if the water is colored.



The marshmallows will roll and pitch and jump from the water for up to three hours. A dash of soda and citric acid will start them going again if they appear to be "running down."

Little children will be fascinated by the dancing balls, but keep the bowl out of reach of curious hands, so that no fishing balls are tasted.

May Sanders, Deaconess

May Sanders, deaconess at Bridge Street United Church, has a novel attitude to her work as Director of Christian Education.

"Ideally, I should work myself out of a job," she says.

"A good deaconess gets things moving so that the congregation takes charge of itself. I'm a resource person more than anything else.

"Trying to do everything for people stifles their creativity," she adds.

Miss Sanders is presently doing a survey of community needs, to discover the direction that Bridge Street United Church programs should take.

She already sees a need for new ways to interest more young people, and that has become the focus of her work. She hoped, too, to start a co-ed's club, and to foster more activities that will be family-oriented.

The church must be flexible, and must gear itself to the present needs of its people, according to Miss Sanders.

"We have to start with the world and move to the Bible," she says. "Instead the way it used to be, when the church started with the Bible and moved to the world."

Born in Scotland, Miss Sanders came to Canada ten years ago, and worked as a secretary for industries in Cornwall.

"But eventually I said to myself 'there must be more to life than this . . . and decided I wanted to work with people."

This decision led her to the Centre for Christian Studies in Toronto, and in 1972 she graduated as a deaconess. Her first charge was in Lachine, Quebec, where she spent two years before coming to Belleville.

Most deaconesses, explains Miss Sanders, work in large churches where someone is needed to oversee the education programs. At Bridge Street United Church, her duties include training of Sunday School teachers, organizing of leadership programs, leading worship services for women's groups, and overseeing the purchase of teaching materials and books for the church library.

One of her recent jobs has been supervising the children's role on White Gift Sunday, December 12. Having the Sunday School students take part in the service is indicative of Miss Sander's belief in family involvement.

All this keeps her busy, but she still finds time to try her hand at oil painting for relaxation, and has hopes of starting a Scottish dancing class for adults.

Doolittle — Lloyst

St. Margaret's-on-the-hill Church, was the scene of the November 23 wedding of Elisbeth Ann, Maria Lloyst and Harry Basil Doolittle.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Lloyst; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doolittle.

Rev. Virgil Earle officiated in a double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a crocheted lace gown with an empire waist, Square neckline and short puffed sleeves. The bodice of the gown was highlighted with satin ribbon inserts and the neckline and waist of the gown were trimmed with seed pearls. Her nine-tier elbow length veil was held by a dolicite cap and she carried red roses.

The bride's sister, Hazel Vabrer, was matron of honor in a satin gown with sheer overlay in pink and mauve. She carried mauve carnations and lily of the valley.

Larry Lewis was best man assisted by usher Herb Hughes.

After a reception at the home of the bride's mother, the couple left on a wedding trip to the North.

They reside in Belleville.

Lessard — Wardhaugh

Holy Rosary Church was the setting for the November wedding of Donna Wardhaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wardhaugh, and Donald Joseph Lessard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lessard.

Father George and Rev. Clare Kellogg united the couple in marriage.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of crystal peau de soie with appliques of guipure lace. A coachman's style coat with hood matched the gown. She carried white and pink carnations.

Maid of honor Sarai Porritt wore a gown of hunter green with a halter bodice. The sister of the bride, Heather Thompson and Linda Thompson were similar dresses in cerise.

They each carried one long stemmed white rose.

Best man was Fred Lessard, assisted by ushers John Wardhaugh the bride's brother, Dwayne Lessard, brother of the groom.

Following a honeymoon in Florida, the couple took up residence in Belleville.

RETIREMENT

A Marmora woman's 32 years of service as first aid attendant at Deloro Stellite in Belleville was suitably recognized by company officials and her fellow employees recently.

Myra Crossen retired from her job as matron, was guest of honor at the annual Employees' Association banquet held at the Oddfellow's Hall.

The presentation of a leather chair, a dozen roses, a purse of money and a bumper of other gifts was made by Len Shacklock, general manager.

Mrs. Crossen was hired as first aid attendant four years before the Company left Deloro for Belleville and continued in that capacity at the new location. When she was not busy looking after people's health or accidents she assisted in-making wax patterns in another department.

Ev Cumming thinks she may be the only woman in Canada who is general manager of a retail lumber business. Mrs. Cumming's duties involve every part of the Franklin Lumber in Cambridge, Ont. — accounts receivable as well as accounts payable and the general ledger. Payroll, purchasing, inventory control, personnel, cutting, cost quotations and endless government reports, all come under Mrs. Cumming. Cumming describes herself as a self-made woman who never got past grade nine. (CP Photo)

This 'Self-made' Woman Heads Lumber Business

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Ev Cumming thinks she may be the only woman in Canada who is general manager of a retail lumber business — one that handles [illegible] in inventory.

She hasn't heard of any other woman who does a comparable job. And she has been asking around, ever since July when she became general manager of Franklin Lumber in Cambridge.

You could call Mrs. Cumming a self-made woman. She started as a teen-age office girl who never got past Grade 9.

Born in Galt (now Cambridge) in 1928 and brought up in the nearby countryside, Mrs. Cumming said, "My biggest ambition once I got into high school was to get out again."

When her older sister left Franklin Lumber to get married, Ev quit school and took her office job. She loved it at the firm that was then run by her father, Roy Franklin, his brother Stuart and another partner, Walter Gray.

"I just drifted into the education outside of high school than it," she said. "But that's not so easy nowadays. I'm a great believer in education and I promote it."

The proof is in her two daughters. One has her BA and the younger girl still is in her attending teachers' college. The Cummings also have a son who still is in high school.

Ev learned every phase of the business at Franklin's before her 1950 marriage to Frank Cumming took her out of the firm to provide a home and raise their three children. During that eight-year break the young family moved to Hamilton, to Toronto's North Bay, before settling down in Galt again.

Not long after, Mrs. Cumming began looking for something to do. She picked up the phone and asked if Franklin Lumber needed any help.

Her brother rehired her on a part-time basis. "I had no inkling then of what was ahead," she said. "The work was just a diversion for me."

By the early 1960s she was working full-time again, and in 1969 Peel Elder Ltd. of Toronto bought Franklin Lumber. Her brother became president of the local business. Eventually his holdings encompassed other Peel Elder retail lumber outlets in the area and he spend less and less time at Franklin's.

Mrs. Cumming took up the slack gradually until she was doing the work of a manager.

At first Mrs. Cumming was hesitant about officially accepting her as general manager — a tall, slim, attractive woman running a lumber business. But Peel Elder made the appointment official last July.

At first Mrs. Cuming was concerned that some of the 30 to 35 workers wouldn't accept a woman boss. "But," she said, "we have a good group working here, and though I get razzed quite a bit, it's all in fun."

Mrs. Cumming said she is convinced that they accepted her as boss because she knew the business. "You can't bluff your way through a job like this," she said.

She described the growth of the firm, from the days when her father started it with a handful of hockey sticks and then switched to retail lumber. "We've come from a one-horse outfit in the computer world with everything that goes with it."

Her daughter is just one part of the business. Franklin's sells a complete line of plumbing, carpet, flooring and kitchen units.

"Business has doubled in the last two years "and we've been busy," she said. "But you just have to scramble and remember all of my self," she said. Her paperwork gets done after closing hours because there are just too many interruptions during the working day.

But not all her hours are spent on business. This year she started a vegetable garden and she has 8 or 10 plants — flowers including geraniums, patience and begonias — under the lights in the basement for the winter, "to keep me sane."

"If I ever get the time, my brother and I are going to buy a motor home and I'd love to see the whole continent. But now our time is so limited." The Cummings (her husband manages a lumber company in Guelph) usually take a winter vacation in their slack season.

Asked to describe herself, Mrs. Cumming said: "I'm a very independent type of person. I'm seven of us — we've brought up to stand on our own two feet. I suppose the times had a lot to do with it. There wasn't a lot of money around when we were kids."

Ann Landers

'Candidate for Overdose' Takes Too Many Pills

Dear Ann Landers: Is it possible to take a fatal overdose of tranquilizers? I mean something mild, like Miltown?

Yesterday I had a date to go shopping with a friend. When I went to pick Margaret up she was sound asleep. Her sister let me in the house. I took me a good half hour to shake her awake. She couldn't remember how many Miltowns she had taken but she swore they were harmless.

Although Margaret claims it's the only thing that relaxes her she misses like a zombie most of the time and I'm worried sick about her. Please tell me she is right—that these pills ARE harmless. I'll sleep a lot better tonight.—Concerned In Raleigh

Dear Concerned: No drug is sharmless. If taken indiscriminately. A person who can't remember how many tranquilizers she took and had to be shaken awake for half an hour is a candidate for a fatal overdose. Margaret should see a doctor at once, learn her limits, and stick to them.

Dear Ann Landers: Usually your column is informative and often it is funny. Today it upset me.

I refer to the woman who complained about "those 10 pound bulb" who "plops herself down on a new and flattened out the pillows." You told she can't walk around in that "bulk" all day for a few days. Did you imagine what it's like to eat an apple for supper and then have someone make a crack about your size?

I know the heartbreak of being heavy. I've been a large person from the day I was born. I have no thyroid problem, but I just can't get my weight down. I've tried every gimmick and diet under the sun.

In some parts of the world I'd be considered sexy but this crazy American idea that "skinny is beautiful" has glorified the emaciated and undefined woman. I'm living in the wrong country.—Plump Placed

Dear Miss: You are also living in the wrong century. Go through any art museum and look at the paintings by Rubens and the sculptures of the Greek goddesses. They are fleshy, blippy and plenty "outta."

If you simply can't make a diet work you ought to get into therapy and find out why. You might also stop feeling sorry for yourself and blaming the world for your unhappiness.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is being transferred to Texas in a few months. We have two sons in their early teens. I am very concerned about something.

I've heard that topless bathing is legal in Texas in all the public pools. If this is so I could have quite an impact on our adolescent boys. I'm pretty square, Ann, and I'm not ashamed to admit it. Is this the law down there or not? If it is, should I go along with it?—Old Fashioned

Dear O.F.: So far as I know topless bathing is not permitted in the public pools of Texas, if the law changes and I might we'll have to go along with it. What's next? Your guess is as good as mine.

Dear Ann Landers: My marriage of six weeks was' annulled two years ago. When people ask, "Have you ever been married?" what is the correct answer?

I say "no" because an annulment makes a marriage null and void—as if it never happened. Recently I was called down for not telling the truth. Please set me straight.—Dunno Dave

Dear D.K.: You were married, but the marriage was annulled. That, my dear, is the correct answer.

Dear Ann Landers: I often wonder how many people bother to write and say "Thank you for the good advice." This letter is several years late but I want to write it anyway.

The problem was my husband. He had some very fine qualities. The children adored him and ours was a fairly good marriage. I became suspicious when he had to work late [illegible] many nights. The details don't matter now but you advised me to "carry on as if nothing had happened and forgive and forget."

Well, I took your advice and forgive and forgot."

Several weeks ago my darling passed away suddenly. I'm very grateful to you Ann because if it hadn't been for you I would have left him. Instead he was at my side when the children married good made us grandparents. We had many happy years together before he called him home. Please know dear I am.—In Your Debt

Dear Friend: You were kind to write. Thanks for a real day-brightener.

Ancient Romans, Greeks Revered Senior Citizens

Would you like to know how oldsters have been treated through the ages? Here are a few facts:

Senior citizens in ancient Rome were revered. A Roman father had absolute authority.

If junior kept the family chariot out all night, he could be murdered or sold to Carthage.

The Greeks were more like us. Some were allowed to say once they reached majority. Dad was respected, but not worshipped.

But the Middle Ages took it out on the old folk. Physical failings were regarded as just punishment for youthful sin. Oldsters' property was used to distribute possessions to their children in order to avoid because poverty was good for the soul!

Well, how are we doing today? Not so good where our elders are concerned. Let's take another look at the older members of our own families and realize the experience and philosophy and discipline that has been built up over the years. Oldsters have much yet to offer us. The only trouble is, youth hasn't found out very much about it.

AROUND TOWN with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

Once, not so very long ago — in time past — eleven who composing decided to make the town of Belleville their place of business. Now each of these companies was different, each highly-specialized in its field, and therefore, unique from the others in its wares and services. But on two matters, the eleven agreed. They were enchanted with the area and upon opening for business, would offer only the very finest of gifts and services, each in their own way. The eleven companies set about building their businesses and unloading their caravans so that their wares and services might be displayed.

One of the eleven, THE FOUR SEASONS, brought forth a building of unparalleled luxury and comfort, for herein lay that company's talent. For weary travellers that paused the same road, the Four Seasons would provide the very best lodging, food, and drink, not to mention entertainment. So great and absed of its time was the hospitality of the Four Seasons, one grateful traveller wrote a book in its honor . . . Pilgrim's Progress. The work became almost as well-known as the Four Seasons.

Another of the eleven, Ed's Ease, set forth to bring experience and prompt, courteous service to the many caravans that operated in the area. Now, this wasn't the easiest thing to do, for most of us have as little about caravans as we did then, which was why Ed's Ease was successful from the start. People began to depend upon Ed' Ease for everything their caravan needed.

The third company was possessed of great vision. Right from the beginning Travelcade Limited encouraged people to see them from a different perspective, to look upon life with a new insight. It wasn't long before people ah around shared their view. And while Travelcade Optical, with their magic plastic lenses and Done Rest, offered service from a large city in the west, took care of everyone's horizons, W. Frank Real Estate of 343 North Front St. took care of their immediate land needs, such as the homes in which the owners and their employees lived and the premises upon which their business were established. They even supplied a free buyers' guide from their office so all the inhabitants would really know upon what ground their feet were firmly planted.

It so happened that these homes which W. Frank Real Estate had provided for this unique community required interior equipping and furniture. And it also happened that one of these exclusive eleven was a family of furniture and appliance merchants who had served their many previous facilities. This family's name was Beath and they were conveniently located on the Market Square of the town so that when all the people came to market to exchange goods, they could also shop from here.

There was also in the same town a food merchants who soon became known for the friendliness of his store and the uniqueness of his advertising. The elderly of the town were his favourite customers and they could rely upon to supply bread and milk to these citizens at a reduced rate. He was known in this town as Murray the Good and his food business was right in the centre of the town from which he dominated the bargains, sometimes deceived the wrath of others in the same business, not native to the surroundings.

But man cannot live by bread alone. And the populace of Belleville often travelled far by land or water to visit a select block on the shores of Lake Ontario, now near the village of the same name in order to partake of a fine cuisine provided by one Pat Harris at the Drift-Inn. The culinary skill of this chef was known far and wide and her catering services were easily accessible by a message sent through a messenger service named Bell and a number 393-3343.

This little community of Belleville, however, wasn't just all work and eating. There were also a sports-minded community endowed with a love for "healthy competition by mind". They amused themselves and kept in shape by playing tennis, hockey, baseball, skiing, more shooting and quite often, riding around in the wild west. Sometimes they lashed something like frogs, which could even leap upon provocation. Such machines require special clothing. And for this and other sports needs, the community relied on the services of one Bob Kissick of Bob's Sports and Repair on the harbor of the said community.

All the homes and businesses in the area, however, did have one problem in common. Though this problem was not unique just to this area, some of the town detractors might have you believe otherwise. This universal problem was the problem of cleanliness. Homes and businesses got dirty and the demands of keeping them clean exceeded the skill of the individuals themselves.

There was a man in town called Tood who knew great secrets about cleaning, which he had gained from a firm known even on the other side of the ocean — ServiceMaster. With his skills and secret formulae he could clean anything cleanable and his fame soon spread, so much so that he had to open new premises on Pinnacle Street in the former Zentmeiss building.

This town, though known for its industry and its sportsmindness, was also known for its attractive ladies, the bredonned of whom sought the advice and clothing of a woman called Jean Smith who lived in a beautiful sanitary near a River of Indian name — Scootamatia, near Actinolite.

This Mrs. Smith was renown for her fine gifts and clothes imported from exotic places. And to her, the elegant ladies of the town flocked.

The last of the eleven was a printing company named after a great citizen of the town — a Richard Ellis — a man who believed in and supported minor sports in the area. His followers who took over the business, the Reids, were of the same commitment to citizen support and endeavoured to give to the community the best and quickest in printing services, so that the community might better be able to communicate amongst itself, whether in advertising, goods or services or sending greetings on special occasions.

And there was one special occasion in this community of Belleville, more special than all other occasions together — Christmas. This was the celebration of the Birth of a religious Saviour who, in his birth in times long past, taught the world the true meaning of giving. At this special time of year the eleven area and responsible companies would help the people in the area to make a statement about giving through giving. But they never forgot the true meaning of the Christ child. And that true meaning they all tried to live up to all through the year with a smile and a pleasant, "May we help you?"

And they did.

P.S. Merry Christmas.

Energy Crisis

Politics of Oil and Energy Dampen World's Confidence

LONDON (CP) — The politics of oil and world energy preoccupied statesmen and consumers alike during 1974, dampening international confidence at the start of the new year.

It was a year when words such as petro-dollars and recycling became part of common vocabularies, when figures in the billions and trillions came to replace thousands and millions and motor cars suddenly started to look like hearses.

It was a time when orthodox economics was turned on its head and comfortable assumptions about steady, sustainable increases in personal wealth went as flat as last night's beer.

While national governments poured out torrents of statistics, computer analyses and experts' forecasts to explain what was going on, the man in the street and many businesses felt only the tightening squeeze on their pocketbooks.

One country which suffered the disastrous effects of the quadrupling of world oil prices at the end of 1973 was Britain. Oil landed in 1973 at slightly less than $18 a ton, assessed in 1974 its $73 a ton, an increase of $7.86 billion. The coal miners strike early in 1974 forced power restrictions throughout the county and a bank teller is shown working by candlelight in London. (CP Photo) to pay all the workers they needed or to invest or distribute earnings at the rates they wanted.

Traditionally, economies in such conditions would try to restore themselves through the revenues from higher exports. But with the oil deficit there has been no increase in the actual volume of imports and so incressly has been possible in the volume of national output because of failing prices.

Thus, any increase in the allocation of resources to exports will have to be made at the cost of a decline in real consumption at home. Since this is socially unacceptable in the long term, economies have tried to compensate by charging higher prices for the same export volume.

And it was when this began to happen that the real uniqueness and magnitude of the oil crisis became apparent during 1974.

In the first place, the developed economies are all in a slump and their ability either to increase the volumes of imports or pay higher prices for them is extremely limited.

The oil-producing states, which are the real holders of the increased wealth and can afford to pay high prices, lack the capacity, because they are generally underdeveloped, to absorb large amounts of Western imports.

Consequently, the roughly $50 billion in unused funds which the producers hold either lie idle or are invested in short-term deposits and government securities abroad.

It was this factor, more than any other, which caused panic among international bankers and markets managers in 1974.

Once the oil states started placing their money on short-term deposit with foreign bank branches in Europe and with New York banks, deficit governments began negotiating long-term loans to finance the oil deficits without deflating in cut down imports. But this has clearly become an unsustainable practice.

The European currency market is essentially designed for short and medium-term loans. By violating this principle, banks risk being caught short if depositors suddenly withdraw their funds.

Besides, many governments, in the eyes of bankers, have become poor credit risks. In the case of Britain, at its current rate of borrowing it will in the next five years have accumulated debts of $46 billion. This would be equivalent to the total of long and short-term liabilities built up by the British in the whole of their economic history.

The United States and France put forward plans near the end of 1974 calling for a fund of $25 billion to guarantee loans by governments to help them cover oil deficits.

But while this represented a major step forward in efforts towards international co-operation, it does not provide an answer to how the consuming countries will be able to finance the $200 billion in total borrowing expected during the next five years. The cost of the debt alone will be $25 billion—or more than a quarter of the total value of Canada's annual output of goods and services.

It is a problem almost certain to figure large in 1975 if for no other reason than that there isn't much time left to solve it.

IMPORTANT CHANGES
CANADA PENSION PLAN
EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1st, 1975

If you are over 65
or approaching that age

...and contributed to the Canada Pension Plan, here's good news

Recent changes to the Canada Pension Plan will result in increased benefits for 1975 and subsequent years. There are other important changes, too. Some affect people over 65 or approaching that age. These changes may require prompt action or getting advice. So we suggest you read this message very carefully.

Are you between 65 and 69?
Then you have a choice . . .
Apply now and start receiving your monthly CPP retirement pension. No more need to retire to collect benefits. (Once you start receiving your pension, however, you can't make further contributions to the Plan.)
OR
Continue to contribute to the CPP and possibly build up a larger retirement pension to commence at a later date.
Continuing to contribute is also a way to qualify survivors for benefits if you have not already done so. (When approaching age 70, you should consider applying for your retirement pension because after 70 you may no longer contribute to the Canada Pension Plan.)
NOTE: Before making your choice you may wish to seek advice from the nearest CPP office. The staff will be pleased to help you.

Are you approaching age 65?
If you have made your choice and want your CPP retirement pension to commence as early as possible, you should apply two or three months before your 65th birthday.
NOTE: There is no provision for retroactive payment of retirement pensions between the ages of 65 and 69. So if you're in that age group or approaching it, get advice as soon as possible.

Do you now receive a CPP retirement pension?
As of January 1st, 1975, your pension will no longer be affected by any money you earn thereafter.

Other Changes:
The earnings ceiling—that is, the maximum amount on which contributions can be paid and on which benefits can be calculated—is being raised to $7400 in 1975 and to $8300 in 1976. The initial amount of earnings, on which you are not required to contribute, will be $700 in 1975.

MAXIMUM MONTHLY CPP BENEFITS
Effective January 1975

Retirement Pension	$122.50
Disability Pension	$139.25
Surviving Spouse's Pension—under 65	$68.31
over 65	$81.67
Orphan's Benefit	$37.27

PC Names Three As SIU Strongmen

OTTAWA (CP) — Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) named in the Commons Thursday three men he said were employed by the Seafarers' International Union and "well-known to the police over a long period of time."

He named Ken McGuire, George Baldo and Rod Diamond in repeating an opposition demand for a federal inquiry into allegations of intimidation, violence and bribery within the 3,700-member union.

Mr. MacKay said the men were SIU employees and "prominent in its Montreal operations."

"Mr. McGuire is well known to be from the McGuire-Point St Charles gang whose men are well-known underground figures," he said. "They have had encounters with the police over the last 15 years and are known to the police as union strong-arm men."

He said Mr. Diamond and Mr. Baldo have criminal records.

Mr. Diamond's record "shows break, enter and theft, possession of stolen goods and keeping a bawdy house."

"Mr. George Baldo's accomplishments include break and enter with intent, possession of burglary tools, found in a gambling house, assault occasioning bodily harm and damage to property and dangerous driving," Mr. MacKay said.

He urged Labor Minister John Munro, not in the House at the time, to "check into these names which I have provided to him."

"I am curious to see how far he will go on his own to show that he and his colleagues are really interested in checking into what makes the SIU tick and why it is such a controversial union."

He also asked the government to investigate an incident Nov. 14, 1972, in which he said a lawyer and a shipping executive were assaulted while checking an illegal picket line around a vessel owned by Bemar Navigation.

"A gang led by one Roy White, who is well known within SIU circles as a strong man in the Toronto area, assaulted the solicitor and the shipping executive and only the intervention of the harbor police saved them from serious harm."

Outside the House, Mr. MacKay said Mr. Diamond had been a dispatcher with the union "until recently."

"Baldo and Diamond are employed on a part-time basis."

Mr. MacKay said he had "other stuff coming," but was awaiting the government's response before releasing it. He would not elaborate on the nature of the additional information.

Earlier Thursday, Mr. MacKay asked in the Commons if Solicitor-General Warren Allmand had been made aware during the current RCMP investigation "of the criminal records of certain SIU employees and their relationship with the underworld."

Mr. Allmand replied that he was not aware of any criminal records and suggested Mr. MacKay supply the information to the RCMP.

Mr. MacKay said in an interview following his speech that he thought it "damned odd" that Mr. Allmand was "not aware of the situation."

He also repeated in the Commons his request that the government look into hiring hall practices.

Mark MacGuigan, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Munro, replied that the minister already had said he is prepared to consider amendments to the Labor Code to change these practices.

Bribes to Press Are to Be Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — An inquiry committee probably will open next month into allegations by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette that reporters have been bribed by MPs.

The Commons voted 111-to-88 Thursday to order an investigation by the House committee on reporters for news coverage. He admitted (1) bribing two reporters and named Rock LaSalle (PC—Joliette) as one MP he suspected of doing the same thing.

The seven Social Credit MPs present abstained from the vote.

Seventy-six Progressive Conservatives, 22 Liberals, 12 New Democrats and Leonard Jones (Ind—Moncton) voted for—an inquiry. All 83 opposed were Lib-erals.

Mr. Trudeau, who asked to appear before television cameras was to explain, said his decision had two bases. Mr. Caouette was absent at the time and there was no specific allegation of wrongdoing.

Alexander Wants to Know If 'Black Bastard' on Tape

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP, asked Labor Minister John Munro whether such a reference was made in a taped telephone conversation between the minister and SIU President Hal Banks.

Mr. Munro, apparently assuming a question that made the remark, told Mr. Alexander "you've known the tape

But in reply to subsequent questions about whether the minister heard the remark being made and whether he assumed it referred to Mr. Alexander, Mr. Munro said it would not be proper for him to give an opinion on comments made on tape.

Report Recommends Using Hospital As Teaching Centre

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Debate on an university-linked medical teaching program centred on Belleville General Hospital was deferred Thursday by doctors' request.

The Hospital board was told its medical staff now is preparing counter proposals involving the project.

The concept — under discussion with Queen's University and RCH spokesmen for more than a year — would use hospital facilities and community physicians to teach post-graduate family medicine.

In effect, this would put students in an extended campus environment in the community.

The discussion was based on a report from a joint committee containing recommendations on the development of such a project.

Dr. Bruce Morgan told the board few of the hospital's medical staff have had a chance to thoroughly scrutinize the report "which has very important implications".

Meantime, he said, practitioners also have formed a committee to draft other proposals involving the teaching program.

The physicians want to be involved in teaching but "they wish to do it in their own way. Not in a way that's imposed on them, but in a way that we can serve their community and meet this teaching requirement . . . in a voluntary way," he said.

The doctors, he said, are concerned with "meeting the medical needs" of the community while teaching students on a master-apprentice-ship basis. Dr. Morgan, in a later interview, said the current concept is more akin to a university teaching program.

"What they're suggesting to my mind is a mini-university," he said. "We don't see our role as that."

Dr. John Stack, city councillor and board member, also cautioned the board against losing way of its autonomy in the report "which has very important implications".

Dr. John Stack, city councillor and board member, also cautioned the board against losing way of its autonomy in such an undertaking.

The committee's recommendations schedule the program in gradual stages from 1976 to full operation by 1978. By then, it would involve 15 resident students, four teaching family physicians, and a co-ordinator with the status of an assistant professor.

The report suggests the hospital's Edith Cavell building — a former nursing school — as an ideal location, if space is available.

The project would need the consent of both the health and colleges and universities ministries.

Dr. Morgan said the alternatives being drafted by the doctors committee — headed by former mayor Dr. Russell Scott — would be in final form for a medical staff meeting by mid-January. After that the proposals would go to the joint committee and the board.

The board tabled the joint committee report until its next meeting at the end of January.

Sign Bylaw Expected Early in New Year

The long-debated bylaw to ban overhanging signs from downtown Belleville is expected to receive speedy council approval early in January.

Belleville Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Thursday that he believes "the bylaw will have as easy journey through council when it meets for the first session of the new year."

The bylaw marks the second major development to affect the downtown in as many days.

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee Wednesday was presented with a brief from the city's industrial commission calling for complete council control of development in the downtown area.

Mayor Jeffrey said following that meeting he is optimistic about the bylaw for development control but is waiting for detailed analysis now being compiled by professional planners.

The mayor has been a strong proponent of downtown development and had listed the sign bylaw as one of her priorities for council's fall agenda.

"I can see no reason why the bylaw would not receive council approval in January," said the mayor.

Arie Hoornweg, Trenton's commissioner of works said a similar bylaw has been in effect in Trenton since 1967, with a five-year grandfather period ending in 1971.

Mayor Robert Patrick said the sign bylaw has made his community's downtown section "100 per cent better."

"The bylaw gets rid of the clutter . . . makes the street look neater and tidier," said the mayor.

The Belleville planning committee which heard of the bylaw in its final form Wednesday, approved the document making only "minor" changes.

Once in effect, the bylaw will make fascia signs (flat to the building) mandatory in the downtown with five years as the maximum time allowed for changeover. The only significant change made by the committee was to move clearly define that any sign could not cover more than 25 per cent of the building's face.

The mayor termed the bylaw as "essential" and said she believes it will meet with downtown acceptance.

"Already a number of downtown businessmen have taken the lead by replacing overhanging signs with the fascia variety," she said.

Mohawk Verdict Expected Dec. 23

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

Judgment in the case of six Mohawk Indians charged with obstruction of a police officer during a skirmish Oct. 9 at a band council meeting on the Tyendinaga Reserve will be handed down Dec. 23.

The six, Ada Maracle, Wilma Brant, Cleli Maracle, Mary Ann Sero, Mildred Maracle and Margaret Jean Maracle pleaded not guilty to the charges when they appeared in provincial court Dec. 17.

A seventh person, Wesley Bardy, charged in connection with the same incident also will be judged Dec. 23, on a separate charge. Bardy pleaded not guilty Thursday to a charge of loitering in a public place. On Dec. 23, Bardy also will face trial on a charge of assaulting a police officer during an Oct. 23 incident.

Bardy and four of the women charged appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning Thursday in full Indian dress.

The charges follow the setting up a shoe factory on the reserve in September. The issue has caused much controversy and charges of conflict of interest have been levelled.

Bardy said that a petition was set up consisting of those opposed to the venture and said he went to council to get answers to certain questions. He said it wasn't his intention to disrupt the proceedings.

He testified he was ordered removed removed from the room by Chief Councillor William Brant who said the three constables to do this.

Bardy said when the constables came over he reached over and took hold of a coat-rack.

In answer to the charge of loitering in a public place, Bardy's lawyer, Malcolm Montgomery questioned whether the council room is considered a public place or one just for Indians.

In Thursday's court appearance, two of the five women testified as did Bardy. Defence lawyer, Malcolm Montgomery argued that as the circumstances in Bardy's case were the same as for the other six, there was no need to call more witnesses. Consequently only Bardy, Ada Maracle and Mary Ann Sero testified.

A total of 18 Crown witnesses testified in court Tuesday, including the police officers involved in the incident. Chief Councillor William Brant and seven band council members, Cleli Maracle also testified at that time.

Signs Off

Council is expected to approve a bylaw in the early days of January that will rid downtown Belleville of overhanging signs. Once passed, the bylaw allows merchants five years to make the necessary renovations.

Brewster Held On Nine Charges

City police have charged a 17-year-old youth with nine counts of break and enter.

Ronald James Brewster of E. Hershimer St. was charged by police who were executing a search warrant. The charges follow a five-week period during which cash or property was taken from such places as the Belleville Bargain Barn, Reid's Dairy, Bellwood Lumber, Shopsite at the Belleville Plaza, and the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

Also charged in connection with the same incident are three former Belleville youths now living in Toronto.

The three, all brothers, Alfred Michael Jones, 18, Gerald Clinton Jones, 21, and Robert Paul Jones, 19, all of Bathurst St. in Toronto, have been charged with possession of stolen goods taken from a Belleville Company.

Little Turnover In Nursing Staff

Staff turnover among nurses at Belleville General Hospital is lower than usual.

In fact, BGH may be among the few hospitals in Ontario that has a waiting list for nursing jobs, the hospital board was told Thursday.

Philip Rickard said the "normal" number of resignations usual around Christmas-time "have not been received.

The hospital has about 400 nurses on staff.

"There can be few hospitals in the province — possibly we are the only one — that still have a waiting list for full-time positions," he said.

On another matter, hospital officials were told a small band of teen-age va-cationers — 2,700 hours helping around the hospital this year.

The 10-member group are the junior volunteers of the Hospital Auxiliary.

Their work proves "we have a lot of fine teenagers . . . who are giving wonderful service" Lillian Ashley, auxiliary president, told BGH board of governors Thursday.

Fire Damages Basement

City firefighters were called to a basement fire at 29 Lemoine St. Thursday night.

Fire Chief Les Culhane said today the call came in at 11:28 Thursday to the residence of Douglas Mumby. The chief said the fire started in the furnace room in the basement and burned a wall and ceiling.

In addition, the fire caused damages to an upstairs dividing wall between a kitchen and hall.

Cause of the fire is under investigation with Chief Culhane saying he had been told no one was in the furnace room since 9 a.m. that night.

There were no injuries, or estimate of damage.

Tumor Detector Offered

Apparatus to detect breast tumors will be added Belleville General Hospital's laboratories — at no cost to the public medical centre.

The BGH Hospital Auxiliary will buy the device — a mammography unit costing about $30,000.

Lillian Ashley auxiliary president, told the hospital board Thursday of her group's decision to buy the "much-needed equipment".

The machine will be installed in the radiology department.

Centre for Disabled Considered at BGH

A community committee is studying establishment of a clinic for physically disabled children at Belleville General Hospital.

The move follows a recent meeting with medical professionals and parents of disabled children, BGH board of governors was told Thursday.

Such a clinic would centralize various treatments therapies which parents now must seek in larger centres, Dr. R. M. Anderson, BGH medical director explained later.

Various facilities already are available at BGH. While the feasibility of a special clinic is being studied, treatments would also be carried out at BGH with available resources, he said.

Youth Dies In Blaze

TRENTON — A 17-year-old youth was killed Thursday night in a fire in a shack police said was being used by local youths as a clubhouse.

Gerald Stanley Bishop, of RR 4, Trenton, was alone in the clubhouse when the fire broke out.

Provincial police in Brighton said the call came in about 10:35 p.m.

Police said the youth and three or four friends were in the clubhouse when they left leaving Roberts alone.

When they returned, they found flames shooting out of the doorway.

Police said the shack was heated by a homemade stove believed made out of an oil drum.

Authorities said the shack was located about 2½ miles west of Trenton, and about a mile-and-a-half from the Woolner Rd.

Belleville area fire marshal, Paul McKerracher is investigating the incident.

Car Hits Guardrail

MADOC — A Peterborough woman, Catherine Routly, 48, escaped injury Thursday when she lost control of her car and it plowed into a roadside guardrail on Highway 7 east of Madoc.

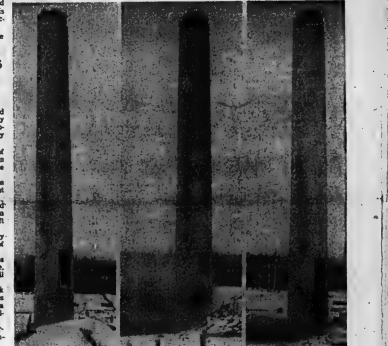
Ontario Provincial Police estimate damage to her car at $600.

Views Mixed

Length of Stay Hospital Concern

Belleville General Hospital's administration is still concerned about the average bed patients stay under hospital care.

"The average length of stay in this hospital continues to be a problem," Dr. R. M. Anderson, BGH medical director told the hospital board Thursday.



Various internal hospital procedures are being adopted to make better use of beds, he reported.

Average length of stay per BGH patient at the end of October, was 9.39 days, Dr. Anderson said later.

"This is somewhat above the provincial average," he added — although he did not have corresponding Ontario averages available.

The hospital's medical staff has introduced new techniques which "hopefully" will help control the problem, he said.

Statistics for September of this year show the length then was 9.37 days compared to 8.86 for the same month last year.

Stubborn Stack

Nearly 300 pounds of explosive in 162 charges just shortened the 120-foot number three kiln stack at Domtar Gold Points Acme cement plant by about four feet. The charges were designed to level the stack, but a tight network of reinforcing rod foiled the attempt. Just before the blast the stack stands alone on the snowscape. When the blast went off, the tower lifted, then settled back on its base with about four feet of its brick liner sticking out of the top. Workers will try again next year.

Sales Vary for Artificial Trees

Artificial Is In

Tom Smith, a clerk at Walker Hardware Co. Ltd., 250 Front St., adjusts an ornament on one of the store's selection of artificial Christmas trees. Co-owner Ron Fox reports the long-lasting trees are becoming more popular with shoppers each year, especially with apartment dwellers.

by ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Depending on the location, sales of artificial Christmas trees in the city are either good, bad, or not apparent. In some cases, the increasing variety of trees has forced some stores to drop them due to lack of space or uncertainty over which kind to sell.

This is the result of a survey on the seasonal artificial tree business in area retail outlets.

Trees reported they have discontinued that line of merchandise, two said sales were good, one said sales were dropping, and another was not sure at present.

On the positive side, Ron Fox, co-owner of Walker Hardware Co. Ltd. at 220 Front St., said sales are "more popular every year."

"We find there's more and more apartments being built and people there are buying more," he explained.

In addition, there is less work involved with an artificial tree, noted Mr. Fox. "With artificial trees, you get a perfect shaped one," he said. "People no longer have to trim the bottoms or lop off branches as with real trees."

Mr. Fox pointed out artificial evergreens are economical because of their long-lasting quality. "There's no real limit," he elaborated, "if they're properly put away, they won't deteriorate. I know people who have had them for 20 years."

Price of a real tree ranges from $4 - 30 depending on the size and kind, he said. Over a five-year period, a person could sink up to $20 into real trees.

Compare that with the price tag for examples on an artificial scotch pine, where the range is almost $6 for a two-and-a-half-foot tree, to $17 for a 12-foot version.

And then there are the deluxe models, for which a purchaser could spend as high as $40 for realism. "People are going for the deluxe, realistic-looking trees," said Mr. Fox.

The fake trees are now made out of vinyl. When they first hit the market, they were made from aluminum, which prevented the use of lights due to short-circuits. "I don't think you'll find this trend

Real Trees Popular

The artificial tree business might not have affected the real tree business, but this year, but there is a growing trend which pits real and artificial trees "on equal terms", supplanted by their fake counterparts in the years ahead.

Vern Weir of the Y's Men's Club, which sold real trees at the Quinte Mall, commented, "I think it's coming to that point."

"A lot of people are using artificial trees in their offices," he pointed out.

Higher prices are part of the reason, explained Mr. Weir. "Three or four real trees will pretty well buy an artificial one," he noted.

A growing scarcity in the number of real trees available may form another part of the reason in years to come, he added.

The Y's men were successful in their annual sale. Mr. Weir said their 205 trees stock, at $6-$7 each, "sold like hotcakes. We were all sold out last Saturday."

(aluminum) around at all," commented Mr. Fox.

The situation is reversed at Bellewood Manufacturing Co. at 445 Dundas St. where a spokesman said sales are "not very well".

"There's a lot of civic groups around selling real trees and people are saying, 'let's support these groups,'" he explained.

In the area where the line has been discontinued, a spokesman for Smith Dominion Hardware at 316 Front St. said "we've kind of let them fall by the wayside."

"It's a primitive market," confiding," he remarked. "You can get involved. There's several manufacturers. It's hard to pick the best ..."

Lack of space is the reason cited by Whites Dominion Hardware at 270 Front St. "There's getting to be such a variety of them that the problem is display," was the response. "There's still a demand but we haven't got the space."

A spokesman at S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd., 364 Front St., said he was uncertain about sales. "I just started selling my trees this weekend, but they're buying them," he explained.

Diving Coming Back On the Sports Scene

For those who have been around the Quinte area long enough I'm sure you'll recall the days when Belleville once had one of the better competitive diving teams in the province. For those who haven't been around very long you may find that hard to believe.

The reason Belleville has such a strong team was because of the men holding the reins, who was Don Webb.

Webb has long since moved from the Belleville area and at present is coaching the Canadair Olympic Diving Team for the 1976 Games. One of his prodigies, 15 or 16 years ago, however, is still around town and he has taken up where Don left off.

"I've been away from it for a long time," said diving coach, John Peoples, "but the club has been working out for a year now and some of the kids are getting pretty good."

Peoples, a 23-year-old employee for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, has about 35 youngsters enlisted in the ranks of his diving club. The group works out at the local YMCA.

"We're hoping we can bring diving back in the Belleville area," he said.

After a year of working with his divers, Peoples has decided some of them are ready for competition.

"Basically I just want them to get a taste of outside competition and let them know what they're up against," he added.

So, he is taking four of his more advanced members to London on Sunday for the Ontario Christmas Open Invitational Diving Meet.

Sixteen-year-old Enzo Marino, 15-year-old Paul Edwards, 13-year-old Grant Sutherland and his 11-year-old sister, Allison, will all be competing in their age groups in the one metre springboard.

The first time around is always the toughest so good luck gang.

NHL, WHA Play Part of Scrooge

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association are delinquent on a combined total of about $640,000 in payments to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for amateur players drafted this year, a CAHA official said in an interview Thursday with The Globe and Mail.

Pierre Lamoureux, CAHA administrative director in Ottawa, told the newspaper that the NHL still owes about $240,000 and the WHA about $300,000.

Under an agreement signed earlier this year between the CAHA and the two professional leagues, the NHL was to pay for all players drafted by Nov. 1 while the WHA was to pay within 30 days of the signing of each player drafted.

Turmell said that since signing dates were not available to him, he did not know how long the WHA debts were overdue.

He said the original NHL debt was $1,300,000, of which $960,000 was paid and the WHA has paid $240,000 of its original $540,000.

The CAHA distributes the payments from the pro leagues to the amateur clubs which developed the drafted players and some amateur clubs are becoming impatient since they depend on the pro payments for their continued operation.

One such club is Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series who are waiting for a payment from the NHL Washington Capitals who signed Wolves player Mike Marson.

"I've checked on a daily basis with the OHA and they in turn with the CAHA on the money owing us for Marson," Wolves owner Rod Burns told the Globe and Mail.

"Two years sent a telegram to Milt Schmidt (Washington general manager).

SLUGS — While on the subject of curling, let's hope the girls of the Quinte Curling Club do all right in the upcoming district playdowns.

Hazel McNevin and her rink earned the right to represent the city at the district level when they defeated Ann Acton's rink. McNevin will compete in the Em Woolley Seniors Competition in Brighton, January 13-15. Other members of the senior rink are Jessie Baber, vice, Helen Lewis, second, and Kay Pape, lead.

In the Provincial category, Betty Kehoe's rink will represent the Quinte Club at the district playoffs in Napanee, January 8-9. Kehoe's rink members are Cathy Brownvice, Marabelle Clare, second, and Mary Livingston, lead. Kehoe's knocked out Lorna Bennett's rink to earn the right to advance to the district level.

Both the Acton and Bennett rink will compete in the Tankard competition district playoffs in Picton, February 11-12. Take 3 . . .

This seems to be the day for pats on the back. This time we turn to the figure skating scene and congratulate members of the Trenton Flights Skating Club for their excellent showing in the Eastern Ontario Sectional Championships in Kitchener earlier this month.

Janice Norman, 17, of Peterborough, and a member of the Trenton Club, finished second in the Novice Ladies event and earned an opportunity to compete in the Eastern Ontario Division Championships being held in Oshawa, at the Civic Auditorium, January 8, 10, 11 and 12.

In Juvenile Ladies, nine-year-old Elizabeth Manley, of Trenton, finished third and 11-year-old Brenda Davey, of Rawdon, Belleville placed ninth out of 28 starters.

Another Trenton skater, Kathy Thone, 14, competed in the Pre-Novice event.

Lineup Riddled, Rangers Blasted

By CHUCK SVOBODA
The Canadian Press

Bobby Orr scored three goals and four assists to lead Boston Bruins to a 10-3 National Hockey League win over New York Rangers—13 months ago.

That Boston romp happened when Rangers paid their first visit last season to Boston Garden. The teams followed the same script Thursday night when the Rangers paid their first visit of this season, except this score was 11-3 and the three goals and four assists were collected by Phil Esposito.

Orr had a great three assists as the Bruins pulled back within five points of the leading Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division.

In other games, Philadelphia Flyers beat Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1, Pittsburgh Penguins tied 4-4 with Kansas City Scouts and Los Angeles Kings defeated Washington Capitals 4-1.

Esposito, who ran his season goal total to 29 and took over the league scoring lead with 48 points, one ahead of Orr, said after the game that he felt sorry for the injury-riddled Rangers.

"I needed a program to know their team," said Esposito.

"They've lost as many players this year. Don't blame their goalies. We poured it on them like there was no one in front of them."

The Rangers took a 2-0 lead on goals by Rod Gilbert and Steve Vickers in the first four minutes. Then, with eight veterans injured and nine rookies in the lineup, they wilted.

The Bruins scored four first-period goals, two by Gregg Sheppard, one by Orr, his first and assists by Bobby Schmautz.

Ross Brooks, Boston's No. 3 goalie, started his seventh straight game for Boston. He retired after being cut behind the leg for four stitches and Eddie Gilbert played the third period.

New York starter Curt Ridley allowed six goals and gave way to veteran Ed Giacomin early in the second period. Giacomin allowed a loose in a goal mouth scramble and was to be examined in New York today.

At Pittsburgh, the Penguins outshot Kansas City 34-26 in the first two periods but managed to get only two goals past goalie Gerry McDuffe and fell behind 4-2. But rookies Mario Faubert and Pierre Larouche each scored in the third period to gain the tie with the expansion Scouts, who had lost their previous six games on the road.

Kansas City jumped off to a 4-1 lead early in the second period on two goals each by Simon Nolet and Robin Burns.

Ross Lonsberry and Bill Barber each scored twice to lead the Flyers who ootshot the Leafs 42-30 at Philadelphia.

Brian Glennie opened the scoring in the first period with his first goal of the season but the Flyers broke loose with three goals in the last five minutes of the period—one by Barber and two from Lonsberry—to carried that lead through to the third period when Bill Clement added another and Barber scored his second.

At Los Angeles, Tom Williams and Mike Murphy scored within 38 seconds of each other in the second period to break a 1-1 tie and lead the Kings against Washington which had lost its 38th game of the season.

The Kings' victory moved them back into a tie with Montreal Canadiens for the North Division lead.

John Garrett Blanks Racers

By DENNIS PASSA
The Canadian Press

The Minnesota Fighting Saints club directory says goalie John Garrett's secret ambition is to win the World Hockey Association scoring title.

The biographical sketch on Garrett also says he would like to help his team claim a first-place finish, the league trophy and the lowest goal-against average.

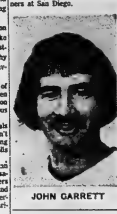
The 23-year-old native of Trenton, Ont., may have been joking about his secret ambition but he seems to be serious about his other objectives.

He didn't score any goals Thursday night but he didn't allow any either as the Fighting Saints downed Indianapolis Racers 5-0.

In other games, Michigan Stags shut out Cleveland Crusaders 1-0, Vancouver Blazers downed Houston Aeros 3-1 and Edmonton Oilers needed overtime to beat San Diego Mariners 7-6.

Garrett's only other NHL game came last year when he had a 3.33 goals-against average in 9 games with the Saints. While playing with Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, he set a league record in 1970-71 with 2.96 goals against.

Garrett turned aside 29 Indianapolis shots to hand the Racers their fifth loss in a row and 18th in their last 19 games.



Don Tannahill gave the Saints a 1-0 lead early in the first period, and Mike Walton followed with his 30th goal of the season near the 16-minute mark of the period to give the Saints a 2-0 lead.

Mike Antonovich scored with 16 seconds gone in the second period and Fran Huck followed with his 12th goal of the game before Kevin O'Shea and Ted Hampson added third-period goals.

Al Detroit, Danny Gruen's power-play goal and the strong goaltending of Paul Hoganson and the Crusaders team for their sixth consecutive defeat.

Hoganson, starting his second game of the season for the Stags, blocked 32 shots for his first major-league shutout.

It also was the first shutout for the Stags in 61 games, dating back to last January when the team played in Los Angeles. Mike Rogers' goal at 2:49 of the overtime period gave the Oilers their win over the Mariners at San Diego.

Three-year Pact For Alouette Ace

MONTREAL (CP) — Peter Dalla Riva, considered one of the top tight ends in the Canadian Football League, has signed a three-year contract with the Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes.

Terms of the pact were not disclosed, but speculation is that the 28-year-old native of Trevise, Italy will get $100,000 from the Canadian Football League team during the contract period.

Dalla Riva caught 37 passes this year for 549 yards and eight touchdowns. In seven years with Montreal, the six-foot-three-inch, 225-pound receiver has caught 209 for 3,013 yards and 31 TDs.

Dalla Riva played high school football in Hamilton and was Oakville Black Knights of the Senior Ontario Football Union before joining the Alouettes in 1968.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers said Thursday that all tickets have been sold for Sunday's National Football League playoff game against Buffalo Bills and that the game will be televised locally.

'Brutal' Travel Sours Chief Referee

HAMILTON (CP) — The rat race has caught up with Bill Friday.

Exhausted and travel-weary the World Hockey Association's chief referee has served notice that he wants out, or at least a reduced workload.

"I don't get so browned off. I eat down and mulled it in," the Hamilton resident said of his retirement notice.

"I'm tired, my body is sore. I'm on the road two out of three days. The travel is brutal."

Friday, who is 41 and has been refereeing hockey 25 years, 15 in the pro ranks—said that up to Dec. 2 he had worked 21 games. By the end of this month the total will reach 39. A full season, including playoffs, means 100 games.

But it is not the hockey that is getting him down—it's the travel.

His estimates he will travel 125,000 miles over the entire WHA schedule.

On the opening week, for example, Friday worked games in Vancouver, Phoenix and Indianapolis on consecutive nights, had a night off, then flew to San Diego for a game on the fifth night.

On the free night in between he went to Phoenix to watch another official work. From San Diego he flew to Los Angeles and home. The trip covered 14,- 000 miles and four games in five nights.

While his family prepared for the holiday, Bill left Thursday for Cleveland to work games tonight and Sunday. He will get home for Christmas then leave for games Dec. 28, 29 and 30.

He's back on the road New Year's Eve, headed for Edmonton, and another one of those four games in five day stints.

"I've been at it 15 years. I shouldn't have to work New Year's Eve. I'm working as many games as any referee. I've only had one game in Toronto, which is only 46 miles away."

At the moment, all Friday wants is to get away from the rat-race. He plans to go to Florida for a couple of weeks' vacation and then in January. His long-range reducing his workload.

plans are not firm.

He said he has talked with receptive to some kind of a Bill Hunter, owner of the Ed- compromise, possibly a reduc- monton franchise, and Hunter tion to 80 games a season.

Filion Equals Record

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, the durable French-Canadian, equaled the world record of 605 wins in a single season when he scored with 9-to-5 favorite Dangerous Wave in the eighth race Thursday night at Yonkers Raceway.

It was the second victory of the night for Filion, who won the first race on a last minute catch-driving for Buddy Gilmore behind Diamond Tiree, who returned $7.20. Dangerous Wave paid $2.80.

Filion from Angers, Que., set the record of 605 victories in a single season in 1972.

"This has been a very rewarding season," Filion said. "I'm not very far from equaling this year surprised even me a little. Before this year started I hadn't expected to be able to win so many races ever again. There's no time to relax now, pal."

The only question now seems to be by how much Filion will surpass his old mark. He has scheduled drives for every day this month except for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

The 34-year-old driver has already set a new mark for purse money won in a single season by going beyond the $2,000,000 mark by more than $250,000.

Filion was scheduled to drive today at Freehold, N.J., and again tonight at Yonkers.

Hunter, Boyle and Plane Have Things Their Way

The one-two teams in the Quinte Hockey League standings proved little when they confronted each other Thursday at Memorial Arena.

Cornerstone Builders, leading the league, played to a 4-4 draw with runnerup Reid's Dairy. When it was all over, the Builders had 14 points while the Dairymen had 13s.

In the other half of the twin bill, Belvedere Hotel strengthened its grip on third place with a 4-2 defeat of Stinson Construction.

It was Moe Hunter-Ralph Plane-Bob Boyle night for the Dairy squad. The threesome looked after the scoring and Boyle was tagged with a misconduct, game misconduct and major misconduct for, as game official John Eberwein explained it, "disputing the referee's opinion."

Before Boyle left the game at 13.57 in the third period, he had a goal and three assists to his credit. Hunter scored twice and earned two-helpers while Plane had one and two.

Cornerstone marksmen were Doug Jodoin, Popel Johnston and Barry Fryar. Jodoin and Pope each drew two assists as did Phil Meeks.

Ted Waite was the big gun for Belvedere with two goals. Gary Reid and Lambert had the others. Bill Goodfellow and Rich Rossbach replied for Stinson's.

Nicholson Teams Post Three Wins

Prince Edward Collegiate Institute (PECI) basketball teams came up empty in a Bay of Quinte High School League triple header at Nicholson Catholic College Thursday. Nicks swept the three games in convincing fashion.

The strong Nich senior ruled to a 76-29 victory while the Juniors won 61-36 and the midgets came out on the long end of a 55-40 score.

Four big men in Nicholson seniors' romp were Jeff Boyle with 15; Bruce Collins and Mark Soole, 14 each, and Dale Wilson, 12. Chris Kalnay threw in eight and Dave Holland, six. Bryce Rutter was tops for PECI with nine points. Ed Hodgins hit for eight and Randy Nelms had seven.

An 18-point performance by Paul McAlpine paced the Junior Nicks. Boyd Kalnay was next in line with 11. Martin Sevompoul and Steve Boland each supplied 10 points. Peter McDonald was best for the visitors with eight points.

Three players hit for double figures in Nicholson's Midget win. Pat Hurley was good for 14 points, Bernie Trumnore had 13 and Rob Kitchen, 12. Leading PECI was Bob Harrison with 11 points.

Nicholson seniors will take part in the annual Queen's University tournament since Belleville Collegiate Institute has accepted an invitation to participate in a tourney at Waterloo. Nicks make their first start tonight at 9 when they meet Merryvale High School of Ottawa.

Kingston Overcomes Early 5-goal Deficit

KINGSTON (Special) — Mc-Ilmoyl Collegiate Institute of Belleville all but chased Kingston Bantams out of Elmer Arena here Thursday night in the first period of an Ontario Minor Hockey Association' AAA minor game.

But the home team refused to roll over and give up. After spotting the visitors a five-goal lead, Kingston rallied to pull out a 7-5 win.

Kent Petrean led the spirited comeback, potting four goals. Barry Shaw, Mike Deodato and Todd Muller had the others.

Steve Mofina was a two-goal man for Belleville. Singles went to Paul Chapman, Clarence Brookema and Darrell Colman. Brookema also drew a pair of assists.

In Preemo Major action, Belleville Rollins Construction opened and closed the scoring to their match with Kingston but in between those counters, the home side clicked for 10 goals.

Leading the charge for Kingston were Ian MacInnis, Jim O'Gallaghan and Rick Marsesi with two goals each.

Rollins marksmen were Jamie Rainer and Greg Horwood.

The Rollins team plays its next league game in Oshawa, Dec. 28 at 5:15 p.m. at Harmony Arena.

Two Elections in One Year

Prime Minister Harold Wilson raises his hand as he addresses a general election campaign meeting in London Oct. 4. Wilson had asked the voters for a majority on the basis of his "social contract" with the unions and barely got it with a three-seat edge over all other parties. Wilson had earlier defended the Conservatives in a February election. (CP Photo)

Britons Under Labor Rule Expecting New Tory Leader

LONDON (CP) — After two elections in a single year, Britons face the prospect of four years of Labor government and the expected early removal of Edward Heath as head of the Conservatives.

1974 began in the gloom of the three-day week and Heath's fight with the striking miners.

He called a February election asking for public backing of his policies but the voters returned a Labor minority to end Heath's four-year term as prime minister.

Harold Wilson's minority government made little attempt to bend its principles to gain Commons support and by September the House was stalemated.

This time Wilson asked the voters for a majority on the basis of his "social contract" with the unions, which his aides emerged as an earthshaker — understanding that they would keep wage demands in line with living-cost increases.

Wilson got his majority — barely — with a three-seat edge over all other parties.

The result recalled Canada's string of Pearson-Diefenbaker minorities of the 1960s. Few voters seem inspired by either Wilson or Heath and many are weary of the combative style of both.

The combination likely will break up in 1975. Within hours of the Conservative defeat in October, Tories were launched on a chop-Heath campaign.

The movement still has not gathered much momentum, but political experts are taking shots at him when they can and see former minister, Margaret Thatcher, has already declared herself in a leadership race.

The Conservatives have no fixed procedure for replacing a leader. But many predict that within months Heath will give up his leadership for a seat in the House of Lords.

Or he may stay in the Commons as the party's elder statesman, succeeding Sir Alec Douglas-Home who retired before the October election.

Wilson, meantime, has gained more clout in the Labor party than he has enjoyed since its defeat in 1970.

At the party's annual convention in November, the Wilson cabinet showed itself able to put down rebels from left or right. It was the most pacific gathering of often-unruly Labor ranks in years.

Two Wilson electoral victories in one year helped. His resumption of almost uncontested authority is also a tribute to his skilful ways of compromise and bargaining to hold together factions of leftists and union establishmentarians.

Labor peer Lord George Brown has suggested Wilson's flexibility sometimes amounts to duplicity. But the former cabinet minister can do little harm to Wilson from his perch in the House of Lords.

Wilson's abilities will be tested in 1975 in what likely will be Britain's most important national debate in a long time. Whether to stay in or quit the European Economic Community. .

Wilson has been engaged since last winter in renegotiating the terms under which the Tories took Britain into the market Jan. 1, 1973.

All appearances now suggest that Wilson himself and powerful members of his cabinet, including Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, want to stay in the EEC.

But other ministers oppose membership, largely on grounds that it robs Britain of sovereignty.

It is not clear whether Wilson will be able to forge a cabinet position on the issue before a referendum promised by the party must be held before next October.

And the year's two elections, one political issue has involved them: ballot boxes to mailbox bombings.

Irish terrorists have shifted their campaign from Ulster to the British mainland in a series of killings and woundings.

That prompted a new law legislated of 1970. The new police powers of search, arrest and detention — and banning the Irish Republican Army — caused almost no political controversy.

So far, however, there has been a large absence of any real debate on the question of whether Britain should keep its political hand and its troops in Northern Ireland or get out.

A muddle-through attitude seems to prevail.

The same attitude seems to rule the government's approach to serious economic problems of low investment and productivity, inflation and conflict.

The political debate on the economy has been muted by the discouragement of the Liberals, who had ground in the October election, and by the division, self-doubt and barrenness of the Conservatives.

Another debate that has hardly started deals with the nationalization being heard in Scotland and Wales.

The nationalists did worse than they hoped in the October election. But Britain's declining economy may start to pinch those poor areas hardest, and their voice may be louder in the coming year.

Scotland has added incentive of North Sea oil and gasnishing, proper to fill as everyday bill of fare, from the condition of the poorest to the richest individual, have been principally aimed at."

The word Republican is a giveaway to the fact that the book was actually published in Watertown, N.Y., in 1936 and was lifted word for word, by an enterprising Canadian publisher, one James Macfarlane of Kingston, Ont. So much for national pride. The writer is anonymous, as was frequently the practice at the time, for many cookbooks had female authors and both society and husbands frowned on the idea of careers for women.

Most of the 816 recipes and miscellaneous bits of information in the book are intended in this rewrite more as "fun reading" than a how-to-cook book. But among the 21 modern recipes, Capt. Riley's cubbahs and flower-pot bread manage to retain the flavor of times past. The cubbahs prove to be our shish-kebabs and the flower-pot bread is actually baked in new clay flower pots, duly seasoned with salad oil.

Published in its original hard cover, the book makes a nice little Christmas gift for Canadiana and cookbook buffs alike.

Canada's First Cookbook Makes Its Second Debut

Canada's first cookbook, published in 1831, and bearing the intriguing title The Cook Not Mad, subtitled Natural Cooking, makes its second debut this fall, with 22 of the recipes updated for present-day usage.

The book would appear to be a protest against the elaborate European cookery of the day and assures the reader that "Good Republican dishes

Charge Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Housing Minister Donald Irvine rejected Thursday charges that housing officials failed to block profiteering in Toronto condominiums subsidized by the Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC).

After hearing the minister's statement in the legislature, Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview), who raised the issue Wednesday, said:

"It's a dissembling. He's not going to get away with it."

Mr. Singer had told the house of four cases in which he said persons bought government-subsidized housing contrary to OHC regulations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Marlon Brando said Tuesday he intends to give all his real estate holdings as "an example to the American people."

Brando, who refused an Oscar for his role in The Godfather to protest alleged mistreatment of Indians, said the property consisted of 40 acres in Arizona, Calif., a home in an unidentified California community and an apartment house whose size and location he also declined to specify.

The actor, appearing on NBC-TV's Tomorrow show, did not say how, when or through what organization the dispersal would take place.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Glenn Campbell has cut short a tour of New Zealand and returned to Los Angeles to recuperate from severe laryngitis.

Campbell left New Zealand with five shows remaining on the schedule, Nick Sevano, Campbell's personal manager, said Monday.

RHEIMS, France (Reuter) — Angry parishioners of Rheims Cathedral called for the purification Tuesday, saying the 13th-century building was desecrated during a pop music concert last Friday.

Those who condemned the staging of the "pagan music" performed by the Tangerine Dream group said 10,000 young people desecrated the cathedral.

They said fans left litter everywhere, smoked hashish and urinated in the cathedral used for several centuries for the coronation of French kings.

Rev. Bernard Gouzeau, cultural minister of the archdiocese, said the charges were true, "but it is also true that some 3,000 youths could have caused more serious damage and behaved in a more disgraceful way."

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Horror film actor Vincent Price was mad Tuesday for $3.1 million by a painter he allegedly called a "fool" for buying oil paintings repeatedly at his front door.

Painter Robert Rossi said in the suit filed in Superior Court that Price's remarks, published by a local paper, humiliated him and damaged his professional standing.

Price, 63, is a noted Hollywood art collector.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE O'OL

Saturday, December 21

Aries (March 21A-April 19) You're likely to persist in pushing some unworkable ideas though it's obvious they don't have support from others.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Something that was told to you in confidence will not remain a secret very long if you continue to drop hints about it.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This is a lucky day for a situation where you share a material interest. You both are apt to be a bit too selfish.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) The next few days, comments you won't be too pleased with will make the rounds if your actions aren't all they should be.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22) Be extremely careful how you handle the possessions of others. You'd be better off not to borrow anything of value this week-end.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - Be mindful of how you conduct yourself socially this evening, if not, you may inadvertently cause embarrassment.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's unlikely you and your mate will see eye-to-eye on many things today. Large issues will be resolved, petty ones won't.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Volunteer to help with some more of a hindrance than a help. If you want something done right, do it yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) - It isn't likely you'll stay within bounds this weekend on your budget. Easier have some spare cash handy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things will be a bit unsettled on the domestic scene the next few days. Don't make waves to magnify small problems.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your day's good intentions will never get off the ground unless you make a concerted effort to follow through.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sensible about your resources this weekend. Spend within your means. Do as little credit buying as possible.

NEW ARTS CENTRE

COVENTRY, England (CP) - A $1-million arts centre will be opened soon at University of Warwick near here. It will house a theatre, studio music conference hall and bookshop. The theatre seats 325, the studio 200, conference hall 300 and the music centre 80.

Opening lead—J ♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"I really have tough luck," groaned South.

"Not really," roared North. "That fluttering sound at trick one was made by your contract as it flew out the window."

South had let the first diamond run to his hand. Then he had led the three of clubs to dummy's king. East had taken his ace and led the nine of hearts. South's queen had lost to West's king and hearts were continued. South won the third lead and finally stopped to think.

Then he led his jack of clubs. East won and led a spade to West's queen and dummy's king. The clubs failed to break. South wound up down two.

South should have done his thinking before playing from dummy at trick one. Then he would have gone up with dummy's king of diamonds and led the king of clubs. After that start there would be no way for the defence to keep South from scoring three clubs, three diamonds, two spades and a heart. Actually South had been lucky. A spade opening would have beaten him irrespective of what he did.

Pound of Candy Adds Half Pound

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Settle an argument: My husband says if you eat one pound of chocolate candy on top of your average daily intake of food, you won't gain more than one pound. Can this be true?—E.C.

Sure. Why not? You can't gain weight from what you don't eat.

And, of course, we have to assume that the "average daily intake of food" that you mention is an amount that just equals your daily food needs—that without eating all that candy, your weight would remain constant.

But let's not lose sight of the fact that an extra pound of chocolate candy will add substantially to your weight—although not a pound—to your body weight.

Let's assume that the candy is all carbohydrate—that is, all sugar or starchy material. That will vary somewhat depending on the kind of candy, but it's close enough for our purposes now.

A pound is roughly the gram. Carbohydrate represents about what has four calories per gram, so the pound of candy works out to 1,800 times four, or about 1,900 calories.

A pound of additional body weight represents about 3,500 calories—so it is addicted to often.

Your actual food needs, you add a pound of candy these days, you'd add about half a pound of body weight.

Don't lose sight of the importance of that half-pound of body weight. It may not sound like much. Actually it is a lot. Because an added half pound of body weight isn't going to disappear. It's going to stay, once you've added it.

Supposing somebody gorged a pound of candy a day on top of a normal diet. In a year of doing that, he would have gained something like 180 pounds! So think twice before you get in the habit of reaching for the candy box.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a young woman in my 20s. I would like to ask the reasons for douching and how frequently should it be done? My mother was kind of quiet about it since the days of this sort.

Any doctor recently told me I have an infection in the bladder and mentioned douching to help discharge I have.—Miss E.

Routine douches without a specific reason are pointless and can at times even be somewhat harmful. The rule is not to do so unless your doctor tells you to. Some health problems in your case he has done so. If he didn't tell you what to use, then ask him. Also ask him whether he means daily, or how often.

Harbor Project Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Harbor Commissioners has turned down a proposal to build a $250-million world trade centre on 26 acres of downtown waterfront land.

Commission spokesman John Jurus said Thursday that the commissioners felt the proposal was unsuitable for the waterfront location.

The proposal by Cosriot Investments Ltd. called for a five-tower development containing a 500-room hotel, stores, restaurants, theatre, computer and communications centres, banking, legal and accounting services, warehousing and parking for 2,000 cars.

Insurance Firms Urged To Raise Rates

TORONTO (CP) — Insurance companies have been urged to increase premiums on automobile insurance early next year to offset rapidly rising costs, including a 25-per-cent rise in auto-repair charges.

The Insurers' Advisory Organization of Canada (IAO) made the recommendation Thursday in a statement. It urged an interim increase in premiums for physical damage and third-party liability coverages on all classes of automobiles, but not on motorcycles, motor scooters, mini-bikes, snow vehicles or all-terrain vehicles.

Boost Output

MONTREAL (CP) — Amidst unparalleled uncertainty in the domestic and world sugar market, the Quebec government has decided to try to double production at its sugar refinery through a $15-million expansion program.

Housing Critic

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Flora MacDonald, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Kingston and the Islands, said Thursday she has been named housing and urban affairs critic in the opposition's shadow cabinet. She had been the Conservative critic of Indian affairs and northern development. Eldon Woolliams, member for Calgary North, formerly was the housing critic.

Ban Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Grant (L—Huron-Bruce) said Thursday a hospital's board or medical staff should not be allowed to prohibit any doctor from working in the hospital.

"It is not up to the hospitals . . . to make a judgment as to whether any particular doctor is allowed to practise," Mr. Grant said.

3 Die in Napanee Train Mishap

Two Belleville Engineers Killed

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Two Belleville Canadian National engineers are dead following the head-on collision of freight and passenger trains just east of Napanee near Enterprise, a dozen miles east of Napanee at 8.30 p.m. Friday.

The dead are Keith Boyle of South John St. and Ray Mortimore of RR 1 Shannonville.

Provincial police in Napanee, co-ordinating the rescue effort, said that the body of an unidentified woman was found this morning locked in the bathroom of a coach at the train's head end.

CN spokesman confirmed the death of Mr. Boyle the engineer of a freight train eastbound from Toronto to Montreal. Rescuers continue the search for the second engineer's body. He was the only crew member not to answer the call following the wreck. Ray Mortimore was the engineer of the passenger train, westbound from Ottawa to Toronto.

While more than 100 rescuers trudged a mile through knee-deep snow to the crash site, hospitals in Kingston, Napanee and Belleville put disaster programs into effect awaiting casualties.

According to hospital spokesmen, 46 of 147 passengers were treated for injuries. Four have been held in Kingston General Hospital today with "more serious injuries," a spokesman said.

Belleville resident David Gardiner, a passenger, remained in Belleville General Hospital today with "possible head injuries."

Roy Boots, a fireman on the passenger train and resident of 161 Bleecker Ave., remains in Kingston's Hotel Dieu Hospital today in "serious condition".

A spokesman from the hospital's surgical recovery room said Mr. Boots is conscious. He underwent abdominal surgery last night.

Two people in the lead car of the passenger train had heart conditions. One man, believed to have had an attack, was revived when his daughter applied artificial resuscitation.

A fleet of a dozen Kingston region ambulances, CN vehicles and 30 snowmobiles set up a shuttle service between the twisted wreckage and Highway 133. The evacuation operation continued for several hours.

"It was awful" cried a female passenger bound for Toronto to spend Christmas with her family. "All of a sudden people were thrown from their seats as the train applied its brakes", she said. "Then there was a tremendous crunch".

Both diesel engines and approximately six coaches on the freight cars were thrown from the track.

A CN spokesman confirmed that both trains were using the same track but would not comment on an investigation which is now under way to establish the cause of the wreck.

A CN spokesman said this morning train service will not be disrupted by the accident and that only one track will be closed.

While the majority of passengers were shuttled to waiting ambulances, a handful remained in the train cars waiting for the Toronto-to-Kingston Railliner. Once they were transferred to this, the train reversed its direction and rescued Belleville at 1.40 a.m. Passengers complaining of pain were met by Dr. Edward Green and, if necessary, transported to BGH.

Five men and two rescue vans from the Quinte Rescue Squad were put into service after Friday night's train collision Bob Pearce, captain of the squad, formerly the Thurlow Volunteer Firefighters, said 18 men were called at 8.40 p.m. and stayed til about 2 a.m.

Mr. Pearce said once at the scene, the squad helped evacuate those needing hospital care and helped those who could walk into the depliner that came to transport them. Besides giving first aid, the squad provided lights for the rescue operations.

Where The Engines Met

Two Belleville men lost their lives Friday night while at the controls of two CN trains which collided head-on, east of Napanee. Rescue efforts continued early into Saturday morning. One engineer was pinned under the wreckage and the search continued today for the second man. No explanation has yet been made public as to why the two trains were on the same track.

Six Policemen Wounded

Calgary Gunfight Leaves Two Dead

CALGARY (CP) — A veteran police detective and a man recently released from prison died Friday afternoon in a two-hour gunfight in downtown Calgary, which ended after an armed forces armored personnel carrier crashed through the wall of the gunman's oversized garage-home.

Boyd Davidson, 42, a 23-year veteran of the Calgary force, was killed as he tried to enter the garage with a shotgun.

The gunman, identified by police as Phillipp Laurier Gagnon, 38, of Calgary, died later in a barrage of police gunfire after the tank-like military vehicle smashed down the rear wall of the building.

Inspector Al Menzies said Gagnon had recently completed a parole term and was released from prison earlier this year. He could not say why the 65-month-term man was in prison.

Six other policemen were wounded, none seriously. A seventh, Constable James Issacs, 32, was shot while wearing a bullet-proof vest and was not hurt.

Detective Davidson, married and the father of five children, was the first Calgary policeman killed in a violent act while on duty in almost 30 years.

Wounded were: Constables Tom Dick, 27, (hip); Harvey Gregerson, 29, (hand) Kit Sylvester, 43 (throat); Robert Barratt, 27, (hand); William Blankstey, 27, (shoulder); and Detective Nick Graham, 44, (hand).

Constables Dick, Gregerson, and Staddige were later released from hospital. The others were admitted.

The gunman was armed with two semi-automatic weapons, 22-calibre and 30-calibre rifles, which were modified to fire fully automatic.

The drama began when police were called to investigate a domestic dispute at the garage-home. Constables Dick and Gregorach were shot as they stepped from their police car.

They called for help and scores of heavily-armed policemen sped to the scene.

Tear gas failed to force the gunman from the building when he sought refuge in a cavern-like dugout beneath the floor of the garage.

Police told the gunman to surrender several times but they were answered by gunfire. The end came after the armored personnel carrier slammed into the garage repeatedly as shots came from inside the building.

Insp. Menzies said that after the tracked vehicle backed away for the last time the gunman opened fire for several minutes. Constable Sylvester was wounded as he tried to rush the garage after the wall was torn away.

A final volley of police gunfire, including 12-gauge shotgun firing rifle slugs, buck shot, sub-machine-guns and police service revolvers, brought an end to the battle.

Police Chief Brian Sawyer, his eyes reddened and visibly Detective Davidson's widow, told reporters he could not comment on the shooting until an investigation is completed.

Three Die In Detroit Holdup

DETROIT (AP) — Three people were killed late Friday night and four others were seriously wounded after a bar owner pulled a rifle on four armed men who were trying to rob his establishment, police said.

Killed were two of the robbery suspects and a 78-year-old woman customer at Alexander's Bar on the city's West Side, police said.

A third suspect was in hospital along with three other patrons, all in serious condition.

The fourth suspect was being sought.

Police said bar owner, Uriah Alexander, 48, pulled out a rifle and began firing after the four men entered the bar. Alexander was not injured, police said.

Names of the victims were not immediately available.

25 Years Left To Decide

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has about 25 years to decide whether to keep thousands of fertile acres of agricultural land in food production or pave them over to house millions of people, a government report released Friday said.

Avalanche Kills 9

Socialist State Planned

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — The young military officers who seized control in Ethiopia say it will be turned into a one-party socialist state. The anonymous military committee, which deposed Emperor Haile Selassie Sept. 12, issued a policy statement Friday saying: "The exploitation of man by man is completely prohibited."

Disneyland Plot Fails

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Craig Douglas Hansler, a 24-year-old man who threatened to set off seven bombs at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., and Disney World, in Orlando, Fla., was arrested early today when he tried to claim $3 million in ransom, authorities said.

One-family Housing Bylaw Out

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Board released a decision Friday rejecting an amendment to the borough of North York's single-family bylaw.

It was a victory for Controller Barbara Greene who argued that the borough was trying to regulate the social composition of households rather than deal with the type of residential unit or how property is used.

The bylaw defines a family as two or more related persons living together or as a property owner living with no more than two unrelated persons.

This means that two unrelated persons may live together in an apartment and, in a single-family zone, four unrelated persons may not buy a house together and more than two unrelated persons may not live with a single owner.

Miss Greene said the bylaw in 1971 when she and three other women rented a house. She turned it into an election issue and landed in public office as a crusader for tenant rights.

British MPs Also Seeking Raise in Pay

LONDON (CP) — The Labor cabinet has grasped the prickly problem of MPs' salaries and quickly handed it to a government committee to decide on pay raises.

As in Canada, increasing an MP's pay cheque is a controversial issue. No party likes to tackle it and be accused of greed.

So, like Canadian MPs, British members of Parliament tend to shun the issue for years on end, while their incomes are eroded by inflation.

The government announced Thursday night it has sent the question of pay increases to a board called the Top Salaries Review Body, which also advises on civil service and Crown corporation salaries.

Givings Set Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Appeal Committee of Canada has launched a record objective of $2,975,000 for Saving Adams and Eskimo aid is seeking $112,929 more for Bangladesh, it was announced Saturday.

Dr. Josta Hitschmanova, executive director, said the extra funds will provide five carloads of skim milk powder.

Dr. Hitschmanova, who has completed the coast-to-coast campaign to raise the committee objective by Christmas, said in a statement that "one dollar from one in every 100 Canadians would put us right over the top."

Laforce Auto Engine Proves Dirty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The LaForce automobile engine produces less horsepower and more pollutants while achieving only slightly better fuel economy than conventional automobile engines tested for maximum economy without regard for pollution controls, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said Friday.

EPA made the conclusions in releasing its final report on testing the agency conducted on the modified engine. It told a Senate committee last week of its initial conclusions.

The LaForce engine basically is a modified six-cylinder internal-combustion engine, Edward LaPorce, one of the inventors, said it is designed to increase gasoline mileage by burning the 25 per cent of gasoline normally wasted in a conventional engine.

Irish Sweeps Draw Made

Two Ontario Residents Draw Tickets on Favorite

DUBLIN (CP) — Two Ontario residents and a pair from British Columbia had their tickets drawn Friday on the favorite in the Irish Sweepstakes Dec. 27.

They hold tickets on Comedy of Errors, the early 11-to-10 favorite in the hurdle-race at Leopardstown. Two other B.C. residents hold tickets on Lanstora, the 11-4 second choice in the field of 44 horses. Three other Canadians have tickets on Bumble Boy, the 16-to-1 third pick.

First prize is about $115,000, second $46,000 and third $23,000. Holders of all tickets drawn are assured of at least $1,000 each. A total of 132 Canadians had tickets drawn.

Canadian tickets drawn on Comedy of Errors were identified as: MTK8086, Twelve, St. Catharines, Ont.; MZB5197, Betty, Nanaimo, B.C.; LLL6198, Sedco 1, Powell River, B.C.; and MSR5899, Sleep, Toronto.

Edward Keller of Pittsburgh won the superprize of $400,000 Friday as his ticket was the first one drawn.

The prize has been drawn 17 times with 19 of the winner being Canadian. This is the fourth to go to the United States with two having been won by Englishmen and one by an Irishman.

The sweeps are part of international lotteries held in aid of hospitals in Ireland. The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated because sale of sweepstakes tickets in Canada is illegal.

Among those drawing other horses was the holder of ticket number MZH 59743, listed as "Blue Nightie" of Shannonville. She or he — drew Amber Knight. An interesting combination!

Off-duty CN Man Describes Crash

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Anthony Harrington, a Canadian National employee from North Calhoun, was riding in CN passenger No. 45 Friday evening, on his way home from Kingston after a week's work. At the time, he did not know he would still be required for emergency service.

Mr. Harrington was in the fourth coach, one of about six passenger cars knocked from the tracks by a collision with a freight train east of Napanee.

"There was just a sudden jolt and the train came to a halt," said Mr. Harrington. "I figured we hit something."

He said the conductor asked everyone to remain in their seats, but he explained who he was, and was able to leave and help out. There was no panic. "People were pretty calm," he noted.

"I went up to the head end to see the engineers and how they were," related Mr. Harrington.

"There was diesel fuel all over the place . . . and scraps of the diesel engine all over. It was all smashed to hell."

Mr. Harrington was first to arrive at the point of impact, he dug one of the victims out of the wreck. "I took the engineer back to the fourth car," he said.

Mr. Harrington said about six passenger cars were derailed. None of them rolled over, he said. "They stayed upright. They jackknifed and mushroomed together."

School Buses A Privilege

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Snow storms and fog this week again focused attention on school buses.

John Bancroft of the transportation department of the Belleville board said this fall distributed a small brochure to parents of children who are bused to school. It sets out policy and regulations governing school buses and laid safety rules for passengers.

The public school board contracts for 130 vehicles, from station wagons to 84-passenger buses, covering 370 routes. These vehicles travel 3,000,000 miles annually.

The board also provides inter-school transportation for about 750 students fr home economics, industrial arts, music, library and gym. Buses are also provided for excursions, sports activities and weekend transportation of students attending school for the deaf and blind. Special transportation is arranged for par-aplegics and retarded pupils.

The public may not be a ware of it, but school bus transportation is regarded as a privilege. Pupils who abuse it may be bumped from the bus at the discretion of the school principal.

Bus drivers may be male or female, and he or she alone is given the responsibility of deciding whether or not it is safe to operate the bus because of road conditions.

Operators must provide the board with a mechanical fitness report for each vehicle twice a year on Aug. 31 and Dec. 31. Each vehicle must be inspected by the ministry of transportation in October and March.

Although provincial regulations say a pupil more than 10 years old may be asked to walk three miles from his residence to catch a school bus, Hastings county board set the limit at three-quarters of a mile.

Despite the most conscientious efforts of everyone concerned school busing always raises problems. There's no way everyone of those 2,000,000 miles a year can be traveled smoothly. It's up to bus drivers and administrators that the safety record is outstanding, and most of those miles are accident free.

Plants Can Feel Shock

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Here it's getting close to the season where the giving and receiving of foliage and flowering plants is traditional. It may be a good time to go into the "ways" and "whys" of plant buying and care — particularly initial care.

Plants are like people. They react to change — to travel, to changes in altitude, light, heat, humidity and living conditions.

In the greenhouse or plant chamber where they begin their life plants are grown under ideal conditions. Then comes the first drastic changer — the removal, packing in a transport and undergoing the long trip to Canada and then into another greenhouse. And finally to a nursery or a florist shop. Because the bulk of the house plants sold in this country are not grown here. Rather they're imported, mostly from California. And for good reason. It just isn't economically possible with our climatic conditions to attempt to grow foliage plants under glass to any appreciable size. The cost to you would be prohibitive.

Fortunately, during all these bewildering changes, plants are usually under expert care. And so shock is minimized. But things can happen, especially if plants end up on a retail floor the selling point of plants is just another commodity activity, rather than the main business of the retailer. Where light conditions are usually bad, temperatures up and down and watering, at best hit and miss.

And one of the problems is that the damage may not show itself until after the plant is in your home. And the harm may not show as a visible damage, but rather as a plant that just never does well. And so the first step in maintaining a healthy plant is to purchase it where you have fit needs have been looked after. And here are some other steps that will help.

First: does the plant look healthy? You don't have to be an expert to determine this. Browning around the edge of the leaves can indicate too much fertilizer or heat, and pale lower leaves, too much watering.

And look critically at the internals between the leaves on the stems. If the plant has been starved and fed heavily to promote abnormally fast growth, the plant may appear tall or leggy. And remember, new leaves will not grow back to fill the spaces. So taking a plant is reasonably dense — reject it.

Look too for insect damage at the tips of new branches or leaves, or on the undersides of leaves or where the leaves meet the stems.

And so, you've selected a promising looking plant and brought it home. Now what? First it's a good idea to put it in the kitchen sink or bath tub and soak it from the top to dissolve any salts that might have accumulated from fertilization. It's a good practice to fill the sink so that the water level is over the pot rim. Let the soil bubble right away and when the bubbling stops, let out the water and let the plant drain overnight. Then get ready for a period of acclimatization. Let the plant in a relatively cool place to minimize watering from the heaven. And it's a good idea to mist the foliage once or twice a day with an atomizer spray. Don't be alarmed if you lose a leaf or two, this is part of the survival process, part of the adjustment. And it's best to let the leaves drop off themselves. But if most of the leaves drop in a rapid rate you may have a fatal case of shock on your hands. Which is another reason to buy from a reputable retailer. He'll probably provide a replacement.

Christmas Spirit Alive and Well

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

Picton — Christmas has been commercialized but the true meaning of the holiday season is not lost on the majority of harried shoppers say several Prince Edward clergymen.

Questioned concerning the effect of "commercialism on Christmas, six of nine Prince Edward clergymen indicated the Christmas spirit is alive and well.

Three clergymen stated high pressure sale tactics have influenced the meaning of the holiday. Youngsters clamor for the latest toy shown on television and seem to feel Christmas is Santa and presents.

These ministers agree the real meaning of Christmas still exists for those who seek it but commercialization of a religious holiday makes the discovery more difficult.

One clergyman pointed out commercialism exists in the heart of man, not in the stores.

He acknowledges the push for presents but feels the individual must discipline himself against over-buying.

It is reassuring to hear the Christmas spirit has not succumbed to commercialism. Is it realistic to believe the survival can continue against the high pressure odds of holiday shopping, mailing deadlines and exhausted charging accounts?

Perhaps the men on Main St. cannot be blamed for commercializing a holiday season highlighted by gift-giving but the advertising campaigns launched shortly after Hallowe'en vulgarize the meaning of Christmas.

Shop windows jammed with "the perfect gifts" seem to leap out at the shopper, suggesting if he doesn't buy he's a checkplate relative akin to Dickens' Scrooge.

Commercialism does a number on him for about seven weeks, coaxing him to buy presents he can't afford for recipients who may not really want or need them in any event.

At least one of the clergymen opposed to this commercialization of a religious holiday could offer no solution.

"I don't know what we can do about it," was his comment.

It seems obvious the youngsters weaned on television ad campaigns for toys will grow up considering these gimmicks "Christmas" unless their parents deny them the highly touted goods. The parents then become the Scrooges of the holiday season.

As these children grow older will they develop a concept of Christmas as more than the season of "grab and gimme"??

Although the six ministers who indicated commercialism has not forced Christ to a back seat in Christmas may be correct in 1974 it is doubtful their observations will be accurate in a decade's time. Christmas sales are big business and likely will grow in the years ahead.

Christ's birthday was the excuse for all the ads and the gimmicks for gift - giving. Whom Christmas is firmly entrenched as a commercial bonanza will there be time for babes in mangers, wise men and small town inns in Bethlehem?

Fund-raising Should Be Fun

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Home-made chariots, some of the less than sturdy nature, careened around Trenton High School's track last week in a drive to raise funds for the Cheshire Home for Handicapped Young Adults in Belleville.

The event dubbed a Chariot-a-thon, was an innovative move on the part of one Rod Army's Christmas Cheer also added a new twist to an ever-used method of raising volunteer dollars.

Basically, it consisted of a group of madcap teachers and students racing shoddy home-made and decorated chariots to win not much of anything. Most chariots were sponsored by town merchants.

Perhaps, part of its charm was the obvious lack of proper organization by the school's student council. Rules and regulation directions and more directional signs and more signs, baffle the brain and confuse one's enjoyment of some events.

And this was a cold, but thoroughly enjoyable event.

What-ever-a-thon, bred from the original walk-a-thons that surfaced several years ago, appear to have declined in public favor. Walk-a-thons and their offshoots skate-a-thons, roll-along-a-thons, other-a-thons — seem to have outgrown the appeal elicited by the sights, or thought, of thousands walking for whatever the cause may be.

Blistering feet and suffering are out. Frankly, my dear someone can be heard saying, They're old, pause.'

Last week's A-thon in Trenton, although cast in the same basic mold, was different. It added a time-worn ingredient. The old formula of 'Give them Something for Something' resurfaced Most A-thon only ask for money. This one provided entertainment.

And who got what?

In this case, it was the school's student who were the major beneficiaries. Cheshire Home director John Meyers summed it up best: "The idea was to put some fun into fund raising." It happened.

Those Town merchants who sponsored chariots got advertising. In this age, advertising seems to be considered a commodity. So be it; they got it.

The participants in the chariot races appeared to enjoy the day as much as the students. And the Cheshire Home received an estimated $300.

Now if only other groups undertaking fund drives could perform as ably as Trenton High School students.

'Romance' Of Travel

It may not be all Doug Baltams' fault, but something more than the truisms of recent years is happening to the old Commonwealth connection.

Visas to enter Australia — that's the word from Gough Whitlam's socialist government, as set out in advertisements in The Intelligencer and other newspapers.

A visa will be necessary from Jan. 1 and it will apply to everybody, including Canadian, British and other Commonwealth citizens — except of course Australians themselves travelling on Australian passports.

It will apply also to Doug Baltam of Joyceville, should he wish to journey back there again.

A prosperous auto parts man, Mr. Baltams' incredible story was told in The Kingston Whig-Standard recently. Briefly, Mr. Baltams decided he wanted to get away for a while and flew to Australia — without a passport. He insists a man at an airline ticket office in Toronto told him it would not be necessary, that he would "probably get a visa at the airport," in forging local officials and the Canadian consulate people were aghast. Mr. Baltams boarded a plane back to Hawaii, hoping he might get to spending some of his money there, and without further brushes with the authorities. Not so; he was met by representatives of the airline, apparently worried about transporting a passenger in found wanting, and sent on his way to San Francisco, and from there to Vancouver. Thence to Toronto, then by train to Kingston, and a cab to Joyceville. Oh yes, there had been touchdowns in Fiji too. In any event, the elapsed time for the entire trip was slightly over three days.

Talk about "jet lag" — Mr. Baltams should know all about it. He was back at work at home in time to have lunch with his employees. He says his next step may be to contact a lawyer, to see if perhaps he can get some redress for getting so little for his money.

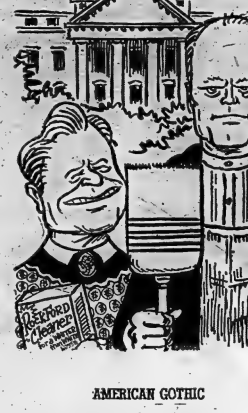
Indeed so few people are flying these days, the airlines would do well to compete for the custom of people such as Mr. Baltams.

But hearken for a moment to another aspect of travel these days. It may be too bad or, some might think, a blessing. It involves the rather important principle of making people from overseas feel welcome in a strange land. Unhappily, Immigration sometimes is found wanting in this regard.

Heather Hawes is a 27-year-old New Zealander who came to Montreal a month ago to visit relatives. Her father is a native of Halifax. In a letter to The Montreal Gazette she says she was interviewed by immigration officials who were "most rude and ignorant." She says she had never been put through such questioning and attributes her reception unfavorably with that accorded young Canadians on working holidays in her country.

There are obvious lessons to be learned from this. If airline cabin crew treated their passengers like this they would lose their jobs. The same standards of courtesy and service expected of airline personnel could smooth the lot of travellers in dealings with officials on the ground. And this despite the increased security precautions that are necessary these days.

Off Limits



Council's discussion on the need for a new bylaw on protective fencing brings to mind a boyhood memory for a colleague.

Behind the bank house that was his home in a coastal resort in Northern Ireland was a very large garden, walled off from a public road running alongside. Although the area has had its share of politically- inspired incidents over the years the "defences" on the wall were mainly to discourage anyone trying to help himself to the garden's ample growth, carefully tended by hers, an elderly gardener.

Flowers, vegetables, apple trees, they were all there in those days — and so available across the none too high wall.

The "defences?" Rough glass inlaid along the wall's top. It did the job too.

Britain Seeks Light At The End Of Its Murky Economic Tunnel

By KEVIN DOYLE
LONDON (CP) — For the first time in nearly two years of worsening economic malaise, Britain's political leaders have begun openly acknowledging the seriousness of the threat and saying there are no easy cures in sight.

At the same time, the Labor government is reported to be studying a kind of incomes strategy for restoring the economy's long-term health which, if successfully enacted, may prove of value to other Western countries facing similar problems.

Outlining the size of Britain's present crisis, Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey recently told the Commons that never before had the country faced such monumental economic difficulties in peacetime.

The outlook, he said, is darkened noticeably even in the short period of the last few months. During the next year, incomes would certainly not increase and might even fall.

The immediate cause of the trouble is a roaring rate of inflation, now at about 18 per cent a year and expected to reach 20 per cent next year. This in turn has undermined business confidence and investment, made exports less competitive and spurred trade unions to press wage gains to protect their future earnings against erosion by rising prices.

Part of the increased inflation rate is due to the climb in the price of oil, of which Britain is a major importer.

But to deal with domestically-generated inflation, the government is giving top priority to a plan proposed by its own advisers and by a number of outside economists.

The first stage would be a six-month, non-statutory wage standstill. An independent body would be established to monitor this and employers would be allowed to compensate employees for any increase in the retail price of domestic goods but not imported ones at three-month intervals

The outside also would be a pre-determined budget set aside for granting larger increases during this period to groups of workers who, for various reasons, are particularly underpaid.

The main purpose of the standstill would be to break inflationary psychology and give unions and employers a chance to work out details of the next stage.

That would involve agreement on setting up a mutually-acceptable tribunal to determine what level of pay settlements can be tolerated without adding to inflation and what increase in productivity would be conceivable. Such a formula would be difficult to work out, but in essence any increase which added to the cost of producing a unit of goods would form the basis for a definition of excessive pay awards.

Once this had been agreed, a plan would then be levied on all income increases above the acceptable level and returned directly to employers as a payroll subsidy. In theory at least this should neutralize the effects on employers' unit costs from excessive wage awards.

The outstanding gain from a policy such as this, it is achieved any kind of success and assuming import costs remained fairly controlled, would be that prices should stop rising faster than incomes might be returning to both consumers and investors.

It would also give the government a period of stabilization during which it could accompany monetary and fiscal measures aimed at bringing prices down.

SIU And A Split Jurisdiction

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Parliament Buildings News Service
TORONTO — You must be a bit boggled by the continuing controversy over the Canadian International Union.

Dr. Morton Shulman brought forward a number of cases of apparent assault of SIU members and apparently assuming from an autocratic attitude by the directors of the union which, in common words, resulted in the "rule of the fist."

Dr. Shulman brought forward a number of supposed (and certainly sounding) incidents of assault in hiring halls of dissidents and antagonists to the regime.

The question is why can't, or doesn't, the police do something about this? But why not?

That is the question which must puzzle you, as with anyone who has been close to the question.

The problem is one of split jurisdiction.

The SIU is a national union. It covers interprovincial lines and therefore is not within any provincial jurisdiction. No province can order an inquiry into the administration of the SIU.

In a sense it is a ping-pong contest on jurisdiction, but in this case there is no question that the jurisdiction is federal.

At the same time matters of straight assault are provincial. Criminal law is federal. But enforcement of it is provincial.

So when, as Dr. Shulman alleges, there are people beaten up why doesn't the police enforcement provide something about it.

The answer is that in an assault you must have somebody on the stand who is willing to testify.

But in a union such as the SIU where it is dangerous for men to stand up and say they were beaten up if they did they might invite an even more severe beating.

So the Crown here can't get evidence.

But without this the federal government can hardly proceed with an inquiry into the SIU as has been requested.

It is one of those conundrum situations which appear in our Canadian politics—conundrum of ping-pong politics you might call them.

Provincial jurisdiction had complete responsibility there would be no difficulty. But with ping-pong there is always the question of who has the ball.

U.S. Car Slump Hits Economy

The Christian Science Monitor

The stricken US. auto industry is beginning to demand that President Ford reverse course and tell American consumers to spend more, not less.

This message follows hard that U.S. new car sales in mid-October slumped 28 per cent below last year's pace.

Rapidly becoming the nation's No. 1 problem especially in the automobile and housing industries according to Lynn A. Townsend, Chrysler chief, is continuing decline in these key industries he said, could spread recession generally throughout the U.S. economy.

Autos and housing together, agreed Alice M. Rivlin, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, make up a pretty big piece of the economy, though their problems are different

Auto sales certainly are acute. "is so that a slump hits Detroit and Michigan particularly hard, while the industry's ripple effect spreads out through suppliers of glass, rubber, and other parts and materials.

No Willing Suitors For Alberta's Hard-To-Get Athabasca Oil Catch

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Syndicated News Service

For sale: A 35-per-cent share in a big new venture in the energy field.

Price: Negotiable, probably an $200 million or less—at least.

Incentive: It's a stampede has yet developed to buy from Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles, its stake in the Athabasca oil-sands project being built by Syncrude Canada Ltd. of Edmonton.

The government of Alberta has, in effect, invited all comers—whether they be other governments or private investors—to fill the vacuum in the Syncrude project resulting from the departure of the giant U.S. oil company.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has indicated that the federal government is interested.

Whoever takes Atlantic Richfield's place will be joining some company—Imperial-Imperial Oil Ltd. Gulf Canada Ltd. and Canada Southern Oil Ltd., the other shareholders of Syncrude.

And Atlantic Richfield's replacement will be getting in on the ground floor of a project that is to tap the biggest deposit of oil outside the Middle East, at a time when every barrel of oil produced in Canada and the U.S. is worth its weight in gold.

What's the catch? Why is Atlantic Richfield pulling out?

The Los Angeles company has said the Syncrude project has become uneconomical because of rising costs and low domestic oil prices.

The irony is that the vast extent of the oil sands has been known for generations, and their exploitation has awaited only a jump in oil's market price big enough to cover the high cost of separating the oil from the rock and soil in which it is trapped.

Now that the market price of oil has multiplied, the federal and provincial governments are demanding that they receive the lion's share of the price increase. Atlantic Richfield, for one, doesn't think the rewards will match its risk.

Another factor is the withdrawal, no doubt, was the federal government's decision to eliminate gradually oil exports to the United States. Since 1960, the growth of our oil-export industry has been based on the availability of the U.S. export market.

For many years, the oil in the Athabasca (and Peace River) oil sands has been regarded as our back-up source of supply, if and when the world ever ran short of cheap oil.

That expectation is growing dimmer and dimmer now.

—No satisfactory technology for extracting oil has yet been perfected apart from the cumbersome strip-mining technique of getting at oil just under the surface.)

—The estimated ultimate cost of the Syncrude project has risen to at least $1.8-billion and perhaps more than $2 billion. That's equivalent to a range of $12,800 to $14,000 per barrel of daily production.

—Shell Explorer Ltd., wholly-owned subsidiary of Shell Oil Co. of Houston, is withdrawing from its partnership with Shell Canada Ltd. in a separate oil-sands venture.

The prospect that the federal government and possibly one or more provinces, may invest in the syncrude project does nothing to enhance the outlook for commercial development of the hundreds of billions of barrels of oil-sands deposits in northeastern Alberta and northwestern Saskatchewan.

Toy Safety Check Is Still Vital

By PETER LESNIAK
Thomson News Service
TORONTO

Toys that possess a hidden hazard have been virtually eliminated from store shelves this Christmas thanks to the vigilance of the consumer and corporate affairs department's hazardous products branch.

But this is no reason for complacency. Last year enormous sense and discretion and the window when buying, warns Diane Murphy of the Ontario regional office of this federal government consumer protection bureau.

Despite the existence of the torture chamber. Children are still being injured by toys, Miss Murphy said in an interview in the regional head office here. Parents must persist in buying sophisticated toys for children too young to play with them properly and usually to blame today ain't not the toy manufacturers, she explains.

"They toys for the age group for which they are recommended of the toy manufacturer," is her advice to parents. She notes items like chemistry sets or electric trains, although suitable for mature children, can be dangerous for young children.

Before implementation of the Hazardous Products Act children often were the victims of poorly constructed toys that sometimes were composed of toxic materials.

In the past seven a stuffed teddy bear could contain several unsafe features of which neither child nor parent were aware until it was too late.

Now such toys are banned in Canada and anyone contravening the Hazardous Act is liable to a fine of up to $1,000 and or, imprisonment for six months.

Yet despite the fact and a team of inspectors act as inspectors in the regional head office here, Miss Murphy notes "there is still the odd report of something that gets by." Miss Murphy said.

Currently a toy for throwing snowballs called Snow Fling is under investigation for potential hazard, says Miss Murphy. The two-foot long plastic device has a spring at one end capable of scooping up snow which the child then hurls at a velocity greater than a snowball thrown by hand.

Another toy recently investigated was a doll that eats and then passes it through the body. This doll was approved after tests showed its health hazard existed as long as the manufacturer's directions were followed.

Complaints about suspect toys are usually received by the bureau. They should be mailed including a description of the toy, the manufacturer's name and where it was purchased. The bureau should also contain an account of the buyer's experience with the item.

Unsafe toys if not banned outright are withdrawn by the manufacturer following consultation with the bureau. Sometimes just moving the item from a store's toy department to the sporting goods department, for example, removes the risk to children.

In eliminating a hazardous toy, the co-operation of both the Canadian Toy Manufacturer's Association and the department stores has been good, says Miss Murphy.

Shades Of Britain's 'Norwich Plan'

Kingston Whig - Standard

Although no decisions have been made to Norwich, England, among the proposals for the revitalization of the core of buildings facing Market Square, is the installation of a glass canopy.

This would also give the government a period of stabilization during which it could accompany monetary and fiscal measures aimed at bringing prices down.

In Norwich, which has stone buildings and narrow streets has living in Kingston from an earlier period, the installation of a glass canopy was made to return facades on main streets to their original, 18th century appearances. Everything was done to create an old-fashioned period atmosphere, right down to the gaslights and the cobbles. The results were so effective that the Norwich restoration was published in books the world.

These columns have always stressed the fact that Kingston only needs to strip off the false, modern facades to restore, to achieve a similar result. Many a fine Georgian home lies behind varying degrees of tawdry, inappropriate, shabby modernization or overlay.

It is encouraging to know that an earlier period of restoration is actively interested in all aspects of this kind of work. Mrs. Beatrice Lily is the Market Square area and that example, centered on Bedford-ian Lily Ingle has been able to do so much with the Loyalist scene of her ideas in the form of sketches.

This kind of determination and co-operation is what is needed, if the "Norwich Plan" for the buildings facing it could, through proper renovation, restore precisely the flashing touch for an outstanding setting for the beautifully preserved and refurbished City Hall.

Greeks Dispense with Monarchy

Brantford Expositor

In the 144 years Greece has been an independent country it has acquired a reputation for discarding its kings and being virtually ungovernable. Sunday's plebiscite on the monarchy, the third in 50 years, is only the latest chequered picture.

The first modern Greek king, an imported Bavarian named Otto, managed to keep the throne for 29 years before losing it. The second, a Dane, lasted 49 years till assassinated.

The third only lasted three years. The fourth ruled four years till expelled and replaced but returned after three years, ruled two years and was exiled. The fifth also was expelled. A regency took over till a new king appeared in 1947 and died in office 17 years later.

This brought us the throne his son Constantine the Second whose unsuccessful counter-coup against the dictatorship in 1967 sent him into exile where, on Sunday, he learned that by two to one, the Greeks don't want him back. Why he should wish to get involved again in the turmoil that is Greece will baffle most people.

Issue Of Colonial Exploitation

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Sir: The Intelligencer (Dec. 19 1974) quoted Peter Worthington in the "Toronto Sun as saying "the white leaders of "Freedom fighters" are not white governors but ordinary people, innocent of everything except being caught in the middle."

Nothing is relatively sense the simplistic self-righteousness of this statement. Even according to the extracts from Worthington, may find available in the book by Jean-Paul Sartre (Gevera Press, Inc. New York, 1960).

"All of us whites, living' in the former colonial settlements, partake in some measure and unwell from the systematic robbery and exploitation practiced by the native peoples by our forefathers. There are no innocents caught in the middle; whether we like it or not we profited from the fruits of the harvest, either good or bad. No doubt our descendents of yesterday's godfathers will find it remains in undisputed possession of the spoils. The terrorism of today is the response to the structure of yesterday, and the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children."

As for Israeli and Palestinian terrorism, also referred to by Worthington, we think of it as the performance by Sal Mineo in the film "Exodus" which as terrorism goes, was rather overwhelming paranoiac madness that can be induced in some people when they are subjected to continuous unrelenting injustice.

It is one of the dark mysteries of human nature, that those who should be most aware of the effects of injustice on the human psyche are so utterly blind to the inevitable consequences of injustices which they, in their turn, are meting out to others.

Traffic Hazard

Editor
The Intelligencer:

Recently, an elderly lady was killed while walking in a crosswalk, here in Belleville. What is being done to end a long life. How tragic also for the young man who happened to be driving the truck.

When will we take positive steps to eliminate these "target zones"? If sufficient people cross a main street to warrant a cross-walk, then surely we can afford to install traffic lights.

If one life is saved, it would be worth the cost.

French Minister Fosters Equality for Women

PARIS (Reuter) — Mrs. Francoise Giroud, France's new minister charged with achieving equality for her countrywomen, has launched her opening campaign with an avalanche of projects to eliminate the traditionally rampant discrimination of France.

Her reforms range from legalized aid for young mothers to revisions of school textbooks that have "a stereotype image of the mother in her kitchen and the father at the head of the family behind the wheel of his big car."

The measures are the result of three months' careful thought and research by Mrs. Giroud, a free-lancing journalist in a country that has never had a female cabinet minister or, indeed, many female citizens.

Mrs. Giroud, whose post is the first creation of state for women's affairs has no budget. She will rely on her powers of persuasion to convince that the

Tot Throws Temper Tantrum To Get What She Wants

Dear Ann Landers: Our two-year-old child is giving me a hard time. She knows she can always bust me down and get her way by throwing a temper tantrum. She is pathetic. It is so embarrassing to have your child throw herself on the floor in the dime store or the supermarket, kick and scream and hold her breath until her face turns blue. I'm afraid she might kill herself.

I always give in and buy her what she wants. Then I get mad at myself because I know she has put one over on me. Please, Ann, give me some advice.—Twenty - Three - Year-Old Mom (married 3 yrs. Two-Year-Old

Dear 23: no kid ever died from holding his breath. You can rest those your two-year-old has a lusty lantrum, you let her kick and scream. Show no sign of anger, distress or embarrassment. Tell her you will wait until she calms down. She'll pick up again when she discovers her little act has netted her zero.

Dear Ann: You seem to have all the answers. Please tell me something that has been bothering me for a long time?

Can a person be Jewish and born of Jewish parents belong to the Jewish faith?

A friend of mine gave me a Star of David last year and I have been reading up on Judaism. My mother is a devoted Catholic and boy father is a Lutheran. Can I turn Jew-ish?—Miss Undecided

Dear Miss: If you were baptized in the Catholic church you are a Catholic.

If you want to embrace Judaism you may do so. Select a rabbi who will give you instructions.

The question of whether or not you would then be "Jewish" is one which has been argued for centuries. Most theologians would say you are a Gentile who has chosen to embrace the Jewish faith.

Confusing? Well here's the reverse. As a child of Jewish parents, if I wished to embrace Catholicism I could do so. But I would still be a Jew who had converted.

Dear Ann Landers: We employed a babysitter for the first time last night. As we went out I told Mrs. Hart to call us if we could be reached in an emergency, the numbers to call, fire, police, doctor, etc.

Later in the evening a terrible thought struck me. I had not told the sitter how to give directions to our home, which is difficult to find unless a person knows that territory—and few do.

I now have the directions taped to the phone, along with the address. Please remind this to your readers, Ann. I have known people to forget their own telephone number in an emergency. — A Carelessly Mother

Dear Mother: Thanks for an excellent suggestion. It could be a lifesaver.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister's daughter is 16, very pretty, and has a rare talent for attracting young men. Lee has had four very fine boys crazy about her in the last 18 months. The matter is which she dismisses them is brutal. I am concerned about her cruelty and lack of feeling. The girl has a regular "love museum" of gifts, letters and poems from former admirers. Lee's attitude is so heartless. She is so callous. Is she normal? Is she concerned?—Aunt Jane

Dear Aunt: A young girl who cannot be so punishing in terminating her relationships has deep-seated problems at home. I hope Lee gets some professional help before she carries this pattern into marriage or she will probably have several.

Sex: Substitute for Intimacy

From a workshop on sex education at Hickman Hill, where 22 involved and professional people shared ideas, comes the following thoughts:

There is a need to strengthen a young person's self-respect and sensitivity to others.

There is a need to help the pre-adolescent to be more aware of himself and to be able to express himself in a capacity for closeness.

Failing intimacy, sex has been used as a "substitute for communication and a form of intimacy". Then when both are used the relationship suffer the persons may wonder why.

The young adolescent in our society is the chief focus of the workshop. The group thought the early adolescent was not equipped to deal with the intensity and self-possession required for a mutually satisfying sexual experience.

Refusal to use contraceptives, no prevalence at the time, "may reveal a kind of "magic" thinking ("It won't happen to me"), or perhaps a cry for "punishment" ("See they'll notice me") or a self-defeating mechanism ("I'm no good anyway, so what does it matter?").

The fears expressed for by the recognition of their ability to form relationships of honest and very open relationship.

Middle-class and middle-aged people have much to learn from the young people we see with youth. The books, "Open Marriage" and "The Intimate Enemy", can be very helpful to establish a kind of inter-personal skills in handling conflict, intimacy and individual growth within a marriage.

A concern for the older person was expressed — that we overvalue youth and "perfection" as Masters and Johnson have done, to their ability to enjoy sexuality and physical intimacy. They who face inevitable diminishment of many skills and powers need not lose this one capacity for tenderness and closeness. The group felt in general, hopeful; and that we, as a society, are gradually getting closer to integrating sexuality into the whole of personality and relationship.

The above was taken from a report to the holistic of the Family Planning Federation of Canada. Concern for family life linked with a belief that every child should be a wanted child, provided for and with a sporting chance for an adequate share in the good things of life fits, show up as support, and motivating factors of the F.P.F.C.

The human elements entering into the physical act which may produce a child are all part of their study. Hence the interest in a workshop on sex education.

Have you an idea — about people — that you'd like to share? Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.)

Total Woman Or Sexy Slave?

RAGNAW, Mich. (AP) — Mrs. Joel Fisher originally listed the Ten Commandments of Love according to the gospel of Total Woman at a weekend seminar which drew 300 women, which is to put the sizzle back into their marriages.

—Meet your husband at the door each night perfumed, bathed and wearing a special costume" said Mrs. Fisher.

Mrs. Fisher, who headed down the edict to the women who had paid each to spend how to play the love game by the rules in Total Woman, a current bestseller by Marabel Morgan, former beauty queen and wife of a Miami attorney.

—Thou shalt always defer to thy husband's wishes.

—Thou shalt always be available to thy husband.

—Thou shalt never argue with him.

—Thou shalt never challenge his decisions.

—Thou shalt be a yes, let's woman."

—Thou shalt never clean house when he's home.

—Thou shall not talk on the phone after 8 p.m.

—Thou shall not sew, bake or read magazines in the evening.

—Thou shall not act bored when he's talking, but hang on his every word.

—Thou shall never keep thy husband waiting.

"God ordained man to be the president and women to be the vice-presidents. Women are home executives," Mrs. Fisher said.

Using frequent Bible quotes she explained that the Total Woman course advocates the strictly traditional marital role, but with a new dimension—fun in bed.

She promised her listeners would be the happiest women in the area after taking the seven-week course which is based on the assumption that marriage it's a wife's duty.

The Total Woman occasionally fails but husband at work and murmurs things about "goodies" that have happened to her, said Mrs. Fisher and author Marabel Morgan.

Mrs. Fisher described how her own marriage had foundered due to her self-centeredness, her compulsive housework and her nagging.

Total Woman changed all that, she said.

"I found out it was me who was drying up the communication between us. When I took the course and found out my mistakes things improved."

Before the two-day seminar ended, nearly all 300 women had signed up for the course which involves a series of weekly assignments.

The first assignment is to organize one's housework so it is done largely in the morning, leaving time in the afternoon for a leisurely bubble bath and grooming session before hubby gets home, Mrs. Fisher said.

Mrs. Fisher promised the women their husbands would shower them with "goodies" if they followed the rules.

But there are those who see Total Woman as a backlash to women's liberation.

"There are a lot of desperate women, unhappy in marriage, but unwilling to give it up," said Ruby Rhodes, editor of Miami psychiatrist Peggy Hutson said Total Woman helps women "who are qualling under the accusation of being just a wife and mother.

Delta College sociologist Dr. Jean Chepar said the course which is popular in the Bible Belt has "a certain support of many church organizations.

"If I were telling Total Women I would have called it 'Yassah Boss' because it relegates women to the position of second-class citizens in master-slave relationship," said Dr. Chepar, a marriage specialist.

Dr. Chepar said the course game might be fun once in awhile but a woman should be sure she wants to continue these games for the rest of her life.

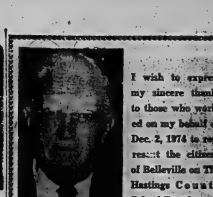
SEDUCTION AND BETRAYAL

By Elizabeth Hardwick

Emma's heroines, the Brontë sisters, Dorothy Wordsworth, Jane Carlyle, Virginia Woolf and Sylvia Plath are among the subjects of this extraordinary study of women in literature, whether as characters or creators, victims or victors.



Elizabeth Hardwick contrasts the moving heroism of the professional writings with the crazy accounts of "amateurs" like Dorothy Wordsworth, Jane Carlyle and Zelda Fitzgerald, women whose literary or historical existence was inseparable from their roles in the lives of great men.

Though the occasions for Ms. Hardwick's analyses are always works of literature or their authors, her real subject is life itself as it reveals itself through works of art, and particularly the complex, demanding, never satisfactory arrangements that women make with men.

This book is available in Corby Library.

Study Guild Hears About Malaysia

The Belleville women's Study Guild recently heard Harold Seldon speak on his visit to Sarawak, Malaysia.

He said primitive methods of childbirth result in a high incidence of infant mortality. Dr. Robert McClure former Moderator of the United Church, devised an antiseptic plastic kit which resulted in many infants being saved from infant tetanus and the difficulties of contaminating the method of its use to the native women was overcome.

Single women, knowing no English, came to Dr. McClure asking for B.T.L. (Bilateral Tubal Ligation) for sterilization.

Short wave phones are used in Sarawak he explained, and all traffic is by river as there are no roads through the jungle. Natives are being helped to improve methods of agriculture and health regulations against smallpox, diptheria and parasites are being introduced. The Industrious Chinese of Sarawak produce quantities of food from small patches of land. While the country is still very primitive, signs of modernization are evident and helicopters fly the occasional bulldozer into the area.

The Hosts, who were the original head hosters of Borneo, still have hanging in their long houses, dried skulls of their victims of former years, Mr. Seldon told the women.

They're Victims Of Snowmobilers

Young trees and shrubs, crops and sod are the regular victims of careless snowmobilers who use their machines recklessly.

Small evergreen plantings, for example, as are found in conservation areas, are often covered by only a light layer of snow and are frequently damaged by snowmobiles. Operated on lawns, fields of winter wheat or hay, they compact the snow, killing the crop or sod.

The manufacturers call it a "natural budget saver" and they may be right.

In fact, Church and Dwight, which produces baking soda says the stuff can offer relief from cash register indigestion as well the upset stomach indigestion causes.

They say you can substitute three tablespoon of baking soda per quart of water for wall cleaner and sprinkle dry soda on a damp sponge to scrub the tub. You can use it in the tub, too, instead of salts. Use soda for a heavy duty hand cleaner: wet your hands and rub them with dry soda. Grease, oil and pine pitch will disappear, they say. Brush your teeth, soak your feet and clean combs and brushes, all with soda. You can even use it to clean the battery terminals of your car. It's especially recommended for nursery cleaning because it's a 'pure food' product.

Whether or not you try baking soda for cleaning you should keep a box or can close to the stove at all time. When a grease fire flares up, toss handfuls of baking soda at the base of the flames. It releases carbon dioxide when it hits the fire and that puts the fire out.

There are two words that are apparently interchangeable in people's minds and the mistake could be unfortunate: the words are distilled and sterilized. Young parents often blithely feeding their babies distilled water from the drug store without boiling it. It's not sterile and should be boiled 15 minutes.

CELEBRATE HIS BIRTH...IN CHURCH

Our World Was Invaded Years Ago at Bethlehem

by

DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

According to writers of science fiction, strange power from outer space may be accumulating our planet hyperatory to an invasion.

There is on record, however, one invasion that is not a matter of speculation. Call it from outer space, call it from a realm beyond human ken. The beautiful Hebrew word "Emmanuel" means "God with us" (Matthew 1:23) GOD'S LIFE the spirit and message of Christmas.

The bold foundations of Christianity lie there in what used to be known as Palestine. The experience of the poor first Christians is a matter of history. Dr. W. Maltby has written, "When the apostles said their prayers to God at night they had another face on the screen, of their mind and they fell asleep, thinking of Jesus."

But Christmas is not confined to looking back with nostalgia. Whether in the beginning of Christian era or the twentieth century, whether in times of ease or hardship, whether at home or in a foreign land, in an innumerable company of people are singing in unison of faith, "God is with us".

Perhaps we are tempted to restrict God's activity to the beauty of the sanctuary and the moving prayer a child. If so, here is food for thought

Missionary Work Is Hard

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — "If you wear your heart on your shirtsleeve, you're in trouble."

That's what Mormon missionary Donald Fink, of Ogden, Utah, thinks of tracting—door-to-door soliciting.

Elder Fink, a United States army veteran, now a missionary in Ontario, added that sometimes he's convinced that Vietnam was a breeze compared to knocking on doors.

"There's no way you can picture what it's like," said Mr. Fink of tracting in Ogden. "I assume people want to listen . . . you're not expecting slamming doors."

Mr. Fink is a newcomer to the mission field. His partner, Elder Jeff Squires, of Provo, Utah, has been in Canada for two years.

Missionaries come from all walks of life—Mr. Fink is a contractor, Mr. Squires a college student but each has signed up for a two-year term in the mission, which means spending their own meals, doing their own wash, and, of course, knocking on doors.

In what Pastor Dietrich Bonhoeffer wrote in one of his "Letters from Prison", dated just before Christmas, 1943. You may recall that Bonhoeffer was imprisoned by the Nazis.

In this letter, he wrote, "For a Christian, there is nothing particularly different about Christmas in a prison cell. That misery, suffering, poverty, loneliness, helplessness, and guilt look very different in the view of God from what they do to man, that God should come down in the very place which man uncanily abhor, that Christ was born in a stable because there was no room for him in the inn — these things a prisoner can understand better than anyone else."

There is this sense in which God is with us. We often speak of someone being "with us" when we mean that we have his understanding, his sympathy, his support. Do we appreciate the "presentness" of Christmas? It is the primary celebration of God who is our contemporary.

Moreover, here is the full glory of the Christian religion: we are fighting in a war, a real war, a war in the finish against evil, sin and death, in which victory was not ahead of us but behind us.

Of course, it is a victory that will not be complete until the end, but it has been assured since it was won, in practice, not just at Easter, not just on Calvary, but starting with the invasion at Bethlehem.

Indeed, what Christ said, God has said. What Christ did, God does. What Christ was, God is for ever.

CP News Roundup

PC Sees Payoff In Loans

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused Friday by Progressive Conservative Sinclair Stevens of paying off its friends through Export Development Corporation (EDC) loans.

Mr. Stevens (York Simcoe) raised the issue during debate on a bill designed to increase the Crown corporation's loan ceilings.

He said Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Lauzon, Que., a subsidiary of Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. of Montreal, was the top EDC customer in 1973 with loans totalling $137.9 million.

"Is it just coincidence . . . that the president of Canada Steamship Lines happens to be Paul Martin Jr.?"

Mr. Martin is the son of Paul Martin, high commissioner to London and a former senior and Liberal cabinet minister.

Third on the list, behind Montreal Engineering Co., which received assistance totalling $78.8 million, was Marine Industries Ltd. of Montreal whose chairman and several other executives were members of the wealthy Simard family in Quebec connected "with prominent Liberals," including Premier Robert Bourassa.

Get $1,000

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 8,500 community college teachers, without a contract since Sept. 1, 1973, were each given an interim salary award Friday worth up to $1,000.

A three-member arbitration board which has been working on an agreement covering the 22 colleges since last October, ordered that the money be paid before the end of December.

Layoffs High

OSHAWA (CP) — The number of workers laid off temporarily from the General Motors of Canada Ltd. plant here by the end of January is estimated at 1,845, a company spokesman said Friday.

Settled

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey announced Friday settlement of a long-standing post office workers' dispute that in April resulted in a national wildcat strike.

Answering a question in the Commons from Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) the minister said orders in the post office now are receiving wages equal to those of manual workers.

Lose Land

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's failure to adopt a provincial land-use policy has resulted in higher food prices, Jack Hale of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said Friday.

About 227,000 acres of farmland are being taken out of production each year, he said in an interview. The majority of the land was located near the urban centres of Hamilton, Ottawa and Toronto.

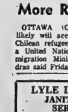
"This land, while being the best land for development, also is the best land in the best climactic zone for farming, he said."

Costs Double

MONTREAL (CP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Olympic Games and the City of Montreal announced Friday the total cost of Olympic site construction has risen to $580 million from the original estimate of $259 million.

Olympic revenues, originally estimated at $310 million, have also been revised to $450 million.

PC Shuffle



OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has shuffled his caucus committee chairmen—in effect, his shadow cabinet—and promoted Sinclair Stevens (York-Simcoe) to the important finance co-chairmanship from corporate affairs.

Mr. Stanfield is the other co-chairman of that committee, and both men will be the chief financial critics in the House.

More Refugees

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada likely will accept another 2,000 Chilean refugees in response to a United Nations request, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Friday.

Legislators' Holiday To Be Short This Year

TORONTO (CP) — The fourth session of the 29th Ontario legislature released Friday for what might be the shortest mid-winter break in the careers of the province's 117 legislators.

Traditionally, the house ends sittings just before Christmas and doesn't take up its task again until at least February.

But 1975 will see politicians back in the legislature in January, facing a possible strike by at least 30,000 civil servants and much unfinished business.

Premier William Davis has blamed the heavy workload for postponement of his planned mid-January visit to Israel.

Two items of business—the revamping of the province's electoral boundaries which might add eight seats to the legislature and setting ground rules for election finances—are to clear the legislature before an election is called, the premier has promised.

The Conservative majority government, which owns into office in the fall of 1971, has un-

Proposed Snowmobile Law Eased

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government eased down new regulations Friday governing operation of snowmobiles, especially as they affect farmers, after criticism Friday from Progressive Conservative backbenchers and opposition members.

However, Frank Drea (PC—Scarborough Centre) said the amendments might cause the government "an administrative nightmare."

He was referring primarily to an amendment to the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act, 1974, that will not make it necessary for property owners or occupants to have licences or to register their snowmobiles if—they are used exclusively on their property.

The new government legislation had provided for all snowmobile operators to be licensed and for all vehicles to be registered annually for a $10. fee.

Now, annual registration will be required only for vehicles that will be taken off private property. Vehicles that are to remain on private property must be registered only once, when they are purchased.

Also removed from the bill, which was given royal assent just before the legislature adjourned for Christmas, was a provision that would have banned snowmobiles from roads in all municipalities unless local bylaws were passed to make exceptions to the law.

It now is up to local municipalities to pass laws banning the snowmobiles from their streets.

The ban will still apply to all highways or secondary highways under the province's jurisdiction. Snowmobiles still be allowed only to cross them, not travel along the highways or shoulders.

Students Experience Ancestors' Culture

OTTAWA (CP) — Local students are doing more than just reading about Canadian pioneer life in textbooks; they are experiencing it first-hand.

It's part of a program being piloted at the Ottawa board of education's MacDonnell outdoor education centre.

The students are bused 37 miles east of the Ottawa city limits to an 1870s pioneer village site in the formal town of Cumberland, Ont. For the duration of their 36-hour visit, assisted by a staff of 40, they recreate the customs, customs and traditions of their homelands.

A spokesman for the centre says that although there are other learning centres in Canada, MacDonnell is unique because it is the only one that is a full-fledged farm, complete with horses, chickens and cows.

The 32,000 school children visiting the site during the year have the opportunity to dress in pioneer costumes. Once attired they visit such structures as the local livery stable, candle-making store and cordwainer general store and inn.

They may participate in ice-c eam makin' rug-hooking and square dancing. At night they sleep in one of six pioneer homes built on the 200-acre property.

The 37 square-timbered buildings were all contributed by supporters of the centre.

It is part of a total program aimed at helping children to appreciate and understand the environment of the Th-en lies "the p- ... ty," a future not completely buried in cement ... supporters of the centre said.

City-bred children lose contact with fast-paced urban living and modern technology and return to the woods and the world of nature. Country life is experienced as their forefathers once lived it.

Other activities offered by the school are fish-tagging, water pollution studies, waterfowl banding and observation, map and compass exercises, vegetation and forestry studies, maple-syrup making, sheep-shearing and beekeeping.

Dave Osborn, director of the centre, said, "We've given the school board something that's priceless". With enough money the centre could handle an extra 10,000 children each yea.

Teeming World Is Seen At Historic Watershed

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A small, blue-green planet battled the battle through space and time its creatures of vast fame, its creatures numerous and multiplying. Yet a few grasped most of the planet's stock, while the majority hungered.

The eternal Observer said An-nayer of the planet's potential growth toward maturity saw the dangerously unbalanced condition of His creatures.

Sustaining "the least" of them was necessary to serve the whole, He concluded. As the weakest are helped, so the benefit is felt by all, by creatures being Itself.

"As you did it to one of the least of these, My brethren, you did it to Me."

It is an instructive image for a planet swept by shadows of starvation, flaring with a sudden buying rush on its limited resources, a rush ruled by those most able to pay, the wealthiest. And left behind is the ravenously hungry, multiplying hordes of the poor.

International experts see the situation as highly volatile, crackling with instabilities.

A "time of extraordinary danger," says historian Elspeth Rostow, portending mass starvation, social breakdown and a spreading wave of disorder if the rich nations withdraw into self-interest and "try to wrap our oceans around us."

"We are at a critical watershed of history," says Rev. Theodore Hesburgh president of University of Notre Dame and board chairman of the Overseas Development Council. He says the world faces either a more equitable distribution of its goods and capabilities or engulfing upheavals and "injustices of monstrous proportions."

Economist James P. Grant says the world's abundant one billion has begun pre-empting necessities of the poorest one billion.

It has been found that the poor resist birth-control programs, instinctively producing large numbers of offspring as a hedge against the heavy odds of dying, particularly among the young.

This had rendered birth-control efforts largely ineffective, except when accompanied by improved social-economic conditions, resulting in a continued rise in population which at the present rate will double to around seven billion by the century's end.

"Interdependence, not independence, is the only way forward for the whole civilization and all its parts, including the giants," says Lutheran theologian Carl E. Braaten.

British economist Barbara Ward suggests that the richer countries give a third of their annual increase in gross national product toward developing poor nations.

This would mean the rich still would be getting richer, only more slowly, she said, and at the same time would blunt the impact of widening starvation.

The U.S. and Canada dominate the world's vital grain production—65 per cent of it—but the rising prices offered for it have diverted most of the share that used to go to the poor away from them and into profits. Noting that the U.S. controls many grain exports than the Arabs do oil, Presbyterian Eugene Carson Blake says:

"We are the Arabs of the food crisis, and we cashed in before they did."

Church World Service, the Protestant-Orthodox agency, has suggested that the United States set a ceiling on its foreign food exports, with a minimum 10-per cent hold given to hungry lands rather than continuing to shift it from relief to commercial profits because of market demand.

Bishop James S. Rausch, general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference, — in a statement for U.S. bishops, says:

"When human beings starve and die because they lack a resource we predominantly control, the use of the law of the market as a sole means of distributing this resource has transgressed not only the standard of the court but also the minimal standards of responsible moral behavior."

Your government's position on negotiations with the Civil Service Association of Ontario.

The Government of Ontario has offered the CSAO an average 20% pay increase over one year and is prepared to go to arbitration. CSAO leadership has refused this offer and also refuses to go to arbitration. We believe, as your government, we have offered a fair and reasonable contract.

For almost three months now the Government of Ontario has been trying to negotiate a new collective agreement with the Civil Service Association of Ontario covering some 19,000 civil servants in the Operational Services Category.

With less than two weeks' negotiating time left before the current contract expires and the CSAO threatening an illegal strike on January 1st if it doesn't have a new agreement by then, we thought it was time to let you, the taxpayers of Ontario, know directly how and where things stand.

After all, it is your tax dollars that will be used to pay for any wage settlement we make with these employees. And it is your services that will be threatened with disruption if the CSAO carries out its threat of an illegal walkout.

The government has tried to negotiate in good faith.

The CSAO first served its demands on the government on September 27th. The Association told us then it wanted a 61½ per cent wage increase in a one-year contract for 1975.

That didn't seem to government negotiators to be a serious or realistic demand on which to base negotiations and we began a series of meetings with CSAO representatives to try and discover where the real bargaining area lay. We met twice in October and again for two days early in November.

During those meetings we set forth our counter-proposals. First, we suggested a two-year contract with wage increases of 10 to 16 per cent in the first year and 8 per cent in the second.

Despite written assurance that this was a negotiable offer, the CSAO leadership insisted on taking it to its membership and, on that basis, on getting a mandate for an illegal strike if there was no agreement by January 1st.

The CSAO membership vote took two weeks and it wasn't until December 2nd and 3rd that we were able to sit down again with Association representatives. At these meetings, as they had from the outset, CSAO negotiators refused to move from their initial demand for a 61½ per cent wage increase—an increase that would cost you, the taxpayers of Ontario, almost $100 million in additional wage bills in 1975.

Given this situation, government negotiators decided a major move was necessary. Since the CSAO had been insisting that the government make an offer it could take back to its membership, on December 3rd our representatives put their full mandate on the bargaining table.

The government has made a fair and reasonable wage offer.

The offer tabled by government negotiators on December 3rd represented a considerable move from our initial position. In recognition of the uncertainties caused by Canada's current inflationary climate, we proposed a one-year contract which would allow both sides to return to the bargaining table in 12 months when we could review the economic situation at that time.

For the 12 months of 1975, we proposed wage increases averaging 20 per cent for the 19,000 employees involved. The increases actually ranged from 15 to 23 per cent, depending on the employee group involved, but more than 80 per cent of the civil servants would receive 20 per cent or more. The cost to the taxpayers of these increases would be $32.7 million in 1975.

The government made this proposal in a sincere attempt to be fair and reasonable with its employees, while, at the same time, recognizing its wider responsibilities to the taxpayers and economy of our province. Our research, based on surveys of more than 120 employers in Ontario, indicated that our wage levels would be competitive with those paid elsewhere in the province for comparable work. In fact, the 20 per cent increase for one year compared with an average annual increase of 14.5 per cent in contracts signed in recent months by private employers in Ontario.

The government is moving to improve the collective bargaining system.

Concurrently, but separate from the actual wage negotiations, government representatives have been discussing with the CSAO and other employee organizations possible changes in the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act which governs collective bargaining for public servants.

On December 5th the Hon. Eric Winkler, Chairman of the Management Board, introduced the government's proposed amendments in the Legislature. The Bill recommends a number of changes in the Act, including three highly significant ones:

(1) It proposes a revision in the method of appointing arbitration boards (the ultimate recourse under the law to settle differences) to ensure that the makeup of these boards does not appear to favor either side. Under the proposed change, the employee agent and the employer each would name one member to the board and they, in turn, would agree on the choice of a neutral third person as chairman. This amendment responds directly to one of the major demands made by the CSAO in its campaign against the Act.

(2) Similar changes would be made to ensure full and equal employee representation on the Public Service Grievance Board and the Ontario Public Service Labor Relations Tribunal, the other two major bodies established under the Act.

(3) If these amendments are accepted by the Legislature, employees henceforth would be able to bargain on such matters as promotions, demotions, transfers, layoffs and the classification and job evaluation system. Under the present law, all of these are considered management's prerogative. The proposed amendments also provide an opportunity, short of actual bargaining, for employee representatives to discuss and review with the employer the governing principles of the merit system, training and development, appraisal and super annuation.

The government wants a settlement — but it must be prepared for an illegal strike.

During recent days, there has been one new development. On December 13th the CSAO, for the first time, formally dropped its demand for a 61½ per cent wage increase and said, instead, it wanted a 41 per cent hike for 1975. At the time this statement was prepared the government had replied that it could not in all responsibility accept a demand of that magnitude.

The government, for its part, remains ready to negotiate seriously and in good faith within the framework of its December 3rd proposal. We have already offered to submit the issue to an arbitration board to be set up under the terms of the proposed amendments to the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act.

In the meantime, since January 1st isn't far away, the government has had to formulate contingency plans in the event the CSAO leadership persists in calling an illegal strike. We hope that doesn't happen. We expect that our employees won't break the law. But if they do, we are determined to meet our responsibility to maintain those services you rightfully expect to receive from your government.

We believe we have been fair and reasonable with our employees and responsible to you as taxpayers and to the economy of our province.

New Theory Wife Made King Beast

LONDON (Reuter) — Did Henry VIII become like a beast because of the affair one of his six wives, Catherine of Aragon, had with her priest?

That is the theory in a new book, Tremens of Clay, which deals with medical studies of historical figures.

Its Danish author, Dr. Ove Hoick, says damage in King Henry's brain, caused by syphilis perhaps passed on to him by Catherine, may explain why the king behaved like a megalomaniac.

Syphilis was ravaging all Europe in Henry's day and Catherine's frequent miscarriages and stillbirths may also have been due to the disease.

Between the death of her first husband, Henry's elder brother Arthur, and her marriage to the king, she was reported to have had an intimate and scandalous relationship with a Spanish monk.

She refused to give him up until he was convicted at Inquisition.

Pleasure-loving as a young man before his first marriage at the age of 18, Henry later acted like a syphilitic madman—though it might also have been his natural temperament coming out when things stopped going well for him, worsened by his alcoholism and obesity.

But the only sure way to find out now would be to examine his skeleton for signs of the disease.

Among other theories cited in the book was that, despite historians, Beethoven's deafness who unlikely to have been caused by venereal disease.

And Shakespeare probably stopped writing plays after he had completed The Tempest he came he suffered from writer's cramp.

Housing Subsidies Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government acted Thursday to broaden its housing program which provides mortgage payments and rental subsidies of up to $50 a month for low-and middle-income families.

The measures, in National Housing Act amendments introduced in the Commons by Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson, extend the Assisted Home Ownership Program (AHOP) to provide federal subsidies to new home buyers who obtain financing through private mortgage loans, rather than the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC).

Mr. Danson said the legislation will have high priority when the Commons returns in late January from its Christmas recess.

No Violation

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney General Robert Welch said in a news release Thursday that there was no violation of abortion laws in an abortion at Niagara Falls, Ont. in which the child lived for 2½ hours after it was delivered.

Treated Well

TORONTO (CP) — Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, tabled a report in the legislature Thursday that said Northern Ontario has been treated well under the province's loans program for industrial development.

Christmas Raffles St. John's Tradition

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "Come on in, you can't, we suicide," says the voice over the loudspeaker as an forty wind dryes cold rain over the crowds of Christmas shoppers along Water Street in downtown St. John's.

The voice is inviting shoppers to buy tickets and a chance for a prize in the annual remaking Christmas raffle on Water Street.

The raffle, a sort of lottery based on a wheel-of-fortune arrangement, is run by the Christian Brothers Roman Catholic order and the proceeds will go mainly for Christmas cheer for the 180 boys in Mount Cashel Orphanage.

The Christian Brothers, an Irish order that came to Newfoundland in 1876, have operated the raffle for more than 30 years.

The ringing of hand-held bells inviting passersby to buy raffle tickets has been part of the Christmas shopping tradition on the waterfront street for perhaps two decades.

The hand bells were replaced in recent years by recordings and now all but the annual Mount Cashel raffle have disappeared.

"I don't think the raffle will die out," said Brother Thorne who organized and runs this year's fund-raising effort.

"We can't do without it—we need the money," said the brother, who, like his fellows in Mount Cashel monastery does not use his first name.

Inflation and changing tastes have allowed some aspects of the raffle's tradition.

Last year, tickets were two for five cents. This year the cost is 10 cents for five tickets.

The prizes have changed as well. Once winners could choose turkeys, chickens or roasts of beef. Now it is mostly plush toys and candies.

"We have to provide what people are looking for but some still ask for poultry," said Brother Thorne.

There was another change this year in the way winners come up with lucky numbers. Instead of the traditional wheel of fortune, lights flash across a map of Newfoundland. The number under the last light to flash identifies a winning ticket.

Brother Thorne said many an obvious tradition of support for the orphanage.

"We see familiar faces and some are making weeks ahead of time when we'll open the raffle."

The goods offered as prizes are obtained at wholesale prices by the brothers.

A growing difficulty is obtaining temporary use of a ground floor room opening directly onto the street in an area where real estate, and rental values are high.

But the brothers have always managed to find a place. They don't want to move the raffle to the uptown shopping plazas and tradition is only part of the reason.

"On Water Street, people will come in out of the cold while waiting for a bus," Brother Thorne said.

"Besides, those who come every year always find us on Water Street."

Diplomat's Witty Diaries Made into Intriguing Book

By ARCH MacKENZIE

The Canadian Press Charles Ritchie, senior diplomat now retired, was thought sometimes to bear too close a resemblance to the elitist British foreign office chap to sound the most effective voice for Canada abroad.

That was especially true in Washington of the early 1950s as the boisterous Texas legions of President Lyndon Baines Johnson spread through town.

But Mr. Ritchie has goes far to scatter any remaining critics unimpressed by an external affairs career in the top Canadian posts at the United Nations, Bonn, Washington, NATO and London.

He has written a book called The Siren Years, a personal first based on his diaries and certainly unique in the scanty collection of belles lettres produced by former colleagues.

There are the views of a young lady-living diplomat in prewar Washington and wartime London, warm, extremely well written, poignant in evoking a vanished era and penetrating about the people who live war's course and the shape of the Canada to come.

Mr. Ritchie is a Halifax aristocratically-bonded nose, born gentleman with an British manners of speech honestly come by and the aura of kinship to British nobility. He also has a wicked wit that has left legions of Charles Ritchie stories circulating at dinner tables at home and abroad.

His book explains why, contrasting his activities in London with the late Vincent Massey and the late Lester B. Pearson and on his afternoon associations with the high-born, the fashionable and the fevered pace of wartime society.

His writes:

"Bernard Shaw penned me today bowling down Jermyn Street in a grey Tussers silk suit like a man of 34 with false eyebrows and a cotton beard."

"The common people of England deserve a few breaks and if it is socialism they want, they should have it."

"Gossip about Hadin (who) . . . hated Soviet but takes a great interest in the Windsor-Wallis) Simpson story, He cannot understand why Mrs. Simpson was not liquidated."

"This war is digging deeper the gulf between Anglo-Canadians and French-Canadians—the fatal word 'conscription' may haunt us after the war. . . . It is a disgrace that those Anglo-Montrealers do not speak French."

"I sometimes think that Canadians, who are at heart a sensitive, pugnacious, voluble and amorous race, are only released by whisky."

"Luncheon with Mackenzie King and was charmed by the fat little conjurer with his flickering, shifty eyes and appliqué smile. . . . He chats away incessantly—he secrets very pleased with himself."

At the book's end, Mr. Ritchie has attended the founding convention in San Francisco of the United Nations with a foretaste of the Soviet tactics that would help spawn a generation or more of cold war tensions.

The Siren Years, A Canadian Diplomat Abroad. 1937-1945, by Charles Ritchie, Macmillan of Canada, $11.95

Lung Disease Being Studied

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — A government-sponsored research project is being launched to study the prevention of lung disease in textile workers.

Undertaken by the Shirley Institute, a major textile research centre, the 31-year project aims to cut down the number of workers who contract pneumonia, a lung disease caused by inhaling particles of cotton dust and fibres.

For some years the danger of byssinosis has been reduced by air-cleaning equipment, but the greater speed and productivity of new machinery has once more created a health hazard. The project will specifically concentrate on improving the working environments of beaming and winding departments.

The Shirley Institute has had considerable success in dealing with a similar dust problem in the cardroom sections of textile mills. The development of the Shirley "pressure point dust control system has permitted cleaner air in cardrooms and led to a marked reduction in byssinosis.

To all of our customers: best wishes for a happy holiday. May our friendships continue.

MPs Go Home With Old Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs and MPs do and the financial debates went home for Christmas without a pay raise Friday and Prime Minister Trudeau said it is "probably a good thing."

The delay, said the new year, will force MPs to return to their ridings and justify a salary increase to their constituents, he told a news conference as Parliament adjourned until Jan. 21.

"If they can't . . . it's just too bad."

Two attempts to approve last minute raises before adjournment faltered under NDP and public opposition.

The first, introduced in the Commons Monday, would have raised the basic pay and tax-free allowances for MPs to $38,000 from $28,000, and for senators to $33,000 from $23,000.

The furore that greeted the proposed 36-per-cent increase prompted the government, to scale it down later in the week to 25 1/2 per cent with annual cost-of-living raises.

NDP STANDS FIRM

The New Democrats remained opposed and the issue was left until the new year.

Mr. Trudeau said reprsentatives of all parties had agreed to the 25-per-cent increase and since it was not a normal "government" initiative no attempt would be made by the government to justify it. This would be up to individual MPs when they are home over the holidays.

"We're not going to stick our necks out."

But personally he thought the proposed increase was "not unreasonable" in view of the work load MPs by and large are doing a darned good job."

The sidetracked pay-increase bill, introduced by Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, also combined substantial additional raises for cabinet ministers.

The $15,000 that cabinet ministers now receive above their basic salaries and allowances would rise by $25,000 and the total per min. Prime Minister Trudeau, the highest-paid government member, would jump to $84,000 annually from $53,000.

Mr. Trudeau said these increases, unchanged in the altered pay proposal, would be the first for cabinet ministers since 1954.

He said he wasn't interested in a pay raise for himself but for future prime ministers. His personal wealth is reputed to put him in the millionaire class.

He told reporters there is never a "right time" to raise salaries for MPs, senators, civil servants or judges. Another bill introduced this week, also unpassed would raise the salaries of federally-appointed judges by up to 75 per cent.

Other than the controversy over salaries, he said he was satisfied with the accomplishments of Parliament since it opened Sept. 30 for the first post-election session.

One-quarter of the 64 bills introduced had been passed—"very good work indeed." The rest of bills tabled represent nearly all of the 66-point legislative program outlined when Parliament was opened, he said.

Plea for Milk Subsdiy Is Rejected in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs called on the government Friday for specific action against rising food prices.

The food prices review board reported Thursday food costs will increase at least 16 per cent next year.

As MPs prepared to adjourn for a month, Conservatives and New Democrats urged the government to bring back a five-cent-a-quart subsidy on milk, which is being phased out.

The government brushed aside the suggestion.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons he is hoping for a better performance, but "it's an area of conjecture, I can't contradict it."

Ed Broadbent, New Democrat parliamentary leader, similarly got nowhere when he asked Finance Minister John Turner how the board's forecast compares with his department's estimate about next year's food prices.

The finance department does not make forecasts about matters that are as variable as food prices, Mr. Turner replied.

Bribery Probe Might Be $10 Watergate

OTTAWA (CP) — Depending on how it's handled, the forthcoming committee inquiry into alleged bribery of the Parliamentary Press Gallery might become a sort of $10 Watergate.

Even if there is no substance to allegations that some MPs have bribed reporters, the hearings themselves are bound to create excitement far beyond that normally accorded committee studies. When the press is under attack there is a tendency for reporters to provide excessive coverage to lurid suggestions of news supression.

The hearings which open Jan. 28 into allegations by Social Credit Leader Real Caouette is a sure-fire bet to attract this excessive coverage. Anyway, alleged bribery is a highly readable subject, much sexier than dreary debates on petroleum.

And committee members, being politicians, are not traditionally reverse to publicity, so the hearings may be stretched beyond the time normally given to examining, say, the importation of South Korean footwear.

Rod Blaker (L—Montreal) of the privileges committee, has said that "we will want the broadest possible opportunity for anyone to give evidence." If all 264 MPs and all 100 members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery offer their views on the subject, the opportunities would indeed be broad.

Mr. Blaker says the committee does not yet know its terms of reference. Will the studies go beyond the confines of alleged cash bribery to talk about the free or subsidized, though Parliament. These include free stationery, working space on Parliament Hill, government telephones and other services reporters receive office supplies.

Community Rallies For Seniors' Yule

Residents of Hasting manor and city nursing homes have an active social life at the Christmas season.

"There's busier than you and I," says the manager of Belcrest Nursing Home.

Church groups and schools provide entertainment at Hastings Manor for those of the 200 residents who can attend concerts.

"There is some group here afternoons and evenings almost every day of the week", says Hastings Manor administrator Clan Whitehead.

The manor auxiliary gives a party in Christmas week and distributes small gifts to residents. Every resident gets one.

"Elderly people don't want to move out of the building when the weather turns cold," says Mr. Whitehead.

However, outings are arranged for them. Dec. 18 the Elsmere Club sponsored a bus ride to Hastings County museum for residents of the a'gth from Santa Christmas Manor and city nursing homes. Following the museum visit the residents were taken on a tour of the city to see the Christmas lights.

The staff of the Manor gave its own Christmas concert for residents on Dec. 20.

Senior citizens have plenty of opportunity to do their Christmas shopping. They are taken to the Mall the first Wednesday of every month to shop, with members of staff along to advise.

"They like to see the new styles, and the staff will make arrangements to return any purchases they decide they don't want to keep," says Mr. Whitehead.

Only about 10 per cent of the residents leave the Manor for Christmas holidays.

"They like to stay here for Christmas dinner, among their friends," says the administrator. "We have dinner at noon so that those who want to join their families for the afternoon can do so."

Montgomery Lodge, typical of nursing homes in the area, also reports visits by groups that put on entertainments and concerts. The Tillernacie Junior Choir has sung there and the Pioneer Girls of the Baptist Church. The Salvation Army visits nursing homes to sing carols and distribute small gifts. The choir from St. Joseph's Church sings annually in nursing homes.

A highlight of the Christmas season at Montgomery Lodge was a wine and cheese party Dec 11, put on by the staff for residents. On Christmas day there will be wine with dinner and the nursing home will provide a gift for each resident.

Three BCI students and a sorority helped to decorate the building early in December.

Accountants Graduate

Three Belleville residents were designated as registered industrial accountants recently, following a five-year course.

They are Nick Dykstra, field auditor for the department of national revenue, Robert Popp, plant accountant for Brooke Bond Foods and Donald Tapp, auditor with the department of national defence.

The course involves data processing, organizational behavior, economics, management processes and problems, statistics and business law. The five-year program may be completed either in night courses or through correspondence.

New Law Would Enforce Maintenance of Property

A basic draft of a minimum standards bylaw is ready for the city, a planning source said Friday.

The bylaw as it name implies, outlines what the minimum standards are and provides council with the necessary leverage to order the owner to have restorative work done within a certain number of days.

"The bylaw will require a property be kept in a good, repaired condition," said Mayor Robin Affrey, who listed the bylaw as one of her priorities for the coming year. "The legislation will make buildings safe for people to live in and improves the building's appearance."

The mayor said "certain properties in the city have been allowed to go downhill and that these properties will be taken care of in the new minimum standards bylaw."

The minimum standards bylaw goes hand in hand with the city's official plan and zoning bylaw, and in fact, will not be formally passed until both of the planning documents have received provincial government approval.

However, it is likely the minimum standards bylaw will be released before that time for council discussion.

Asked how soon Belleville would have a completed standards bylaw, Mayor Jeffrey said it depends entirely upon how quickly the province adjudicates the official plan. "We cannot deviate from the formula," said the mayor.

—"This bylaw is something the people of Belleville have needed for a long time," said the mayor. "Because of the lack of accommodation at reasonable rent, people are forced to live in homes that may not be safe," said the mayor. With a minimum standards bylaw this would no longer be possible.

The bylaw would be policed by the city's building inspection department — a department the mayor said would probably have to be "beefed" up a little to handle the new work.

The bylaw that Belleville will eventually get will be a composite picture of similar pieces of legislation now in effect in several Ontario municipalities.

"We're going to make our bylaw by taking the best out of all of the others," said the mayor.

Community College Teachers Settle

An arbitration board interim salary award to 5,500 teachers in Ontario's 22 community colleges Friday "means that the dispute is settled," said Paul Wall, Loyalist College union branch president, this morning.

Mr. Wall said the award will be implemented before the end of the year, so teachers will not be faced with the total increase of the final award next year. The interim Salary award represent an average income tax saving of about $55 for each teacher.

The board, headed by Mr. Justice Willard Estey, awarded interim payments of $1,000 to those teachers on staff Dec. 31, 1973, and $500 to teachers hired since that date who are still on staff. The teachers are members of the Civil Servants Association of Ontario, (CSAO).

The teachers have been without a collective agreement since Sept. 1, 1973. During the past year, they boycotted arbitration because they said the makeup of the board under the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act stacked the representation 2-1 in favor of management.

In October, 1974, the CSAO was successful in obtaining an independent chairman for the board when Judge J.C. Anderson, a government appointee, agreed to step aside. The union then agreed to go to arbitration.

A final award on salary and a decision on other contract issues is expected sometime in January.

Mr. Wall commented, "I think it's fine, because all during the projected negotiations ... management would make offers without prejudice on an interim basis."

But he noted the union cannot accept on other contract because it is always looking at everything management can offer.

Meeks Disputes Salmon Turndown

City Alderman Stu Meeks will meet with minister of natural resources Alan Bernier soon to appeal the province's apparent decision against introducing salmon in the Moira River.

"I am very, very upset that a ministry biologist said what he did about the Moira as a salmon river," said Ald. Meeks.

The biologist pointed to a bay study currently being undertaken and a shortage of stocking salmon in his remarks as to why it would not be likely that the Moira would be stocked.

"I don't agree in any way, shape or form with this," said Ald. Meeks. "Until he spends more time on the water, I don't think he's qualified to comment."

Ald. Meeks said "we don't want to sit back for years waiting for reports. I am sick of reports and I'm sure the public is too if we make a mistake in bringing salmon in the Moira, we'll stand by our judgement."

Clubs Join For Yule Celebration

TRENTON — Several hundred Trenton families, their children in particular, will enjoy a much happier Christmas due to the effort of members of four local service clubs.

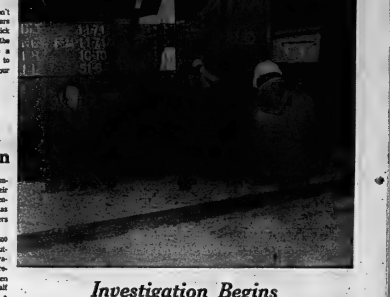
This year, more than 1,500 separate toys will be distributed to youngsters in the Salvation Army hamper as the result of the Trenton Kinsmen Club annual two-and-a-half week drive which ended a week ago.

The club is grateful to Belleville firemen for a large donation of toys from the firemen's ambitious collecting this year.

This Monday night, Trenton Rotarians devote their regular meeting at the Redwood Motor Hotel to children and grandchildren of members. The gala party features a visit from Santa Claus provided this year as a free service under the sponsorship of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

A week ago, 80 lucky children shared a festive event with Trenton Kinsmen Club members holding their annual Christmas party and regular meeting at the Trenton country club. Kinsmanna pitch in Monday night helping the Salvation Army deliver hampers to 200 families in the community.

Early Tuesday morning Trenton Lions Club members play host to invited guests at a Christmas breakfast meeting in their clubhouse on Campbell St. The Lions this month pioneered a new project providing transportation for blind residents in the community for outings to events in Belleville and local outings.



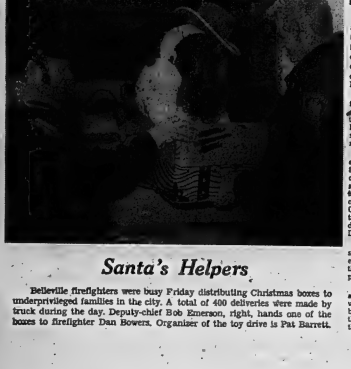
Doctor's Office Broken Into

City police are investigating a break-in at a doctor's office on 109 Victoria Ave. Police said the office of Dr. William Seward was broken into sometime Thursday night or Friday morning.

Nothing was taken in the break-in, said police. Entry was gained by breaking open a basement level window.

Making Sure

Frank Becker, supervisor for passenger sales service with Canadian National, takes details from Gaston Auger, 44, of Ottawa, one of a group of passengers which arrived by special train in Belleville from the train collision site near Napanee Friday night. Mr. Auger, who was in one of the derailed cars, was taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital for examination of a former shoulder injury, thought to be aggravated in the crash.



Investigation Begins

Canadian National investigators began immediately searching through the wreckage of a passenger and a freight train to determine what led to the head-on collision Friday night which claimed the lives of two Belleville engineers. Canadian National has not determined what might have caused the accident.

A Song Of Christmas

The children of Loyalist College Manpower retraining students cheered in song Friday night at the arrival of Christmas. The children got a sneak preview of Santa Claus and filled their appetites with cake, candy and milk.

Santa's Helpers

Belleville firefighters were busy Friday distributing Christmas boxes to underprivileged families in the city. A total of 400 deliveries were made by truck during the day. Deputy-chief Bob Emerson, right, hands one of the boxes to firefighter Dan Bowers. Organizer of the toy drive is Pat Barrett.

Snowmobilers Ferry Victims To Ambulances

Approximately 20 Napanee-area snowmobilers came to the rescue Friday night, ferrying stranded and injured passengers from the scene of a Canadian National, head-on collision, 12 miles east of Napanee.

Early rescue attempts on foot came close to foundering as men and women slogged their way one mile to the Highway 133 through snow sometimes knee-deep to the site of the crash.

The collision, which occurred on the CN's main line at 8.30 p.m., claimed the lives of two Belleville railroad engineers, Keith Boyle and Ray Mortimore. James Book, also of Belleville, fireman on Ottawa-to-Toronto passenger train, remains in serious condition in Kingston's Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Hauling all manner of sleds, the snowmobilers forged across farm fields and through fences, beating a path for road vehicles.

Every available ambulance in the Kingston region was dispatched to the scene but could come no closer than 400 yards to the scene of the crash.

Hospital Staff Ready For Christmas Dinner

They're getting ready to cook the biggest dinner of the Quinte Christmas.

Scene of the kingsize kitchen carving operation will be the meals sector of Belleville General Hospital.

As usual, the hospital's yuletide menu this year is as traditional as any festive household's — turkey, cranberries, plum pudding.

There the similarity dwindles.

Compared to the supply flow that must be organized out of BGH's kitchens, the Christmas-catering chores of the typical home seems almost mundane.

This year, for instance, BGH expects to prepare close to 1,000 dinners, estimates Stan Leversedge.

As director of dietary services, Mr. Leversedge's assignment to have the huge serving of festive food organized and dispatched throughout the hospital.

The fact hospitals strive to release home as many patients as possible for the day, doesn't lighten the cooking load as much as might be expected.

For instance, there may be 300 patients still in hospital Dec 25, the dietary director calculates.

But BGH also has developed the custom of serving dinner to any spouse or friend spending Christmas Day at a patient's bedside.

Then there's the staff of nurses and other support workers to provide for.

To meet this demand may mean cooking as many as 30 big turkeys 120 pounds of potatoes and 60 pounds of plum pudding.

Work schedules also are arranged so that some catering staff members have the day off. This means the big meal must be prepared with less people. Mr Leversedge supervises a staff of 80.

But Mr. Leversedge is an accomplished hand at producing mammoth meals. He spent 26 years in the airforce's food services and was at Wallaceburg hospital before his BGH appointment a year ago.

The kitchens start work at 5 a.m. preparing for the main Christmas meal to be served patients at noon.

But that's not the end of the cooking. Evening supper must also be provided — also a hearty menu.

Mr. Leversedge's plans for the final meal of the day include choices of prune beef with, baked ham and rainbow trout, yams or baked potatoes.

Damage $350

A rear-end collision on the Bayleridge Road at Dundas St. Friday evening caused $350 damage to the two vehicles involved.

The driver of one vehicle was Marlene Hough, 25, of Myers St. The second driver was Donald Ferguson, 51, of Victoria Ave. No one was injured in the collision which occurred about 11.10 p.m.

Trucker Dies IN Collision

SHARBOT LAKE — A two-truck collision two miles east of here claimed the life of a 24-year-old Winston, Ont. man.

Dead is Antonio Lanno of Debby Court in Weston.

Provincial police in Sharbot Lake said the accident occurred about 6 p.m. Friday on Highway 7 two miles east of Highway 38. They said Lanno was driving a three-ton stake truck.

The driver of the other truck, a tractor-trailer, was John Coull of Scarborough. He was taken to Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Police said both men were alone in the vehicles at the time of the accident. They said Mr. Lanno was pronounced dead at the scene by coroner, H. G. Day.

Les Habs Move Back in Front

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens, after regaining a two-goal lead Friday night, meet Los Angeles Kings tonight in a showdown for sole possession of the National Hockey League North Division.

The Canadiens, who have been in a see-saw battle with the Kings for the North lead for the last couple weeks, moved back in front with a 6-1 win over Vancouver Canucks.

In other games, Atlanta Flames beat St. Louis Blues 6-5 and California Seals defeated Washington Capitals 5-4.

At Vancouver, the Canadiens took a 2-1 lead in the first period and increased the margin with second-period goals by Murray Wilson and Guy Lafleur.

"They just don't seem to miss the net," said Canucks winger Gerry Meehan of the Canadiens. "We can get a couple of shots and get nothing; they get five chances and get five goals."

Their third goal by Wilson was offside and that really killed us," said Canucks coach Phil Maloney. "But Montreal is just a super hockey club."

Meehan also was impressed with Lafleur who collected his 22nd goal of the season.

"They've been touting him since he was 20 as the best Rocket Richard or Jean Beliveau and he's really living up to it."

Montreal coach Scotty Bowman said the Canadiens played their best checking game of the year and he had some special words of praise for the Kid Line of Doug Risebrough, Yvon Lambert and Mario Tremblay. "They were really flying, playing well together and battling a lot of offence."

Risebrough picked up his fifth goal of the season to close out the scoring in the third period.

At Atlanta, the Flames snapped an eight-game losing streak with the win over St. Louis.

The Flames didn't take a shot on goal for the first 14 minutes and 38 seconds of the game and were trailing 3-0 early in the second period two goals by Wayne Merrick.

"We were so tight, it was like trying to give a speech in front of a lot of people," said Curt Bennett of Atlanta. "All of a sudden we got those three fast goals and everything changed."

The three fast ones were scored by Tom Lysiak, Jacques Richard and Buster Harvey and came in a span of 3:02 of the second period to give Atlanta a 3-3 lead.

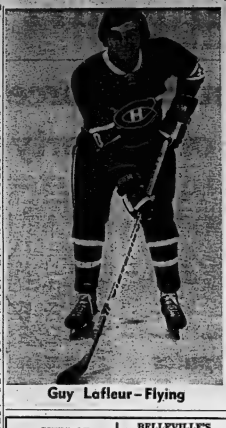
The Flames got three more goals in the third period to break it open, Bobby Leiter scoring two of the goals and Dwight Bialowas the other.

California, which outshot Washington 44-33, got first-period goals by Larry Patey, Al MacAdams and Morris Mott.

The Capitals, who have lost all 17 of their road games this season, got back into the contest when Bill Lesuk and Ron Lalonde scored 21 seconds apart while they were short handed in the second period.

California's Dave Hrechkosy put the game out of reach when he scored from a long shot-off to notch his 16th point in his last 16 games.

Dave Gardner scored for California late in the third period when the Seals had a two-man advantage.



Washington centre Jim Hrycuk suffered torn ligaments in his left knee when he collided with the California goal post in the first period.

Crusaders Back on Track

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Crusaders finally broke their six-game losing streak in the World Hockey Association Friday night.

"It was a long time coming," said Crusaders coach John Hanna after his club blanked New England 3-0, the Whalers' first shutout loss of the season.

Quebec Nordiques had a chance to take over the Canadian Division lead when they lost 5-3 to Chicago Cougars while Minnesota Fighting Saints beat Indianapolis Racers 4-3 and Phoenix Roadrunners defeated Michigan Stags 7-2.

Ron Ward, Grant Erickson and Russ Walker scored in the first period and goalie Gerry Cheevers shut out the Whalers to give Cleveland the win. Hanna said he thinks Cheevers is regaining his confidence.

"In the last three games he's had to put up with over 150 shots on goal," Hanna said.

Friday night Cheevers fended off only 20. His will be in goal again when the Crusaders take on Houston Aeros at Cleveland Sunday night.

Quebec could have been leading the Canadian Division today except for a couple of goals by Montreal's Francois Rochon.

Rochon, in only his second professional season with Chicago Cougars, scored his 12th and 13th goals of the season.

The loss left the Nordiques one point behind the leading Toronto Toros in the Canadian Division.

Rick Morris, Mark Lonsenda and Bryan Baltimore scored the other goals for the Cougars.

Serge Bernier, Marc Tardif and Rick Jordan replied for the Nordiques.

Third-period goals by Gary Gambucci and Rich Smith lifted Minnesota to victory over Indiana—wools.

Bryan Hick, Terry Ball, Mike Antonovich and Mike Walton got the Saints goals. Bob Whitlock, Jim Watt, Jim Johnston and John Sheridan scored for the Racers.

It was the third in a row for the Fighting Saints and the 19th loss for Indianapolis in its last 20 games.

Don Borgeson and Murray Keegan scored two goals each to lead Phoenix over Michigan.

Jim Nehamp, John Grey and Michel Cormier got the other Phoenix goals and Gary Veneruzzo and Tom Sorvisto scored for Michigan.

Gary Rowe and Brad Davis each clicked for three Port Hope goals. Jim Hart had a pair and Jan Bisset connected for one. Neil Pemberton helped himself to five assists.

Bobcats Whip Etobicoke 7-5

By MARK BERTT
Sports Staff

ETOBICOKE (Special) — After the first 30 minutes of play in Metro Junior B Hockey action here Friday, the Belleville Bobcats appeared to be heading for a replay of Tuesday night's 5-3 loss to the King City Red Wings.

The main difference in the game was the score as the Cats came up with a well earned 7-5 victory over the Selects.

"The turning point in the game was Rickets two goals" commented Bobcat Coach Bob Boyle after the game.

"Thats the nicest shot I've seen registered by a Bobcat since Rickett's tying goal.

The shot by Rickets came from the blue line and goalie Dale Papke didn't move on the shot until it was in the net and out again."

The Cats found the Etobicoke team to be similar in style to the Red Wings in the skating end of things as the quick-breaking head hockey caught the Cats off guard at times.

The Cats came out flying in the first period and before six minutes of play had stapled the Belleville squad had chalked up a 2-0 lead.

Steve Keech, back in the lineup, scored the first goal for the Cats with Scott Samis, a standout for Belleville, notching the other.

Exactly four minutes later the Selects came right back with Pat Boyle scoring his first of two for the evening.

Al McCrae and Rory O'Neill each had a goal in the opening period for the home team to give the Selects a 3-2 lead going into the second period.

The middle frame proved to be disaster for the Etobicoke team, they not only were out scored by the Bobcats 2-1 but lost O'Neill.

O'Neill suffered a knee injury blocking a Neil Turner slapshot from point blank range.

That leaves us with three of our best players out of action now" said the team's coach and this year's general manager Herman La Rose after the accident.

Turner came up with one of his better efforts of the season for the visitors, throwing some excellent body checks and blocking numerous shots throughout the course of the game.

Wally Dalzard saw regular duty for the Cats on the blue line and "really strengthened us on defence." commented Boyle after the victory, Dalzin Cats' captain Robbie Turner for the rest of the season.

Steve Keech opened the scoring in the second period on a goal by Frank Corrado to give the home team a 3-2 lead

Cat's captain Robbie Foster playing a solid game put them back into contention with his goal at 16:34 of the period, paving the way for Ricketts' goals.

Ricketts booming slapshot on a throwaway play with Keech and Watt tied the game up at 4-4 and with 23 seconds remaining in the period he scored his second goal from Keech to send the Cats into a lead they never relinquished.

With only 13 seconds gone by in the final 20 minutes Eric Powell scored what proved to be the winner for the locals with Etobicoke goalie Papke out of the play after blocking a shot by Samis.

The Belleville team had no easy time of things in the period as at one point the Cats were forced to play two men short for a period of over a minute and one half.

Al Jeffery came up with his usual outstanding play during the penalty, killing off scoops with good forechecking and puck control.

Boyle's second goals of the game for the home team put them within one of the Cats but Samis' final goal of the game late an empty net clinched the game for Belleville.

"We've lost the last four in a row," said manager La Rose after the game. "We just can't seem to get it going," a feeling most Bobcat supporters know only too well.

La Rose is hopeful for the future and feels that his team can come up with the winning combination to end up in the play offs.

The Cats will be trying for a measure of revenge on Sunday as they play host to the King City Red Wings in an 8 p.m. contest.

Grant Geegan is one Bobcat who is confident about the outcome of the game: "I just love playing in front of the Belleville fans." said Geegan after Tuesday's game with the Wings "and with them behind us Sunday night we should have no problem."

These Wild Cards No Trump

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The "wild-card" teams, the two who were not quite good enough to win division titles but good enough to make it into the National Football League playoffs, have lasted one day.

But both history and the odds-makers say it will be their only day.

Buffalo Bills won the American Football Conference wild-card berth with a 9-5 record, while Washington Redskins scraped through in the National Conference with a 10-4 mark.

The Bills visit Pittsburgh Steelers on Sunday while the Redskins meet the Rams at Los Angeles.

In today's NFC playoff game, St. Louis Cardinals visit Minnesota Vikings while Miami Dolphins play the Raiders at Oakland in the AFC.

Since 1970, following merger of the NFL and the American Football League and formation of the current playoff format with six division winners and two runners-up, the wild-card teams have had it rough.

In 1970, Detroit and Miami were knocked out in the first round. The next year, Washington lost in the NFC's first round while Baltimore won, then lost in the AFC title game.

In 1972, Dallas won its opener and then lost in the NFC championship while Cleveland was kicked out in the AFC's first round.

Last year, both Washington and Pittsburgh were first-round victims.

Not since 1969 has a runner-up team won more than one round. That year, Kansas City Chiefs finished second in the old AFL's Western Division. They beat New York Jets in the semi-final, defeated Oakland in AFL championship and then beat Minnesota in the Super Bowl.

"We like to think we can go all the way, but we've got to get past those Steelers first," said running back O.J. Simpson of the Bills. And quarterback Joe Ferguson added: "Our goal was to make the playoffs and now we want to find out how good we are."

While the Bills are in the playoffs for the first time since the 1965-1966, Pittsburgh is making its third straight post-season appearance.

"Our whole football team has learned from the experience of just being there," says Steeler coach Chuck Noll. "We're wiser in all departments."

The NFC clash matches Washington, the highest-scoring team in the conference with 359 points, against the Rams, who allowed the NFC's fewest points, 181. And it brings George Allen, coach of the Redskins, back to Los Angeles once more.

Allen, dumped by the Rams after the 1970 season, has Washington into the playoffs in all four of his years with the Redskins. And his teams have beaten the Rams in the last two regular-season games they have played since Allen headed East, one of them a 20-7 triumph less than three weeks ago.

Sunday's game is likely to be a study in contrast, matching Washington's veteran quarterback, Billy Kilmer, against the Rams' young James Harris, 1st to become Angles' No. 1 passer following the mid-season trade of veteran Bob Lee to Green Bay.

"They're probably the hottest team in pro football right now," Rams' coach Chuck Knox said of Washington's return quarterback Kilmer, "but I haven't seen it."

'Freedom Issues' Upheld

U.S. Judge Rules Against Football's Reserve System

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Another San Francisco earthquake rocked the National Football League Friday, leaving the Rozelle Rule, the college player draft, the reserve system and the standard player contract on shaky ground.

The tremor was set off when United States District Court Judge William Ingram ruled that the NFL's reserve system, by which players are bound in one team, was in violation of anti-trust laws.

The opinion was issued in response to a suit brought two years ago by quarterback Joe Kapp, who retired rather than sign the contract which terminates a player to the reserve system.

Full effect of the shock wave may not be known for years, as the ruling appears certain to be appealed by the NFL. But for the present, three major player complaints—known as the Freedom Issues during the player strike last summer—have been upheld.

They are:

The Rozelle Rule was judged "patently unreasonable and illegal" for restraining a player's choice of teams after he has become a free agent.

Previously, if a player had completed the option year of his contract with one club—become, in a free agent—signed with a new one, that team was obligated to compensate the player's former club. If the teams could not agree on a deal, Rozelle would decide compensation. Under inhibitions, teams from signing a free agent in fear of being too much of a target for a no.

It was decided by Sweigert, as a result, that any football had engaged in an illegal conspiracy to restrain trade and eliminate competition for players.

A portion of the college player draft was judged "patently unreasonable" by Sweigert because it permits "perpetual boycott (by other NFL teams) of a draft prospect even when the club drafting him refuses or fails within a reasonable time to reach a contract with the player." He may not negotiate with another team, and that stipulation was ruled illegal as well because "a reasonable time" never has been defined.

Thus, unless the format is changed before the Jan. 28 draft, this year's top college prospects could sign with the team that makes the best offer.

Also knocked out was the rule that clubs had made Rozelle the sole arbitor in many cases involving interpretation or enforcement of NFL rules.

The judge said the rule is "patently unreasonable because as that unilateral kind of arbitration is used to interpret or enforce other NFL rules involving restrictions on the rights of players or clubs is free employment choice."

Sweigert did not, however, rule against the option clause which allows a club to renew a contract for one year beyond its expiration date. The one-year option has been accepted as a reasonable protection for a club, and Sweigert said a ruling on the clause would have to come from a trial, not a summary judgement.

"It's been a long battle, but we're extremely pleased," said Kapp, former quarterback with California to the Super Bowl. He was traded to B.C. in 1968 and led the Lions to the Grey Cup in 1964.

He signed with the Vikings in 1967 and led them to the Super Bowl in 1969.

He played out the option year of his Minnesota contract and signed a memo agreement—not a standard NFL player contract—with the Oan Boston Patriots for 1970, 1971 and 1972 at an estimated $600,000 salary.

After the Patriots gave up a player and a No. 1 draft choice as compensation, Kapp refused to sign a standard contract for the very reason the courts said were illegal Friday.

But Rozelle ruled after the 1970 season, when Kapp played 11 games, that he could play—or even practice—with an NFL team when he had signed a contract. Kapp refused and the suit began because he was not being allowed to fulfill the contract he had signed.

Moses Lasky, one of Kapp's lawyers, estimated the damage payments Kapp could receive would be at least $1 million.

"We're very excited," said Los Angeles Rams center Bill Curry, president of the NFLPA. "I don't think players are going to start jumping their contracts. We're just in favor of having a voice in our occupation."

Rozelle, in the meantime, had no comment—he did many of the other sports leaders including Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, Simon Gourdine, deputy commissioner of the National Basketball Association or many of the NFL owners. They reserved reaction until they had a chance to study the ruling.

At Eagleton, executive director of the NFL Players' Association also, said in Toronto his association probably is going to file suit against the NHL which this year instituted a rule similar to Rozelle rule on contract penalization.

Meanwhile, CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur and lawyer John Jackson, solicitor for the CFL Players' Association, agreed that the court ruling would have little effect in Canada.

Gaudaur said CFL players had never made the CFL's compensation rules a point for many objections.

"Our association is in quite a different position than it is in the U.S.," said Agro. "My feeling is generally fair. We've never really had any problems with the question of compensation."

HOCKEY TIPS

By BOBBY ORR
Copyright 1974, Toronto Star Syndicate

WRIST SHOT — LEARN THIS AND YOU'RE SURE TO SCORE

Quite often, the player leading your league in scoring possesses a very good wrist shot. It's far more accurate than any shot and once mastered, the wrist shot is very difficult for goalies to stop.

Just like a baseball batter followed through with his swing (watch Hank Aaron sometime), the hockey player must control his stick and get everything he has into a smooth wrist shot.

The wrist shot can be learned by youngsters of all sizes and ages. One key is to hold your stick comfortably but firmly. The power hand for this technique is the bottom hand so it's vital not to place it high on your stick or else you won't release a powerful shot.

Unlike the slap shot, the puck is positioned slightly behind you for a wrist shot. As you slide the puck forward, your wrists are cocked and ready to release as you put your body into it.

An excellent drill to improve your wrist shot involves setting a string of pucks about 15 or 20 feet from the net and shooting them into the net. With each shot, keep your eye on the goal and try to pick your spots.

This drill also allows your goalie to strengthen his game by learning how to cut down angles. Try to pick the corners first and once he covers those better look for other spots.

But it's important to make the practice of wrist shots part of your daily routine. You'll also find that your teammates will have better luck deflecting a wrist shot over a slap shot.

Before you know it, the fact you've got a respectable wrist shot will probably add a few more goals (& assists to your total. I know this shot won't hurt your game.

Hockey Canada Wants Meeting with CAHA

OTTAWA (CP) — Hockey Canada wants to meet with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) and discuss the "rationale" of the CAHA's recent decision to set up its own international council.

The Canada hockey body is gaining group, responsible for the Canada-Canada hockey series, said in a statement Friday that "a meeting with the CAHA executive at the earliest possible time will be sought. . .

The statement was a reaction to the CAHA Dec. 19 announcement to pull out of Hockey Canada and set up its own autonomous international council.

At that time, Gordon Juckes, CAHA executive director, described the move as getting control back into the hands of hockey people in Canada. He also said the proposed CAHA council would be the only official Canadian body dealing in international hockey negotiations.

Hockey Canada's board of directors issued a release Friday that "it must continue to work for its international purpose."

"It is the determination of the board of directors of Hockey Canada that the Canadian position in international hockey be resolved in a positive way with dispatch because there are urgent matters that must go forward, including both open competition for AHL action Friday, Rochester Americans downed Richmond Robins 7-2 and Baltimore Clippers defeated Virginia Wings 3-2.

Hockey Canada was incorporated in 1968 to help develop a national team for the purpose of representing Canada in international tournaments.

In its statement Friday, it said Health Minister Marc Lalonde, responsible for sports, continued to back Hockey Canada mandate.

"The minister formally stated that the federal government still supports the first objective of Hockey Canada—to support, operate, manage and develop a national team or teams to represent Canada internationally."

This apparently contradicts Juckes earlier statement that the CAHA had federal backing in its scheme to take back control of international hockey.

Disappointment, Thrill, Surprise

It's Team Canada All the Way in CP Poll

By MEL SUFFRIN
CP Sports Editor

Question: What was the biggest disappointment in Canadian sport in 1974?

Answer: Team Canada.

The biggest thrill? Team Canada's eight-game hockey series against the Russians.

The biggest surprise? Team Canada's performance.

These are the views of sports writers and broadcasters questioned in a national year-end poll by The Canadian Press.

But if Team Canada fills the bill in each case, the reasons aren't all the same.

Most voters based their disappointment on the fact that the Canadians, made up of World Hockey Association stars, lost the series, winning only one game, tying three and losing four.

But others singled out the fourth game in Vancouver when Canada frittered away a three-goal third-period lead and had to settle for a 5-5 tie. That game featured Canada's best period of the series, a first-period outburst in which Bobby Hull scored three and Gerdie Howe and Frank Mahovlich one each.

Others zeroed in on the fact that the Canadians left home with the series tied at one win each and two tied and then managed only one tie in four games in Moscow.

And some said they were most disappointed with the conduct of the Canadians, notably defenceman Rick Ley's attack on Valery Kharlamov after the end of the sixth game, won 5-3 by the U.S.S.R.

Kharlamov, who scored one goal and assisted on another, needled Ley as the game was finishing. The New England Whalers player, frustrated by the officiating and the Soviet dominance, let his temper get the best of him.

Boris Kulagin, Russian coach, said that under Soviet law Ley should have gone to jail because the incident happened after the game was over. But Kulagin was disappointed too.

If Team Canada was such a disappointment, how could it also be the biggest thrill?

Well, there's something about international hockey, especially when Canadian and Soviet national teams meet, that stirs the blood of Canadians. And sports writers are no exception.

How about the biggest surprise? The voters, in common with many fans, differ here. Some were surprised because Canada won even one game. Others were surprised because the Canadians didn't win more.

Only when asked to suggest the oddity of the year did the voters forget about Team Canada. Here they agreed it was Health Minister Marc Lalonde's intervention in the World Football League's efforts to place a franchise in Toronto.

The feeling is that it was pretty odd that the government, in an effort to prevent the Canadian Football League from competition, would get involved in the affairs of a league that seemed doomed from the start.

In any event, Lalonde had his way and the Toronto Northmen became the Memphis Southmen as John F. Bassett bowed to the government's will and left Canada never to return even though legislation to keep the WFL out died when an election was called.

The exodus from Canada was also rated by some voters as the disappointment of the year, along with Montreal Canadiens' early departure from the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring and Edmonton Eskimos' loss to Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup.

Philadelphia Flyers' Stanley Cup victory over Boston Bruins was rated second biggest surprise followed by the last start by Vancouver Canucks in the current National Hockey League campaign.

The No. 2 thrill was Gordie Howe's remarkable play at 46, 4 in the Canada-Soviet series, followed by 15-year-old Cindy Nicholas' swim of Lake Ontario.

Hewa playing hockey with his two sons was rated an oddity, as was Jacques Plante's return to active hockey as goalie with Edmonton Oilers at the age of 45.

And Toronto Argonauts, who finished last in the Eastern Football Conference, found themselves in the oddity column on several counts—operating without a head coach after firing Johnny Rauch in mid-season, signing a new coach, Hugh Jackson, four months before he was to start work, and not being picked to finish first in the East.

Bulls on Tear

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Bulls are about to go on a rampage, says Coach Dick Motta.

"This team knows it has something going, and you can feel the momentum building up," said Motta, whose Bulls posted their fourth victory in a row and maintained their lead in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division by beating Kansas City-Omaha Kings 96-72 Friday night. Bob Love had 30 points for Chicago.

Golden State Warriors nipped Philadelphia 76ers 96-95, Boston Celtics beat New Orleans Jazz 118-108, Atlanta Hawks defeated Buffalo Braves 115-102, Houston Rockets stopped Washington Bullets 116-91 and Detroit Pistons edged Los Angeles Lakers 103-102.

In the American Basketball Association, New York Nets downed the Spirits of St. Louis 138-102, Denver defeated Virginia 143-133 and Memphis edged Utah 103-100.

Rick Barry scored a game-high 9 points for Golden State.

Center Dave Cowens topped Boston with 27 points and Jo Jo White had 26.

Rookie John Drew had 26 points and reserve Herm Gilliam added 20 for Atlanta. Randy Smith equalled his career high with 35 points for the Braves and Bob McAdoo had 31.

Rudy Tomjanovich scored 30 points, Ed Ratleff 21 and Zaid Abdul-Aziz 20 for the Rockets.

Bob Lanier scored 34 points for the Pistons.

L.A. Dodgers Anxious To Land the Catfish

ARCADIA, N.C. (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost in five games to the world champion Oakland A's in baseball's 1974 World Series, are itching for another crack at the Series gold, only this time they want to do it with Jim (Catfish) Hunter.

To get their man, Dodgers owner Walter O'Malley, general manager Al Campanis and field boss Walter Alston are here for meetings today with J. Carlton Cherry, lawyer for Hunter who this week became a free agent at liberty to negotiate with the highest bidders.

A's owner Charles O. Finley, who failed to make a contractual $50,000 payment to Hunter in the stipulated manner, tried to make amends by offering Hunter $50,000 in cash. But on the advice of Cherry, Hunter turned thumbs down on the payoff. As a result, a special arbitration board this week ruled that Hunter was a free agent, because Finley had breached the contract.

Three more teams—San Diego Padres, Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers—made their presentations to Hunter and his lawyers Friday.

Besides the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, Cleveland Indians, California Angels and Milwaukee Brewers were scheduled to talk with Hunter today.

That will make 19 clubs—including New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox on Thursday—that have made pitches to Hunter.

Flyers Unbeaten In 14

BARRIE (CP) — Barrie Flyers extended their unbeaten streak to 14 games, tying Brantford Foresters 4-4 Friday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game.

Bill Sistell scored the tying goal for Brantford at 12:39 of the third period and sent the game into a scoreless overtime period.

Sistell scored his first goal in the second period with Jim Cochrane and Steve Deguerse getting the others for the second-place Foresters.

Paul Hogan, with two, Bob Baird and Bob Mostelli replied for the first-place Flyers.

Barrie led after the first period but Brantford tied the score 3-3 going into the third period.

The teams meet again tonight in Brantford.

SEEKS GM POST

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bill Tobin, director of pro scouting for Green Bay Packers, has applied for the post of general manager, the National Football League club said Friday. Tobin played football at Missouri under Dan Devine, who resigned Monday as head coach and general manager of the Packers. Tobin played with Houston of the American Football League in 1963 and later with Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

IN MEMORIAM

BENNETT — In loving memory of a dear grandmother Jean Bennett who passed away one year ago Dec. 22, 1973.
Dear Grandma you are missing,
We wished you were not going,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When you had to leave us,
But there is one thing we know,
So peacefully free from pain,
You could not stay and look,
To suffer that again.
Sadly missed and remembered by grandchildren Mary, Jean and Jack.

BENN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Frederick Ethel Benn, who departed this life Dec. 21, 1973.
We mourn for her in silence,
No one knows but God,
How many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.
—Always remembered by daughter Mary and granddaughter Susan-my only child.

BENN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Frederick Ethel Benn who departed this life Dec. 21, 1973.
Dear grandmother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
We have memories of you dear,
As you leave us for evermore.
—Bertie, Joe and family, Mary Ann, Steve and family, Bob and Sharron.

CARD OF THANKS

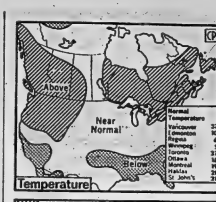
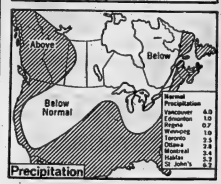
O'Keefe Director Leaving



TORONTO (CP) — Hugh Walker, managing director of O'Keefe Centre since its conception 17 years ago, will leave his post in a few months.



He is stepping down because he will soon be 65 and "I work for an outfit that retires people at 65."

During the 14 years the theatre has been operating, Mr. Walker has weathered artistic, administrative and political storms including the change in ownership from E. P. Taylor to the city of Toronto.

Mr. Walker recounts his years at the O'Keefe with enthusiasm and said the 2,300-seat theatre's yearly attendance, between 700,000 and 800,000, is "the best set of figures in the world."

"The Met in New York may have better figures this year, but I don't think so—they're dark longer and we operate 47 or 48 weeks of the year."

Balmy Weather

Temperatures are expected to be above normal over much of Canada over the next 30 days and precipitation is expected to be below normal for much of the country according to the United States Weather Bureau. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur.

Contemporary Dances Staged at Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Contemporary Dance Theatre will perform in six sleeping centres next year in an effort both to raise funds and to campaign for contemporary dance.

The unique campaign to reach out to the people of Edmonton will run from January to April and will include a three-day spring concert.

Ron Holgerson, the theatre's managing director, said that for the first time in its four-year history the theatre is booked solid—at least as solid as it can be until sufficient finances are received to enable the dancers to quit part-time jobs and devote all their time and energy to modern dance training and performance.

The theatre has grown since Charlene Tarver and Jacqueline Ogg first created it in the fall of 1971. Each year the company has performed an annual concert in Edmonton and conducted a brief tour of the province, with financial help from the department of culture, youth and recreation and the city. Last June, the theatre represented the city, the province and Canada in four concerts at the 1974 World's Fair in Spokane.

Mr. Holgerson says the continued growth of the company is being retarded by lack of funds.

"Without continued assistance, as from such an agency as the Canada Council, the company cannot hope to become 100 per cent professional—to compete, in a sense, with the Winnipeg Contemporary Dancers and the Toronto Dance Theatre."

At least $25,000 is needed to pay full-time dancers' salaries beginning next fall, when the company hopes to have 10 full-time members plus apprentices. Applications are received from various levels of government and several foundations but Mr. Holgerson said there has been almost no support from local corporations and businesses.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Copyright 1974, Toronto Star Syndicate

On the morning of April 12, a little before sunrise, in the year 7 B.C. (which, by scholarly consensus, is the most probable the year of Christ's birth) a dazzling star, brighter than any other, rose in the sky.

This star, or what's what it appeared to be — was in reality a rare astronomical phenomenon: a conjunction of the planets Saturn and Jupiter. To the naked eye, the two planets merged into a single luminous orb.

For the star-gazers of the ancient world, including the priest-astrologers of Persia known as the Magi, such a celestial display was a portent of significance. Jupiter was considered by astrologers to be the Royal Star, while Saturn was the Star of the Messiah, or, as the Old Testament prophet Amos called it, the Star of God. The conjunction of these two planets could only have meant to the ancient astrologers that the birth of a Messiah-King was imminent.

But where?

Well, the conjunction occurred in that part of the sky called the zodiacal sign of Pisces, the Fish. The ancient astrologers believed that the 12 signs of the zodiac represented different countries or nations. Curiously enough, the sign Pisces was the House of the Hebrews, representing the Jewish people.

The meaning of the portent, then, was plain: A Messiah-King born to the house of Israel.

All this has been documented by Dr. Karlis Kaufmanis, a professor of astronomy at the University of Toronto. Since boyhood he has made a special study of the Star of of Bethlehem.

Into the Magi, any suggestion of an affinity between the origin of Christianity and the ancient "pseudo-science" of astrology will come as a shock. Yet the affinity is unmistakable and profound. It has been remarked upon by many scholars, notably the great psychiatrist Carl Jung.

The Three Wise Men of the Christmas story were, make no mistake, astrologers and are so expressly described as such in modern scriptural translations as the New English Bible.

The first occurrence of the Saturn-Jupiter conjunction was, as reported, on April 12 of 7 B.C. The conjunction is fixed in the sky and was recorded, according to Dr. Kaufmanis, by the astrologers of Babylon, where there was a Jewish colony. Ancient Jewish astrologers say, and predicted that the Messiah's coming would be heralded by Saturn and Jupiter rising together in Pisces just before sunrise (called in astronomy "the heliacal rise").

The celestial portent would also have been especially meaningful to the Magi. These priests of Zoroastrianism — a high ethical religion which survives today among the Parsees of India — looked for the coming of a World Teacher foretold by their holy oracles. He was to be born of "maid whom no man hath approached."

The second Saturn-Jupiter conjunction, more spectacular than the first, occurred on October 5 of 7 B.C. It was this brilliant display, suggests Kaufmanis, which spurred the Magi on their trek to Judea in search of the newborn Messiah. (He takes these the unexplained.

The third conjunction occurred on December 1 of 7 B.C., which the astronomer calculates was when the Magi reached Jerusalem. The Bible says they told King Herod: "We have seen His star in the East and have come to worship Him." Kaufmanis argues that in this passage the Greek for "the East" can also mean "the heliacal rise." The Aramaic version of the New Testament, which may pre-date the Greek, states unequivocally he says, that the Wise Men saw the star in the heliacal rise.

Astronomers, says Kaufmanis, have established that in the third occurrence Saturn and Jupiter were due to conjunct south of Jerusalem at sunset that evening.

"If it was a coincidence," he remarks, "it was a mighty unusual one. For due south of Jerusalem, and a little to the west, is the town of Bethlehem."

"Then our mathematical computations agree fantastically with the Gospel account."

Another curious fact about the first Christmas was that profoundly impressed Dr. Carl Jung, was the birth of Christ coincided with the beginning of the Platonic "month" of Pisces. (A Platonic month, also called an astrological age, is computed at approximately 2,000 years.) What impressed Jung were the astounding parallels between the astrological age of Pisces, the Fish, and the Christian era with which it coincides.

The fish was an early symbol of Christ. The principles Christians scratched the crude outline of a fish to the door as a means of recognizing one another during the persecutions. In the Gospels, Christ called his disciples to be "fishers of men." Many of his miracles involved fish, including the multiplying of the loaves and fishes.

Jung considered such parallels as these, evidence of what he called synchronicity, or meaningful coincidence, between earthly events and celestial patterns. There is, he said, a relationship between the two. The nature of that relationship, however, is a profound and wonderful mystery.

Like Christmas itself ...

Pap Test Is Not Infallible Guide

By G.C. THORTESEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I seem to be one of many women who are questioning the Pap test as an effective means of early detection of cervical malignancies in the reproductive organs.

Despite the fact that one or many cases of malignancy may have shown up, it should be stressed that the Pap smear is not infallible if it were by indication that "all is well" with a negative test. This is a fallacy under which many of us exist and it is certainly time that the profession and cancer detection agencies be more explicit.

While you state that it is an inexpensive method of detecting cancer, more women should be aware that there could exist a false security situation in their minds and be on the lookout for any unusual spotting.

In my own case after years of negative Pap tests every six months, I started to menstruate after an eight-year lapse. Seven days later I went back to my normal self but kept my appointment with a gynecologist.

Examination at Canadian Pap test were negative but I was persuaded to undergo a D. and C. Pathology disclosed malignancy of the endometrium and I took a series of radium treatments and underwent a hysterectomy.

My point is that feeling I was "safe" because every Pap test was negative and then to be faced with this knowledge came as a traumatic shock. I feel there has been real negligence in not enlightening us as to limitations in this kind of test.—Mrs. J.F.

Your letter, I feel, is very much worth printing, even though I have to disagree with you on your charges of negligence.

The Pap test never has been touted as perfect. In th's column I have said on a variety of occasions that its accuracy ranges somewhere about 90 per cent (+)ch is very good, but that's a far cry from saying that it is perfect.

For one thing, it is aimed specifically at the cervix or "neck" of the uterus; it cannot guarantee that cancer does not exist in some other part of the reproductive tract.

It has certain other advantages. Since the cervix is the most vulnerable point (from the standpoint of cancer) it guards the direct cancer path. For another, it can detect cancer at its originating point, thus discovering it before it has spread. Thus such cancers can be treated at their most curable stage.

I haven't called the test perfect; neither has anyone else, to my knowledge, in the entire field of medicine and cancer detection. But I do say it is of tremendous value that women should constantly be made aware of it.

Finally, you say you "started your two daughters" for bad bleeding—which is a sign that should send a woman to her doctor at once. Fortunately you did not delay long. But you had no intimation to persuade D. and C., which disclosed the cancer.

I cannot see that your doctor was negligent in any way. Nor can I see that the Pap test failed you in the task it was designed to do—monitor the cervix. The Pap test can't do everything, but check everywhere it does, and I would be most reluctant to let any woman think that it isn't a good test to have regularly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can dissecinated histoplasmosis or coccidioidomycosis be transmitted to an unborn child?—Mrs. W.L.

I can find no reference that this is transmitted to the unborn child. And as to mouth-to—

Canada Will Step Up Efforts to Sell Candu

(CP) — The federal government officially unveiled another nuclear-safeguards policy Friday and said the country will step its efforts to sell reactors abroad.

The new safeguards are an attempt to prevent the use of Canadian materials and technology in the manufacture of explosives, peaceful or otherwise, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said.

Any sales of equipment or technology will require a treaty in which the buying country promises to follow the safeguards system and to allow inspections of plants and fuel by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), Canada has followed such a policy for the last eight months.

The opposition parties said the new policy did not go far enough to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, and Mr. Macdonald admitted outside the Commons that the system created an willingness of buyers to abide by the agreements. There was nothing but "international reaction" to prevent a country from ending IAEA inspections and producing a bomb.

Mr. Macdonald confirmed that new standards more strict than those used by the IAEA had been applied in negotiations with Argentina during the last two months.

The IAEA safeguards do not cover technology or prevent the use of materials in preparation of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes, the minister said. Both these items are covered under the new policy.

While the new safeguards could not be made retroactive on reactors sold to India and Pakistan, Mr. Macdonald said the government will try to negotiate such a measure for existing uranium contracts with Britain, Japan, West Germany and Spain.

An outright ban on foreign sales was rejected by cabinet on the basis that with energy shortages occurring throughout the world, Canada has a responsibility to share its "superior nuclear technology."

Only hours after announcement of the new policy, Mr. Chong-sik of the South Korean government's Electric Power Co. was to arrive for a four-day visit to discuss purchase of a CANDU reactor.

No Arbitration

CSAO Alters Stand

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said Sunday the union will not submit its contract dispute with the government to an arbitration board to avert a threatened strike by 19,000 operational workers Jan. 1.

Jake Norman, CSAO general manager, told a news conference it is too late for arbitration in the dispute, despite earlier union calls for an impartial arbitration board.

The government has offered to send the dispute to a three-member board made up of one government representative, one from the union and one acceptable to both sides.

"If the government is serious in its desire to prevent a strike, it should be at the negotiating table," Mr. Norman said.

Negotiations were recessed Saturday to Dec. 27, two days before the workers will vote on the offer then available. However, chief negotiators for both sides will be in touch during the recess.

The meeting Saturday was devoted mainly to a complaint by the union over newspaper advertisements placed by the government and letters sent to government employees.

Mr. Norman charged Sunday the government was using public funds for the advertisements in a "deliberate attempt" to hoodwink the public with their own money.

"It is obvious to me that this government is groping to manufacture an election issue. It is using public funds in a most deceitful and despicable manner at a time when the legislature is recessed and the opposition parties cannot challenge this abuse of public funds."

Mr. Norman said the advertisements gave a distorted picture of the bargaining position by stating the union is seeking a 41-per-cent wage increase in one year when in fact the demand was lowered to 25 per cent several days ago. The government has offered 30 per cent.

CNR Report Won't Be Made Public

Two Inquiries Started Into Railway Wreck

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The findings of a Canadian National Railways inquiry into the Friday night, head-on collision which took the lives of two Belleville engineers and a woman passenger will not be made public, a top-ranking Toronto CN official said Monday.

John Noel, manager of CN public relations in Toronto today said "the report probably will not be made public".

The report is of "internal significance" providing information to prevent future incidents, he said.

Immediately following the crash, the CN and Canadian Transport Commission began separate inquiries into the events surrounding the collision. A CN spokesman said the CTC demands an inquiry into any train accident which involves death. Mr. Noel said he could not speak for the CTC. He said sometimes the commission releases its findings and sometimes it does not. The decision is master of its own report."

Napanee coroner Dr. J. D. Ulmenbach, who will decide if a public inquest will be held, was not available for comment. CN officials could not say whether an inquest will be called.

CN spokesman at the scene of the accident, 10 miles east of Napanee, said Sunday investigation so far has centred on the automatic switching devices that would normally provide safe passage for on-coming trains.

Two years ago, CN installed an elaborate system of switches and lights that would give engineers warning in the event two trains were meeting on the same track.

This system involved the abandonment of the system of running all eastbound trains on one track and all westbound trains on the other track.

The system, named Centralized Traffic Control, is based in Belleville and in the event of a malfunction, switching may be done manually along the line.

Mr. Noel said all members of the crews will be questioned.

"Neither train involved in the collision was on a special run," he said. "The accident shouldn't have happened."

Traffic Back to Normal on CN Lines

Canadian National Railway crews spent the weekend clearing away debris of the Friday night head-on collision east of Napanee. By Sunday passenger trains were being manually switched through the crash site while freight trains were held waiting for passenger trains to pass. A CN spokesman said today both lines are now open and traffic is moving normally.

Ford Bans CIA Spies In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he will not tolerate illegal spying by the Central Intelligence Agency within the United States and that he has been assured the agency is not involved in such activities now.

Responding to questions about a published report that the CIA spied on U.S. antiwar groups and individuals during the Nixon administration, Ford said Sunday that CIA Director William Colby had told him earlier in the day that "nothing comparable" to the alleged surveillance operation was now going on.

Still Beyond Range of Pact

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

U.S. officials say Israel and Egypt are still beyond negotiating range of each other and too far apart for U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger to be planning a trip to the Middle East.

But The Associated Press reported the gap is being narrowed through an intensive diplomatic exchange, with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat emphasizing recovery of the Abu Rodeis oil fields, the strategic Mitla and Jidi mountain passes, or both. Israel is seeking a number of political concessions in return.

Blast Precedes Truce

Heath Unharmed By IRA Bombing

LONDON (AP) — The Irish Republican Army IRA began an 11-day Christmas ceasefire today after a two-hour bombing binge in London and Northern Ireland. One target was former prime minister Edward Heath, who was returning from a Christmas concert when the bombers struck his home.

LONDON (AP) — The Irish Republican Army (IRA) began as 11-day Christmas ceasefire today after a two-hour bombing binge in London and Northern Ireland. One target was former prime minister Edward Heath, who was returning from a Christmas concert when the bombers struck his home.

Five blasts rocked downtown Belfast in Northern Ireland and another three hit the town of Lurgan, 20 miles to the southwest. Police said there were no casualties.

"We think the bombers wanted to devastate the last hours before the ceasefire," a police source said.

The IRA's Provisional wing said it was suspending its guerrilla war against Britain from midnight Sunday until Jan. 2. David O'Connell, reputed to be the chief of the "Provos," told a Dublin newspaper the guerrillas might prolong the ceasefire if the British government made an acceptable peace response. But he said British cities would be devastated if the government did not respond "satisfactorily."

The ceasefire is the first major truce called by the IRA in two-and-a-half years. The Provos' terms for a permanent ceasefire are withdrawal of British troops to their barracks with a pledge of a total pullout from Northern Ireland; freedom for about 1,300 suspected terrorists interned without trial and amnesty for terrorists jailed in the United Kingdom. The British government has refused to negotiate with the guerrillas.

Heath, the Conservative party leader, arrived 10 minutes after a small bomb exploded on the second-floor balcony of his rented London house 300 yards from Buckingham Palace.

"In the normal way I would have been sitting here after supper," Heath said.

Heath had been conducting a Christmas-carol concert in Broadstairs, his hometown on the Kent coast.

"I had expected to be back here an hour before this happened, but I stayed with friends at Broadstairs for tea," he said.

Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent Heath a message saying: "This attack will only strengthen our united resolve to bring these thugs to justice."

Heath's aunt, and the three or four men believed in it ran away after a police chase and abandoned the car in a nearby square. Heath's housekeeper and another woman in the house were not injured.

The bakery and the sitting room behind it were damaged. Some of the bomb splinters cut a painting of the French Riviera by Sir Winston Churchill.

Heath said the bomb would not interfere with his plans to make a Christmas visit to British troops in Northern Ireland today.

"Bombs are liable to happen anywhere, at any time," he said.

Green Christmas

By The Canadian Press

It looks like a green Christmas for Southern Ontario but with enough snow surviving a mild spell to give Northern Ontario the traditional white. There is a chance of rain Tuesday and by Christmas morning there's likely to be little left of the two to four inches of snow now in Southern Ontario, the weather office said today.

Indian Boycott Of Bata Is Urged

By Harry Mulhall, Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA — Mohawks locked in controversy with their elected council on this reserve, have called for a boycott of all Bata Footwear products.

The appeal comes in a statement protesting refusal of permission for a peace group to hold an election referendum this week in the reserve's community centre.

Bata is contractor for shoe parts produced on this reserve by Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd., an Indian-owned business corporation whose operation touched off the ongoing dispute between the Mohawks.

Members of the group opposing council are fighting a corporate structure on the reserve, which, they claim, could open Indian land to taxation and provincial and municipal regulations.

Bata has continued to "impose" its presence on the reserve under a corporate structure, said spokesmen for the opposition group in a formal statement Sunday night.

"Therefore, we request that all Indian people and the general Canadian citizenry herewith boycott all Bata shoe outlets."

Today, Chief William Brant confirmed the group had been refused permission to use the community centre here for its referendum scheduled for Dec. 28.

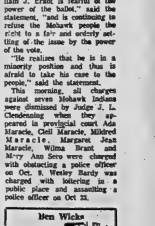
The centre had been designated as the voting poll for the plebiscite, which asks the Mohawks if they approve new elections on the reserve.

The ground council, headed by Chief Brant, still has a year to serve to its two-year term.

Recently, the elected band council also passed a bylaw which ordered any persons entering buildings or areas under council control would be charged.

The bylaw still has to be approved by the Indian Affairs department and Chief Brant said he was checking on his status with department officials today.

The referendum was the latest move in demands by dissenting Mohawks that a new council be elected.



Behind their statement, the spokesmen said they were following procedures suggested by Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan in holding the plebiscite as a preliminary to any possible new election.

Refusal to use the community centre was an attempt by Chief Brant to "obstruct the due process" — as laid down by Indian Affairs Minister Buchanan, the opposition spokesmen charged.

"It is quite evident that William J. Brant is fearful of the power of the ballot," said the statement, "and is continuing to refute the Mohawk people the right to a fair and orderly settling of the issue by the power of the vote.

"He realizes that he is in a minority position and thus is afraid to take his case to the people," said the statement.

This morning, all charges against seven Mohawk Indians were dismissed by Judge J. L. Clendenning when they appeared in provincial court Ada Maracle, Ceil Maracle, Mildred Maracle, Margaret Jean Maracle, Wilma Brant and Mary Ann Sero were charged with obstructing a police officer on Oct. 9. Wesley Hardy was charged with loitering in a public place and assaulting a police officer on Oct 23.

Merchant Questions City Store Hours

Downtown merchants might be contributing to future financial woes in the Front St. business section by not collectively keeping their stores open until 9 p.m. on weeknights during the Christmas shopping season.

Ray Young, store manager for Walker's Stores Ltd at 378 Front St., said during the weekend, "I think the downtown merchants slapped the customers in their faces."

He said he feels downtown businessmen "must definitely" lost potential sales to the Quinte Mall when some decided to close up shop as usual at 5:30 p.m., robbing shoppers of the opportunity to look over a variety of items.

Bruce Lynch, president of the Belleville Downtown Association, explained most stores are independently owned, with a small staff, and must work up to 80 hours, six days a week at 10 hours per day, due to the strain during the Christmas shopping season.

"Somewhere along the line, you have to decide what you can physically do," he commented. Merchants have to "keep someone cheerful and alert to look after people," he added.

A concerned downtown customer, Barbara Smith, wrote in a letter to the editor of The Intelligencer, which appeared in Friday's edition, that she found about 85 per cent of the stores were not open during evenings.

She questioned this practice, since a Dec. 9 advertisement had "proclaimed downtown stores would be open from 9 a.m. to 9 pm, beginning Dec 10 the related she took her business elsewhere -- to the Quinte Mall

"What you've got to keep in mind is that we're just a downtown organization with no teeth. We can only suggest," pointed out Mr. Lynch. "It's the mall (or a plaza) you sign a contract and you have to do what you're told to do."

He noted the newspaper advertisement and billboards actually said "some stores" would be open. At an earlier meeting of downtown businessmen, when holiday store hours were discussed, some merchants had indicated they would not be open in the evenings, he said.

"It wasn't good that some people were closed and others were open," admitted Mr. Lynch, "I undoubtedly feel the hours are going to be extended next year because there was a lot of flak."

"I think, in future, we'll have to have a united front," he remarked.

"I'm pleased that people would write to the paper," said Mr. Young. "I only hope they buy the merchants".

He pointed out his store has been open until 9 p.m. since Dec. 10, including the last two Saturday's and will continue to do so during this time, even if other stores drive away business by closing early.

"Once the mall becomes more powerful, and a K-Mart centre opens in Trenton, Belmont will be lost," explained Mr. Young. "Then the Belleville engineers killed in crying the blues, but by then it will be too late"

Sounds of Christmas

The music of the Salvation Army band has always been identified with Christmas.

With Jack Green leading the band, crowds shopping at the Quinte Mall Saturday were given a concert by the Salvation Army band. The band concert is one of many activities carried on by the Salvation Army during the Christmas season.

Basic Items Popular Holiday Gifts

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The start of Christmas retail sales this season is towards basic items, or goods which will save shoppers money in the long run, a survey conducted during the weekend shows.

Art Devlin, merchandise manager for Simpsons-Sears Ltd, reported no single line appeared to be more popular than others, but sales in basic items were about average throughout the store.

"They (shoppers) are buying in pretty well the same pattern," he said. There has been no shift to less expensive items, or any change about the same purchasing

Even bathroom hampers and wall plaques have been noticeably "hot" items, he added.

Mr. Dumbie said hobby tools "were really exceptional this year. A lot of people seem to be wanting to do their own home repairs. I guess they think they'll save money!"

Bools Undergoes Surgery

The condition of Ray Bools, a fireman on the passenger train involved in Friday night's collision with a freight train, near Odessa is listed as satisfactory today.

Mr. Bools, 49 of Bleecker Ave., underwent abdominal surgery Friday night at Kingston's Hotel Dieu hospital for removal of his spleen. A hospital spokesman said today he is "resting well."

Another Belleville resident taken to hospital by the ride Rizon, in which three people were killed, David Gardiner, 29 of Paric St. is also listed in satisfactory condition.

Mr. Gardiner who is taken to Belleville General Hospital with possible head injuries and found to have only bruises, is serving supervised at BGH said.

In other developments following the accident Friday, a memorial service was held Sunday evening at the John R. Bush Funeral Home by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers No. 128 for the two Belleville engineers killed in the accident, Keith Boyle and Ray MacKinnon.

Army's Work Often Year-round Task

By JIM SHELLEY
Staff Reporter

The spirit of Christmas is one of sharing and giving. No one knows this better than the Salvation Army, who have based their work on helping those less fortunate not only at Christmas but throughout the year.

And while the particular needs of a community such as Belleville are different than those in such places as Toronto or Ottawa, where attention is paid to providing Christmas supper for translents or the homeless, there is still work to be done here during the holiday season.

"Our particular needs in Belleville are mostly with the nursing homes, senior citizen residences, the hospital and institutions," said Capt. Robert Sloss, corps officer of the army here.

"This year we will be distributing in excess of 100 Christmas cash vouchers redeemable at certain grocery stores to needy families at our part of the Christmas Sharing Program," he said.

"Also we are preparing over 200 "families Baskets" to be distributed in nursing homes, senior citizen places and the hospital," said Capt. Sloss. The bags contain such items as fruits and candies.

Perhaps the most obvious sign of the army's work in the community is the plastic bubbles located at malls and downtown. This year there are five, one at Quinte Mall, Trowers and downtown and two at the Belleville Plaza. A sixth is to be located near the Brewers' Retail on Station St. for a few days.

"Last year, about $3,200 was collected in the bubbles," said Capt. Sloss, "and this year I hope to see about $4,000 brought in."

Capt. Sloss pointed out that money raised through the bubbles is "used for Christmas purposes but for such emergency situations during the year as helping a family with home and belongings lost in a fire.

But the unfortunate is a community aren't the only ones to benefit from the Army's good works. Everyone can enjoy the music of a Salvation Army brass band complete with tambourines.

Also this year, the army band will be serenading residents from door-to-door in various parts of the city playing Christmas carols. Money raised goes to underwrite the cost of the bandsmen.

A family candlelight service was held at the Citadel on Sunday, Dec. 22.

With all the preparation leading up to Christmas what does the army do on Christmas Eve and on Christmas Day itself?

"By that time we are exhausted," said Capt. Sloss. "So we spend the time quietly at home with our families."

Police said entry was gained through a rear entrance

MP Earnings

Members of parliament have been hearing from their constituents on the issue of that proposed hefty pay raise.

Some parliamentarians agree it is really unconscionable, in light of the lip service about belt-tightening, but shrug a shoulder and say they will take it anyway.

A Belleville woman has sent us a copy of a letter to her MP, in which she makes the obvious point that everybody else now will clamor for inflationary increases.

Something of the same premise is expressed in a letter to the editor on this page today, but a following letter from a Stirling reader makes an astute point — principally, that things are going to get worse on the economic front . . . that the government is looking after its own . . . and what's 50 per cent anyway in these circumstances?

Inflation is here to stay, for some time anyway. James Coyne's words of more than a decade and a half ago keep sounding like the harbinger to the inflationary storm Canadians, he said, "are living grandly beyond their means." That's the way it was then. It is the way it is today . . . and the government simply prints more money.

Rescue Work

The sympathy of the community goes out to the families of the two Belleville-area railroad workers and a young man who lost their lives in the mishap near Kingston Friday night. For those who were hurt this is also a trying Christmas, and it is hoped that their recovery will be swift.

Noticeable in this incident once again was the worth of snowmobiles as an instrument of rescue. At the same time they are not designed primarily for such use, which suggests of course the possibility of a specially-designed ambulance type snow vehicle for use in time conditions and in rural areas.

Used in conjunction with existing ambulance services, perhaps towed to the scene by one of them, such a vehicle could assist the work of rescue.

Santa Gets Help

Santa's helpers in mini-skirt-length red suits with white trim and red leotards to match.

That was the scene in the U.S. department of health, education and welfare, with two pretty staffers thus clad lending a hand to information officer Russell Roberts who for seven years had performed the job himself.

That is, collecting toys, clothing and canned food for needy families in Washington's slums.

Helpers Julie Fraser and Linda Hudock raised the ire of the department's numerous feminists. A meeting was called, the women's libbers claiming the girls were too scantily clad and were being used to draw male contributions.

The general verdict, after a tumultuous hour, was not guilty.

And why should it have been otherwise? It might be noted too how much of the government's business remained undone during that hour of bureaucratic brainstorming.

Winter Trials

One of the minor aggravations of the winter season is negotiating in and out of those infernal rubbers.

Not only does it entail a balancing act of some skill, it is also tiring after a fashion. Especially if they are a snug fit. Better of course that they stay on amid all the slush and thaw — yet the on-and-off business mornings and evenings nevertheless is still a bind.

Of-course winter can bring worse trials, all the more so to those who are until shoveling snow is a chance example, and it is not for those who lead a mainly sedentary existence, or in any way have reason to suspect the old ticker is not what it might be.

We're not about to willingly waive his rubbers at home and risk wet feet and a cold, knowing that he is physically equal to the routine rigors of the winter season?

'Bullying Tactics' Hit United Way

The Belleville and District Labor Council let it be known that it was disenchanted with the operations of the United Way and had undertaken a study to assess its performance.

Little doubt was left that the displeasure of the Labor Council could be expressed in dollars; about $4-million is collected for the charity drive through the roll deductions.

Council president at the time, Donald Montgomery, spoke of dissatisfaction with the allocation of funds to the various agencies, and of the need to change the priorities. "If the United Way wants continued labor support, it will have to implement the changes that might be suggested by our committee," he said.

Threatening noises are in the air again this year as the Labor Council once more demonstrates its willingness to use the fate of the entire United Way system to gain its objectives. In this instance, the objective is satisfactory amendment of a contract dispute in one agency (the Brothers) rather than every-all policy, but the confrontation is still based on threats to the future of all agencies.

Rather than bring the whole United Way family into jeopardy, Big Brother has offered to withdraw as a participating agency. It could not bring itself to accept the painstaking alternative of settlement of the contract for seven days, which the Labor Council rejected.

It is possible that arguments can be made on behalf of the seven workers, who are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, for improvement in pay (they now earn from $8,502 and $10,000 a year) and working conditions. We would certainly not suggest that sacrifices should be expected of them, simply because they are employed by a charitable agency..

Certain facts of life should nevertheless be recognized. The first is that the very nature of the United Way - funded by annual appeals to the public - creates budget uncertainties. It is regrettable when insufficient money is subscribed in most agency needs, but it is not the kind of situation that is greatly improved by union insistence that the slack should never be taken up by the use of volunteer workers. An agency president like McKinstry said: "We're not a business; we can't afford to be told what we can or cannot do."

But the most distressing feature of the situation lies outside the issues concerning Big Brothers and the representatives of its seven social workers. The Labor Council has used bullying tactics by waving an absurdly large sword over the heads of agencies who rely on United Way funds. Will its efforts ever be happy until the entire enterprise is shaped precisely in its image?

Iran Backs Rebels Against Iraq

By JOHN HAY
The Canadian Press

The long-running border conflict between Iran and Iraq reached new heights last week with reports that Iran has shot down two Iraqi jet fighters over their own soil.

An Iraqi government statement from Baghdad called the attack a "dangerous provocation and intervention," accusing Iran of downing the fighters as missiles launched from within Iraq.

The two planes were believed to have crashed in the part of northern Iraq where government forces continue to battle Kurdish guerrillas who have been trying for years to set up their own separate state.

Iran is known to have helped the Kurds financially with material and even soldiers. But Iran's motives in the far less case of aircraft being shot down since the latest Kurdish war broke out this year.

The last major military clash between Iran and Iraq was in 1969, when the Shah of Iran struck down a border treaty to claimed navigational rights on the Shatt el Arab, the waterway which links Iraq's ports to the Persian Gulf.

Since then, the shah has aided the Kurds, apparently as a way of weakening his rival neighbor. Kurdish guerrillas in Iraq's anti-nationalism may be a two-edged sword, because there are also Kurds in Iran and Turkey, and that does not seem to have held back the shah so far.

The two governments—both authoritarian—are also held by deep ideological differences.

Iraq, under the current regime, is extremely socialist, breaking no domestic opposition and taking the Soviet Union's line on most issues dealing with Israel.

Iran's shah, though autocratic and permitting no opposition to himself, has nurtured a mixed economy, is amenable to the on Israel and calm relations with both the United States and the Soviet Union.

The dispute over the crucial waterway and the political differences provide the tinder which, fed by Iraq's increasing pressure on the Kurds, might flame into full-scale border war.

Reliable reports on the war are scarce because the Iraqi government tries to control all news from the battlefront.

But it appears that Iraqi forces have backed the Kurds' drive for self-government materials and now are trying to seize cities and demolish the guerrilla bands just south of the Iranian border.

The Kurdish leader, Mullah Mustafa Barzani, has had to move his headquarters to the border-region town of Hal Omarian.

Iranian artillery, based in Iran, have been supporting the Kurds' drive.

It is understood that the two downed planes were on high-flying reconnaissance flights, seeking the artillery bases for retaliatory strikes.

Santa And An Ottawa Christmas

by RICHARD JACKSON

If Santa listens very hard
As he goes on his Christmas rounds
From high above the Ottawa,
He will hear many dear sounds
Of plaintive sounds.

Dear Pere Noel, c'est moi, Pierre,
Is Solomon's wisdom in your sleigh?
Please say it is, and fast for me;
It's all I want this Christmas Day.

I need it more to cope with those
Who own that treasured oil out West,
Resource taxation driven them wild;
We say it benefits the rest.

The SIU has made things hard
For all the guys who took its dough.
What should I do to help them out?
The list is long, as well you know..

And then there's Beryl, the Friend girl,
Who sent her raiders far and wide,
They showed inflation getting worse,
How people fear its rising tide!

Conflict of interest issue's rough,
Its permutations unknown,
With hindsight now, how well made
Are
The quiet times that could have been.

Can Al McKechnie do the job?
Checkmating lefty Ivan Head?
Is Gene for real, will Bryce get by,
Andre Ouellet cut price of bread?

Is beating right dec Barney D?
Will Warren have the bills in hand?
Will Marc begin to use his head?
Can Jim Jerome keep calm command?

Of course I have the tried-and-
Like C.M.D. and Donald J.
John Turner, Basford Jean Marchand,
Robert A. from Thunder Bay.

Toujours avec moi, Pere Noel,
Silliest problems we can't hide,
Resentment rankles everywhere,
What will it be—pride, divide?

Then Santa hears another voice,
And this one, too, seems most perplexed,
It's Robert Stanfield, Tory boss,
Who's leaving soon, and sorely vexed.

Why couldn't I have won the game?
For once I thought we had it

Bourassa And The French 'Fact'

Brockville Recorder and Times

There has been a surprisingly small amount of comment on the trip of Mr. Bourassa, Premier of Quebec, to France. There has been a cordial reception as chief of state, while he is not, and apparently had discussions with France on the sale of uranium, which is a prerequisite, of the federal government only.

Perhaps there just as little comment on the fact that in less than one year the Treasury department with a French speaking Canadian in charge, Jean Marchand, will have a total number of bilingual civil servants.

No one should quarrel with either of Canada's two ethnic groups learning the other's language, but it does seem peculiar that the federal government is spending hundreds of millions of dollars mainly to help French speaking Englishmen, when the province of Quebec has passed Bill 22 with the avowed intention of making Quebec a unilingual French state. Not in all the countries of the world are there so many people who are bilingual as there are in Canada, and it is only a matter of time before the Spanish speaking Americans pass the Negro as the second biggest ethnic group in the U.S.A. Then will the political clout that this would lend.

In addition the next big market for Candian raw materials, finished products and know-how will be in Mexico and South America.

Already an Andean Common Market has been formed in South America with 100 million Spanish speaking members and a large bank rail financed by oil from Mexico. The oil find in Mexico is only a portion of the one now reported, they will also have immense oil wealth to finance an increase in their standard of living. Population growth in Mexico and South America is one of the fastest in the world, and we are talking of a market of 300 million Spanish-speaking customers. So the most-safe, and highest paid Canadian 10 years from now might well be the bilingual Canadian whose other language is Spanish. While this may be a far-fetched idea to some, it is an interesting fact that there are already more Spanish-speaking people in North America than there are French-speaking people in the west.

Reds Boycott Nobel Ceremony

Kitchener - Waterloo Record.

When the Swedish Academy finally was able to honor Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn personally for the 1970 award of the Nobel Prize for literature, among those absent were the representatives of Russia and other Communist nations, including Cuba.

Their boycott of the Stockholm ceremony reflects on them and their governments, not on Solzhenitsyn. Neither he nor all and, in the eyes of the non-communist world confirms his status as a courageous spokesman for the most important of human values.

This compulsion to avoid the ceremony is evidence of the deeply ambiguous position of the United States, and of most other countries, with regard to Communist system and ideology, so it is likely to be some time before Soviet literature appears to appear beloved homeland.

But the ironic the important thing is the influence such exiles can exert, even if only by its conservatively moderate policies actually helping to undermine its image abroad.

The author whose most recent publications include The Gulag Archipelago, a first-hand and historical account of the Soviet labor camp system, was born in August 1964, the first of three novels on the developments which led to the October Revolution, now lives in Switzerland with his wife and family.

There he continues to work on a variety of projects and to plan for an eventual return to Russia. "I shall return home according to his theory, rediscover the Communist system and ideology, so it is likely to be some time before Soviet literature appears to appear beloved homeland.

But the ironic the important thing is the influence such exiles can exert, even if only by its direction, on Soviet domestic policy. There is now a substantial exile colony of Russian artists in the West, and the question which even Communist party members must sometimes ask themselves is how long they can remain silent about which they make this artist drain Russia.

Russia is a country where poets and musicians are revered perhaps more than in most other countries of the world. The tradition goes back to the Russian soul which has always welcomed their insights and wisdom.

Thus when a government finds it necessary to go to the extremes the present government has to suppress Solzhenitsyn, it is surely providing evidence for its own insecurity and lack of confidence in the ability to face without flinching its ablest and most perceptive citizens.

Home Ownership Subsidies

Kingston Whig Standard

When a society finds that it must subsidize families with incomes greater than those received by 85 per cent of the population, it must be taken as a measure of wild economic unreality.

Yet a Ontario government recently decided to help such families with homebuying — families within the income range of $14,500 to $20,000 a year. The Home Ownership Made Easy Program (HOME) already does the same for those in the bracket $8,700 - $14,500.

This means that only the top fifth of the income-conscious population is now able to finance housing on its own. A new detached house in Metro Toronto now costs on the average about $50,000 and more. This requires a down payment of $7,500. The mortgage on $37,500 at 12 per cent over 30 years will cost about $333 a month in payments, leaving little room for food, so will bring the payments up to the point where even the family with income $20,000 will be paying about half of its income in housing costs.

In addition to the assistance offered to these two categories (assistance which consists of lower-than-market-price interest rates on mortgages, given in help from Ottawa. This is in the form of help for families with incomes reaching $18,500 in the lowest area (Metro Area say others?)

The ideal of having every family living in its own house dies hard. It has never been a realistic goal and now it is simply an impossible one. There are other ways of living. Subsidized rental housing for lower income families was one way of recognizing the fact.

Two Views Of MPs' Pay Proposal

Editor
The Intelligencer:

Members of parliament are not worth and do not deserve a 50 per cent increase in salary.

Out of 264 members only 17 were present in the house on Wednesday evening, prompting the speaker to close the session as no quorum was available.

Everybody else had been ushered to one restraint - even Mr. Muro calls for "belt tightening" - but governments have now, in effect, established guidelines for every union in the country. Why should their members be inclined to settle for anything less than the 10 per cent increase?

The governmental hypocrisy surrounding this issue is typical of the government of the day. It is the Conservatives, who, in the last election ran on a program of "wage and price controls bending over" backwards to establish themselves as the windfall..

The NDP, with equal hypocrisy say they will oppose the bill but accept the raise. So all told, we are witnessing barrassing thing to have to do" . . . bah. If I like to be one, now is the time to do it.

Why? Because things are going to get worse. And who of us understands what we will be enough to put up with in retrospect?

Editor
The Intelligencer:

It is occasionally suggested that politicians are underpaid. I have, I believe, said so myself.

It appears however, at least in Canada, that this is not so. Our politicians are demonstrating a grasp of the finances that borders on prescience.

How have they demonstrated this? They have voted themselves a 50 per cent raise.

So what astuteness does this demonstrate? Indeed, why is it not more stupidity in view of the temper of the people in this time of inflation and recession? . . . and in view of their own admonitions to be conservative? We must understand here the excellence of their intuition. The times are difficult, and it was "an em-the biggest bunch of hypocrites involved in public life suggested by Mr. Trudeau. [illegible] ration of unequalled proportions.

Shoplifters More Active at Christmas Season

There seems to be at least one intrepid shoplifter who, each Christmas shopping season, attempts to apply, out of a store the most unthinkable or unconscionable item.

Such was the case again this year, and the notable incident occurred in Walkers' Stores Ltd., at 376 Front St.

Ray Young, store manager, reported a person tried to sneak out with a nine-by-six-foot rug recently. "Just walked out with it," he said. "They were caught, of course."

Aside from that, most shoplifters, apprehended or not, stick to the more-easily hidden wares — ones which can be shoved into a pocket or purse, or slipped under a coat.

"You always have trouble," noted Mr. Young. He says his staff catches offenders regularly, but most go unnoticed.

Mr. Young added when shoplifters are caught, they are reported to the police. However, he says that doesn't solve the problem.

"We get our money back, but that person is back in the store the next day doing the same thing," he said. He says he feels his store is safer from shoplifters in the yuletide season because there is more staff to watch out for thieves.

Art Devlin, merchandise manager for Simpsons-Sears Ltd. in the Quinte Mall, says the incidence of petty thievery at his store is about equal to last year. "We don't seem to be catching any more," he said.

Larger items go untouched, but so for small goods, "you have to keep a pretty sharp eye on them," he pointed out.

Dennis Kempson, security manager for Simpsons, says that they would lose a lot of merchandise if it was not for the work of the security people.

He adds that regular shoplifters know the identity of the security personnel, some of whom are disguised as shoppers, and do not try to take anything as long as they are around.

"I would rather see the security system be a deterrent rather than a prosecutor," he says. "If we can keep people from shop-lifting before they get caught, we are succeeding in our security system."

Max Colden, manager of Canadian Tire Corp. Ltd., says he does not feel threatened by Christmas shoplifters. His store has installed a security device called "photo-scan". This involves a number of cameras positioned throughout the store with a monitor in front of the store and another in the manager's office. Mr. Colden is then able to watch people as they travel through the store and can focus in on any suspicious characters.

He says just the knowledge of the unit's presence should scare away a large portion of the shoplifters. A sign warning of its existence is in front of the store.

Mr Colden also says all shoplifters are reported to authorities, and that he would like to see stiffer sentencesnes given for shoplifting convictions.

"If the publicity of shoplifting prosecutions were played to the hilt, maybe people would cut down on their shoplifting," he commented.

We sincerely wish our many customers and friends every blessing of the season.

New Years Big Day For Greek Residents

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

For Belleville's Greek residents, Christmas will be a big day with trees and tinsel and presents and turkey dinner.

A two-hour church service will be part of the holiday — held either Christmas Eve or Christmas Day at the convenience of the priest who serves several congregations.

But in Greece, Christmas is a quiet holiday, with the big celebration saved for New Year's ay. January 1 is St. William's Day in Greece, named after an ancient rich man who became a Christian and gave all his possessions to the poor. To commemorate his conversion, gift exchanges take place New Year's Day.

Holiday preparations begin in Greece about two weeks before the event, when housewives bake three kinds of traditional Christmas cookies. In his native city of Piraeus, the seaport of Athens, says Johnny Balkois, the city puts up a big tree in the square. Presents are placed under the tree for distribution to children in the city's two orphanages.

Christmas trees are common in Greece, but they are artificial because the country cannot afford to cut its trees.

The Greek Orthodox Church has no midnight mass, but church services are held early Christmas morning.

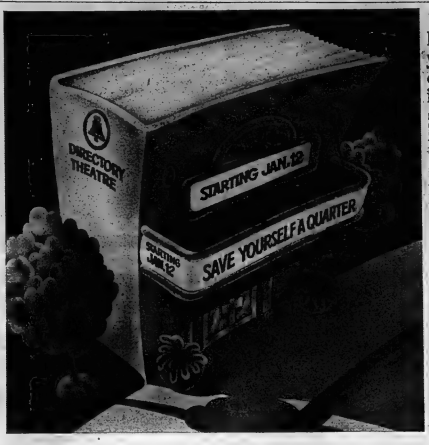
Turkey now has replaced the traditional lamb or roast suckling pig on the Greek Christmas dinner table.

New Year's Eve sees families and friends together for all-night card playing. The person who wins that night will be a winner all year, the tradition has it.

A New Year's superstition calls for a good-looking young person to be the first across the threshold. The person chosen comes bearing a basket of fruits and sweets and a pomegranate with a coin in it. When the door is opened for him, the boy throws the pomegranate on the steps, where it shatters and brings good luck to the household.

Gifts are given out St. William's Day, but only to children. Canadian-style gift giving among adults is not the custom in Greece. Each child usually gets one gift.

Another Greek tradition that will be observed among Belleville's Greek families is the making of Basilopitta, a loaf of bread with a quarter baked in it. The bread is divided New Year's Day, and the person getting the coin will have good luck in the coming year.



Merry Christmas

A stocking-ful of good wishes to our friends!

Paper Drive Nets 7 Tons

TRENTON — More than 200 Trenton district Boy Scouts, Venturers, Cubs and Beavers have taken a pledge to raise $9,000 to send nine representatives to the 14th World Jamboree being held at Lillehammer, Norway in July and August.

The Trenton youths, who will attend the world wide scouting conference with Boy Scouts and Venturers from over 100 countries, are Chris Avery, Tom Robinson, Phillip Ashby, Mike Gray, George Mease, George Crouch, Robert Goyetche, Lyle David and Arthur Maw. They will be among the nearly 700 Canadians participating in the giant mind-day get together for youths between the ages of 14 and 18.

The Trenton group plans to visit Denmark and Sweden and take in the paid Jamboree tour of Scandanavian countries before returning to Canada in the middle of August.

During the weekend, the first of several of the Trenton district organization's money-raising projects got underway.

A paper collecting campaign started by the 3rd Trenton Scout Troop and the 3rd Trenton Venturers Troop will be continued every third Saturday in the month. The parking lot at Loblaws on the east end of town is being used as headquarters for the organization and drop off point for the collectors.

Although the initial drive netted the collectors seven tons of waste paper for resale one of the organizers insists the amount will have to be increased several times if expectation are to be realized. He explained that paper collected by the Boy Scouts last year which brought $20 a ton then has now dropped to $5. a ton in price.

The organizer said he found the response to the public appeal encouraging, especially the efforts of so many elderly people.

"They showed eagerness to help youth by saving their old papers and taking time out to bundle them. They called on the telephone to tell us of their donation and we gladly sent a truck around to make the pick up."

Paper Sought

Boy scouts in the Trenton area are collecting as much waste paper as possible to sell for recycling purposes, with the money to go towards sending nine Trenton scouts to the 14th world scouting Jamboree. From left to right, four of the hard-working boys are accompanied by Rob Goyetche, third Trenton troop scouter Bruce Mease, venturer Mike Gray, and scout Steven Paul, who is shouldering a bundle.

Member Says Milk Committee Of Little Value to County

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward Milk Committee, a liaison between the county's milk producers and the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, is "a waste of money" says committee vice-chairman Gary Fox.

"We plan an annual banquet, sponsor the Dairy Princess competition and a few other things, but I can't see where it does the county's milk producers a lot of good," Mr. Fox said.

The 31-year-old dairy farmer said the committee attends the Cessva Park meetings, near Orilla, to participate in policy-making sessions, but described the meetings as "too cut and dried".

"They tend to lead you on and brainwash you into the very things you know the people are against. We keep saying the committee is no good but the board says considerable information is obtained from it. But I don't think we get to first base."

Mr. Fox said that the Prince Edward Committee of 12 members is too large to be effective

"There should be only one member for every 40 or 50 milk producers in the county", he added.

Presently there are about 560 milk producers in Prince Edward County, and, said Mr. Fox, the number is declining every year. He attributed the decline to older milk producers dropping out and young farmers being reluctant to conform to the seven-day week requirement.

Lumber Yard Entered

PICTON — Town police today are investigating a break-in at the Evans Lumber Co. Ltd. on Main St.

Sgt Scott Hele of the town police reported nothing of value was taken but said there was vandalism in the building. He said young persons are suspected in connection with the damages.

Two fire extinguishers were destroyed, one in the cab of a lumber truck, office drawers ransacked and powdered milk strewn on the floor.

Entry to the store was gained by pulling on a rear sliding door until a staple in the holding chain was loosened. The break-in is believed to have occured late Sunday evening.

At this joyous Christmas season, we wish you the gift of peace of mind and heart!

Most Clergymen Agree:

Christ Doesn't Take Back Seat at Christmas

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Christ is not taking a back seat at Christmas despite increasing commercialization of the holiday season, Bishop Prince Edward clergymen.

Questioned regarding the influence of commercialism on the true meaning of Christmas six of nine ministers agreed presents do not overshadow the birthday of Christ.

"Christ never took a back seat at any time. He even rose after the crucifixion," observes Rev. Robert Black of Picton's First Baptist Church.

"People are not dumb. They are not taken in by everything Lucas adv1 on television."

Rev. Robert Stewart of The Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton says he is glad to see Christmas Day arrive for the preceeding days compare with a space launch countdown.

"My family welcomes Christmas as a period of freedom from buying and selling."

Rev. Stewart says the Christmas rush gives shoppers to a "hectic frenzy" but there are merits in this commercialization.

At a depressing time of year when winter is spreading the blues the shopping is a psychological boost. It diverts everyone's mind from the weather.

He says he feels, however, more emphasis should be placed on the 12 days following Christmas according to European tradition. The Picton Salvation Army Citadel, former Calvary Baptist minister in Picton, Rev. Kenneth Calrus and Wellington Anglican Church minister, Rev. David Hawkins, say they feel more strongly about commercialism's effects on Christmas.

"Commercialization seems to completely obscure the true meaning," says Captain Lewery.

"The idea of Christmas is giving and sharing. I think the Army is attempting to get across this whole idea," he says.

Rev. Calrus comments people think more of gifts and buying than of the true meaning of Christmas.

"The individual must decide the extent he will allow commercialism to rule him," he adds.

Rev. Hawkins says Christmas has been commercialized with its true meaning "pushed to one side".

"People are exploited unfairly by commercialism. Santa and his toys more or less take prominence," he says.

In order that our staff may enjoy a well-earned holiday with their families.

African Changes Forecast

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Sweeping changes in southern Africa, including possible independence for South Africa's black homelands in 1975, were predicted Sunday by Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller.

Muller said the map of southern Africa might take on "a completely different appearance" next year.

77 Killed

MATURIN, Venezuela (AP) — Passenger lists were being checked today to learn if there were other foreigners among the 77 persons, including two U.S. citizens, who died Sunday in the crash of a Venezuela airliner.

All aboard died when the plane, a DC-9 of the airline Avensa, crashed four minutes after takeoff on a flight from Maturin to Caracas.

Avensa said the dead Americans were Paul Rice and William Richard, who boarded the plane in Maturin. No other information was available on them.

It's Hell of a World Says Chicago Hero

CHICAGO (AP) — Signed simply, "A Human Being," it was a final statement from a police detective decorated as a hero who said he felt, "Alone in a wasted life . . ."

Roland Charles was 41, strong, gentle and sincere. He was black.

Two weeks before he died Thursday of a heart attack, Charles wrote a three-page "Declaration." He began it by writing that racism "has reached to the very marrow of my bones, this terrible injustice, and it leaves me weary fighting it."

Charles said he had fought basically, "only . . . for the coming generations of Black Americans born and unborn, hoping and praying none will have . . . to endure this awful, awful ordeal and if so, not quite so severely as I."

His handwritten statement recalled childhood memories of having to "keep in place," of attending inferior schools.

In January, 1968, when he fatally shot a gunman who had killed three persons, a newspaper declared he was "a police hero of whom all Chicagoans can be proud," and in his career Charles received numerous citations.

But Charles wrote of being "dejected after . . . receiving many awards and citations to be discriminated against once again because of my race. Rigged tests, lowest efficiency mark although rating better than others and no one to complain to, knowing full well the establishment would get you if you did.

"Alice is a wasted life, full of degradation, muted feelings and not belonging. This is now not a world for a black man . . ."

Heart Found

MONTREAL (CP) — A preserved heart belonging to Brother Andre, founder of St. Joseph's Oratory, was recovered during the weekend, almost two years after its mysterious disappearance.

The glass-encased relic was stolen from the shrine in March, 1973. A $50,000 ransom was demanded but never paid.

Police said the heart was recovered Saturday after Montreal lawyer Frank Shoofey received an anonymous telephone call indicating its whereabouts.

Mr. Shoofey, along with police investigators located the heart in a basement locker room of a downtown apartment building in a box covered with a plastic bag.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Negotiators for the Windsor board of education and secondary school teachers resumed talks Sunday in an effort to end a five-week strike.

Bethlehem Quiet and Sad; Tourist Trade Is Ruined

BETHLEHEM (Reuter) — The little town of Bethlehem, where Jesus was born nearly 2,000 years ago, is a quiet place of sad faces and empty tourist hotels as Christmas approaches.

Townspeople say Bethlehem is being trampled on the three-way treadmill of the world energy crisis, the political and military problems of the Middle East and the economic ills of its biggest occupiers.

"Bethlehem is poor and this Christmas things will be harder than at any Christmas before," says Mayor Elias Freij, who has just returned from a 26-day fund-raising tour of the United States.

"A similar story of tourists, who have so far failed to visit the holy places, is told in Nazareth, the Christian Arab city in Israel where Jesus spent much of his life.

Restaurateur Abu Nasr, who has played host to Christmas pilgrims for 30 years, gazes at deserted tables and says plainly: "I never remember a cold December as bad as this. You could say we're looking towards a black Christmas."

The Israeli government tourist board, however, is optimistic. Tourism ministry spokesman Michael Gidron said "The figures for tourist arrivals that year are at least very similar to those in 1973."

Two years ago, 44,000 tourists arrived in the holy land, he said. In December, 1973, two months after the October Middle East war, the number slipped to 41,000. This December, he said, a total of 40,000 are expected.

"It's a bit early yet (last week) for people to come. But given the world energy crisis and the slump in international travel, transatlantic fares have gone up 30 per cent: we are holding our own this Christmas."

GM Head in Canada Wants Border Curtain

HALIFAX (CP) — Drummond White is bullish on Canada.

"I'm kind of bullish with what's happening to the economy of this country," says Mr. White, assistant general sales manager of General Motors of Canada Ltd.

In Halifax recently as part of a national tour, Mr. White said he is optimistic that his company will be able to reach its predicted level of 478,000 new cars sold during the weekend, almost two years after its mysterious disappearance.

The glass-encased relic was stolen from the shrine in March, 1973. A $50,000 ransom was demanded but never paid.

Police said the heart was recovered Saturday after Montreal lawyer Frank Shoofey received an anonymous telephone call indicating its whereabouts.

Mr. Shoofey, along with police investigators located the heart in a basement locker room of a downtown apartment building in a box covered with a plastic bag.

GM in U.S. Sees Little Improvement

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors said Saturday the auto industry can hope for only modest improvements in 1975 even if the United States government acts quickly and the recession.

In a year-end statement, GM Chairman Thomas Murphy predicted industry car sales in 1975 will be up slightly from the depressed 1974 levels.

He cautioned that his expectations depend on "prompt government action to restore consumer confidence and to stimulate the economy."

he would be able to get a much clearer picture of what is happening here without fear of being influenced by the media and reports from the United States.

He does not feel Canada is having the same problems as the U.S.

One thing that makes Mr. White optimistic is the economic forecasts from the University of Toronto business faculty.

Supplied with data from industry, the forecasts "have been tremendously accurate in the past and their forecasts for the future are for a good economy."

If you want the very best recipe for egg nog, where should you go? To Dorothy Batchelder MacKinnon, of course. Widely known for her work as a poultry products consumer information consultant, Mrs. MacKinnon is now associated with the Ontario Egg Producers' Marketing Board. Mrs. MacKinnon adds her greetings to ours — Merry Christmas!

Egg Nog

- six egg yolks
- six egg whites
- ½ cup sugar
- one cup brandy or rum
- two cups cream
- two cups milk
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- nutmeg

Beat egg yolks until light, then gradually beat in ½ cup sugar. Add brandy, cream and milk very slowly while beating constantly. Whip egg whites until stiff, adding ½ cup sugar and salt when they are beginning to foam. Fold egg white mixture lightly with egg yolk mixture. Serve sprinkled with nutmeg. This recipe makes 12 to 14 small cups of egg nog.

Good Babysitters Too Scarce

Getting someone to look after your kids — especially at this socially active time of year — can be a problem for Belleville parents with young children.

"I wouldn't let anybody the name of my babysitter," one woman said candidly. "They might try to steal her."

The problem of children-watchers falls into two categories: day and night.

While there are scores of reliable students who can work in the evening, it's more difficult to find some one to babysit during the day.

Otis Wonnacott, former teacher, says it's relatively simple to keep a list of three or four high school students who will baby-sit evenings. If one isn't available, another is, and the cost is low: current rates are about 75 cents an hour.

"The main problem is getting someone during the day," he says.

Like many other women in the city, she "shares" a day time baby sitter with a few friends.

But that presents a problem.

"The result of that arrangement is that we can never go to the same place," she says.

Pat Gervis has a good evening arrangement with a friend and neighbour. One day Pat plays nanny for her neighbour looks after her children; another day Mrs. Gervis watches all the children and the neighbour is free to shop or spend the time doing whatever she wishes.

"That way we don't have to pay sitters," Mrs. Gervis adds.

For the evenings, Mrs. Gervis has a regular group of students who sit for her.

Another woman, whose child is now eight years old, says that she's "been through" one group of teen-aged baby-sitters and is looking for new recruits.

"The girls we used to get are all away at university now or busy with other things and we have to start all over again with younger girls," she says.

Besides casual co-operatives and arrangements between friends there's another kind of solution for parents who use sitters on a regular basis: live-in sitters.

Mary Lou Ross, one of several mothers in the city expecting nannies to arrive shortly, says the trained child care worker is the ideal solution.

"Being out in the country we found it just impossible to get daytime - sitters," she says. "And if you could get somebody, it was expensive."

And as for students, she points out that unless she and husband David were both at home, they couldn't get the sitter home without getting the kids out of bed.

"With nannies, we just won't have that problem," she says.

Better yet, if parents with nannies ever decide to take a holiday without the kids, they are free to do so.

"There's only one woman in town who'll come in for several days, staying overnight," one mother said. "And she's booked up a year in advance. People phone her up and say 'When do you have three days in a row?' and then plan their trip around her."

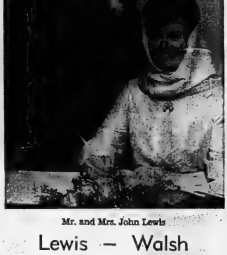
Mr. and Mrs. Donald James Doyle

Doyle — Ogilvy

St. Michael's Church was the setting for the November wedding of Heather Diane Ogilvie and Donald James Doyle performed by Rev. Kenneth Stitt and Rev. Charles Savage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.M. Ogilvie, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Pearl Doyle and the late Robert Doyle.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a cream-colored evening crepe empire-waisted gown with top stitching on the sleeves and skirt. A brown velvet flower accented the bodice, and the tulle veil was attached to a cap of skirred evening crepe. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and ivy.



Mary Oliver of Ottawa wore a green and cream floral gown of satin in an empire-waisted style. She carried white roses and carnations.

Karla Garside of Ottawa, James Colligan of Toronto and Sharo Ainsworth wore bridesmaid gowns identical to the maid of honor's.

The groom's brother, Bob Doyle, was his best man. The ushers were Mike Cook of Ottawa, Terry Flynn of Ottawa, and Wayne Ogilvie, the bride's brother, from Val d'Or.

A buffet dinner and dance at the Black Hawk Motor Inn followed the wedding service.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle now live in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis

Lewis — Walsh

The November wedding of Phyllis Ann Walsh of Montreal, daughter of Mrs. R.G. Walsh and the late R.G. Walsh, and Thomas John Edmund Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.F. Lewis of Hudson Heights, Quebec, took place in Bridge Street United Church in a service conducted by Rev. Harry Ward.

Given in marriage by her brother, Alan Walsh of North Bay, the bride wore an ensemble of skirt and blouse in ivory Thai silk trimmed with a border of gold threads. Her cowl-style headdress was of matching silk and she carried yellow roses.

The bride's wedding ring originally belonged to the groom's great-grandmother who was married in 1887.

Attending as matron of honor, the bride's sister Helen Nicholishen wore a skirt of orange Thai silk with a gold border and a multi-hued metallic blouse with a matching headband. She carried pale orange roses.

Serving as best man was Rick Gilbert of Bangor, Maine. Ushers were Stewart Yerman of Montreal and Marshall Nicholishen of Vancouver.

A reception and dinner at the Four Seasons Motel followed the service.

Making Beds Not Essential to Nurses' Training

EDMONTON (CP) — As a nurse in training, Sister Terrene Chalmagny estimated she made more than 7,000 beds.

She would like future student nurses in Alberta to be spared that experience.

Describing in-hospital nursing training programs as "remnants of the past," Sister Castagnay, chairman of nursing at Grant MacEwan Community College, applauds a recent provincial government proposal to replace them with community college courses.

But a controversy appears to be emerging in Alberta over the issue. Indications are that hospitals will not lightly give up their position as host for training centres for nurses in the province.

"If you have a program that is successful in terms of professional standards, why throw it out?" asked Charles Gravett, executive director of Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton, which established its nursing school in 1907.

Among two-thirds of the nurses graduating annually in Alberta are trained in the province's six hospital programs. The Misericordia and Royal Alexander hospitals in Edmonton, Foothills and Holy Cross in Calgary, and Galt School of Nursing in Lethbridge offer three-year programs, while the University Hospital in Edmonton has a five-year program.

Five community colleges in Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and Grande Prairie offer two-year diploma courses in nursing.

Mr. Gravett, whose hospital trained 41 nurses last year, disagrees with the nurses' supervision government is taking towards the two-year nursing programs.

"Let's make an in-depth study of two programs. It may conclude the hospital and college programs are the same, or a combination may develop."

"If we've been deficient in our training program, show us where improvements need to be made but don't throw the baby out with the bath water."

The Alberta Association of Registered Nurses (AARN), with an active membership of 19,000, has been on record since 1952 as supporting college training programs.

"Historically nurses have had the attitude that hospitals are under obligation as cheap labor and that hospital training programs have to be as cheap as desired," Mr. Gravett said.

While this might have been true at one time, hospitals had revamped their curriculum and modernized their teaching techniques in the last 15 years.

Mrs. H. E. Ostler, committee advisor for AARN, said the first responsibility of hospital schools has to be to the patient and this can conflict with their educational function.

In 1960, more than 170 hospitals in Canada provided three-year nursing programs. Today, only 12 of these programs are operating and five of them are in Alberta.

Sister Castagnay, who supervised the changeover in community colleges in Saskatchewan in 1967, is a firm believer in the advantages of community college training.

"Studies have shown people can learn the essentials of nursing in less than three years," she said.

Not only are community college courses shorter, they provide an enriched general education not available in hospitals. The main strength of community-college courses is the multi-disciplinary setting. Students are encouraged to develop a questioning mind.

She quoted a Saskatchewan study that concluded that although hospital-trained nurses have more confidence when they enter the profession, "the difference was not so marked as to justify an extra year of training."

In some areas, the study found the two-year graduates were competent and more independent than their hospital counterparts.

The college uses the facilities of about 40 health agencies—including hospitals, community clinics and doctors' offices—to provide practical training. The amount of practical experience varies between eight and 14 hours a week, with students working a regular 40-hour week during the last nine weeks of the course.

Where Riel Once Ruled Racial Amity Prevails

DUCK LAKE, Sask. (CP) — History could well have left this northern Saskatchewan town with a legacy of interracial bitterness.

'Tis the southeast lies the battlefield of Batoche, where the forces of English Canada crushed the short-lived Metis nation of Louis Riel.

To the west is a cairn marking the place where the first shots were fired in the rebellion of 1885, leaving 12 dead from a police-volunteer force and five dead from a Metis-Indian force.

The town itself was almost completely burned to the ground by the rebels.

Yet today, the community of 800 is slowly but steadily building up its economy and population on the foundation of some co-operation among French, English, Indians and Metis.

While elsewhere in Saskatchewan coolness has developed between Indian reserves and the adjacent communities, Mayor Alec Barbeau says relations between Duck Lake and the 400 nearby residents of Beardy's and Okemasis Indian Reserve "are very good.

"There's no problem there at all, in fact, we built a new arena here two years ago and that was a $250,000 project. They joined in with us with certain grants that were available to them and turned them over to us to make this possible.

The co-operation between the overlapping racial and linguistic groups takes many forms, one being the museum and handicraft store.

The three-storey museum, started by long-time resident Fred Anderson and assisted by the board, of trade, drew about 30,000 visitors last summer with its displays of uniforms, ceremonial Indian dress, documents, photographs, weapons, tools and other artifacts.

More major boosts to local business have come from the $250,000 annual payroll of an alfalfa-dehydrating plant and the $1-million cow-calf operation started on the reserve.

Such local initiative and co-operation, says town administrator L. C. Parrel, is a basic reason why the town has not suffered the decline of other rural communities.

"Unless you get off your fanny and get something done about it, you'd be among those who are going down also."

Instead, the town's population has risen by 10 in the last two years, despite the attractions of the cities of Prince Albert and Saskatoon, 41 miles north and 49 miles south respectively.

Last summer, 10 new homes were built and another 20 are expected in 1975.

Much of the growth is attributed to transportation changes, the same factor that ended the town's role as a regional centre in the early years of the century.

Mr. Anderson, who was born here in 1888, recalls when the town was the supply centre for much of northern Saskatchewan, before the railways were extended northwards, cutting off market areas all around.

Now, Mr. Parrel says, the Saskatoon-Prince Albert highway is bringing in people from the cities who are seeking the small-town life.

"There is a certain percentage of people who do not want to live in the city. They're looking for a small town with the facilities. They don't want to live in the city but they still want the facilities like sewer and water and natural gas, schools."

He is ready to give full marks to the federal and provincial governments for programs that have given the community the means to take advantage of growth opportunities.

The town's task in building sewer and water lines to attract city people is aided by ways subsidies under the winter works program, just as other grants have helped other enterprises.

The town has ambitious plans to become a tourist centre and is developing a comprehensive tour program for the nearby battlefield, the museum, the former RCMP post of Fort Carlton and other historic points within a 30-mile radius.

They have been helped by the movie Allen Thunder, filmed in a specially constructed townsite a few miles south two years ago.

"It had quite an impact," says Mr. Parrel. "The movie wasn't that good a movie but people are still coming in to see the site where it was filmed."

Initiative is all that is needed to make Duck Lake — and even a major tourist attraction, says Mr. Barbeau.

"Put this in the hands of a couple of Yankees and in no time at all they'd have the thing all blown up out of proportion."

The town's prosperity and close-knit society has kept many of the young people at home.

"We don't keep them all but I'm satisfied that we're keeping a good percentage of them," says Mr. Parrel.

They find that a lot of our young people who went to school here, now that we've developed the town they're moving back."

The board of trade is conscious of youth and has student representatives as members.

To Mr. Barbeau, the continued presence of young families and young children entering school is the most optimistic sign.

"This is what you need really to keep a town alive."

Sport Seasons Senseless

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — It's bad enough in Britain, where spectators huddle miserably in open stands to watch rugby and soccer players struggle in the fog, snow and sleet all winter. Then, in the summer, they sit and wait for the rain to stop and the cricket to start.

Obedient to their old colonial masters, Rhodesians also play rugby and soccer in the winter and cricket in the summer. And it makes every bit as much sense.

The Rhodesian winter is hot and dry, a cricketer's dream and a footballer's nightmare. Summer is the rainy season.

And it's not a warm, friendly rain. Lightning streaks across the sky, crackling angrily from one dark cloud to another. As the heavy, tropical downpour turns the pitch into a lake, the cricketers sit in the pavilion and sip their beer in the mid-afternoon darkness.

Rhodesia is scheduled to play Transvaal in a three-day Currie Cup cricket match and there have been three consecutive days of violent thunderstorms and torrential rains. By the time the visitors arrive, the field will be fit for nothing but water polo.

A cynical Englishman once described cricket as a sophisticated form of rainmaking.

One-plane Airline Serves East Indies

DENPASAR, Bali (Reuter) — The pilot, wearing massive beach jerseys T-shirt, baseball cap and sandals, ambled across the scorching tarmac and drawled: "OK, you guys, let's get this show on the road."

The "show" was a 32-year-old DC-3 airliner with a complement of 29 slightly apprehensive passengers. Moments later, one of the world's last unpublished scheduled airliners was heading for its destination.

Zamrud Airlines was set up six years ago with 70 per cent Indonesian and 30 per cent United States capital to fly to some of the more neglected of Indonesia's 3,000 or so inhabited islands.

The one-plane airline's pilot, chief mechanic and general factotum is Jack Rife, 61, from Turkey Creek, Ky., who has been flying on and off since he was 14.

When Lake Central Airlines decided to replace its fleet of nine elderly DC-3s with more modern planes, Zamrud bought the entire stock and all available spare parts from the U.S. carrier and a new airline was born.

Eight of the planes sit forlornly at one end of Denpasar airport, regularly offering up their vital parts to keep the ninth flying seven days a week. Looking a fraction of its age and sounding as sweet as the day it rolled off the production lines, the plane is serviced "by the book" and spent newly-overhauled engines bought in Scotland.

The airline has had its problems, including a fairly substantial debt. But this does not seem to have affected the enthusiasm of Rife and his small band of Indonesian assistants.

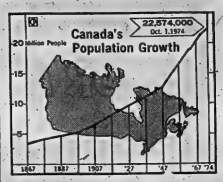
The latter emerge as baggage checkers—the plane's load is measured purely in weight, so passengers have to join their cases on the scales—then reappear during the flight to serve coffee, box lunches and cold drinks.

As there is no hold on the plane, baggage is stowed strategically around the fuselage. Ventilation is provided by the gaps in the windows and door-fittings and individual electric fans mounted over each row of seats.

For anyone wanting to see the islands in the Indonesian Archipelago at close quarters, this is undoubtedly the way to travel—cruising at between 3,500 and 5,000 feet.

On an island-hopping, seven-hour flight to Dili, the capital of Portuguese Timor at the southern extremity of the archipelago, the passenger has a chance to observe the dwelling habits of the mountain people of Sumba, a barren volcanic island east of Bali.

At the eastern end of the island, the plane lands on the grass airstrip at Waingapu, the capital, where some Indonesian tradesmen heavily laden with goods get off and a couple of young Western tourists get on.



Then on to Kupang, on the western Indonesian half of Timor island, before heading towards Dili.

"You guys want to fly up the middle of the island or along the coast?" the pilot boomed down from the cockpit.

The flight had been an easy one, though a bit rough, he conceded. The real flying was in the wet season when, without weather checks or radio controls to guide them, pilots just go for most of the way, then come down under the clouds and start looking for the islands."

At Dili, a sleepy town of 28,000 tucked up against soaring hills, a crowd had gathered to celebrate the arrival of one of only two flights a week to and from.

The next day at dawn, Rife will head for the airport and the return journey to Bali. The day after it will be another of the islands that Zamrud has brought a little nearer to the public.

Canada's population was estimated at 22,574,000 on Oct. 1, up 367,000 from a year earlier, according to Statistics Canada. Immigration accounted for about half the increase in the last year. Graph traces the growth of population since Confederation. (CP Newsmap)

Child Is Rescued From Florida Well

MIAMI (AP) — "Hey, little doll baby," a burly policeman crooned as he cradled a 15-month-old girl in his arms after she was rescued from a narrow irrigation well.

Onookers cheered as Amber Noel Pardue, whimpering and clenching her tiny fists, emerged unharmed Sunday after four hours in the shaft.

Amber wandered away from her parents as they picked tomatoes for Christmas dinner. She fell through a nine-inch-wide hole and was wedged in water that came up to her waist about seven feet down the 22-foot well.

"I imagine she was plenty frightened. I knew she was walking behind me. I turned around, and she just wasn't there," said her father, Harry Pardue, 27, a sergeant at Homestead air force base.

"She has been walking for almost six months now. I let her walk whenever I get the chance."

Rescuers used air hammers and hand tools to dig a larger, new hole and tunnel to her. Amber's clothing was secured by a hook so she would not slip farther down the well.

The uncapped well, half-covered with tomato plants, is in a field where buyers can pick their own vegetables.

As the Yuletide bells ring out their message of good cheer, we would like to extend best wishes to all our wonderful patrons. It's been a pleasure to serve you!

SLICES — When the Central Ontario Junior C Hockey League All-Stars take on last season's all - Ontario champs, Oshawa Congers, in Oshawa tonight, two well-known Belleville players will be putting it their best and for the nicest team.

Frankford - Rankies placed three players on the All-star squad. And two of them were Belleville products.

Rankies' team captain Jack Edwards now coaches a defence berth with the "Green Bears", a fair guy with plenty of the old try, try again attitude, but in his strivings to junior company. He's had plenty of experience with Belleville Bobs in previous seasons, being called up from Belleville Minor Hockey Association Juvenile squads.

Left-winger Pete Crawford certainly has not a mediocre schedule, either. Well up in the list of Bay of Quinte Senior A all season long, Pete has something like 24 points to his credit in the league to Dave Tabb of Bowmanville who has 30, and 8 assists. Tabb has 38 points pot him in the No. 2 spot in the list.

Rounding out the Rankies' contribution to the boy's all-star squad is centre Gary Payne.

It would appear the Bay of Quinte Senior Association teams may not, in future, be playing for as close to the Federation of Secondary Schools Association trophy which prohibits players on school teams from turning out with other clubs during the school's playing season.

That's the one BQSA team lost players late in the 1974 season, and that didn't sit well with anyone concerned.

Apparently the Bay of Quinte High School region is the only one to abandon the rule.

The rule may be thrown out when the meeting's held in the Spring.

It never made sense to us that leagues like the BQSA kept high school soccer players busy all summer only 75 days the young fellows once September rolled around.

If you have your 1975 calendar, circle Saturday, March 8 and 9 as dates to remember. The Bay of Quinte High School Athletic Directors' Association (now there's a mouthful) has scheduled senior boys' basketball sessions scheduled on those dates at Quinte Secondary School.

More details will be available about the tournament, which at least 30 teachers-coaches from each school of elementary) ready to take part.

Red Wings Get 6-3 Win

Penalties Hurt Cats' Chances

By MARK BEZTT
Sports Staff

The Belleville Bobcats found out the hard way Sunday night that you can't win a hockey game sitting in the penalty box.

The Cats dropped a 6-3 decision to the flying Toronto King City Red Wings in a Metro Junior B Hockey League contest at the Memorial Arena.

"We took a lot of stupid penalties," said coach Flort Coegan who was taking the place of regular coach of the Belleville squad, Jack Cassan.

"When a team takes a lot of stupid penalties in a game it just shows me that the team is in poor shape or the desire to win is missing," added Goegan.

In the first period both teams came up with some of the best hockey seen in the Memorial to date this year.

The home team sat out a total of 12 minutes throughout the course of the game including two 10-minute misconducts, one to Neil Turner and one to Mike Tyler.

The hard hitting, fast skating style of play left little on the edge of their seats.

Wally Dalziard and Langstaff were each tagged with a five-minute fighting major to account for the Bobcats' penalties.

Turner was ejected from the game at 7:38 of the opening period by accruing a Major Misconduct for something he said.

Although the refereeing at times was "questionable" Goegan said: "We can't blame the loss on the referee. He doesn't score goals for you or backcheck."

The teams were deadlocked one goal apiece at the finish of the first 20 minutes.

The middle frame was the one that most of the Cats would have liked to have missed. The Wings pumped four unanswered goals past netminder Bruce Clark.

Two goals were credited with the Belleville goal in the first period with Dan Lamb scoring the Kings only goal.

"We just couldn't get it together in the second," said Goegan about the lack-luster brand of hockey displayed by the home team.

The visitors took advantages of the slow down on the part of the Cats as Jim Taylor and Brian Dadgeon each scored a pair of goals.

Frustration became apparent in the form of dangerous high sticks and other similar methods of causing injury.

The first half of the third period proved to be little less than full scale war as both teams came close to swinging and went off sweating.

When the teams finally settled down they got back to the original purpose of the game, playing hockey.

The Cats kept the pressure on goalie Bob Rowe for the final 20 minutes but failed to score two goals, by Bob Thompson and Grant Goegan that a little more than two minutes apart.

The visitors came back at 16:10; and put the game out of reach as Mike Ireland scored the final goal of the night.

This month's winner of the Blue Club draw is Paul Clare, owner of Paul's Place on Victoria Avenue.

Clare collected for the Most Valuable Player of the Month was made between the first and second period. Selected for November was team captain Robbie Foster.

Prior to the game, a moment's silence was observed in memory of Keith Boyle, father of the Bobcat coach, Mr. Boyle was killed in the collision of two trains on the Canadian National main line, Friday night.

TMHA Juvenile Tourney Champion

Top Honors to Richmond Hill

TRENTON — The annual Trenton Minor Hockey Association Juvenile Tournament took a couple of new twists here on the weekend.

For a change, Birt's Handy Stand, the host team, didn't win the grand championship.

A strong Richmond Hill club looked after that item of business, rolling through four games with a perfect record to take A honors and the Cup.

Birt's had to settle for the B title after winning all the games in 1972 and 1973.

And Belleville's entry, winner of its opener 6-1 over Newmarket, had that win taken away when tournament officials ruled the Shell team had used two ineligible players.

The two players, Mike Crawford and Wayne Hagar, had been released to the Belleville Minor Hockey Association after seeing action with Ontario Hockey Association Junior teams, tourney officials agreed, but there was nothing in writing from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

Relegated to the B side, Shells lost their next game 4-0 to Barrie and were out of the tournament.

In the grand championship match, Richmond Hill overcame a 2-1 third period deficit to score three in a row and defeat Birt's 6-2.

Tom Lamb, Scott Davey, Arnie Vanderpeerde and Dave Berash looked after the Richmond Hill scoring. Repping for Trenton were Harry Ayres and Rick Matheson.

The champs took the A crown by nipping Richvale 3-2 in the final after an opening round 5-3 win over Trenton and a 9-0 defeat of Peterborough.

Trenton took the B side with wins over Oakville, 3-2 in overtime, and Barrie, 4-2 in the final.

Brian Mackintosh potted the winner in the pepsaver with Oakville. Matheson and Chuck Daub were the other marksmen for the winners.

The goalie duties team captain Scott Poole led the charges in the B title decision over Barrie. Matheson and Al Monma had the others.

Daple Lewis starred in the tourney's fifth game, getting off four saves and a shutout en route to a 4-2 loss to Barrie.

Goalie Tim Thomson held the Belleville squad together in the early going with some fine stops. Mike Hart and mates were getting untracked. Thanks to Thompson, things were right in there.

Barrie scored only one goal in that first period and it was the only scoring play of the first two frames as spirits of the fact Belleville came on strong in the second.

Barrie made it 3-0 in the third but Shells weren't finished yet. Martin Thistel finally broke the goose egg. He potted a pair 34 seconds apart but Barrie wrapped it up with six fourth goal in the game's final minute.

The winners' goals went to Bob Hepburn, John Turner, Rich Bowman and Doug Thompson.

In the win that wasn't, Shells got a pair of goals from Ken Just and singles by Mark Hagar and Dave Hepburn as they outscored Newmarket 4-1.

Nichs Nicked In Tournament

While Nicholson Catholic Colleges won their first game Friday and won their second game Saturday afternoon just as handily, they simply ran out of points in the Queen's University Invitational Basketball Tournament final on Saturday night.

The Nicks was their tournament opponent in over Memorial vale, at Ottawa, and Saturday afternoon gained revenge over Oshawa Eastdale by winning 64-44. When the final rolled around however, the Nicks fell short as they dropped the Championship by a mere one point, 56-55 to Kingston's KCVI.

In the semi-final, Nicholson held Eastdale's 6-foot-7 forward, Fred Kopsks to just 15 points Last week at the Durham tournament Kopsks had a one man show as he scored 39 against the Fighting Irish in their first game and knocked them into the consolation round. Dale Wilson was put on to keep Kopsks allowed the lanky Eastdaler just four points in the first half.

Jeffkyle led the way on the scoreboard. He dropped in 19 points, Bruce Collins bagged 13 and Wilson got 12.

Next to Kopsks, Oshawa's Gino Fuscaldi had 15 points.

In the final game of the tournament, Nicholson found themselves trailing all the way. At the end of the first quarter, Kingston hop the lead to seven points with the third quarter ending 44-37.

In the fourth quarter Nicholson ate away at the Kingston score until they were within one point 54-53.

Kingston's Garth Asser dropped a couple of foul shots on a one-and-one situation in the final minute to put his team in front 56-53. Asser only scored six points in the entire game, Nicholson hit a field foul but were unable to get anymore on time ran out.

Wilson was top point getter for the locals as he dropped in 19. Hayes was next with 12 and Dave Holland had 10.

The many trophies given out costly for Nicholson and Ian Dolphin and Pete Pashton took awards at the tournament banquet offered their squad. Dolphin had 14 points and Pashton had 12. Steve Weber was next with eight.

4 YMCA Divers Make Good Start

LONDON (Special) — The Belleville YMCA Diving Club made its presence felt over the competitive scene here Sunday and coach John Pinder considered it a good day to play "quite successful".

The Belleville club finished fourth in overall standings at the Ontario Invitational Christmas Meet at Kent Corner. Waterloo, Niagara Falls and Hamilton.

Paul Tidward, led Belleville with a third place finish in the 14-16 year old boys' metre springboard. Grace Marine, (16), came in with a strong fifth place finish.

Thirteen-year-old Grant Sutherland finished fifth in his age group and his 11-year-old brother placed sixth.

Only four of the club members participated in the Meet, but Pinder's looking to next January (the date of the next competition) when more of his charges will compete.

The coach hopes to enlist more members in the club between then and now and also has interested in the sport — from either a learning or instructor's standpoint — contact himself or Di Demaeyer's at the YMCA.

Phil Esposito Reaches 500-goal Plateau

PHIL ESPOSITO
Another Milestone

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In a few years, Phil Esposito may not even remember his 500th career goal.

Sunday, Esposito scored two goals in a 5-4 Boston Bruins' victory over Detroit Red Wings' and became only the sixth player in National Hockey League history—and the only one still active in the NHL—to reach that plateau.

"I don't know whether I'll particularly remember this one or not," said the Esposito, 33, in his 12th NHL season and still going strong. "I remember the first goal all right.

"It was in my second game in the league with Chicago in the 1963-64 season. I scored against Terry Sawchuk . . . I also remember getting a shorthanded goal against New York Rangers in 1971 because it was the record for shorthanded goals by a team in a season.

"The same year I remember getting my 39th goal in Los Angeles because that broke Bobby's (Hull) record."

Esposito went on to score 76 goals in 78 games in the 1970-71 campaign and still holds that record.

Despite Esposito's milestone, relative unknown Jean Pronovost of Lucs scored three goals to lead Buffalo in a 4-3 win over Washington Capitals that kept the Sabres five points in front of Boston in the Adams Division.

Two other NHL games Sunday ended in stalemates, Philadelphia Flyers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 4-0 and Chicago Black Hawks whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0. In the other games, Atlanta Flames nipped New York Rangers 4-3, New York Islanders downed Kansas City Scouts 5-2 and Vancouver Canucks beat California Seals 6-3.

Saturday, the Leafs upset Boston 8-4, Montreal Canadiens tied 3-3 with Los Angeles Kings, Minnesota North Stars beat Pittsburgh 5-2, Philadelphia and Detroit tied 3-3, St. Louis defeated Kansas City 6-4 and Chicago tied 3-3 with the Islanders.

Gordie Howe is the NHL's all-time leading scorer with 786 goals in 25 seasons with Detroit. He had also played for New Yorkers Richard with 564, Frank Mahovlich with 533 and Jean Ratteman with 287. Howe, Hull and Mahovlich moved to the World Hockey Association and Richard and Ratteman have retired.

Esposito thinks he can overtake Howe. "Maybe not this year, perhaps Richard this year. And, if all goes well, he could catch Hull and Howe before his career is over.

Bernie Parent got his sixth shutout of the season in the Flyers' victory. Philadelphia got second-period goals from Rick MacLeish, Reggie Leach and Ross Lonsberry.

Lucs scored his three goals in the second period, and Gary Bromley recorded his third shutout this year for Buffalo. Two of Lucs's goals came 15 seconds apart while the Sabres were skating shorthanded.

Tony Esposito notched his 58th shutout of the season—the last of his career—and Stan Mikita and Cliff Koroll scored power play goals for the Black Hawks.

Carl Bennett scored on a power play to push Atlanta past the Rangers after Ken Hodge had lost a 3-0 lead on goals by Brian Bentall in the first period and Tim Ecclestone in the second.

Toros Up by Three Over the Nordiques

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Two-goal games have been recording a variety for Rick Cunningham of Toronto Toros.

But the 26-year-old Toronto native turned in a two-goal effort Sunday night to help his club to a 5-4 win over Chicago Cougars in one of six World Hockey Association games.

The Toros win boosted their point total to 38 and they lead the Canadian Division by three points over second-place Quebec Nordiques.

The Nordiques dropped a 3-2 decision to Minnesota Stags, Phoenix Roadrunners edged Winnipeg Jets 4-3, Edmonton Oilers topped San Diego Mariners 6-3, Indianapolis Racers downed New England Whalers 5-1 and Houston Aeros blanked Cleveland Crusaders 3-0 in other Sunday action.

In Saturday games, Vancouver Blazers topped San Diego 5-1, Edmonton defeated Chicago 5-4 and Houston downed New England 5-3.

"This was my third two-goal game in pro hockey," said Cunningham, who started his professional career in the WHA with Ottawa Nationals in the 1972-73 season. He had two goals in the first last season.

Forwards Frank Mahovlich and Bob Leduc returned to the Toros lineup after missing recent games with assorted injuries.

"I think you can see that they helped us," said Toros' coach Billy Harris. "We've got two games in 24 hours and the extra manpower is a big plus."

Steve Andrascik scored the fourth goal of the year at 2:37 of the sudden-death overtime to give the Stags their win over Quebec

Andrascik's goal came after the Stags blew a 2-0 lead in the third period as Serge Bernier scored his 35th and 36th goals of the year.

Bernier's goals marked the 10th consecutive game in which he has scored at least a goal—a league record.

Outstanding goaltending by Gary Kurt and strong penalty killing carried Phoenix to their win over Winnipeg.

Kurt finished the game with 41 saves and kicked out all but one of 23 shots the Jets fired at him in the last two periods.

The Roadrunners were assessed eight of the nine minors but Winnipeg could not score on the numerous power-play opportunities.

The Oilers moved into third place in the Canadian Division with their win over San Diego. Edmonton now had 32 points in 25 games and is three back of Winnipeg has 31 points in 29 games.

Oilers captain Al Hamilton was carried from the ice on a stretcher in the second period after he crashed into a goal post in the San Diego zone. First reports said he suffered a broken breezay.

Three-period goals by Cral Hamner and Bobby Whitlock gave Indianapolis its winning margin over the Whalers, who blanked their third game in as many nights.

Goaltender Ron Grahame blocked 28 shots and veteran Ted Taylor scored his sixth and seventh goals to lead Houston in its win over the Crusaders.

Clippers Get 'Free' Goal But Lose to Americans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Americans scored into their own empty net Sunday night in American Hockey League action but still took a 5-4 victory over Baltimore Clippers.

The incident occurred in the third period of the game when Baltimore's Bob Rivard was called on a delayed penalty and Rochester pulled goalie Bob Soeddco for an extra attacker.

With the Americans pressing in the Baltimore zone, the puck bounded out of Rochester defencemen and slid back into the Rochester goal.

Evonne Goolagong

Twin Comebacks

SYDNEY (AP) — Tony Roche and Evonne Goolagong won the singles crown in the New South Wales open tennis championships Sunday.

Roche's win was his first tournament success in almost three years and suggested he may be firmly on the comeback trail after an injury to his play-ing hand.

Miss Goolagong beat Margaret Court 6-3, 7-5, after trailing 3-5 in the final set.

Mrs. Court was playing her first tournament since the birth of her second child.

U.S. Skier in Upset Win Over Austrians

SAALBACH, Austria (CP) — Cindy Nelson of the United States upset the confident Austrians on their home ground in Saalbrigg by winning the women's third World Cup downhill women's skiing race.

The 20-year-old skier from Lutsen, Minn., covered 1.7 miles with a drop of 2,130 feet in 1:36.78.

Austria's Annemarie Proell Moser was seventh in 1:37.43 but she kept her over-all lead after five World Cup races with 90 points, 13 ahead of Miss Nelson.

Marie Theres Nadig, Switzerland's double 1972 Olympic champion, staged a strong comeback to take second place in 1:36.49, and West Germany's Rosi Mittermaier was third in 1:37.04.

Oakland Stuns Miami in Showdown

Look Who Didn't Make It in Playoff Thriller

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Somehow it won't seem the same without Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl.

The Dolphins, who have been in the National Football League's Super Bowl champion-ship the last three years in a row and won the last two, were eliminated 26-26 Saturday by Oakland Raiders.

And there are three other contenders to the throne, too: Pittsburgh Steelers, who whipped Buffalo Bills 23-14; Minnesota Vikings, who beat St. Louis Cardinals 30-14, and Los Angeles Rams, who defeated Washington Redskins 19-10.

Miami coach Don Shula was philosophical after his dreams of a fourth straight trip to the Super Bowl, and perhaps a third straight championship, died under the pounding attack of Ken Stabler.

The Oakland quarterback's fourth touchdown pass of the game—an eight-yarder to Clarence Davis with 26 seconds to play—exalted the Raiders past the Dolphins Saturday and into the American Conference title game against Pittsburgh.

"When you have this that, you know winning just wasn't meant to be," said Shula. "Your dreams go down the drain. They needed a touchdown and they got it. I think it is the toughest loss I've ever suffered as a coach."

Miami led 19-14 with about five minutes to play. But Stabler teamed with Cliff Branch on a 75-yard play that put Oakland on top 21-19 with 4:26 left—and back came the Dolphins with quick Benny Malone tossing in a 25-yard touchdown run. Miami was on top 26-24 with 2:08 to go.

Stabler and the Raiders weren't through yet. With four passes and a burst up the middle by Davis, Oakland was on the Miami eight-yard line. Then came the pass to Davis—in a swarm of defenders—that ended Miami's domination of the NFL.

"It was the biggest win for us in a long time," Raider said. "It was a question of big plays. You have to play consistently. We feel we are never out of a game."

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw chided it his best performance ever after his second-period passing set up Rocky Bleier's short fullback touchdown run that buried the Bills and posted Pittsburgh into the AFC showdown in Oakland.

WENT 12 FOR 19

Bradshaw hit seven of nine passes in the 36-point second-quarter burst and wound up completing 12 of 19 passes for 300 yards and running five passes for 66 yards. "I've never really felt in complete control of the game like that before," he said.

John Gilliam is the best receiver I've ever worked with," said Fran Tarkenton, whose two touchdown passes to the Mis-sionals wide receiver led the Vikings past the St. Louis on Saturday and into the National Conference championship game for the second year in a row.

Tarkenton found Gilliam with a 16-yard game-tying pass late in the first half and a 38-yarder in a third quarter that put the game out of reach.

"George Allen always said that if you can get six turnovers in a game, you'll win it," Los Angeles' bigs defensive tackle, Merlin Olsen, said of his former coach, now with Washington. "We got six today."

The Rams intercepted three passes, one of them resulting in a touchdown, and recovered three fumbles, with two leading to tying and winning field goals.

And Olsen had a hand in what turned out to be the decisive score.

"There is nothing graceful about rushing opposing backs," said the 275-pound tackle. "Sometimes you don't know how you got there. You just got there."

First he got to running back Larry Brown, forcing a fumble that preceded David Ray's game-tying 27-yard field goal in the third quarter.

On the ensuing kickoff, Dave Cunningham fumbled, the Rams recovered and Ray kicked a 36-yarder that put Los Angeles on top to stay at 13-10 in the fourth quarter.

And, finally, with the Redskins playing catchup, Olsen s i a m m e d into quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, causing the tiring on a pass. Linebacker Isiah Robertson picked it off and ran it 39 yards for a touchdown.

The Rams scored first on James Harris' 19-yard pass to Bob Klein but a 25-yard field goal by Mike Bragg and a one-yard plunge by Moses Denson gave Washington a 10-7 halftime

Soccer Shocker

LONDON (AP) — Relegation-haunted Carlisle United shocked Everton 3-2 on its home ground Saturday as several English League soccer teams vaulted or tumbled in the top and bottom of the First Division standings.

Ipswich Town, who led after a 2-0 win Friday over Leicester, stayed in command as all six of their rivals failed to win.

With the championship race now into the second half, only a point and defending points in goal averages separated the first seven clubs.

The top of the table looks like this: Ipswich 26 points from 23 games; Everton 26 from 22; Manchester City 25 from 21; Liverpool 27 from 22, and Fulham, Middlesbrough and Stoke City each 27 from 23.

Carlisle's triumph was one of the biggest surprises of the year. Everton, unbeaten at home, had had only one game before Saturday's clash. At stake, a little club from north-west England, has been struggling throughout the season.

Carlisle now is third from the bottom with 17 points, one ahead of Leicester and six in front of Luton and Sheffield.

Three championship contenders—Manchester City, Middlesbrough and West Ham—all drew, while Liverpool beat 3-1 to Birmingham City, Manchester and Wolverhampton tied 0-0, West Ham and Chelsea united to a 1-1 draw and Middlesbrough and Burnley tied 1-1.

Arsenal upset Stoke City 3-0.

At Everton's Goodison Park, Bob Latchford scored twice for the home town team to put it ahead 2-0. But the striker's ef-forts were wasted as Carlisle settled back. Ian Ledger scored with a brilliant diving header in the 54th minute to reduce the deficit and was in the right spot to score the tying goal of the day in the 84th minute.

The winner came in the 64th minute when Chris Balderstone broke through the Everton defence and his cross was met powerfully by Alan ONeill who scored with a header.

Birmingham was ahead 3-1 at Anfield when a goal by Gordon Taylor and Howard Kendall, with John Toshack scored for Liverpool. The hosts made a desperate effort to tie the score but striker Bob Hatton clinched the win with a fine goal in the dying minutes.

Brian Kidd was the hero in Manchester City's 2-0 win with goals in the sixth minute and the 67th minute. He now has 13 this season.

It was Stoke's first home defeat since Aug. 31, 1971 fame—in a row.

Defending champion Leeds United suffered a blow to their title hopes when they were held to a 1-1 draw by Everton at Elland Road.

In the Second Division, leading Manchester City kept its runaway over York while second-place Sunderland was held to a 0-0 draw by Oldham. The win gives Manchester 35 points in the bid to return to the First Division, Sunderland has 30.

Colin Harvey, two points ahead of Rangers in the First Division of the Scottish League with a 3-1 win over St. Johnstone. Rangers lost 4-3 to Aberdeen.

"It was those two goals that close but once we got there it shouldn't make them call it any different. That's two times in a row we've been burned. All that grabbing and holding going on at the end."

The Colonels, on the other hand, didn't think they were aided by the referees.

"We're coming back to the form we were in at the beginning," said Kentucky coach Hubie Brown, referring to early-season success when the Colonels won 11 of the first 12 games. "Anytime you play five on six six things you have to fa'figue factor that's important, but we got great help from our bench."

The victory, the Colonels' fifth in six days, lifted them back into first place in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division over New York Nets. The Nets had a 10-game winning streak stopped by Utah, 109-97, and dropped 13 percentage points behind the Colonels.

In the only other ABA game Sunday night, San Antonio Spurs defeated Chicago Conquistadors 134-104.

In the National Basketball Association, Milwaukee Bucks beat New Orleans Jazz 98-76, Los Angeles Lakers defeated Portland Trail Blazers 115-102 and Seattle SuperSonics defeated Detroit Pistons 148-99.

In the NBA on Saturday, Boston beat New York 109-97, Houston beat Atlanta 116-96, Washington defeated Philadelphia 119-101, Chicago beat Cleveland 107-97, Kansas City-Omaha defeated golden State 127-94, Phoenix defeated Los Angeles 114-104 and Portland beat Detroit 128-97.

In Saturday's ABA action, New York beat Indiana 124-123, Virginia defeated St. Louis 96-91, Kentucky defeated Memphis 115-98 and Denver beat San Antonio 112-104.

WIL Jones' 27 points and Louis Dampier's fourth-period heroics led Kentucky over Indiana.

WHL All-stars Trim Czechs

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Mark Beenbers, scored his three goals during the opening seven minutes of the game when the All-stars were playing with only 10 men due to the mental burnout of players being held up in the storm.

Dave Davidson and Dale McIntyre scored three goals each to pace the Western Canada Hockey League All-Stars to an 8-3 exhibition win over Czechoslovakia.

More than 2,000 fans attended the game despite a storm that left six inches of snow in the city.

The All-Stars, aided by David son's three consecutive goals, built up a 5-0 lead before the Czechs scored. The All-Stars led 5-1 at the end of the first and 7-2 at the end of the second.

Davidson, from the Flin Flon Wheat Kings, scored one goal in each period. Other All Star goals were scored by Rich Wilgis and Jim Miner.

Scoring for Czechoslovkia were Jiri Ezl and Peter Stastny.

Fincups Tie Touring Team

HAMILTON (CP) — Left winger Pavel Ritcher's third goal of the game with less than four minutes remaining enabled Czechoslovakian Olympics to tie Hamilton Fincups 4-4 Saturday in an exhibition hockey game.

It was the first of eight exhibition games in Canada for the Czechoslovakian team. Fincups are in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series.

Olympics had to come from behind four times to gain the tie.

The score was tied 2-2 after one period and 3-3 going into the final period.

Miroslav Krivacek scored the other Czechoslovak goal before a crowd of 1,084.

Archie King, Greg Hickey, Joe Contini and Greg Clarke scored for Hamilton.

King's unassisted goal put Hamilton ahead at 1:25 of the first period but Ritcher's first goal, with the Fincups short-handed, tied the score at the 7:18 mark.

Hickey made it 2-1 at 9:34 and the lead stood until Ritcher got his second goal at 12:47.

Contini put the Fincups ahead for the third time from a scramble in front of Czechoslovak goalie Miroslav Kopecky early in the second period but Krivacek took advantage of a Hamilton penalty to beat Greg Redquest who took over from goalie Miles Clarke midway through the game.

The Czechoslovaks were shorthanded when Clarke gave Hamilton the lead for the fourth time at 12:07 of the final period. Ritcher gained the tie at 16:34.

Kidd Wins Marathon

ATLANTA, Ga. (CP) — Bruce Kidd of Toronto beat out 122 other competitors Saturday in the annual Peach Bowl marathon.

Kidd covered the 26-mile distance in two hours, 30 minutes and 18 seconds, the second-fastest time ever recorded in the event.

Lee Fidler of the Atlanta Track Club was second, finishing almost two minutes behind Kidd.

Mindless Brutality in Ulster Spills into English Mainland

LONDON (CP) — The mindless brutality which has dominated life in Northern Ireland for five years became more vicious in 1974 and spilled onto the English mainland.

And throughout Britain there was a universal, almost fatalistic conviction that the terror bombing of targets in England would be kept up during 1975, despite new government legislation to combat guerrilla groups.

It was the November bombing of two Birmingham pubs, causing 20 deaths and scores of injuries, which spurred the Westminster government to action and refocused British attention on the festering problem of Ulster.

Throughout the year, the political situation had been deteriorating steadily. Protestant working-class radicals had seized power from their more moderate colleagues and a campaign of indiscriminate sectarian murder had gradually eclipsed all efforts to restore peace.

The British army in Ulster conceded the level of violence was falling and produced statistics to prove it. But they offered little comfort to the people of the North who realize that the murders have created a greater sense of fear in both Protestant and Roman Catholic areas than anything which has happened before.

With extremists on each side intent on killing the highest possible number on the other regardless of political beliefs, people who once feared to walk the streets after dark have become wary of venturing out in daylight.

For the people of Ulster, 1974 was the year when hysteria became a target. The armed killer, often a freelance gunman with little loyalty to any group or ideal, took over from the bomber acting under instructions from either the Protestant Ulster Defence Association or the largely Catholic Irish Republican Army.

The killers' chilling rule was to even the score after each torture or murder of a Catholic or Protestant. Towards the end of the year, as many as a dozen people were being assassinated each week.

The year began with a fragile executive and assembly, whose members accurately reflected the proportions of both religions in Ulster, administering local affairs from Belfast, while ultimate power rested with the British government at Westminster.

Brian Faulkner was the chief executive and his moderate band of Protestant supporters, combined with middle-of-the-road Catholics, seemed to offer some hope for stability.

But the British general election in February provided the first clear sign that more trouble lay ahead. Of 11 Protestant MPs elected to Westminster from Ulster, 10 were hardliners. They moderates were unseated and Faulkner's image was fatally tarnished.

A few months later, Protestant workers, incensed by what they considered Westminster's unseemly haste in trying to promote greater cooperation between the North and the Irish Republic, defied their political leaders and brought Ulster life to a halt with a crippling, all-encompassing strike.

Before they finished, they had forced the resignation of Faulkner and other leading members of the executive and forced the British government to re-energize its assembly indefinitely.

A new breed of strong young, right-wing Protestants now held effective power in the North, determined not to share authority with the Catholics and to fight all attempts at strengthening relations with the Republic.

The response of the IRA was to switch its attacks to England and to try by its bombing campaign to persuade the British to withdraw their 15,000 troops from Ulster and leave them free to pursue whatever methods they might choose to unite the two Irelands.

The assassination campaign, on the other hand, seems designed by both sides simply to deepen the terror in Northern Ireland and enhance their support with the claim that only they can offer any effective protection to individuals.

Meanwhile, the British government has reaffirmed its determination to go ahead with elections to a constituent assembly in 1975 and to give it the task of hammering out a new political formula acceptable to both sides. The task seems monumental and, in view of Ulster's past record, the odds are against success.

But the real test of British fortitude may come during the next year if the bombing in England continues. What the IRA, the Protestants and the world will watch is the limit to which British tolerance can be stretched before the pressure becomes overwhelming for the government to abandon Ulster to its fate.

Communist Consumers Never Had It So Good

MOSCOW (CP) — There was no price tag on the motorcycles or the smart Zhiguli-Fiats motorboat in the store window.

"Those are just for tourists," sniffed the Soviet citizen. "They aren't for us."

Nevertheless, the impression received after a 14-day visit to three Soviet cities that the Soviet consumer probably has never had it so good can be firmly convinced that it will get better.

Food seems ample.

Rank on rank of apartments continue to rise, monotonous and even depressing by western standards but sharp improvements on existing housing.

Automobiles are surprisingly numerous, most owned by the state but others in private hands, and production is increasing steadily. Western technology is involved in some instances.

At the Bolshoi Theatre, there may well be as much eye shadow and as many platform soles as at the Ottawa National Art Centre. There is lengthy male hair, much of it modishly cottoned.

"There's a lot of money around," says a Soviet citizen who recently acquired a summer cottage 40 miles out of Moscow.

He adds, in a parody of the current-day complaint by Canadian urban dwellers: "But good places close to the city are getting hard to find."

Conversations with officials showed rising concern about some of the same issues confronting North American cities—pollution, urban sprawl and preservation of historic material.

The official line is that the Soviet consumer price index, the gauge of how much ordinary people pay in taxes, hasn't changed since the mid-1950s.

That's in contrast with increases of as much as 10 per less or more a year in living costs for most countries caught up in the international scramble of upward commodity costs including energy.

It is true that the Soviet Union, like China and Canada, is largely self-reliant for energy, food, resources and technology and therefore is better protected than most against inflation.

But there is a strong suspicion among economists that holding the cost of living absolutely steady today is a trick done, with mirrors.

Soviet prices still look pretty good, although alcohol is costing more and so auto costs about $9,000.

Housing continues to expand in the shape of prefabricated apartments of nine, 11 and 14 storeys, all the same model.

All the subsidized rental rates, a young couple may get something for about $70.

But the housing shortage remains acute despite the addition of more than 40 million units since 1956. No other country has built more in that period.

Moscow makes room for another 250,000 a year, people drawn from the country or other cities or newborn.

In Leningrad, the municipal master-planning group has embarked on a vast scheme to throw up apartment housing on reclaimed land on the Gulf of Finland.

Leningrad's master plan, created in 1966, includes a reduction of 23 per cent in the population of the central core.

Old Tbilisi, capital of wine-growing Georgia far to the south, expanded its affluent citizen in September and the mayor says limits are being placed on adding new industry.

Too much industry makes too many people, he says, pointing to efforts to clean up environmental pollution. He projects an annual growth rate of about 10 per cent.

For the ordinary worker in the vast country of 250 million, all the surface indications point to plenty of places for spending money.

Appliances continue to be on the primitive side in appearance, something like British refrigerators or clothes washers of the early 1950s.

A vacuum cleaner is priced at 35 to 80 rubles or $50.60—with one ruble worth at the highly-artificial official rate about $1.30 Canadian.

There are kitchen mixers, irons and a small, rickety-looking dishwasher for about 75 rubles. There is lots of plastic luggage on display, hockey sticks and footwear.

Stores lolling behind their sales "norms" may stay open late at night or seven days a week around payday.

Food stores are plentiful and well attended but the chief drawback continues to be distribution. Soviet residents say. A shipment of bananas from Cuba will flood Moscow mark-ets and then vanish.

Still, the official price for Soviet basic foods makes their brand of price and wage control look appalling in today's inflationary context.

Sunken Ships Stir Dreams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sunken ships conjure up a romantic image of hidden treasure and schemes are constantly being hatched to try to get at them.

One of the most sought-after ghosts of the deep is the British liner Lusitania, which was sunk by a German submarine only 18 miles off the sunny Irish fishing town of Kinsale on May 7 1915, during the First World War.

Another favorite quarry is the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria, which went down in 240 feet of water off Nantucket, Mass., after a collision with the Swedish vessel Stockholm, on July 25, 1956.

There have been persistent reports that the Lusitania was carrying a fortune in gold bullion when it torpedo and the great four-stacker to the bottom with the loss of 1,198 lives.

These tales of lost gold have been steadily denied but it is known that the Lusitania was carrying about $1 million worth of non-ferrous metals, gunmetal and copper ingots in her cargo, tons of bronze in her huge propellers, brass in her fittings and still more copper and brass in her engine room.

A far richer prize is the Doria. The scrap value of her hull and superstructure alone has recently been estimated at $6 million

The liner was also reported to be carrying about $1 million in cash, a solid silver plaque valued at more than $50,000 and a king's ransom in personal jewelry and works of art.

The question is how to get at the riches.

A British engineer has come up with a scheme to pump the Lusitania full of plungen. draw plastic sheets around her by remote control and wait for the trapped gas to bring the ship to the surface But, the Lusitania has been under water so long that there may be no way to trap the gas.

Divers who have examined the ship say part of her superstructure and her four funnels have collapsed and the pine decks have been eaten away by the sea. But the foredecks were more of less and are, still there.

Oceanographers have proposed using the Doria as submarine or sealab to salvage the Doria. Such a project would cost an estimated $4.8 million but—estimates of the liner's worth could make even such an outlay worthwhile

Rescued

BRAMPTON (CP) — Deputy Fire Chief Jim Brunne's chance visit to a store for cigarettes Sunday morning ended in the rescue of a woman from a burning house next door.

Mina Hayward was carried to safety from the smoke-filled home seconds before she was overcome.

The deputy chief said the woman, who believed her two teen-age daughters were still in the house, refused to leave.

"So I carried her out," he said.

He said the daughters had informed him their mother was inside when he arrived at the scene.

English Girls Getting Fat

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's schoolgirls are getting fatter, whereas boys are staying as trim as ever, a new medical survey shows.

The study, conducted by Dr. John Colley of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, said nearly one in three 14-year-old girls now is obese.

Dr. Colley said Saturday he had no convincing explanation for the increase in fatness among the girls. He had examined more than 2,400 children aged between six and 14.

Criticizes South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Entertainer Josephine Baker said she would be "glad and proud to be thrown out of South Africa" for her comments against the country's policies of racial discrimination. The 58-year-old black singer's outspoken views made one stage and in interviews have included criticism that South African authorities "must be sick to allow what is happening."

Streaker Is Fined

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — The lad of streaking may be over but some people still are paying the penalty. Kenneth E. Bush and Phillip Curran, 22, were both fined $100 in court after pleading guilty to a charge of public nuisy. They were arrested after doffing their clothes and streaking through the Paisley Hotel.

To Your Good Health

Sex Not Ended By Hysterectomy

By G. C. HOSTERSON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a hysterectomy four years ago when I had just passed my 37th birthday. Since then I have lost all libido, which was normal before. When I questioned my doctor about this, he said it is just gone.

But I know it isn't, that there is something that isn't correct. It's breaking up our home after 20 years. We never did have very children. The gynecologist who operated on me said one ovary was diseased and so was the other. normal. Before the operation, he promised he wouldn't remove them unless necessary. Well, he didn't keep his promise.

I have asked him why, and all he said was, "You wanted to want another operation in a couple of years, would you?"—A.H.

Well, would you?

Surgeons must make decisions, often under great pressures of time, weighing the health and personal desires of the patient in a delicate balance. Your doctor undoubtedly was weighing all the factors you mention in your letter including the childlessness of 20 years standing.

Now, as to loss of libido (particularly known as "sex drive"): I hate to reopen this subject. The last time I advised a woman who had undergone a hysterectomy that her sex drive was perhaps, mainly in her mind, I got a number of scorching letters from women's lib groups across the country.

However I am pleased to report that there was an even greater likelihood of most females (10 to 1) mail from women who resented that they were treated with normal sex lives after the "operation."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a person kneels down on a needle and breaks off a leg in the leg is it absolutely necessary to have it taken out?

That happened to me. My doctor took x-rays and tried to take it out, but failed. He drained the place and got the infection out and said if I didn't hurt me, it was not necessary to take it out.

People tell me it might get into the blood stream and go to the heart. My doctor says it will not go to the heart or lungs or brain.—Mrs. EP

Your doctor is right. You've heard of the needle in the haystack. A bit of a needle in the lioness can be equally elusive. Foreign bodies of this sort stay pretty well in the area where they are put.

No need to worry about it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am suffering from a really cold sensation which I really can't describe. It is not a chill, but a cold sensation that comes over me. I can't even compare anything in your mouth such as ice cubes.

Sometimes when I eat a lot of sunflower seeds, the next day I have that cold sensation. I've had it off and on for many months.—L.A.

Any excessive accumulation of cold can be the skin by delicating the membranes of the mouth tissues.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told that if a person wears contact lenses and plans on traveling to Europe that they should take their own water for cleaning them.—A.F.R

Why not just bring along one of the normal solutions for the purpose, the moistening agent which is used on the contacts when they are in place?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe to sleep in the basement where the hot water heater and furnace are all in one room? My 30-year-old son sleeps about 30 feet from them. I am not concerned about the hot or cold water, but whether the gas heater and boiler give off dangerous fumes that could hurt him. There are connected into the chimney.—Mrs. J. G.

Being in a basement isn't unhealthful, per se. But whether it is properly ventilated can be vital.

Both the heater and furnace must, of course, be connected into the chimney. Technically this is "venting." Both of these heating units produce carbon monoxide—and can't help it.

The monoxide fumes must be carried away through the chimney. Allowed to accumulate, the monoxide is deadly, just as it is deadly to run an automobile engine in a closed garage (or sometimes even in one that isn't totally closed but doesn't get rid of the fumes fast enough).

Properly vented, basement heating units are safe. But I do advise that you have the pipes checked for leaks or clogging periodically. Also be suspicious if your son notes any grogginess or headaches in the basement.

Jim: "As you have told me many times, greed is a terrible thing."

Oswald: "I suppose you have an example for me."

Jim: "The game was rubber bridge. That's king of spades held the first trick and he led back the ten to dummy's ace. South came to his hand with the ace of hearts; led the nine of clubs and let it ride."

Oswald: "Was East smart enough to take his king and lead back a club?"

Jim: "He certainly was and South had to win a ton of bricks. He cashed the hearts and spades while stooping in his hand. It became apparent to him that East must have a doubleton spade so it would be perfectly safe to take a diamond finesse and score an overtrick. He took the finesse and the contract."

Oswald: "I would not really blame South of the game had been match point duplicate. That overtrick would have been the difference between a rubber bridge he had no right to risk his contract. What was East?"

Jim: "A very bad player. It turned out that the reason he had not led the queen of spades the first time was that he had not seen it."

Nobody Wanted TV Movie Except for Those Watching

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the beginning: no one gave it much of a chance.

Studios didn't want to be bothered.

Stars avoided it.

Nobody liked it but the audience. That was the birth of the television movie.

"I don't think any of us envisaged it becoming a new kind of television," said Aaron Spelling, who produced the first Movie of the Week for ABC in 1969. He has done 53 since.

The TV movie has indeed become a new kind of television.

At its best, it is thought provoking, diverse, offering in-depth character study. At its worst, it is cliche-ridden and melodramatic.

Even in the earliest days, some remarkable films emerged: My Sweet Charlie, Silent Night Lonely Night, Duel, Brian's Song and, Tribes.

But it has been in the last year that the art form has come of age with such films as The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman, The Execution of Private Slovik and A Case of Rape.

"I think it's the future of television," said Herbert S. Schlosser, president of NBC.

Producer Chuck Price said: "I think we're going to have bigger and more expensive movies made for TV. The really big stars will come if you make it attractive enough for them." Price is turning out more than half-a-dozen TV movies this season.

The three United States networks air about 190 original movies a year. They range from the 90-minute films that appear twice a week on ABC and once weekly on NBC to the two-and three-hour movies on CBS to such open-ended pictures as the six-hour QBVII.

Universal Studios made the first TV movie, Fame Is the Name of the Game, for NBC in 1966 and launched not only the TV movie but a long-running series, The Name of the Game. From the start, the TV movie and the series pilot have been linked.

A strong point of the TV movie is that it can hit an important social issue while it is still on everyone's mind, like A Case of Rape/last year and this season's The Gun, which traces the ownership of a pistol and shows how it affects each person's life.

Another major factor: A TV film is seen by everyone at the same time on the same night. That gives it an impact and social importance the theatrical film could never achieve.

"We have more freedom than the motion pictures," said NBC's Schlosser. "They address a narrower, younger audience. We can treat a broader subject and find a great appetite out there for it."

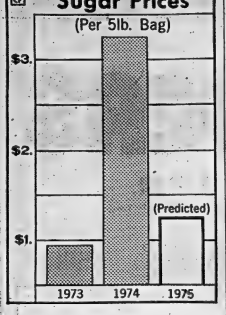
"Our movies are tailored for the medium. We can make them faster to move a subject of the moment. I'm convinced our ability to determine audience tastes is more sophisticated than that of the motion picture industry."

As with any new dramatic form, the TV movie built its own star structure.

The superstars of the brand-and-better TV movie drive up the ratings, yet are rarely asked to star in a theatrical film. Elizabeth Montgomery, star of Bewitched and A Case of Rape, is a superstar; Elizabeth Taylor, who flopped in a TV movie, is not.

The people who pack them in at the Irving roars blue are Miss Montgomery, Karen Valentine, Doris Leachman, Barbara Eden, Camille Sevens, Martin Sheen, Lloyd Bridges, Hal Holbrook and Darren McGavin.

Producer Quinn Martin, biggest independent producer in television, said he has seen the movies change.



"If you couldn't say what the show was about in two lines, they wouldn't buy it," he said. "The attitude's different now.

"I've got a movie coming up called Terror on the 8:22. It's about ripping off a train, and it's in a melodramatic frame.

"In the old days I'd have had to have a subplot—if you don't get to Cruise on time, somebody's going to have a baby. They don't ask for the melodramatic gimmicks any more."

Sugar Prices

(Per 5lb. Bag)

Prices to Fall

A five-pound bag of sugar selling in December for $3.25 will probably cost between $1.25 and $1.75 near the end of 1975, Neil Shaw, president of Redpath Industries Ltd. has predicted Mr. Shaw said that even after the downard trend runs its course, the industry will never go back to the price of seven to 10 cents a pound that was so common a few years ago. OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran

Boy Sacrificed, Bible Beside Him

MIAMI (AP) — A page torn from a Bible may hold clues to why a nine-year-old Pennsylvania boy was slain in ritualistic fashion as a sacrificial offering, police said Sunday.

The Bible was lying on a bed in a motel room where Arnold Deborah of Fort Washington was found Friday with his throat slashed.

Shortly after the boy was found, police arrested a man identified as Verral Walford, 23, alias Robert Grant of Hartford, Conn., on a first-degree murder charge.

Miami police said they will compare the Bible with another one to find out if the missing pages provide clues to a motive in the slaying.

Police said Walford told them he was released recently from a Connecticut mental hospital.

The Zelenik child was alone in the motel corridor just minutes when his family heard a scream.

A motel employee found Arnold lying in a pool of blood on the bathroom floor.

"Like sacrificing a lamb," police detective Edward Carberry said in describing the boy's death. "It looked like he held the child on the throat would be over the toilet, let him bleed out."

"It was absolutely the most tragic thing I've ever seen."

Police said they found a message in Walford's pocket. The note, with misspelled words read:

"God of Israel say so. The God say this. The temple must not be made for any vailbox nor any police office. Child offer has sacrifices."

'Fallen Buds' Receive Care in Special Camps

ULIPUR, Bangladesh (AP) — The children squat, shivering in the morning cold, many wearing only a name tag.

There's Ganesh, 7; Jamina, 8; Nur Jahan, 8; Lalki, 4. And there's one little girl, about 2, sitting all alone, with flies crawling over her naked, limp body. Her face is blank. No one knows her name.

Throughout Bangladesh's remote Kurigram subdivision, there are at least 1,000 more children like them.

They are "[illegible]." Bengali for "orphans."

Some lost their mothers and fathers in the severe famine that ravaged northern Bangladesh this autumn after floods washed away their homes and their crops.

Others were abandoned by parents who could no longer care for them. They were found along road sides in towns, at railway stations and in rice fields in the villages.

In Ulipur and seven other towns of Kurigram subdivision, special government centers have been opened to care for the orphaned and the abandoned, to provide them with high-protein food flown in by international relief agencies.

The special care centers are called "Chinna Mukul," or Fallen Buds, because that is what the children inside are considered.

A poster on the wall of one of the centers explains the philosophy.

"Before these flowers could blossom, the buds had fallen down. Now we want to give them life so they can blossom after all."

When the centers were opened in late October, they had more than 4,000 children. Since then, about half have been returned to their homes now that their parents can feed them following the start of the rice harvesting season.

But the remaining 2,000 face an uncertain future. They have no where to go. And as winter sets in, many have no clothes to wear, no blankets to protect them at night.

Land of the Free No Place to Be As Every Arm of Law Has Gun

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-four year-old Maria Pellot, who started out angry about a double-parked car that was blocking her own, ended up dying on a Brooklyn street early Sunday. She became caught in the crossfire of a shootout between two policemen.

Police said it apparently was all a misunderstanding.

Miss Pellot came out of a booze in the east New York section of Brooklyn shortly after midnight Saturday and found her parked car blocked by a double-parker.

When James Gibson, a housing authority policeman, came out of a nearby apartment house, he found Miss Pellot banging on his double-parked car with an 18-inch pipe.

Gibson was trying to take the pipe away from the girl, police said, when an unidentified man intervened and punched Gibson. The officer drew his gun and badge and told Miss Pellot and her defender they were under arrest.

At this point, a bus passed. From its window Robert Johnson, a correction department officer, saw the man holding the gun on the pair, and thought it was a holdup.

He jumped off the bus, shouting: "I'm a cop. Drop your gun."

Police said someone fired a shot, and both officers dived behind cars and began shooting across the street. Nine shots were exchanged before another off-duty officer came out of his nearby apartment and pistol-whipped Gibson and Johnson to give up their guns.

Then Miss Pellot was found lying on the pavement with a bullet wound in her stomach. She died after surgery at hospital.

Run Over by Train

FERLAND, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police reported a railway engine and 23 cars passed over a man Saturday while he was lying between the rails and the man suffered only minor injuries.

William Matinet, 36, of Ferland, was sent to hospital for treatment of a bruised shoulder and a few cuts. He was released.

Anti-abortion Ad Refused So Borowski Stages Sit-in WINNIPEG (CP) — Joe Borowski, former Manitoba agriculture minister, ended a 36-hour sit-in Sunday at The Tribune which began following a dispute with the newspaper about an anti-abortion photograph.

Mr. Borowski, whose career as an NDP cabinet minister was cut short three years ago because of his outspoken opposition to abortion, was escorted out of the newspaper offices at about 3:45 p.m. Sunday by Winnipeg police.

He and his wife and about eight others later set up a protest line outside The Tribune building in downtown Winnipeg and said they would continue their protest this morning.

The former minister, who has been an active member of a group known as Alliance Against Abortion, said the newspaper had refused to publish an advertisement prepared by the group.

A police spokesman said no charges had been laid Sunday night in connection with the sit-in.

The protest began late Saturday afternoon when Mr. Borowski refused to leave the building. He remained in the newsroom overnight after regular staff members had left.

Terrorists Feared

Israeli Soldiers Ring Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM (AP) — Church bells, prayers and tight security marked Christmas Eve today in the birthplace of Christ as Israeli troops checked every person entering the town in an effort to prevent Arab terrorism.

The army put up roadblocks on every route into hilltop Bethlehem, and from 6:30 a.m. today until 5 a.m. Christmas morning was admitting only pilgrims and tourists carrying passes from the Israeli government.

Armed soldiers patrolled outside the Church of the Nativity, built by the Crusaders on the site which tradition says was the location of the manger in which Jesus was born.

A desert bright-colored search beacon stood nearby in the garden of the Palace Hotel, where worshippers at the annual midnight mass were to be checked for guns or explosives.

The Arab mayor of Bethlehem and local Arab merchants complained that the security precautions reduced the number of tourists and were not necessary.

Security has been tight every Christmas since Israel captured Arab Bethlehem from Jordan in the 1967 war, but it was contended this year after a grenade attack Sunday in East Jerusalem wounded a girl in a party of Florida Baptists and a warning from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) that more tourists might be attacked.

Mayor Elias Frej, a Jordanian citizen, said the guerrilla threat was meaningless "because the Arabs—Moslem and Christian—respect Christmas. No Arab in this area would ever do anything to spoil Christmas.

"It is very quiet here and there is no need for all these precautions. I assure the people who come to Bethlehem that they will be completely safe."

But an aide of Premier Yitzhak Rabin said while it was customary for the Arabs to suspend hostilities during the Christmas season, "the PLO and its branches have decided to step up their terrorist activity."

The Israeli ministry of tourism predicted 13,000 holiday visitors for Bethlehem, twothirds of them for Bethlehem, but few were in town on the Monday. Souvenir shops—including the mayor's—were doing fine business.

"I have 60 beds but only 15 of them are booked," said the reception clerk at the Palace Hotel.

Arabs on Alert For 4-day Feast

BEIRUT (AP) — Three Arab armies were on the alert today to repel Israeli attacks as Moslems began celebrating their holiest days of the year.

Al Adha, the four-day Feast of the Sacrifice ending the Islamic pilgrimage to Mecca, coincided with the Christmas celebration west of the Jordan River in Bethlehem.

Meanwhile, Israeli jets shrieked over south Lebanon and broke the sound barrier over Beirut. Lebanese Premier Rashid Solh put the armed forces and other security units on the alert to repel invaders that antiaircraft gunners around Beirut did not shoot at the Israeli jets high overhead.

Olive farmers along the Israeli border reported an unusually large number of ground patrols on the other side of the fence.

Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon also were placed on the alert after the Palestinian guerrilla command reported Israeli naval movements off the coast.

Strike Looms Neared Ontario Rejects Demand of CSAO

TORONTO (CP) — Bargaining between the Ontario government and 36,000 members of provincial civil service unions as an impasse Monday as the provincial cabinet rejected the latest demands of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

Eric Winkler, chairman of the cabinet management board, said after a cabinet meeting Monday that the government was determined to negotiate within the framework of its last offer—an average 39-per-cent pay increase in a one-year contract.

The civil servants, whose latest demand was for 39 per cent over one year, have threatened an illegal walkout for Jan 1 if the dispute is not settled. Civil servants are forbidden by law to strike.

The group consists of "operating" employees, including those who handle highway snowplows and staff provincial jails and hospitals as well as doing manufacturing work such as food inspection and water analysis. Its current pay averages pay now is $179 a week.

The CSAO originally asked increases of 41 per cent in them but dropped the demand in stages to 39 per cent.

Mr. Winkler said he is still hopeful a strike can be averted and that he has the authority to call an emergency cabinet meeting if the situation warrants.

"I remain confident that a settlement can be reached before the end of the month and the illegal strike . . . can be avoided," he said.

"We are ready to take any reasonable and responsible step necessary to ensure that this happens."

He said in a statement that the two unresolved issues are the CSAO's insistence that any sal ary settlement be on the basis of a simple across-the-board percentage increase for all employees and the level of the wage increases themselves.

Within the framework of the 39-per-cent average, the government wants to give more to some employees and less to others.

Mr. Winkler said that conventional offers, limited increased an above-average increase in the light of salaries paid elsewhere for comparable work.

The cabinet minister repeated the government's willingness to go to arbitration if the issue is not resolved, a suggestion rejected earlier by CSAO bargainers.

He said the CSAO leadership can have a negotiated settlement for its members if it will recognize "that the public interest demands that, such a settlement be in the area of the government's fair and reasonable offer."

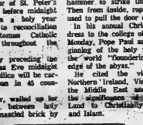
Silver Hammer to Fall On Holy Door Tonight

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul strikes a silver hammer on the holy door of St. Peter's Basilica shortly before midnight tonight to open a holy door dedicated to reconciliation within the Roman Catholic Church and throughout the world.



The ceremony preceding the annual Christmas Eve midnight mass in the basilica will be carried by television in 45 countries.

The holy door, walled up for the 25 years between Holy Years, was dismantled brick by brick last week, leaving only an outside layer for the Pope's hammer to strike three times. Then from inside, ropes will be used to pull the door down.

In his annual Christmas address to the college of cardinals Monday, Pope Paul said the beginning of the holy year finds the world "thundering on the edge of the abyss."

He cited the violence in Northern Ireland, Vietnam and the Middle East and stressed the significance of the Holy Year to Christianity, Judaism and Islam.

U.S. Steel Trims Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration has obtained a partial rollback of U.S. Steel's recent price rise and now is questioning an increase by the No. 2 steel company in the United States.

U.S. Steel Corp., responding to President Ford's criticism of the price increases in October and November, Monday trimmed the rise by about 20 per cent. U.S. Steel last Dec. 2 said it was boosting prices 4.7 per cent, but the company said Monday it would reduce the price hike to around four per cent.

Shortly before U.S. Steel's announcement, its biggest competitor, Bethlehem Steel Corp., said it was raising its prices about 3½ per cent to "bring them in line with the competition."

In Bengal, Harvest Time Means Death

New Crop of Rice Is Ready So Food for Penniless Cut Off

COOCH BEHAR, India (AP) — Along National Highway 31 in India's West Bengal state are thousands of emaciated, homeless peasants sit quietly and wait for death.

For three months, since floods washed away their bamboo homes and turned their fertile rice fields into sand and dust, they have been kept alive with a few hardened wheat pancakes distributed daily at government feeding centres.

Now the centres are being closed.

In the government's view, the food emergency is over, because it is harvest time in Bengal.

But for 40-year-old Satish Roy and 8,000 other people camped out in Rabarhat or further down the road at Palakhawa in Cooch Behar district, there is nothing to harvest.

They also have no money to buy the rice reaching the market from fields that were not in the path of the surging flood waters.

"I have nowhere to go," said Roy, the father of three children.

"My rice land is covered with sand. It cannot grow anything. What can I do?"

Roy had just learned the government mass-feeding kitchen at Baburhat was going to shut down.

"God only knows where we will get our food," he said.

Roy and the other destitute peasants, many wearing only tattered rags, live on a nearcircle field that the government allotted them for building temporary huts made of straw.

The camp is more than 1,000 miles from India's capital, New Delhi, where the government insists almost daily to Parliament that there are no starvation deaths in the country.

"Officially, there is no starvation," said a relief worker at the camp. "I'm not allowed to say it, but people are dying. It doesn't matter what you call it."

However, the Lutheran World Federation, which has organized emergency relief projects throughout West Bengal, said in a booklet: "There are large numbers of people in desperate need of assistance. Many of them are completely destitute. Among these groups, death by starvation is a common occurrence."

Disease is also a problem in many states. In Cooch Behar, cholera has struck thousands of people and at least 300 are estimated to have died. But officially there is no cholera.

"Instead of listing cholera as a disease, we are told to call it gastroenteritis or diarrhea or cholera-like," said one doctor.

No Approval Asked For Sale to Cuba

OTTAWA (CP) — The sale of $3 million worth of furniture to Cuba by a Canadian company remained uncertain Monday because of the influence of the United States Trading with the Enemy Act.

Last week there were reports that the U.S. had invoked the act to prohibit the sale by a Toronto-based subsidiary of Litton Industries Inc. of Beverly Hills, Calif.

However, a trade department official said Monday that the parent company has not applied to the U.S. government for an export licence for the sub-sidiary, Cole division of Litton Business Equipment Ltd.

"We have no reason to go after the U.S. government now," he said.

The department did have information however, that the subsidiary had been advised by the U.S. that it might run afoul of the act, he said.

Trade Minister Allistair Gillespie cancelled a scheduled statement Monday, but was expected to comment on the issue today.

Reports from Toronto, quoting Cole president W. J. Phillips, said the act had actually been invoked against the Canadian sale.

The act prohibits U.S. companies and subsidiaries from trading with several countries, including Cuba, without special exemption.

Mr. Phillips had said that Cole's U.S. parent was refused a licence to trade with Cuba and that an appeal was also rejected. To proceed with the sale would mean that Cole directors—all U.S. citizens and residents—might be fined or jailed up to 10 years.

Mr. Phillips said in an interview Monday night, followed the statement from Ottawa, that he still intends to pursue the deal with Cuba.

He said it was news to him that Litton had not made formal application to the U. government for exemption from the trading act.

The department did have information however, that the subsidiary had been advised by the U.S. that it might run afoul of the act, he said.

All-out War Looms In Tense Eritrea

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — Ethiopia's military rulers seemed prepared today for all-out war with guerrillas fighting for the secession of the northern province of Eritrea.

In hand-grenade attacks Monday on two crowded bars in the centre of Asmara, capital of the province, four persons were killed and 41 injured.

A government statement, read over Radio Asmara, said the military's policy of patience with the guerrillas had been interpreted as weakness. It urged the population to collaborate with the army in ending the protracted conflict.

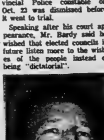
Seven Mohawks Cleared Of Disturbance Charges

Seven Mohawks from the Tyendinaga Reserve had all charges against them dismissed when they appeared in provincial court Monday.

Cleared of charges of obstructing a police officer in the performance of his duties during an Oct. 9 skirmish on the reserve were: Ted Maracle, Wilma Brant, Ada Maracle, Margaret Jean Maracle, Mildred Maracle and Mary Ann Sero.

Also cleared of a charge of loitering in a public place during the same Oct. 9 incident was Wesley Hardy. Mr. Hardy was to have been tried on Monday on an additional charge of assaulting a police officer but the charge was dismissed when it came up before Judge J. E. Clendenning.

In dismissing the charges against the five women and Cleil Maracle, a dissident Mohawk spokesman and councillor on the band council, Judge Clendenning said it couldn't be proved the six were "wilfully" obstructing a police officer.



He noted that the women were invited by Cleil Maracle to the special meeting called to discuss the signing of the lease with Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd. the company has set up a shoe factory on the reserve in September and its presence has caused controversy and friction on the reserve.

Judge Clendenning referring to Mr. Hardy's charge of loitering in a public place told the court in a lengthy statement that the definition of a public place didn't apply to the council room where the skirmish erupted as it was open only to Indian.

He said that Band Councillor William Brant's decision to take it upon himself to order the three constable to evict Mr. Hardy from the room after allegedly causing a disturbance was not provided for in any by-laws or regulations governing such action.

Because of the questionable definition of a public place, the charges against Mr. Hardy of assaulting an Ontario Provincial Police constable on Oct. 23 was dismissed before it went to trial.

Speaking after his court appearance, Mr. Hardy said he wished that elected councils in future listen more to the wishes of the people instead of being "dictatorial".

Family Gathers for Country Christmas

By MARG HAYDOCK
Staff Reporter

MILFORD — Christmas in the country begins at Way Rock Farms with a sleigh ride through the fields to find a tree for the holiday season.

Phoebe and Sam Way have celebrated Christmas in their distinctive brick farm house near MILFORD for the past 30 years. Their son, Laverne, a widower and his two children Elaine, 15 and Brenda 13, now share the holidays on the farm with selection of the tree as their special errand.

Mrs. Way recalls when her grandchildren were much younger they would watch for animal tracks as they rode through the fields in search of a tree. Dog prints because the marks of a bear or deer when they arrived back in the farm kitchen.

Christmas dinner at the Way farm is a family affair with the guest of honor usually a fowl raised on the farm and stashed in the freezer for the holidays.

Mrs. Way recalls holidays in former years when as many as 25 relatives would circle the table. Today many of the youngsters are married with children of their own and now celebrate Christmas in their homes.

This year Phoebe and Sam Way, Laverne their son and his children Elaine and Brenda expect to spend the holiday alone at the farm.

Mrs. Way, who broke her arm recently in a fall, may have been briefly concerned about holiday cooking but her family rallied to the occasion.

Granddaughters Elaine and Brenda cut up the fruit, dates and figs for her special fruit cake recipe and Laverne mixed the ingredients.

Each year Mrs. Way celebrates Christmas with a sleigh ride on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day.

Laverne is one of the most prominent horsemen in the Quinte area and for 20 years has led the Belleville Santa Claus parade on horseback.

Sleigh rides hold special meaning for Sam Way, who recalls the old days when neighbors would drive miles by horse and cutter on Christmas Day calls. It was unlawful to drive without sleigh bells and each set had its own distinctive ring.

Phoebe Way remembers the sound of the bells would always tell you who had just driven up.

As a young man, Sam Way would drive to Picton where he joined in horse and buggy races on Main St. East before the advent of the automobile.

Surprise Christmas gifts highlight the Way Christmases.

Just a few years ago a farm mare foaled unexpectedly just before Christmas. Laverne and Elaine kept it a secret and on Christmas morning invited the final into the living room as a gift for Brenda.

Mrs. Way notes gift-giving was a prominent part of Christmases and last presents were much different than they are today.

Most older relatives' knitted mittens and stockings as their presents

"The best of your gift would be a towel or a 25-cent pickle dish," recalls Mrs. Way.

"That was when you could buy somethiny for 15 or 20 cents," adds Sam.

Mrs. Way comments her uncle made a wooden duck for Laverne when he was a youngster and saved it as a Christmas surprise. Another year he fashioned a spring horse, probably the first steed Laverne ever rode.

Dalbie the "city folk" the Ways do not earn a day from work, but became its Christmas. There are still farm chores that must be done and stock to feed and water but in all part of Christmas in the country

A Christmas Wish . . . For All Ages

By AL XARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — It's that time of year again when Santa Claus wakes from a long sleep at the North Pole and begins to pack his sleigh with gifts children have requested for Christmas.

To help Santa decide what to bring children in Trenton, The Intelligencer talked to a group of youngsters at St. Peter's School to find out what they would like in find under their tree.

Some wishes Santa should know about:

Chris Darmack, 10, wants his favorite animal for Christmas — a pony. He says he'd feed it and let it all around and show my friends". If he doesn't get one, It's a gas-powered airplane that he wants to find under the tree at his grandmother's. At least as he can remember, the Grade 5 student said, his family has been going to his grandmother's house in Smithfield for Christmas dinner.

Mac Gannon says his mother has said he'll probably get what he wants for Christmas. However, he hasn't peeked into her hiding places to find out whether she has delivered. The 11-year-old hopes for a guitar. He likes its sound and wants to learn how to play.

Carcene Phillips, a 13-year-old Grade 8 student, said she wants a mini-bike. "You got to go anywhere and do anything with one," she said. Besides, her brother had one and she's not to be outdone.

Toys, that's what 10-year-old Craig Maxfield wants under the tree. Rock'em Sock'em Robots are at the top of his list.

Lisa Kelly, 10, gave old St. Nick two choices. A typewriter and a tape recorder. Even at her tender age, she's already thinking of a career, though she's not quite sure which one. The tape recorder? Well, she said she's like to record people talking.

Six-year-olds Michael Horsburgh and Vincent King are friends. Both the first graders say they want an Evel Knievel stunt-man motorcycle — Michael, because it smashes, and Vincent, because its fun. Young Vincent said he'd never try to imitate the American stuntman's tricks because he thinks they're dangerous. "I just like playing with it," he says.

Michelle Feyen, 10, says she hasn't really thought about what she wants under the Christmas tree. However, upon a moment's reflection, she said she might like a pair of skates.

Grade 3 teacher, Susan Rowbotham, had a different Christmas wish.

"A whole bunch of little angels in my room when I come back in January," she says. Every teacher's dream.

Hoping for Angels

Prisoners Homebound For Yule

WARKWORTH — Christmas Seals, the two wire fences encircling the Warkworth Medium Security Institution is by no means bleak but all the same, it is freedom, says prison director Robert Clark.

However, not all of the federal prison's 425 convicts will face this Christmas encarcerated. Just under 15 per cent of the prison's population will be home for Christmas.

Between Dec. 23-27,84 prisoners have been granted temporary absences for up to three days. Not all have been granted full 'holiday passes', but all will be unescorted by prison officials.

A much smaller group of criminals will spend Christmas at the homes of individual members of the prison staff.

Those remaining in the institution will have "more activities than usual" said Mr. Clark. On Dec. 25 several festive meals are planned, as are longer hours for visits by friends and relatives.

Susan Rowbotham doesn't want a lot for Christmas — just a class room full of angels. She is surrounded here by her grade three class.

Domtar Closed For 13 Days

TRENTON — The packaging division of Domtar Ltd. closed its doors today in the first day of a 13-day shutdown that affects 110 workers.

The majority of workers will be taking unexpected vacation. Others will be involved in general maintenance and clean up operations at the plant

Plant manager Frank McKenzie said the extended shutdown is unusual for the division. Normally, he said, the plant closes for 40-hour periods at both Christmas and New year's.

The move is Domtar's reaction to the shutdowns among many of its Ontario customers.

Influencing the company's action Mr. McKenzie said was its large inventory of corrugating medium paper used in the manufacture of cardboard boxes

Churches Open Tonight

PICTON — Christmas Eve services will be held tonight in several Picton churches.

At Picton United Church a special service with Holy Communion will begin at 9 p.m. led by Rev. Robert Sherwin.

The Church of St. Mary Magdalene will hold a Eucharist beginning at 11 p.m. On Christmas Day a Solemn Eucharist will be held at 9:30 a.m. Officiating will be Rev. Robert Stewart.

The United Pentecostal Church offers Wednesday mid-Christmas Day Rev. Frank Beaudrie will officiate.

The Bethany Christian Reformed Church of Bloomfield will celebrate Christmas Day with a special service at 10 a.m. led by Rev. H. Pransema.

At the Calvary Baptist Church Rev. Edward Angrove will lead the congregation in prayer and Bible study at 8 p.m.

Museum Doubles Attendance

PICTON — The Prince Edward County museum's opened in Picton in 1973 this year doubled attendance and is developing as a year around cultural centre.

Although many of the museum exhibits were removed for the season this fall the building remains open for special events such as the East Central Ontario Art Association's 16th annual exhibition.

The county museum, also formerly the church of St. Mary Magdalene, the oldest in Picton.

It was built between 1825 and 1827 on land donated by Rev. William Macaulay a Kingston — born clergyman who came to Picton as a missionary.

He was the son of a United Empire Loyalist and had been granted 200 acres of land in and near Picton.

Today, part of this property is retained as the Macaulay Mountain Site of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

The church built by Macaulay had become a county museum and last year Prince Edward County council purchased the old church rectory and surrounding property.

Balance Of Terror

The Mechanics Of The Arms Race And Of A Shaky Peace

BY JOHN D. HARKINS
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In case you had forgotten, with your worries about making ends meet, the arms race is still on, and it would appear from the discussion between President Ford and Mr. Brezhnev at Vladivostok, with his usual drive.

The new phase centres around the terrifying missiles (called MIRV—multiple warhead missiles) which outclass the older ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile) based in silos.

If a nuclear power is not equipped with the even more complex MIRV, it must fire at least two ICBM-style satellites for every MIRV to make what the strategists call a "high confidence" attack.

A single MIRV with six warheads could destroy three ICBMs of the enemy. The Russians and Americans are talking about each kind of parity in MIRV to be reached by about 1985.

The staggering cost of MIRV-generation missiles can be seen in the plans of the United States Navy to build 13 huge Trident nuclear - powered submarines (about the size of...large cruisers), with 208 MIRV-type missiles. Each of these supersubs will cost about $1.5 billions.

The Vladivostok agreement signed between the American and Russian leaders was all about parity in MIRVs. At present, the Russians have 1,410 silo-based missiles compared to 1,054 for the U.S.

The Russians can now go ahead and replace their ICBMs with MIRV multiple-armed missiles. This would give the Russians 4,700 to 5,000 "warheads" by the mid-1980s. The Americans can go ahead and replace smaller MIRV warheads as well as ICBMs for a similar total of 11,000 bigger MIRV warheads.

Are you still with me? If so, the critics of this latest agreement say it merely escalates an even more complicated nuclear arms race, raising not necessarily the chances of someone striking first, but what the New York Times calls "crisis instability."

It should be said that the Vladivostok agreement is based on an earlier one this year between former president Nixon and Brezhnev within the contexts of SALT II (strategic arms limitation talks).

Those talks deal more with the future building plans of the ICBMs and the possibility of keeping MIRV missile construction at what the experts call "a low ceiling".

Somewhere in-between the SALT II discussions last spring and the MIRV talks in Vladivostok this fall, the shift was made from one kind of missile capable to another.

Also implicit in the Vladivostok agreement is the possibility either side might develop yet more sophisticated MIRV missiles as they proceed to build up their strength in these towards 1985.

Arguments about buying too much or too few missiles are hopefully assessing the capability of the present ICBM stage, according to the experts. This also continues.

Remember the manned jet bomber versus the intercontinental ballistic missile controversy which raged...in North American military circles as far back as the late 1950s and early 1960s?

The manned bomber experts won that fight, as defence ministries in Canada will remember. In 1958 the Diefenbaker government junked the Avro Arrow project partly because it was convinced the missile had already outclassed such fancy airplanes.

Well, Mr. Diefenbaker was wrong on that count. Five years later with all those ICBM silos going up, the Americans were flying new aircraft not very different from the doomed Arrow.

The arrow has proved to really haven't changed much since then.

A Year Of Economic Disaster

BY VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When have you last seen a year like this one?

To be utterly frank about it, 1974 has been the worst year in economic terms—that the younger half of the Canadian population has ever experienced.

To be even more utterly frank about it, many people in the older half have never had it so bad either.

Before this year is finally filed and forgotten (which is the only decent thing left to do with it), consider some of the things that made 1974 a nothing year for the economy. It's a list.

—Economic activity, after reaching a peak in the first quarter of the year, stopped growing altogether. This was the economic standstill we've since since third-quarter 1980, when the Trudeau government launched its campaign to check inflation—and succeeded, temporarily.

—Inflation reached an annual rate of 12 per cent as measured by the consumer price index, which is one of the more conservative ways of gauging it. Canadians (and Britons), given to make sure they appear to you make sure they appear in the spotlight.

Never sign a promissory note to a senior citizen pensioner. Or to one 30 years unless it is marked "Consumer Purchase Note" which means that if the note is assigned to a third person, that person will not have the right to collect payment from you if you have a dispute with or defaults on his part of the bargain.

This, but definitely not least, read and understand the terms of any major credit contract before signing.

point since the recession of 1970—but if the decline in the Canadian dollar is taken into account, stocks are at their lowest valuation in a much longer period.

—Organized labor won wage settlements that have never been matched. The federal government directed that its employees in Ottawa-Hull, Vancouver workers 20 per cent more. A substantial number of major unions demanded and received so-called escalator clauses designed to increase their wages in proportion to each monthly rise in the consumer price index—over and above the usual pay hikes, of course. Improvement in labor productivity, meanwhile, has dropped at 1.8 per cent a year.

The energy crisis was transformed from a short-term technical problem into a permanent fixture. Artificial scarcity and a major inflationary factor. Political leaders in Ottawa and Washington reacted to it with a mixture of fabrication by the oil companies. Energy policy stumbled along in a series of shortsighted, thoughtout measures.

Nobody knows about a depression, if it does come: Have you ever noticed that that's when all the best boxer bow, without?

Flora MacDonald Opens Some Old Political Wounds And Thereby Jeopardizes Leadership Chances

BY RICHARD JACKSON
Thomson News Service

OTTAWA - Flora MacDonald, two-term Conservative MP for the Eastern Ontario riding of Kingston and the Islands has been given a dandy demonstration of how to risk ruin of the back - if remote - chance any woman has had of becoming Canada's first Madame Prime Minister.

Be attractively trim 48-year-old Cape Breton redhead did have the chance — however slim — and how slim, might still have it, to make it to the federal powerhouse in Parliament Hill's East Block.

For it is taken for granted by all concerned, and there is pretty clear evidence that she has said to herself, that she will be contesting the Conservative leadership when Robert Stanfield steps down sometime next year.

And if she should, surprisingly, win that demanding political prize of leader of Her Majesty's Official Opposition, there have to be odds, however long, that she could, conceivably go on to win it all, that pot of gold at the end of the rainbow of politics which lies at the door to the Prime Minister's office.

But that is all conecture.

What is not conjecture is that she has been cut on the West Coast and obviously had a little heart to heart talk with the three well-read chatterbox who write for the Vancouver SUN, Allan Fotheringham, resident pundit of British Columbia's lower mainland.

Following what clearly was their Bible tete-a-tete Fotheringham records ..."you may be sure the Cape Breton girl with the legendary energy will be one of the candidates for leadership".

Then together they let it all hang out in such a way as to:

Open all those old wounds among the frequently feuding Conservative clans.

Alienate the party's increasingly powerful right wing Orange and Defenbaker loyalists who still, after all these years and elections, remain in good supply.

Upset those who've gard for many party president Dalton Camp as an interfering Toronto trouble-maker.

Remind a small but tightly knit bloc of Kingston voters, the guards and other employees at the five federal prisons there, that she won't exactly see eye-to-eye with them on crime and punishment.

That is a good day's work, however you look at it, in the cause of those, and there will be many, contesting the leadership against her.

It was back in 1956 when Flora MacDonald wandered into Conservative headquart ers here, was hired, stayed this years with the operation by the time John Diefenbaker, then former Prime Minister but still party leader, abruptly fired her.

"It was Flora and her Maritime Mafia, Dalton Camp and the others who engineered the dramatic leadership review for the Vancouver SUN, Allan Fotheringham, resident pundit of British Columbia's lower mainland.

Following what clearly was their Bible tete-a-tete Fotheringham records ..."you

"Tonight Flora MacDonald was quite a team. Dalton, the apostle, debonair Toronto adman by way of New Brunswick, with his scheming and elegant speech-writing Flora, the indefatigable organizer with her fingers on key Tories in every province."

Then retold is THE GLORE AND MAIL'S Geoff Stevens' tale of how "Camp gathered his anti-Diefenbakers in Kingston to lay the strategy for the overthrow of The Chief. Flora's job was to contact tories to determine how many delegates Camp could count on.

"Bell Canada grew alarmed about this unmarried woman who had taken a Kingston apartment and run up bills of $500-$700 in long distance calls. It took some explaining to convince (Bell) that Flora indeed was not indulging in some type of business."

The little joke of it with Flora in Vancouver made it clear she works with the "progressive" wing of the party which does not want to see Conservatism "fall back into the hands of the blimps" which is the way, apparently, that the Tory left regards the right.

It all comes out that, as the Toronto Star's Flora was always a busy girl. For inbetween the anti-Diefenbaker plotting and her election to Parliament, as one of the founders of the superbalkanization and anti-democratic Committee for an Independent Canada, she ran the organization herself.

But put it all together, and Flora MacDonald is still the only Canadian woman with her sights set on the Prime Ministership. It is a distant possibility, or make it improbability, of scoring the power bull's-eye

The Objections To Busing In U.S.

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

One American city after another gets its turn in the headlines because of violence and violence over the issue if school busing. Currently it is Boston's turn. Eight schools there have been closed since Dec. 14 as the result of eruptions of violence.

The easy way to explain what happens is in terms of black resistance to the principle of busing, ostensibly, is to help break down the de facto racial children daily to school in white areas. In some cases this may mean taking white children on buses to schools in black neighborhoods, to make room for more blacks that are being bused.

We doubt that it is all that simple. Most parents, without regard to skin color, have concern for what they think to be the best interests of their children. Many parents simply believe it can be better for the child to ride a bus for a school miles away than it is for him to a block or two to the school in his neighborhood.

It is hard to imagine anything like the busing plan happening in Canada without being put in effect here. Suppose, for example, that the Trudeau government were interminicipal understanding. Metro Toronto's taking control of education should decree that 1,000 pupils in Etobicoke must be taken by bus every day to school in Cambridge, while the same number are bussed from Cambridge and sent to Kitchener.

Some of us would object that all this was a waste of time. Some would object to it as a waste of money. Some would object to the idea that children dislocated from their neighborhood environment, and the added traffic on the board of education was daft...

It is unlikely that many parents in Boston have the same natural resistance to busing as the white anti-white issue is there on the surface, the influence some of the more prejudiced, but undereath there must be protest, without regard to race, against the unnatural trucking of children for political reasons.

The normal place for a child to attend school is at the school nearest his home. There has to be a good reason to justify doing otherwise. To a normal parent, racial politics will not seem a good reason.

Parole System's Flaws Disturbing

Editor
The Intelligencer:

It is the time to re-assess our attitude as regards parole, and the granting of leave of absence to criminals generally.

The police have to apprehend these people in the first place, they are put "safely" behind bars, then along comes a well meaning body of people who release them once more.

In the end we get a tragic finale like the one we recently had in New Brunswick.

I feel it was shocking to hear an official refer to one of the suspects in the murders, obviously a slip of the tongue engendered by hate and grief.

I have given much thought to the people in the corrective and prison population, and have arrived at very few fixed opinions about them. However convinced that many of them could more fittingly be confined in institutions designed for the criminally insane.

It is indeed a difficult task to try to decide which of them it is safe to liberate, even to a limited extent, and this decision very clear to me - there is need for a great deal more care in this matter than is at present apparent.

BILL HOCKLEY

CHRISTMAS 1974

We live, in a sense, in a dark age. Our vocabulary reflects these strange and fretful times. Pollution . . . abortion . . . obscenities . . . women's lib . . . the child-battering syndrome . . . alienation . . . feedback . . . nitty-gritty . . . the educational process introduces upon the consciousness.

Kooks and fans still wear mini-skirts and other and violence stalks the streets of Ulster . . . violence spawned by evil minds and twisted politics — as it does many of the cities of the United States where it is the product of rootlessness and an often harsh environment where only the fittest survive. And, in so many places, the ultimate horror: terrorism, in which the innocent suffer and its perpetrators gain spurious fame and even recognition.

There is alarming, not only of the sexes, in an immoral and unstable universe, it is getting more difficult also to differentiate between the good guys and the bad guys. For supposedly good guys among nations, such as Canada, on the one hand are helping to maintain peace, while on the other they are affording aid and comfort to some of the exponents of terrorism overseas — in the misguided belief they are furthering some great and noble campaign of "liberation."

But meanwhile, amid isolated areas called reserves, native people in Canada live an often hopeless existence.

* * * * * * *

Other trials press upon us: hunger, aggravated by crop failure and a host of other problems of catastrophic change in world climate and where this country is concerned, an ice age. Populations are decimated. And the moral issue is, must we — can we — limit them? And if so, how? And are perpetuating the problem of over-population and of peoples and countries unable to help themselves? And ultimately, depleting such stocks of food as are available?

Says the agriculture minister of this country: "We cannot feed the world." Yet the problem cannot be ignored — something must be done. Help these needy people to help themselves but that makes sense, for often the problem is one of ignorance among people and inepiness among governments, in places where education is scant and where leadership, if it exists at all, is invariably is corrupt.

Should we, in these circumstances, also work to subvert governments, with which we disagree, as in South Africa, but which nevertheless provide a measure of order and stability that others, with which we play along, as in other parts of Africa, do not?

Is there not work enough at home, to be done in the interests of Canadians — in the realm of jobs and social services, where both young and old are concerned? Teenagers, senior citizens, pensioners — are we working to provide a better life for them?

* * * *

In these permissive times, many are finding that what they need most, is not so much variety, licence, "games" that people are said to play — with all their potentially destructive consequences — but a reason to love within a stable family framework, together with the restraints and discipline that go with it.

Abortion, once a course of last resort, usually for reasons of health, today is so commonplace it is now one of the main means of birth control. And often without compunction, or remorse, without thought of the life that could have been, of the potential flesh and blood so coldly and arbitrarily snuffed out.

George Gilder, in one of the most significant books of this era, his analysis, calls the rampant new approach to sex without love, and without recourse to the traditional tenets of procreation, "sexual socialism".

And where any effort at birth control breaks down, as it does on occasions, or where a decision is made to have a child, there is the problem of the insecure upbringing, parental neglect — if the two parents remain in the picture as all — minimal family ties, helplessness, and despair.

* * * *

These are some of the more perplexing signs of the times. But in the midst of them brotherhood and order of a sort do remain. The scriptural message as ever stands as a shining light. The birth of the Christ child in the stable long ago and the record of that time, in the pages of the Bible, in words graceful and authoritative, and in the music and literature that have been created around that most memorable of world events — amid these are the elements of divine purpose for this world.

Irate Wives Blast Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I was 1,000 other irate females who were furious when you sided with the husband who requested the fact that his wife was receiving mail addressed to Mrs. Mary Smith. He said her name was "Mrs. John Smith"—that he wasn't divorced yet.

Why people try to force my husband's name on me—"Mrs. Warren Smith"—I tell them that my name is not Warren. My mother named me Ruth.

As a woman who refuses to shed herself my husband's name, but rather buries him, as sexual bondage, I have also dropped my given maiden name and replaced it with my maiden name. — Ruth

I'm glad I married a mature man who doesn't insist that I were his name like a piece of branded beef. He respects me as a person with my own identity. I am—Truly Liberated.

Dear Like You and at least about it, be smart enough to

Christmas Is Corn

"When some of the older boys pulled the tree away, they got the sap and had it other standing upright, hand in hand. Neeley looked more like a baby than ever with his bewildered blue eyes and the fatness of his skin made more noticeable because of the red scratches.

"Dad, they were smiling. Had they not won the biggest tree in the neighborhood?

"It wasn't easy dragging that tree home . . . Papa had to help them get up the narrow stairs . . . Johnny was so excited that he started singing 'Holy Night!'

"Then, crowded open and families gathered on the landings, pleased and amazed at the something unexpected being added to that moment of their lives.

— from a Tree Grows in Brooklyn,

By Betty Smith.

Christmas is here — and we're glad it is!

What other time of the year do you get the opportunity to shake the hand of a stranger without being locked up? Are you're crazy? When else do people on the street extend a sincere greeting to you with a hearty "Merry Christmas!" And don't you delight in the way the merchants take such an extra-personal interest in what you're buying?

Over the course of a long year of love and sympathy can be built up inside of you and there is a better time to let it all out than Christmas when friends drop over for a spot of Christmas cheer, relatives from far away come home, for the holidays and neighbors you've only seen across the yard come to the door.

And even though it's hectic, timeconsuming and expensive, who begrudges searching high and low to get that special present for that special person? And is it worth it when you see his face light up?

Of course there are many who spend the Christmas season bemoaning the fact that they haven't enough for them. To them, we have two words: Bah Humbug! — probably the only two we married and raise a family because it increases their tax deductions.

Don't let those cynics and sour-pussers ruin your Christmas spirit. Christmas has been around for a long time and has been celebrated by millions of people. They can't all be wrong.

Christmas: Corny? Perhaps. Wonderful? You better believe it.

— Robert Knight, in TV Showtime.

Thanks, Bob, for putting into words what we have been feeling.

recognize it as a symptom of a deeper problem which needs to be resolved.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter could have come from one of thousands, so I'm not afraid of being recognized, and I'm asking you to please print it.

My husband is a great father, a wonderful father and terrific grandfather. He is also a lousy lover. Harry turns the conversation to "When I was in the service." He's talking about World War Two, Corsica, and it doesn't take a therapeutic genius to figure out that was over 30 years ago.

I know all Harry's war stories by heart, and so do all our friends and relations. Of course, it keep my mouth shut and let him go on and talk his fool head off, but he's a terrible bore. My cure?—Wed to a Broken Record

Dear Wed: Probably not. These days were the most exciting in his life and nothing has happened since to equal them. But here's an idea that you might work: Buy Harry a camera and encourage him to take pictures of the grandkids. He can then at least have people to share his snapshots and a new subject.

Dear Ann Landers: I am engaged to marry a wonderful fellow. He gave me a beautiful diamond ring just recently. The stone looks very much like the one he gave the girl he was engaged to before me. I asked him if it was and he denied it. I don't believe him.

When I show my ring to friends, I get some very funny looks. I keep wondering if they recognize it from his previous engagement.

Right now the ring is in my pocket. I'm not enjoying it. What should I do?—Hocus

Dear Hocus: Level with your fiance and ask him to exchange the ring for another one. If he has a very difficult time saying yes, but you won't be content until he does this for you.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope my letter will be printed so that you can't reword it and use it in some column. My former problem is one that millions of women still suffer from. I hope I can help them through you.

For 10 years of marriage I had a very difficult time enjoying sex. Most of the time it was a "duty." (Lack of satisfaction and orgasm) so my husband's feelings wouldn't be hurt.

Several months ago I confided this to my new gynecologist father having been told by two others that my "problem" was "all in my mind, stupid." A simple surgical procedure was performed and I'm now completely normal. It just changed my sex life completely. Now I need no longer pretend. The enjoyment is real. I'm so happy about the change in my life that I want to shout it from the housetops but of course, I can't. But you can. Thank you!—Reborn

Dear Re: Your problem was at least in part physical, since the dorsal clitoral nerve is involved. The decision should be made by a gynecologist, however, as to whether the problem is physical or psychological. If it is a problem which, in most cases, is psychological,

CP Poll:

Margaret Trudeau 'Newsiest Woman'

BY JOHN LEBLANC
The Canadian Press

Margaret Trudeau was the newsiest Canadian woman of 1974.

The prime minister's wife, whose activities as an election campaigner, psychiatric patient, photographer and on again - off again magazine writer provided enough material for a two-act, displaced Daryl Plumpire in the annual poll of editors who rank women's news for daily papers and broadcasting stations.

Mrs. Trudeau, the centre battling chairman of the food prices review board and last year's St. Lambert town mayor Jean Drapeau, finished second to Mrs. Trudeau this year as the over-all news personality but was an easy winner over Mrs. Trudeau in the field of public affairs.

Rising prices were the second-runner choice of editors as the women's-interest story of the year, with women's rights trailing far behind. Margaret Trudeau's shock publicized breakdown and a couple of votes for third place.

In other areas, Pauline Jewett was the runaway winner in literature, art and publication. The former Liberal MP for Northumberland-Miramichi, now a New Democrat Adrienne at Large, and also picked up three votes as woman of the year.

The women's editors agreed with sports writers on the woman athlete of the year, selecting diver Beverley Fleming. Cox and ignoring swimmer Wendy Cook of Vancouver, who was the choice of the sports specialists.

In the over-all balloting, Pauline McGibbon, appointed Ontario lieutenant-governor during the year, ran third and also was given the same spot in public affairs behind Mrs. Trudeau and Mrs. Plumpire.

Laura Sabia of St. Catharines, Ont., chairman of the Ontario Status of Women Council and an articulate voice on behalf of women's rights, followed Mrs. McGibbon and was just ahead of Barbara Frum.

Miss Jewett and Carol Taylor, a CTV-TV personality, were the only others to get more than a single vote, one nomination mentioning that Miss Taylor rated because of a much-quoted interview with Margaret Trudeau.

A surprise nominee was Irene Murdock, the Alberta woman whose suit to get half her husband's farm in a separation was thrown out by the Supreme Court of Canada in 1973. The case's publicity has been cited as a turning point leading to later judgments more favorable to wives.

"She seems to be one of the people who suffer but causes others to have it easier," wrote one editor. "Many chances have been made in property, settlement."

Another honorable who sprang into the national spotlight overnight, Ursula Appollonar of Toronto, got a vote for accomplishing the defeat of David Lewis, national leader of the New Democratic Party, in York South in the July 8 federal general election.

Single votes also went to Dr. Bette Stephenson of Toronto, who becomes the first woman to be appointed to the Ontario cabinet; Mrs. Ethel Wilson, Victoria author, who died at 96; Mrs. Jean Casselman, Ottawa author and broadcasting station.

Personal Job Satisfaction More Important Than Pay

WINNIPEG (CP) — Personal satisfaction is considered more important than a high salary or job security by women and high school students, says a survey conducted by the women's bureau branch of the provincial government.

The report disclosed that job enjoyment received the most support on a questionnaire distributed in a local high school and in homes in a designated area determined to portray a stable working community.

Although more than three-quarters of the women interviewed earned less than $2.26 an hour at semi-skilled or unskilled jobs, and a large percentage of the high school students were undecided about their working future, job satisfaction received the highest priority.

Women's bureau Director Mary Eady said the area chosen represents an accurate cross-section of the work force.

"Incomes are not high. Just over 31 per cent of annual family income range from $5,000 to $10,000, and the community lacks many of the educational and recreational facilities existing in most other areas, but community pride and co-operative spirit is high."

Mrs. Eady said the objective of the survey was "to develop a profile of social services needed for women in a geographically defined area" and to discover and concerns affecting women.

The questionnaire requested information regarding wives' income, educational levels of husbands and wives, need for child care, and types of work desired. A selected segment of the questionnaires investigated attitudes toward employment, work and family relationships.

A substantial portion of the women interviewed expressed a desire to return to the work force either on a part-time or full-time basis.

Of the 25 per cent of women at home who voiced intentions of returning to the work force, 75 per cent wanted part-time employment Most of the women questioned were between 20 and 49 years of age.

More than 66 per cent of the replies indicated women believed they must work to supment the family income for essential household goods. More than 50 per cent thought women were equally suited for managerial, professional, or administrative po- while equal pay for equal work received the overwhelming support of 88 per cent.

Mrs. Eady said the report will provide valuable information to deal with the problems facing women in "modern society."

It will be of value "to us in assessing how we can best serve women to the women themselves in judging how much support they can expect from their colleagues in the community and in government, and to prospective employers to indicate that women expect of working conditions now."

A Very Tall Tree!

Kay Pape puts the final touches on the Pape family Christmas tree. An important part of their annual celebrations, Mrs. Pape says the tree symbolizes the include memories of family trips, toys the children had when they were small, and gifts from special friends.

This Season of Good Cheer Has Its Gloomy Side Too

In spite of Christmas carols and Santa Claus, crimes and squabbles continue, according to some officers on Belleville's police force.

Although Christmas Day itself may be quiet — it usually is, say men who have worked that shift — the surrounding days are rife with shoplifting, petty theft, break-and-enter cases, drunken driving and family disputes.

The reason for these blots on the season's record is a combination of many things, say the policemen.

Money is a chief factor.

There's pressure to buy expensive gifts, there's knowledge that many businesses have more cash on hand than usual, and there's the fact that stores are so crowded that shoplifting is easier.

"I don't have statistics to prove it, but we all recognize that there's more shoplifting during this season," says Constable Bill Brock.

There's a lot of theft — Christmas lights and that kind of thing — and a surprising amount of malicious damage to property."

Another reason, the police are kept busy is booze.

"Alcohol is our number one trouble all year," says Constable Dave Thomas. "I'd say that it's the basis for 80 per cent of assault cases."

And too much "Christmas cheer" means that the police get called to all sorts of unhappy situations — fights, accidents, and driving mishaps.

The combination of too much drinking and family get-togethers that the season demands can be a particularly dangerous one, in Inspector Ralph Blatchford's estimation.

At the heart of this holiday is the belief that it's a time of family harmony.

"If a disagreement does occur, the discord can be heightened by the feeling that it's the worst possible time for this to happen.

"Violence is more apt to erupt in this tense atmosphere, especially if there has been drinking. Not only that, but a family fight will have further reaching results, for two reasons," says Inspector Blatchford.

"At Christmas there are more family members around to get involved in an argument. Also, there can be bitter feelings that people haven't lived up to what's expected of them."

Inspector Blatchford points out that these domestic disputes — often over something like how much money has been spent — are not the "usual Friday night fights" that take place all year long in some homes.

In fact, just the opposite is true of the Christmas quarrels requiring police intervention. Families ordinarily can find that economic and social pressures can lead to frayed tempers. Unaccustomed to battles, in alarm they phone for police assistance.

"Our role here is not to charge anyone with an offence, but just to get things patched up. We're peacemakers in these situations, that's all," Inspector Blatchford says.

Another holiday-related problem is drunk driving. Although some police may be lenient on first offenders who've committed a minor misdemeanor, with drunken drivers they cannot, ever afford to be "easy". The common plea "But officer, it's Christmas!" falls on deaf ears if the driver's breathalyzer test proves that his reflexes and judgement are impaired by alcohol.

There are some things though, that don't happen at Christmas time. For instance say the police officers, they don't have to deal with run-away children at this point in the year.

"It's a solid kind of a day." Christmas will be a very special family day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pape, too. Son Andrew will be home from the National Ballet School with a break from his Nutcracker Suite performance joining Derek, Michael, Robert, Stephen, Douglas and Angela.

After a Christmas service and a turkey dinner complete with carving podium, the family will gather around a tree which is decorated with mementoes the family has collected in years of travel.

Christmas Is a Family Day

By SHARON AIKHART

Above all else, Christmas Day is a quiet time, a family time, a time set apart from weeks of money spending and hurry and worry.

For many area families, in fact, it's a time with only one emphasis - spending the day together.

"The kids like to be with their family on Christmas," Ray West says. "They'd be disappointed if we did anything else."

Mrs. West says the family enjoys the same ceremonies every year; opening gifts and a never-changing turkey dinner.

"I might like to change the dinner some time but the kids would be disappointed."

The West's like to observe one more tradition:

"We do like to remember it's Christ's birthday."

For the Foot family, the holiday begins with the same religious emphasis.

"We shall go to Mass in the morning and then we shall open our presents and then we shall have the normal turkey dinner," Joss Foot says.

Children Jane, Richard and Douglas love the dinner and the family's traditional dessert - mince pies and Bird's custard.

"A family walk in the afternoon and tea with a traditional English Christmas cake completes the day.

"We just keep that day to be with the children," Mrs. Foot says. "It's really the children's day."

Family activities are the emphasis, too, for the Marten Lewis family. Nancy and Marten Lewis and their children Leslie, Jan and Jonathon will spend the day at their Lonsdale home having a "pretty traditional quiet day".

Mr. Lewis says the family never goes away for the holiday.

"We'll probably stuff ourselves and open presents and go cross-country skiing in the afternoon," he says.

This something special every year and it's the very same every year.

Fireplace Safety

Christmas safety involves more than proper tree selection and care, safe use of lights. The fireplace can be a hazard anytime, but it is especially so at christmas.

Despite the cozy, warm picture artists and poets paint of "stockings all hung by the fireplace with care," the Safety League does not recommend this practice if you also intend lighting a fire. Keep all wrappings away from the fireplace and don't throw paper into the fire.

If you use manufactured fire logs in your fireplace remember to use only one at a time. Add a second log only when the first has burned out. Many of these logs manufactured are made of compressed paper and wax and will remain burning for hours. They should be placed at the rear of the fireplace.

Holiday or Not, Police on Beat

By ISABEL HUGGAN

What's it like to be a cop at Christmas?

It's just another working day for the men and women who elect to work the December 25 shift.

The members of Belleville's police force are able to choose between Christmas and New Year's, by signing up on a duty roster in the early part of the month. Happily, it works out pretty evenly, so that officers who want to be with their families are able to do so.

"But even if you're off duty you can never really relax," explains Inspector Ralph Blatchford. "If something happens, you know you'll have to leave.

"During the year, that's okay, you're used to it. But when the family is all ready to sit down to dinner and you have to go, that's a different matter. You're only human, you have that happen once, and you'll always expect it to happen again."

There are other unpleasant aspects of police work this season, not least the task of dealing with offenders during what's supposed to be the season of charity and love.

"Personally, I find myself in a little more hostile in those cases where I know a warning will do," says Constable Bob McAlpine.

Constable Dave Thomas agrees, and adds that rigid law enforcement is tempered by other consideration.

"You ask yourself who's going to suffer if the offender is jailed or fined. The family, right?

"So if it's a first offence, and a minor one, I may deliver a lecture instead. You sort of hate ruining a family's Christmas," he says.

Constable Bill Brooks says that one good side to the season is that people seem to be a little friendlier. However, the force is cautioned to regulate the degree of friendliness they accept.

In other words, the days of presents for the police are over. There's too much awareness today of "payola", no matter how innocently given.

"Oh, we can take something like this," says Constable Bob Hinze, holding a silver metre stick "or apples, or that kind of thing. But that's the limit."

Working the Christmas shift is very like working on Sunday say the officers. Most people are at home, the streets are quiet, there are few calls and the day drags by.

"But you never know what the next call is going to be," says Sergeant Bill Ashton. "Christmas is like any day in that respect. It's totally unpredictable."

Tree Care Tips

If you are one of the thousands of traditionalists who prefer a natural Christmas tree, the Ontario Safety League has a few pointers for you.

Check the needles of your tree for dryness. If they are brittle and do not bend without breaking, or if they are already falling off, the tree is too dry. It is a fire hazard.

Before installing the tree, re-cut the base diagonally an inch or more above the original cut. This provides a greater area of porous wood to absorb water. Stand the tree in a container large enough to allow a water level above the base of the cut. Check daily and maintain this level as long as the tree is in use.

A tree that is fresh when you bring it indoors can last up to three weeks. It is a good idea to check the tree's twigs and needles from time to time for flexibility. If there is any sign of lessened flexibility, remove the tree at once.

Place the tree in a spot away from both sources and appliances. Make sure that it is not blocking traffic and could be used in case of fire.

Choose and place your decorations wisely. Use only fireproof decorations and be sure that you do not place them on or too close to lights. The only CSA certified lighting equipment (and that includes any reflectors you might wish to use) bears the CSA mark. Check any lights and make sure that every wire and socket is in working order.

Never use lights on your tree unless they are in good condition and don't leave the lights burning unattended. Try to make sure that the light bulbs are not touching needles.

Ontario Safety League also reminds people using non-table trees this Christmas not to place lights directly on the tree. This can be a shocking experience. In direct lighting with spotlight is just as attractive and much safer.

The lights you use are most important. There is considerable difference between indoor and outdoor equipment. Outdoor lights, for example, will withstand extreme weather and temperature changes and they tend to last. They are not intended for indoor use.

Make sure, too, that you are using waterproof extension cords for your outdoor displays, and, when replacing bulbs on both indoor and outdoor light be sure to unplug the unit first.

Enjoy your Christmas tree — safely!

Wally Firth Represents Land's Largest Constituency

OTTAWA (CP) — Wally Firth, the New Democratic Party MP for the Northwest Territories, represents Canada's largest constituency. Covering 1.35 million square miles, more than one-third of the entire country, it consists of about 40,000 Indians, Inuit Metis and white people.

Metis himself, Mr. Firth, a 39-year-old bachelor, talked recently about the problems of representing the 22 odd communities he speaks for in the House of Commons.

"I estimate the time needed to visit all those communities once is six months. If you want to spend a day in each one, that's 35 days. Then there's travel in between and that's not always easy in the Arctic. Weather systems are rough and it can change pretty fast."

Wally Firth

"Walking a week or 10 days for weather to change in one community is not uncommon. Some of the people in the smaller villages may just as well be distracted under the present system."

To counter this problem Mr. Firth proposes creation of a second federal riding in the Northwest Territories.

"I have been working on that ever since I came here in 1972. I've introduced three private member's bills to try to create a second constituency."

This idea does not form part of a new bill to increase the size of Commons members but he hopes that during the debate he will get some response from the government on the issue.

With support from the Liberal and Progressive Conservative associations of the Northwest Territories as well as his own party and a resolution in favor from the territorial council, he is hopeful that change will come in time for the next federal election.

Splitting the vast riding would do much to ease the communications problem, especially if the new MP were multilingual, since at least 10 languages and dialects are in common use throughout the North.

(A second Northwest Territories seat was included in government plans announced in December, to bring the number of Commons seats to 282 from the present 264 in time for the next election.)

Mr. Firth disagrees with Judd Buchanan, the minister of Indian and northern affairs, who has said the recent Quebec James Bay settlement will act a model for future native land claims. The James Bay Indians were negotiating under extreme pressure, he said, and he does not wish to see this pattern repeated in othr areas.

Although he does not see the same degree of pressure in the North that was exrted in James Bay, it worries him.

"It's troublesome when you don't know exactly what is happening or what is planned know the business, people born and raised in the reindeer station area. They should be encouraged to build up the herd and use it as a n o n - d o m e s t i c source of meat."

He expressed disappointment that little had been done in the field of food or transportation subsidies for the North, where high shipping costs mean extra food bills.

"Nutrition is the basis of good health and it would cut down medical bills."

He said education of native people is a factor in the solution of northern problems and results so far are not as good as they could be.

"Emphasis should be placed on job-training on vocationally - oriented courses. This would help in employing people."

People with potential for the professions should be put on wages.

"I think money spent on areas like that is money invested. We make people employable and over the years they pay that back by working and paying income tax."

Provincial status is less of an issue in the Northwest Territories than in the Yukon but Mr. Firth said the question should be studied because "I have a suspicion that we are paying a large part of our way right now."

Duck Lake Crumbling Outpost Of French Language West

DUCK LAKE, Sask. (CP) — A healthy local economy has not prevented this community of 600 from becoming another crumbling outpost of the French language in Saskatchewan.

Two-thirds of the 225 names in the telephone directory are French, but the almost-universal language for business and social dealings now is English.

The majority of residents still are bilingual, town officials report, but their small children are growing up without French.

"None of my grandchildren speaks French," says Mayor Alex Barbeau. "All of my children do."

The older generation he says, has not made enough effort to ensure that the language is passed on to new generations.

"It's guys like ourselves who are partly to blame because we don't see any importance to it."

Town Administrator L. C. Perret agrees:

"My mom and dad always speak French to my little daughter and that's the reason she understands it. I think I never speak French to her."

The fact that all forms of communication, from television to business correspondence, are in English tends to discourage use of French, the officials say.

Provincial laws require council minutes to be kept in English and council proceedings are conducted in that language.

Mr. Barbeau, an automobile dealer, says that "every bit of correspondence that comes through my office, be it in the Chrysler line or the insurance line or the gasoline line, it's all English."

That situation influences Mr. Perret when he considers the question of whether he would like his children to go to a school that provided half of its courses in French.

"I'd like to see my daughter learn French to speak it and write it but to take all those other subjects in French—when she comes out of there and she wants to go to university or something what's she going to do?

"Or if she wants to take a job, what's she going to do? A person has to think of this."

If she wanted to work in French, "the only place she could go to work is Quebec."

Mr. Barbeau is also concerned about the effect French instruction might have on education:

"If you were to conduct classes to try and teach an equal amount in French and English, I think it would slow down the pace considerably." LAUGH AT MERTH

They say the decline of French has also been influenced by the fact that half the town's population is of Metis origin and some people have made fun of their accented French, making Metis persons self-conscious about using it.

The officials say there are a few persons in the town trying to keep French alive, through such activities as bilingual bingos, but they are not getting wide support.

Yet, says Mr. Barbeau the future of the language in Saskatchewan depends to a large extent on such Francophone groups, "how much effort they put behind this and how much they can convince governments."

"It's a costly thing to teach biculturalism. If governments come across with more money to teach French, it may not die away."

The problem facing the French language in Duck Lake is general across the province, says Andre Lalonde of the University of Regina cultural centre.

He recently told a convention of French cultural groups that the survival of French culture in the province is in jeopardy as never before.

"Culture to me is a way of life. If you take away the language, which is your day-to-day means of communication . . . then what are you left with? Just the shell, the folklore."

For Duck Lake, says Mr. Perret, it may already be too late to prevent the disappearance of French.

"This is possibly something that may happen, maybe, maybe not, the next generation or the generation after.

"And at the time the people of our generation will be gone and it probably won't make any difference then.

"It might just fade out."

Medical Team Taught Survival

EDMONTON (CP) — Twelve nurses and doctors will be better prepared when they fly into remote northern areas in British Columbia this winter after taking part in a four-day survival course at Alberta's Blue Lake Centre.

The medical personnel, from the department of national health and welfare and based in isolated centres in B.C., were joined by staff from the Edmonton public school board, Edmonton boys' clubs and the Alberta education department.

The course is a regular feature of instruction at the Blue Lake Centre, operated by Alberta's department of culture, youth and recreation.

Participants spent three nights in high country learning how to build signal fires and shelters, eat snares, recognize edible vegetation and survive in the wilderness on reduced rations.

National health and welfare's involvement in the course was requested by the officials of the British Columbia division concerned about the safety of staff flying into remote areas in B.C. north of such points as Alert Bay, Tofino and Telegraph Creek.

The Blue Lake Centre is 20 miles northwest of Hinton near Jasper national park.

Sydney Opera House Talk of That Town

SYDNEY, Australia, (AP) — The orchestra pit is too erratic. And the whole enterprise is substantially in the red.

But Sydneysiders, as the people who live here are called, remain ecstatic about the Sydney Opera House, nine year old and among the most talked-about arts centres in the world.

The bright white building with its sail-like roofs rising above Sydney Harbor—which means there's no space for a parking lot around it—had presented grand opera, a ballet dressing competition, rock concerts and symphony orchestras in the last year.

Guided tours of the building are booked up months in advance, and Sydney cultural circles are convinced that the house attracts people who have never attended musical and theatrical events before.

More than 2½ million today have attended performances, concerts, lectures and other events in the opera house. During a 17-performance opera festival in January all seats were on a non-subscription basis and all were sold out.

Practical problems persist, however, with the $120-million building, which opened Sept. 28, 1973, with the Australian Opera's performance of Prokofiev's War and Peace. Some, like the air conditioning gremlins, will be cleared up soon but others are more serious.

"One of the worst problems is the orchestra pit in the opera theatre," general manager Frank Harrison said in an interview. "It now accommodates about 60 players, but you need 80 to 85 for a big-scale opera like Aida."

The proscenium opening in the 1,530-seat Opera Theatre is only 45 feet, which also causes problems for operas with big casts.

Aida will be presented in January and because of the pit difficulty the opera will have to be in the 2,700-seat Main Hall. That makes the Main Hall unavailable for its usual concert events.

Barnes said the opera house is looking for ways to expand the opera theatre pit. Some of the musicians may wind up eventually with places under a stage overhang.

Barnes also said the building's dramatic design leaves "a lot of little corners and things" that are too small for studios or offices and must be wasted.

"But the building itself is such an attraction you accept these things," he said. "We hope now we've got over the impact of the building itself and can turn now to concentrating on the impact of the performances that go on here."

The opera house shares a problem with many other arts centres—if ticket prices are kept reasonable, even full houses can't bring a profit. A special lottery raised funds for the building's construction but now money from the state of New South Wales must be used to keep the state-owned paint in business.

The opera house was built amid fierce controversies over design and cost overruns. Its original architect was Jorn Utzon, a Dane, and construction started in 1959. But Utzon quit in 1966 in a row with local officials and engineers over construction techniques and work was completed under a panel of Australian architects.

CHRISTMAS

MAGIC

People in business, myself included, are not inclined to put much stock in "magic", possibly because most days involve just plain hard work, not supernatural happenings. This being true, it always amazes me when, in spite of what I believe, I see magic in operation.

Once a year, around December 25th, some intangible thing invades the minds of people in Belleville and causes them to exhibit very interesting behavior. They walk up Front Street loaded down with parcels, smiling and shouting cheery greetings to everyone they meet. Everyone is caught up in the friendliness and good will that accompanies the Christmas season.

Perhaps it isn't magic. Perhaps this goodness is always there, but is accented by the events that take place at Christmas. Whatever the case, it is indeed wonderful. It shows people that it is not old-fashioned to be neighbourly even in a city that has grown as large as Belleville.

On behalf of everyone here at Rollins Construction, I wish you and yours sincere greetings of the season. Thank you for many pleasant associations throughout 1974.

YOURS SINCERELY,

Maurice Rollins

Toys Still Top List of Every Kindergarten Student

By JIM SHELLE
Staff Reporter

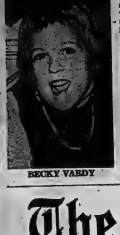
Christmas is the time of year that appeals to all age groups. Here's what a group of kindergarten children from Enid Malcolm's class at Queen Victoria School answered when asked what Christmas meant to them and what they would be doing that day.

Lawrence Norman: "On Christmas you go in bed early and open your presents when you wake up in the morning. I want to get an Evel Knievel toy and a Big Jim for Christmas."

Paul Gourley: "Christmas is Santa Claus. I want to get a Big Jim and a G.I. Joe and Spiderman and Superman and Batman. On Christmas, you open presents and then you're happy."

Grant MacFarlane: "On Christmas you eat your breakfast fast and then open your presents. This year my dad is going to let me decorate the tree and I'm going to do my own Christmas stockings. I want to get an Evel Knievel giant car and a stand-up 3D." Becky Vardy: "Christmas means fun. I want to get a Barbie Doll and a Raggedy Ann doll too. On Christmas my mommy and daddy come down the stairs and I scare them."

Stephen Tanner: "On Christmas I want to get a Frankenstein toy. I won't be scared at it. On Christmas you wake up and open your presents but I hope to meet a peek at them before that."



Stewart Grant: "This Christmas my dad's going to buy a tree and he's going to let me help him carry it. I want to get a Lone Ranger toy and a G.I. Joe. My brother has a bicycle but I don't have one and would like him to have one. On Christmas my Grandpa comes down the stairs to get our presents and then my brother and then I do."

Kim Reid: "On Christmas I'm going to wake up, eat my breakfast and then open my presents. I'm going to open them before Santa Claus brings them. I want to get a toy stove and toy fridge and a couple of dolls, I don't know what kind yet. On Christmas I'll help do the dishes with my sister and maybe..."

Christmas Forecast: Sunny

Christmas in the Quinte district may be a little cooler —but balmy weather won't be weakly crisp and even.

As hundreds of people begin arriving for the traditional happy holiday home time, signs of a while Christmas still clung closely to the area despite mild, spring temperatures. But the usual touch of biting, frosty weather will be missing from most of the holiday setting.

Intermittent light snow was predicted today. But no more than mild temperatures — 40 degrees the high for Christmas Eve, forecast the CFB Trenton weather office.

Christmas Day will be slightly cooler — the high about 32 degrees — and generally pleasant.

Boxing Day should see occasional rain with temperatures in the high 30s.

By road and rail people were on the move toward family reunions in the Quinte district.

Canadian National passenger office in Belleville reported this morning its services have been heavily travelled since late last week, today and Boxing Day when extra trains sections will be added on regular runs.

Voyageur Colonial bus offices reported exceptionally heavy inquiries and expected extra buses would be put into service.

Meantime, at home more city and district people than ever will be "talking long-distance to friends and families, Bell Canada estimated Monday.

Bell estimates its communications system will handle about 48,000 outgoing direct dial long-distance calls from the area Christmas Day. This compares with 42,000 last Christmas.

Night Before Christmas

While visions of sugar plums dance in their heads, six-year-old Kathy Cooper and her eight-year-old brother, John, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cooper of Mikel Ave., expectantly wait by the fireside for Santa Claus after hanging up their stockings.

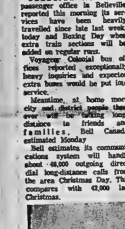
Pets Seldom Forgotten Come Christmas Morning

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

If you're looking for a gift for your favorite St. Bernard this Christmas, city pet stores have the ideal item, it's an 88 rawhide bone.

Gifts for pets are big sellers at Christmas and Christmas stockings for dogs, cats and birds are available in the stores. The week before Christmas a pet store is a madhouse as people, most of their shopping done, suddenly remember to pick up a little something for their pets.

"I would rather see people buy a puppy before or after Christmas," said the manager of Pet Stop at the Belleville Plaza. "There is so much confusion at Christmas that sometimes the new puppy is neglected."



The owner of Tropical Gardens on Front St. and the manager of Quinte Pet Shelter concurred and added animals should never be bought on impulse. Tropical Gardens said it is selling quite a few birds as Christmas gifts, agreeing to keep them in the store until Christmas Eve.

Aquarium kits also are a popular seller at Christmas. Tropical Gardens said it finds the 10½ gallon size, at $28 complete, the most popular.

Fish 'N Critters says it finds gift certificates popular with customers. It's easier in set up an aquarium and stock it with fish in the fall following Christmas Day, and recipients can use the certificate to buy the fish of their choice.

Neither pet store makes a feature of kittens. They sell them for $2 to $5 — just enough to cover the cost of their food while in the store. The Humane Society has a few litters are born in the fall but there are few born in the fall in time to be available for Christmas giving. The Humane Society charges $2 for a shorthaired kitten and $3 for a longhair.

A Christmas puppy from the Humane Society costs $16. For Belleville residents, the cost of a dog tag is added. Purebred puppies, complete with papers and shots, cost about $150 at pet stores. Both pet shops have a small selection with poodles the best sellers. Mongrels are available, at a considerably lower cost.

Standoff

Some lucky person will find this eight-week-old Welch Corgi under his Christmas tree this year. Ordered as a Christmas present, the pup finds a $5.99 rawhide bone more than he can handle. Bones are popular gifts for owners to give their pets and come in all sizes, to suit any breed from toys to mastiff. |

Freak Accident Injures Driver

A Quebec truck driver is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital after a freak accident in which the blade of a fan in the engine flew off and struck him in the foot.

Andre LeTour, 36, of St. Leonard, Quebec, provincial police here said, was driving his tractor-trailer westbound on Highway 401 about 7.30 p.m. when the incident happened.

Investigating officer OPP constable Gary Roberts said Mr. LeTour had heard a noise and felt a pain in his right foot and pulled his vehicle to the shoulder of Highway 401 about a half-mile east of Wallbridge Rd. to investigate.

The driver then found a pool of blood on the floor of his cab. Constable Roberts said and found that the blade had cut right through his big toe leaving a two or three - inch gouge in his right foot.

Constable Roberts said it appeared the fan blade on the vehicle which sits almost directly below the seats shot right through the protective covling.

Ban Forces Protesters To Change Poll Location

By HARRY HULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA — Dissenting Mohawks readying for a Christmas week referendum election appeal here have obtained a ban against using a community polling place.

Originally, they had called the Dec. 28 plebiscite for the reserve community centre. They were recently ruled out of the centre by Chief William Brant, head of the reserve's elected local government.

Now say referendum organizers, they have decided on an alternate polling location. Instead of the community centre, the plebiscite will be taken in a mobile home erected near a main traffic route — Highway 49, which runs through the western acreages of the reserve.

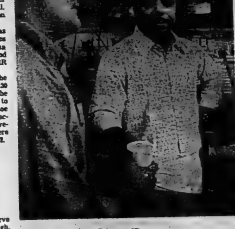
The trailer will be located at the Mohawk Gas Station, say spokesmen for the Mohawks opposing Chief Brant and the elected council. Vote will be taken between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The referendum asks the Mohawks if they want another election of the elected council still has one year to serve of its two-year term.

Results of the referendum will be sent the Indian Affairs department in Ottawa.

Announcement of the new site came after seven Mohawks were acquitted in provincial court in Belleville Monday of charges linked to the running and involving the elected council and its opponents here. The controversy sparked by incorporation of an industry on the reserve.

In their statement, spokesmen for the opposition group said they feel the judgment "will serve to further intensify" efforts of the corporate structure on the reserve, and placement of "fair and just" people on the local council.



Meantime, Chief Brant said he has been told by Indian Affairs officials a council by law against trespassing on reserve — owned property will be before the privy council in Ottawa this week.

Damage Heavy

Damage totalled about $2,000 following a three-car collision Monday night on Highway 2 near Montrose Rd.

Two passengers in one car, of Sidney St. in Trenton, were treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital. The drivers, Steven Sprachlin and Mrs. Fay Naugler, Ct. Mrs. Sprachlin as well as the other two drivers, Charles Robert Cook 49 of Catalina Dr., RR 3 in Belleville and Claire Marie Kirby, 39 of RR 3 Belleville were not injured.

Provincial police said the mishap occured about 7.30 p.m. Monday when one of the three vehicles stopped to make a turn onto Montrose Rd. and caused a chain reaction with the other two vehicles. All three cars were awaiting east on Highway 2.

Many Still Work Christmas Day

by CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter.

Christmas will be just another day for a lot of Belleville workers in essential services like fire and police protection and for many industrial plants and services for their fellow citizens.

While most businesses and services do their best to give their staffs a holiday, in some cases it is impossible. City firefighters, for instance, will be working regular hours over the holiday.

City and provincial police will likely be busier than usual carrying out checks for drinking drivers, particularly during nighttime hours.

One service that will not be operating either Christmas or Boxing Day is the city's transit commission. No buses will run on either day, but taxi service will be available.

At Belleville General Hospital, the administrative staff will get the day off, but those concerned with patient care will remain on duty.

The city's ambulance service make an effort to allow married staffers to enjoy Christmas with their families, but crews will be standing by in case of emergencies.

Most of the city's service stations will be closed Christmas day and some Boxing Day as well. Self-serve gas bars will be open though, with reduced hours.

For those who plan to dine out on Christmas Day, the choice will be limited. Many restaurants and hotels will close and a call ahead is advised. If they are open at all, in some cases it will be later in the day.

And, of course, Intelligencer reporters will be on duty to provide coverage for the Boxing Day edition.

On Duty

Among the establishments to be open for business Christmas Day is M and M Restaurant, which boasts it is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 day a year. Proprietor Gus Angelatos will be serving coffee as usual Christmas morning, as well as dispensing other wares, just as he is here to a passing truck driver.

First Canadian Christmas

Four members of the Joao Pinto family will spend their first Christmas in Canada this year. Mr. Pinto, right, has been in Belleville five years, but his wife, two daughters and a son only arrived last August. They are, left to right, Jose Luis, 13; Maria Liviasco, 16; Marcia Lucinda, 18, and Mrs. Balbina Pinto. |

Canadian Christmas New Experience

For Joao Pinto and his wife, Balbina, the best Christmas present they could get this year would be word from Portugal that their 19-year-old son Antonio, can join them in Belleville.

Antonio now is learning to be a mechanic in Portugal, and all that is keeping him there is the Portingese military service law. Arrangements are being made, however, and the Pintos look forward to seeing their son soon.

Joao Pinto has been in Canada for five years, but his wife and three of their five children have only been here since last August and this will be their first Canadian Christmas.

It will be quite different from the Christmasses they remember a their native village of Parafila in northern Portugal.

Christmas in Portugal is a combination of Christianity and conviviality. Gift-giving is only incidental and is usually restricted to young children, Mr. Pinto said. A Portugese tradition is a big fish dinner served Christmas eve, followed by attendance at Midnight Mass.

Christmas Day begins with mass for most Portugese families, followed by a round of visiting and entertaining, with lots of things to eat and drink.

This year the Pintos will celebrate Christmas in the Canadian way, complete with tree and gifts.

Another daughter, Maria, 22, will not be with the family for Christmas. She, too, is in Portugal in the fourth year of a six-year course leading to a degree in medicine.

The three children in Belleville are Maria Lucinda, 18, who attends Loyalist College and works part-time at the Four Seasons Hotel; Maria Liviasco, 16, attends St. Michael's Academy and also works part-time at the Four Seasons, and Jose Luis, 13, a student at St. Michael's.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pinto are Four Seasons employees now, but Mr. Pinto's first jobs in Canada were in construction.

Now, with Christmas nearly here, Mr. Pinto looks forward to having his family together in their own home on Octavia St.

Friends Make Christmas And All the Other Days

Like everything else, Christmas is what you make it.

But what it is, really, is the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ.

It is, a holy day.

Sure, we've let ourselves get away from the true meaning of the day.

There are, however, some great happenings this time of year.

It's a time for good will; the desire for the well being of others.

If any are to be pitied this season that makes it very special; other than the birthday mentioned above, it is the re-establishment of friendships.

If any are to be pitied it is those who do not know the meaning of friendship.

Of course, there are friends and there are FRIENDS.

Many of you will know what I mean by that.

To have a friend is to have everything.

Two families in the city have had sorrow enter their Christmas.

But the meaning of FRIEND will have even more impact to the Boyle and Mortimore families.

Tragic accidents are bitter.

At this time of year, they are especially so.

Both Keith Boyle and Ray Mortimore had more than a passing attachment with sports locally.

Bobcat coach Bob Boyle lost his father.

Even now the bereaved are receiving comfort from friends and FRIENDS alike. And there is indeed comfort in the sharing of a burden of grief.

Your compassion is never lost on anyone.

Christmas does not always bring happy recollections.

It should bring a time for sober reflection and the opportunity to remember the enjoyment brought to us in other years by those who are no longer with us.

Thankful we should be for the time we had with family and FRIENDS.

We are afforded the opportunity of knowing them during pleasure from their company, and loving them.

What will you make of Christmas?

Wasn't it Bing Crosby who used to croon something short "It's not the things — at Christmas; it's the things that things you do as a through"?

May yours be happy, peaceful and a very rich source of enjoyment and contentment. And may it serve as a spur to make the whole year something special for you and yours.

You owe it to yourself.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Ready for Winter Games Volleyball

You Can't Hold Back Central Ontario Girls Squad

The girls of Central Ontario have overcome quite a few obstacles to prepare themselves for the Ontario Winter Games in Thunder Bay December 27-30.

The team was a last minute idea and therefore was rather hurried and makeshift in its constitution. Most of the stronger and more experienced girls of the region had graduated secondary school or are over the 20-year-old age limit, thereby leaving the talent basically confined to 17-year-olds. The girls haven't had as much time to practise together as some of the other regional teams travelling to Thunder Bay and therefore have had to cram a couple of months of workouts into seven or eight sessions.

Along with all of those, this is the off-season for secondary school volleyball and, unlike the Toronto or Western Ontario leagues, the girls of Central Ontario have no place else to play at an organized level than in the highschools.

Nevertheless, the girls have forgotten all those things and overcome the geographic obstacles as well, to practise and be a part of the representative club of Central Ontario.

"I think the only thing that might hurt us," said coach Barb Smith, "is the fact that we haven't been able to work out together as much as our opponents."

Barb, a volleyball coach at Moira Secondary School, was selected to guide the girls by the Ontario Volleyball Association representative of Central Ontario. For the team's manager, Sally Cartwell, of Trenton, was chosen.

"These are very talented girls," said the coach, "they will represent the area well."

Her team consists of Lynda La Morre, from Trenton, Kathy Dabney, from Peterborough, Vicky Ball, from Oshawa, Pat Lynch, from Trenton, Fiona MacGregor, from Whitby, Kathy Lee, from Madoc, Barb Wormald, from Belleville, Betty Bax, from Peterborough, Marla Taylor, from Trenton, and Karen Burt, from Bayside.

The girls have travelled to Belleville every weekend since the first of December for double practice sessions.

"They've worked hard," said coach Smith, "I think they'll do all right."

The team plays a round robin against the five other regional squads on December 27 and then, based on two points per win, playoff according to their position in the standings on December 28.

Central Ontario Boys Team Could Be Threat

There are many sports already flourishing in the heavily populated area of Western Ontario that are just now being recognized in the Central Ontario area.

One such sport is volleyball.

The Central Ontario region — classified Region Four by the Ontario Volleyball Association — is just now making its mark on the volleyball scene. Entered in the Ontario Winter Games though, the five other Regions of the province should not be taking the talent of Region Four for granted, at least in boys' competition.

"Central Ontario is really behind other areas in volleyball," said Carman Donato, representative for Region Four for the Ontario Volleyball Association, "but I think after the Games people in the area will begin to look at the sport in a more serious light."
